16 And when the cherubims went, the wheels went by them: and when the cherubims lifted up their wings to mount up from the earth, the same wheels also turned not from beside them.[c]

17 When they stood, these stood; and when they were lifted up, these lifted up themselves also: for the spirit [2]of the living creature was in them.[d]

CHAPTER XI.

The presumption of the princes. 4 Their sin and judgment. 13 Ezekiel complaining, God sheweth him his purpose in saving a remnant, 21 and punishing the wicked. 22 The glory of God leaveth the city 24 Ezekiel is returned to the captivity.

MOREOVER the spirit lifted me up, and brought me unto the east gate of the LORD'S house, which looketh eastward: and behold at the door of the gate five and twenty men; among whom I saw Jaazaniah the son of Azur, and Pelatiah the son of Benaiah, princes of the people.[j]

2 Then said he unto me, Son of man, these are the men that devise mischief, and give wicked counsel in this city:

THE RIVER CHEBAR, THE SCENE OF EZEKIEL'S VISION.

18 Then the glory of the LORD departed from off the threshold of the house, and stood over the cherubims.[e]

19 And the cherubims lifted up their wings, and mounted up from the earth in my sight: when they went out, the wheels also were beside them, and every one stood at the door of the east gate of the LORD'S house; and the glory of the God of Israel was over them above.[f]

20 This is the living creature that I saw under the God of Israel by the river of Chebar; and I knew that they were the cherubims.[g]

21 Every one had four faces apiece, and every one four wings; and the likeness of the hands of a man was under their wings.[h]

22 And the likeness of their faces was the same faces which I saw by the river of Chebar, their appearances and themselves: they went every one straight forward.[i]

3 Which say, [3]It is not near; let us build houses: this city is the caldron, and we be the flesh.[k]

4 ¶ Therefore prophesy against them, prophesy, O son of man.

5 And the Spirit of the LORD fell upon me, and said unto me, Speak; Thus saith the LORD; Thus have ye said, O house of Israel: for I know the things that come into your mind, every one of them.[l]

6 Ye have multiplied your slain in this city, and ye have filled the streets thereof with the slain.[m]

7 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Your slain whom ye have laid in the midst of it, they are the flesh, and this city is the caldron: but I will bring you forth out of the midst of it.[n]

8 Ye have feared the sword; and I will bring a sword upon you, saith the Lord GOD.

9 And I will bring you out of the midst thereof, and deliver you into the hands of strangers, and will execute judgments among you.[a]

10 Ye shall fall by the sword; I will judge you in the border of Israel; and ye shall know that I am the LORD.[b]

11 This city shall not be your caldron, neither shall ye be the flesh in the midst thereof; but I will judge you in the border of Israel:[c]

12 And ye shall know that I am the LORD: [1]for ye have not walked in my statutes, neither executed my judgments, but have done after the manners of the heathen that are round about you.[d]

13 ¶ And it came to pass, when I prophesied, that Pelatiah the son of Benaiah died. Then fell I down upon my face, and cried with a loud voice, and said, Ah Lord GOD! wilt thou make a full end of the remnant of Israel?[e]

14 Again the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

15 Son of man, thy brethren, even thy brethren, the men of thy kindred, and all the house of Israel wholly, are they unto whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said, Get you far from the LORD: unto us is this land given in possession.

16 Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Although I have cast them far off among the heathen, and although I have scattered them among the countries, yet will I be to them as a little sanctuary in the countries where they shall come.[f]

17 Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; I will even gather you from the people, and assemble you out of the countries where ye have been scattered, and I will give you the land of Israel.[g]

18 And they shall come thither, and they shall take away all the detestable things thereof and all the abominations thereof from thence.[h]

19 And I will give them one heart, and I will put a new spirit within you; and I will take the stony heart out of their flesh, and will give them an heart of flesh:[i]

20 That they may walk in my statutes, and keep mine ordinances, and do them: and they shall be my people, and I will be their God.[j]

21 But as for them whose heart walketh after the heart of their detestable things and their abominations, I will recompense their way upon their own heads, saith the Lord GOD.[k]

22 ¶ Then did the cherubims lift up their wings, and the wheels beside them; and the glory of the God of Israel was over them above.[l]

23 And the glory of the LORD went up from the midst of the city, and stood upon the mountain which is on the east side of the city.[m]

24 ¶ Afterwards the spirit took me up, and brought me in a vision by the Spirit of God into Chaldea, to them of the captivity. So the vision that I had seen went up from me.[n]

25 Then I spake unto them of the captivity all the things that the LORD had shewed me.

THE word of the LORD also came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, thou dwellest in the midst of a rebellious house, which have eyes to see, and see not; they have ears to hear, and hear not: for they are a rebellious house.[a]

3 Therefore, thou son of man, prepare thee [2]stuff for removing, and remove by day in their sight; and thou shalt remove from thy place to another place in their sight: it may be they will consider, though they be a rebellious house.

4 Then shalt thou bring forth thy stuff by day in their sight, as stuff for removing: and thou shalt go forth at even in their sight, [3]as they that go forth into captivity.

5 [4]Dig thou through the wall in their sight, and carry out thereby.

6 In their sight shalt thou bear it upon thy shoulders, and carry it forth in the twilight: thou shalt cover thy face, that thou see not the ground: for I have set thee for a sign unto the house of Israel.[p]

7 And I did so as I was commanded: I brought forth my stuff by day, as stuff for captivity, and in the even I [5]digged through the wall with mine hand; I brought it forth in the twilight, and I bare it upon my shoulder in their sight.

8 ¶ And in the morning came the word of the LORD unto me, saying,

9 Son of man, hath not the house of Israel, the rebellious house, said unto thee, What doest thou?[q]

10 Say thou unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; This burden concerneth the prince in Jerusalem, and all the house of Israel that are among them.[r]

11 Say, I am your sign: like as I have done, so shall it be done unto them: they shall [6]remove and go into captivity.[s]

12 And the prince that is among them shall bear upon his shoulder in the twilight, and shall go forth: they shall dig through the wall to carry out thereby: he shall cover his face, that he see not the ground with his eyes.[t]

13 My net also will I spread upon him, and he shall be taken in my snare: and I will bring him to Babylon to the land of the Chaldeans; yet shall he not see it, though he shall die there.[u]

14 And I will scatter toward every wind all that are about him to help him, and all his bands: and I will draw out the sword after them.[v]

15 And they shall know that I am the LORD, when I shall scatter them among the nations, and disperse them in the countries.[w]

16 But I will leave [7]a few men of them from the sword, from the famine, and from the pestilence; that they may declare all their abominations among the heathen whither they come; and they shall know that I am the LORD.[e]

17 ¶ Moreover the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

18 Son of man, eat thy bread with quaking, and drink thy water with trembling and with carefulness;[f]

19 And say unto the people of the land, Thus saith the Lord GOD of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and of the land of Israel; They shall eat their bread with carefulness, and drink their water with astonishment, that her land may be desolate from [1]all that is therein, because of the violence of all them that dwell therein.[g]

20 And the cities that are inhabited shall be laid waste, and the land shall be desolate; and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

21 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

22 Son of man, what is that proverb that ye have in the land of Israel, saying, The days are prolonged, and every vision faileth?[h]

23 Tell them therefore, Thus saith the Lord GOD; I will make this proverb to cease, and they shall no more use it as a proverb in Israel; but say unto them, The days are at hand, and the effect of every vision.[i]

24 For there shall be no more any vain vision nor flattering divination within the house of Israel.[j]

25 For I am the LORD: I will speak, and the word that I shall speak shall come to pass; it shall be no more prolonged: for in your days, O rebellious house, will I say the word, and will perform it, saith the Lord GOD.[k]

26 ¶ Again the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

27 Son of man, behold, they of the house of Israel say, The vision that he seeth is for many days to come, and he prophesieth of the times that are far off.[l]

28 Therefore say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; There shall none of my words be prolonged any more, but the word which I have spoken shall be done, saith the Lord GOD.[m]

5 Ye have not gone up into the [5]gaps, neither [6]made up the hedge for the house of Israel to stand in the battle in the day of the LORD.[c]

6 They have seen vanity and lying divination, saying, The LORD saith: and the LORD hath not sent them: and they have made others to hope that they would confirm the word.[m]

7 Have ye not seen a vain vision, and have ye not spoken a lying divination, whereas ye say, The LORD saith it; albeit I have not spoken?

8 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Because ye have spoken vanity, and seen lies, therefore, behold, I am against you, saith the Lord GOD.

9 And mine hand shall be upon the prophets that see vanity, and that divine lies: they shall not be in the assembly of my people, neither shall they be written in the writing of the house of Israel, neither shall they enter into the land of Israel; and ye shall know that I am the Lord GOD.[n]

10 ¶ Because, even because they have seduced my people, saying, Peace; and there was no peace; and one built up [7]a wall, and, lo, others daubed it with untempered morter:[o]

11 Say unto them which daub it with untempered morter, that it shall fall: there shall be an overflowing shower; and ye, O great hailstones, shall fall; and a stormy wind shall rend it.[p]

12 Lo, when the wall is fallen, shall it not be said unto you, Where is the daubing wherewith ye have daubed it?

13 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; I will even rend it with a stormy wind in my fury; and there shall be an overflowing shower in mine anger, and great hailstones in my fury to consume it.

14 So will I break down the wall that ye have daubed with untempered morter, and bring it down to the ground, so that the foundation thereof shall be discovered, and it shall fall, and ye shall be consumed in the midst thereof: and ye shall know that I am the LORD.[q]

15 Thus will I accomplish my wrath upon the wall, and upon them that have daubed it with untempered morter, and will say unto you, The wall is no more, neither they that daubed it;

16 To wit, the prophets of Israel which prophesy concerning Jerusalem, and which see visions of peace for her, and there is no peace, saith the Lord GOD.[r]

17 ¶ Likewise, thou son of man, set thy face against the daughters of thy people, which prophesy out of their own heart; and prophesy thou against them,[s]

18 And say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Woe to the women that sew pillows to all [8]armholes, and make kerchiefs upon the head of every stature to hunt souls! Will ye hunt the souls of my people, and will ye save the souls alive that come unto you?[t]

19 And will ye pollute me among my people for handfuls of barley and for pieces of bread, to slay the souls that should not die, and to save the souls alive that should not live, by your lying to my people that hear your lies?[u]

20 Wherefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold,

I am against your pillows, wherewith ye there hunt the souls [1]to make them fly, and I will tear them from your arms, and will let the souls go, even the souls that ye hunt to make them fly.

21 Your kerchiefs also will I tear, and deliver my people out of your hand, and they shall be no more in your hand to be hunted; and ye shall know that I am the LORD.[a]

22 Because with lies ye have made the heart of the righteous sad, whom I have not made sad; and strengthened the hands of the wicked, that he should not return from his wicked way, [2]by promising him life:[b]

23 Therefore ye shall see no more vanity, nor divine divinations: for I will deliver my people out of your hand: and ye shall know that I am the LORD.[c]

THEN came certain of the elders of Israel unto me, and sat before me.[d]

2 And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

3 Son of man, these men have set up their idols in their heart, and put the stumblingblock of their iniquity before their face: should I be enquired of at all by them?[e]

4 Therefore speak unto them, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Every man of the house of Israel that setteth up his idols in his heart, and putteth the stumblingblock of his iniquity before his face, and cometh to the prophet; I the LORD will answer him that cometh according to the multitude of his idols;

5 That I may take the house of Israel in their own heart, because they are all estranged from me through their idols.

6 ¶ Therefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Repent, and turn [3]yourselves from your idols; and turn away your faces from all your abominations.

7 For every one of the house of Israel, or of the stranger that sojourneth in Israel, which separateth himself from me, and setteth up his idols in his heart, and putteth the stumblingblock of his iniquity before his face, and cometh to a prophet to enquire of him concerning me; I the LORD will answer him by myself:

8 And I will set my face against that man, and will make him a sign and a proverb, and I will cut him off from the midst of my people; and ye shall know that I am the LORD.[f]

9 And if the prophet be deceived when he hath spoken a thing, I the LORD have deceived that prophet, and I will stretch out my hand upon him, and will destroy him from the midst of my people Israel.[g]

20 Though Noah, Daniel, and Job, were in it, as I live, saith the Lord GOD, they shall deliver neither son nor daughter; they shall but deliver their own souls by their righteousness.[p]

21 For thus saith the Lord GOD; [6]How much more when I send my four sore judgments upon Jerusalem, the sword, and the famine, and the noisome beast, and the pestilence, to cut off from it man and beast?[q]

22 ¶ Yet, behold, therein shall be left a remnant that shall be brought forth, both sons and daughters: behold, they shall come forth unto you, and ye shall see their way and their doings: and ye shall be comforted concerning the evil that I have brought upon Jerusalem, even concerning all that I have brought upon it.[r]

5 Behold, when it was whole, it was meet for no work: how much less shall it be [2]meet yet for any work, when the fire hath devoured it, and it is burned?

6 ¶ Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; As the vine tree among the trees of the forest, which I have given to the fire for fuel, so will I give the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

AGAIN the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, cause Jerusalem to know her abominations,[c]

3 And say, Thus saith the Lord GOD unto Jerusalem; Thy [4]birth and thy nativity is of the land of Canaan; thy father was an Amorite, and thy mother an Hittite.[a]

4 And as for thy nativity, in the day thou wast born thy navel was not cut, neither wast thou washed in water [1]to supple thee; thou wast not salted at all, nor swaddled at all.[b]

5 None eye pitied thee, to do any of these unto thee, to have compassion upon thee; but thou wast cast out in the open field, to the lothing of thy person, in the day that thou wast born.

6 ¶ And when I passed by thee, and saw thee [2]polluted in thine own blood, I said unto thee when thou wast in thy blood, Live; yea, I said unto thee when thou wast in thy blood, Live.

7 I have [3]caused thee to multiply as the bud of the field, and thou hast increased and waxen great, and thou art come to [4]excellent ornaments: thy breasts are fashioned, and thine hair is grown, whereas thou wast naked and bare.[c]

8 Now when I passed by thee, and looked upon thee, behold, thy time was the time of love; and I spread my skirt over thee, and covered thy nakedness: yea, I sware unto thee, and entered into a covenant with thee, saith the Lord GOD, and thou becamest mine.[d]

9 Then washed I thee with water; yea, I throughly washed away thy [5]blood from thee, and I anointed thee with oil.

10 I clothed thee also with broidered work, and shod thee with badgers' skin, and I girded thee about with fine linen, and I covered thee with silk.

11 I decked thee also with ornaments, and I put bracelets upon thy hands, and a chain on thy neck.[e]

12 And I put a jewel on thy [6]forehead, and earrings in thine ears, and a beautiful crown upon thine head.

13 Thus wast thou decked with gold and silver; and thy raiment was of fine linen, and silk, and broidered work; thou didst eat fine flour, and honey, and oil: and thou wast exceeding beautiful, and thou didst prosper into a kingdom.[f]

14 And thy renown went forth among the heathen for thy beauty: for it was perfect through my comeliness, which I had put upon thee, saith the Lord GOD.[g]

15 ¶ But thou didst trust in thine own beauty, and playedst the harlot because of thy renown, and pouredst out thy fornications on every one that passed by; his it was.[h]

16 And of thy garments thou didst take, and deckedst thy high places with divers colours, and playedst the harlot thereupon: the like things shall not come, neither shall it be so.[i]

17 Thou hast also taken thy fair jewels of my gold and of my silver, which I had given thee, and madest to thyself images of men, and didst commit whoredom with them,

18 And tookest thy broidered garments, and coveredst them: and thou hast set mine oil and mine incense before them.

19 My meat also which I gave thee, fine flour, and oil, and honey, wherewith I fed thee, thou hast even set it before them for [7]a sweet savour: and thus it was, saith the Lord GOD.[j]

20 Moreover thou hast taken thy sons and thy daughters, whom thou hast borne unto me, and these hast thou sacrificed unto them [8]to be devoured. Is this of thy whoredoms a small matter,[k]

21 That thou hast slain my children, and delivered them to cause them to pass through the fire for them?

22 And in all thine abominations and thy whoredoms thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, when thou wast naked and bare, and wast polluted in thy blood.[l]

23 And it came to pass after all thy wickedness, (woe, woe unto thee! saith the Lord GOD;)

24 That thou hast also built unto thee an [9]eminent place, and hast made thee an high place in every street.[m]

25 Thou hast built thy high place at every head of the way, and hast made thy beauty to be abhorred, and hast opened thy feet to every one that passed by, and multiplied thy whoredoms.[n]

26 Thou hast also committed fornication with the Egyptians thy neighbours, great of flesh; and hast increased thy whoredoms, to provoke me to anger.[o]

27 Behold, therefore I have stretched out my hand over thee, and have diminished thine ordinary food, and delivered thee unto the will of them that hate thee, the [10]daughters of the Philistines, which are ashamed of thy lewd way.[p]

28 Thou hast played the whore also with the Assyrians, because thou wast unsatiable; yea, thou hast played the harlot with them, and yet couldest not be satisfied.[q]

29 Thou hast moreover multiplied thy fornication in the land of Canaan unto Chaldea; and yet thou wast not satisfied herewith.[r]

30 How weak is thine heart, saith the Lord GOD, seeing thou doest all these things, the work of an imperious whorish woman;

31 [11]In that thou buildest thine eminent place in the head of every way, and makest thine high place in every street; and hast not been as an harlot, in that thou scornest hire;[s]

32 But as a wife that committeth adultery, which taketh strangers instead of her husband!

33 They give gifts to all whores: but thou givest thy gifts to all thy lovers, and [12]hirest them, that they may come unto thee on every side for thy whoredom.[t]

34 And the contrary is in thee from other women in thy whoredoms, whereas none followeth thee to commit whoredoms: and in that thou givest a reward, and no reward is given unto thee, therefore thou art contrary.

35 ¶ Wherefore, O harlot, hear the word of the LORD:

36 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Because thy filthiness was poured out, and thy nakedness discovered through thy whoredoms with thy lovers, and with all the idols of thy abominations, and by the blood of thy children, which thou didst give unto them;[u]

37 Behold, therefore I will gather all thy lovers, with whom thou hast taken pleasure, and all them that thou hast loved, with all them that thou hast hated; I will even gather them round about against thee, and will discover thy nakedness unto them, that they may see all thy nakedness.[a]

38 And I will judge thee, [1]as women that break wedlock and shed blood are judged; and I will give thee blood in fury and jealousy.[b]

39 And I will also give thee into their hand, and they shall throw down thine eminent place, and shall break down thy high places: they shall strip thee also of thy clothes, and shall take [2]thy fair jewels, and leave thee naked and bare.[c]

40 They shall also bring up a company against thee, and they shall stone thee with stones, and thrust thee through with their swords.[d]

41 And they shall burn thine houses with fire, and execute judgments upon thee in the sight of many women: and I will cause thee to cease from playing the harlot, and thou also shalt give no hire any more.[e]

42 So will I make my fury toward thee to rest, and my jealousy shall depart from thee, and I will be quiet, and will be no more angry.[f]

43 Because thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, but hast fretted me in all these things; behold, therefore I also will recompense thy way upon thine head, saith the Lord GOD: and thou shalt not commit this lewdness above all thine abominations.[g]

44 ¶ Behold, every one that useth proverbs shall use this proverb against thee, saying, As is the mother, so is her daughter.

45 Thou art thy mother's daughter, that lotheth her husband and her children; and thou art the sister of thy sisters, which lothed their husbands and their children: your mother was an Hittite, and your father an Amorite.[h]

46 And thine elder sister is Samaria, she and her daughters that dwell at thy left hand: and [3]thy younger sister, that dwelleth at thy right hand, is Sodom and her daughters.[i]

47 Yet hast thou not walked after their ways, nor done after their abominations: but, [4]as if that were a very little thing, thou wast corrupted more than they in all thy ways.[j]

48 As I live, saith the Lord GOD, Sodom thy sister hath not done, she nor her daughters, as thou hast done, thou and thy daughters.[k]

49 Behold, this was the iniquity of thy sister Sodom, pride, fulness of bread, and abundance of idleness was in her and in her daughters, neither did she strengthen the hand of the poor and needy.[l]

50 And they were haughty, and committed abomination before me: therefore I took them away as I saw good.[m]

51 Neither hath Samaria committed half of thy sins; but thou hast multiplied thine abominations more than they, and hast justified thy sisters in all thine abominations which thou hast done.[n]

5 He took also of the seed of the land, and [7]planted it in a fruitful field; he placed it by great waters, and set it as a willow tree.[k]

6 And it grew, and became a spreading vine of low stature, whose branches turned toward him, and the roots thereof were under him: so it became a vine, and brought forth branches, and shot forth sprigs.[l]

7 There was also another great eagle with great wings and many feathers: and, behold, this vine did bend her roots toward him, and shot forth her branches toward him, that he might water it by the furrows of her plantation.[m]

8 It was planted in a good [8]soil by great waters, that it might bring forth branches, and that it might bear fruit, that it might be a goodly vine.

9 Say thou, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Shall it prosper? shall he not pull up the roots thereof, and cut off the fruit thereof, that it wither? it shall wither in all the leaves of her spring, even without great power or many people to pluck it up by the roots thereof.[n]

10 Yea, behold, being planted, shall it prosper? shall it not utterly wither, when the east wind toucheth it? it shall wither in the furrows where it grew.[o]

11 ¶ Moreover the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

12 Say now to the rebellious house, Know ye not what these things mean? tell them, Behold, the king of Babylon is come to Jerusalem, and hath taken the king thereof, and the princes thereof, and led them with him to Babylon;[p]

13 And hath taken of the king's seed, and made a covenant with him, and hath [9]taken an oath of him: he hath also taken the mighty of the land:[q]

14 That the kingdom might be base, that it might not lift itself up, [10]but that by keeping of his covenant it might stand.[r]

15 But he rebelled against him in sending his ambassadors into Egypt, that they might give him horses and much people. Shall he prosper? shall he escape that doeth such things? or shall he break the covenant, and be delivered?[s]

16 As I live, saith the Lord GOD, surely in the place where the king dwelleth that made him king, whose oath he despised, and whose covenant he brake, even with him in the midst of Babylon he shall die.[t]

17 Neither shall Pharaoh with his mighty army and great company make for him in the war, by casting up mounts, and building forts, to cut off many persons:[u]

18 Seeing he despised the oath by breaking the covenant, when, lo, he had given his hand, and hath done all these things, he shall not escape.[v]

19 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; As I live, surely mine oath that he hath despised, and my covenant that he hath broken, even it will I recompense upon his own head.

20 And I will spread my net upon him, and he shall be taken in my snare, and I will bring him to Babylon, and will plead with him there for his trespass that he hath trespassed against me.[w]

21 And all his fugitives with all his bands shall fall by the sword, and they that remain shall be scattered toward all winds: and ye shall know that I the LORD have spoken it.[e]

22 ¶ Thus saith the Lord GOD; I will also take of the highest branch of the high cedar, and will set it; I will crop off from the top of his young twigs a tender one, and will plant it upon an high mountain and eminent:[f]

23 In the mountain of the height of Israel will I plant it: and it shall bring forth boughs, and bear fruit, and be a goodly cedar: and under it shall dwell all fowl of every wing; in the shadow of the branches thereof shall they dwell.[g]

24 And all the trees of the field shall know that I the LORD have brought down the high tree, have exalted the low tree, have dried up the green tree and have made the dry tree to flourish: I the LORD have spoken and have done it.[h]

CHAPTER XVIII.

1 God reproveth the unjust parable of sour grapes. 5 He sheweth how he dealeth with a just father. 10 with a wicked son of a just father: 14 with a just son of a wicked father. 19 with a wicked man repenting: 24 with a just man revolting. 25 He defendeth his justice, 31 and exhorteth to repentance.

THE word of the LORD came unto me again, saying,

2 What mean ye, that ye use this proverb concerning the land of Israel, saying, The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge?[a]

3 As I live, saith the Lord GOD, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel.

4 Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine: the soul that sinneth, it shall die.[f]

5 ¶ But if a man be just, and do [1]that which is lawful and right,

21 But if the wicked will turn from all his sins that he hath committed, and keep all my statutes, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall surely live, he shall not die.[r]

22 All his transgressions that he hath committed, they shall not be mentioned unto him: in his righteousness that he hath done he shall live.[s]

23 Have I any pleasure at all that the wicked should die? saith the Lord GOD: and not that he should return from his ways, and live?[t]

24 ¶ But when the righteous turneth away from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, and doeth according to all the abominations that the wicked man doeth, shall he live? All his righteousness that he hath done shall not be mentioned: in his trespass that he hath trespassed, and in his sin that he hath sinned, in them shall he die.[u]

25 ¶ Yet ye say, The way of the Lord is not equal. Hear now, O house of Israel; Is not my way equal? are not your ways unequal?[v]

26 When a righteous man turneth away from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, and dieth in them; for his iniquity that he hath done shall he die.[w]

27 Again, when the wicked man turneth away from his wickedness that he hath committed, and doeth that which is lawful and right, he shall save his soul alive.[c]

28 Because he considereth, and turneth away from all his transgressions that he hath committed, he shall surely live, he shall not die.[b]

29 Yet saith the house of Israel, The way of the Lord is not equal. O house of Israel, are not my ways equal? are not your ways unequal?[c]

30 Therefore I will judge you, O house of Israel, every one according to his ways, saith the Lord GOD. Repent, and turn [1]yourselves from all your transgressions; so iniquity shall not be your ruin.[d]

31 ¶ Cast away from you all your transgressions, whereby ye have transgressed; and make you a new heart and a new spirit: for why will ye die, O house of Israel?[e]

32 For I have no pleasure in the death of him that dieth, saith the Lord GOD: wherefore turn [2]yourselves, and live ye.[f]

CHAPTER XIX.

1 A lamentation for the princes of Israel, under the parable of lions' taken in a pit, 10 and for Jerusalem, under the parable of a wasted vine.

MOREOVER take thou up a lamentation for the princes of Israel,[g]

2 And say, What is thy mother? A lioness: she lay down among lions, she nourished her whelps among young lions.

3 And she brought up one of her whelps: it became a young lion, and it learned to catch the prey; it devoured men.[h]

4 The nations also heard of him; he was taken in their pit, and they brought him with chains unto the land of Egypt.[i]

5 Now when she saw that she had waited, and her hope was lost, then she took another of her whelps, and made him a young lion.[j]

6 And he went up and down among the lions, he became a young lion, and learned to catch the prey, and devoured men.[k]

7 And he knew [3]their desolate palaces, and he laid waste their cities; and the land was desolate, and the fulness thereof, by the noise of his roaring.

8 Then the nations set against him on every side from the provinces, and spread their net over him: he was taken in their pit.[l]

9 And they put him in ward in [4]chains, and brought him to the king of Babylon: they brought him into holds, that his voice should no more be heard upon the mountains of Israel.[m]

10 ¶ Thy mother is like a vine [5]in thy blood, planted by the waters: she was fruitful and full of branches by reason of many waters.[n]

11 And she had strong rods for the sceptres of them that bare rule, and her stature was exalted among the thick branches, and she appeared in her height with the multitude of her branches.[o]

12 But she was plucked up in fury, she was cast down to the ground, and the east wind dried up her fruit: her strong rods were broken and withered; the fire consumed them.[p]

13 And now she is planted in the wilderness, in a dry and thirsty ground.

14 And fire is gone out of a rod of her branches, which hath devoured her fruit, so that she hath no strong rod to be a sceptre to rule. This is a lamentation, and shall be for a lamentation.[q]

CHAPTER XX.

1 God refuseth to be consulted by the elders of Israel. 5 He sheweth the story of their rebellions in Egypt, 10 in the wilderness, 27 and in the land. 33 He promiseth to gather them by the gospel. 45 Under the name of a forest he sheweth the destruction of Jerusalem.

AND it came to pass in the seventh year, in the fifth month, the tenth day of the month, that certain of the elders of Israel came to enquire of the LORD, and sat before me.[r]

2 Then came the word of the LORD unto me, saying,

3 Son of man, speak unto the elders of Israel, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Are ye come to enquire of me? As I live, saith the Lord GOD, I will not be enquired of by you.[s]

4 Wilt thou [6]judge them, son of man, wilt thou judge them? cause them to know the abominations of their fathers:[t]

5 ¶ And say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; In the day when I chose Israel, and [7]lifted up mine hand unto the seed of the house of Jacob, and made myself known unto them in the land of Egypt, when I lifted up mine hand unto them, saying, I am the LORD your God;[u]

6 In the day that I lifted up mine hand unto them, to bring them forth of the land of Egypt into a land that I had espied for them, flowing with milk and honey, which is the glory of all lands:[v]

7 Then said I unto them, Cast ye away every man the abominations of his eyes, and defile not yourselves with the idols of Egypt: I am the LORD your God.[w]

8 But they rebelled against me, and would not hearken unto me: they did not every man cast away the abominations of their eyes, neither did they forsake the idols of Egypt: then I said, I will pour out my fury upon them, to accomplish my anger against them in the midst of the land of Egypt.[x]

9 But I wrought for my name's sake, that it should not be polluted before the heathen, among whom they were, in whose sight I made myself known unto them, in bringing them forth out of the land of Egypt.[y]

10 ¶ Wherefore I caused them to go forth out of the land of Egypt, and brought them into the wilderness.[z]

LIONESS AND WHELPS.—EZEKIEL XIX.

18 But I said unto their children in the wilderness, Walk ye not in the statutes of your fathers, neither observe their judgments, nor defile yourselves with their idols:

19 I am the LORD your God; walk in my statutes, and keep my judgments, and do them;[h]

20 And hallow my sabbaths; and they shall be a sign between me and you, that ye may know that I am the LORD your God.[i]

21 Notwithstanding the children rebelled against me: they walked not in my statutes, neither kept my judgments to do them, which if a man do, he shall even live in them; they polluted my sabbaths: then I said, I would pour out my fury upon them, to accomplish my anger against them in the wilderness.[a]

22 Nevertheless I withdrew mine hand, and wrought for my name's sake, that it should not be polluted in the sight of the heathen, in whose sight I brought them forth.[b]

23 I lifted up mine hand unto them also in the wilderness, that I would scatter them among the heathen, and disperse them through the countries;[c]

24 Because they had not executed my judgments, but had despised my statutes, and had polluted my sabbaths, and their eyes were after their fathers' idols.[d]

25 Wherefore I gave them also statutes that were not good, and judgments whereby they should not live;[e]

26 And I polluted them in their own gifts, in that they caused to pass through the fire all that openeth the womb, that I might make them desolate, to the end that they might know that I am the LORD.[f]

27 ¶ Therefore, son of man, speak unto the house of Israel, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Yet in this your fathers have blasphemed me, in that they have [1]committed a trespass against me.[g]

28 For when I had brought them into the land, for the which I lifted up mine hand to give it to them, then they saw every high hill, and all the thick trees, and they offered there their sacrifices, and there they presented the provocation of their offering: there also they made their sweet savour, and poured out there their drink offerings.[h]

29 Then [2]I said unto them, What is the high place whereunto ye go? And the name thereof is called Bamah unto this day.

30 Wherefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Are ye polluted after the manner of your fathers? and commit ye whoredom after their abominations?

31 For when ye offer your gifts, when ye make your sons to pass through the fire, ye pollute yourselves with all your idols, even unto this day: and shall I be enquired of by you, O house of Israel? As I live, saith the Lord GOD, I will not be enquired of by you.[i]

32 And that which cometh into your mind shall not be at all, that ye say, We will be as the heathen, as the families of the countries, to serve wood and stone.[j]

33 ¶ As I live, saith the Lord GOD, surely with a mighty hand, and with a stretched out arm, and with fury poured out, will I rule over you:[k]

34 And I will bring you out from the people, and will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered, with a mighty hand, and with a stretched out arm, and with fury poured out.

35 And I will bring you into the wilderness of the people, and there will I plead with you face to face.[l]

36 Like as I pleaded with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I plead with you, saith the Lord GOD.[m]

27 Her princes in the midst thereof are like wolves ravening the prey, to shed blood, and to destroy souls, to get dishonest gain.[e]

28 And her prophets have daubed them with untempered mortar, seeing vanity, and divining lies unto them, saying, Thus saith the Lord GOD, when the LORD hath not spoken.[f]

29 The people of the land have used [2]oppression, and exercised robbery, and have vexed the poor and needy: yea, they have oppressed the stranger [3]wrongfully.[g]

30 And I sought for a man among them, that should make up the hedge, and stand in the gap before me for the land, that I should not destroy it: but I found none.[h]

31 Therefore have I poured out mine indignation upon them; I have consumed them with the fire of my wrath: their own way have I recompensed upon their heads, saith the Lord GOD.[i]

CHAPTER XXIII.

1 The whoredoms of Aholah and Aholibah. 22 Aholibah is to be plagued by her lovers. 36 The prophet reproveth the adulteress of them both. 45 and sheweth their judgments.

THE word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, there were two women, the daughters of one mother:[j]

3 And they committed whoredoms in Egypt; they committed whoredoms in their youth: there were their breasts pressed, and there they bruised the teats of their virginity.[k]

4 And the names of them were [4]Aholah the elder, and [5]Aholibah her sister: and they were mine, and they bare sons and daughters. Thus were their names; Samaria is Aholah, and Jerusalem Aholibah.[l]

5 And Aholah played the harlot when she was mine; and she doted on her lovers, on the Assyrians her neighbours,[m]

6 Which were clothed with blue, captains and rulers, all of them desirable young men, horsemen riding upon horses.

7 Thus she [6]committed her whoredoms with them, with all them that were [7]the chosen men of Assyria, and with all on whom she doted: with all their idols she defiled herself.

8 Neither left she her whoredoms brought from Egypt: for in her youth they lay with her, and they bruised the breasts of her virginity, and poured their whoredom upon her.[n]

9 Wherefore I have delivered her into the hand of her lovers, into the hand of the Assyrians, upon whom she doted.[o]

10 These discovered her nakedness: they took her sons and her daughters, and slew her with the sword: and she became [8]famous among women; for they had executed judgment upon her.[p]

11 And when her sister Aholibah saw this, [9]she was more corrupt in her inordinate love than she, and in her whoredoms [10]more than her sister in her whoredoms.[q]

12 She doted upon the Assyrians her neighbours, captains and rulers clothed most gorgeously, horsemen riding upon horses, all of them desirable young men.[r]

13 Then I saw that she was defiled, that they took both one way,

14 And that she increased her whoredoms: for when she saw men pourtrayed upon the wall, the images of the Chaldeans pourtrayed with vermilion,

15 Girded with girdles upon their loins, exceeding in dyed attire upon their heads, all of them princes to look to, after the manner of the Babylonians of Chaldea, the land of their nativity:

16 And [11]as soon as she saw them with her eyes, she doted upon them, and sent messengers unto them into Chaldea.[s]

17 And the [12]Babylonians came to her into the bed of love, and they defiled her with their whoredom, and she was polluted with them, and her mind was [13]alienated from them.[t]

18 So she discovered her whoredoms, and discovered her nakedness: then my mind was alienated from her, like as my mind was alienated from her sister.[u]

19 Yet she multiplied her whoredoms, in calling to remembrance the days of her youth, wherein she had played the harlot in the land of Egypt.[v]

20 For she doted upon their paramours, whose flesh is as the flesh of asses, and whose issue is like the issue of horses.[w]

21 Thus thou calledst to remembrance the lewdness of thy youth, in bruising thy teats by the Egyptians for the paps of thy youth.

22 ¶ Therefore, O Aholibah, thus saith the Lord

GOD; Behold, I will raise up thy lovers against thee, from whom thy mind is alienated, and I will bring them against thee on every side;[a]

23 The Babylonians, and all the Chaldeans, Pekod, and Shoa, and Koa, and all the Assyrians with them: all of them desirable young men, captains and rulers, great lords and renowned, all of them riding upon horses.[b]

24 And they shall come against thee with chariots, wagons, and wheels, and with an assembly of people, which shall set against thee buckler and shield and helmet round about: and I will set judgment before them, and they shall judge thee according to their judgments.

25 And I will set my jealousy against thee, and they shall deal furiously with thee: they shall take away thy nose and thine ears; and thy remnant shall fall by the sword: they shall take thy sons and thy daughters; and thy residue shall be devoured by the fire.

26 They shall also strip thee out of thy clothes, and take away thy [1]fair jewels.[c]

Egypt: so that thou shalt not lift up thine eyes unto them, nor remember Egypt any more.[a]

28 For thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I will deliver thee into the hand of them whom thou hatest, into the hand of them from whom thy mind is alienated:[b]

29 And they shall deal with thee hatefully, and shall take away all thy labour, and shall leave thee naked and bare: and the nakedness of thy whoredoms shall be discovered, both thy lewdness and thy whoredoms.

30 I will do these things unto thee, because thou hast gone a whoring after the heathen, and because thou art polluted with their idols.[c]

31 Thou hast walked in the way of thy sister; therefore will I give her cup into thine hand.[d]

32 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Thou shalt drink of thy sister's cup deep and large: thou shalt be laughed to scorn and had in derision; it containeth much.[e]

33 Thou shalt be filled with drunkenness and sorrow, with the cup of astonishment and desolation, with the cup of thy sister Samaria.

34 Thou shalt even drink it and suck it out, and thou shalt break the sherds thereof, and pluck off thine own breasts: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord GOD.[f]

35 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Because thou hast forgotten me, and cast me behind thy back, therefore bear thou also thy lewdness and thy whoredoms.[g]

36 ¶ The LORD said moreover unto me; Son of man, wilt thou [1]judge Aholah and Aholibah? yea, declare unto them their abominations;[h]

37 That they have committed adultery, and blood is in their hands, and with their idols have they committed adultery, and have also caused their sons, whom they bare unto me, to pass for them through the fire, to devour them.[i]

38 Moreover this they have done unto me: they have defiled my sanctuary in the same day, and have profaned my sabbaths.[j]

39 For when they had slain their children to their idols, then they came the same day into my sanctuary to profane it; and, lo, thus have they done in the midst of mine house.[k]

40 And furthermore, that ye have sent for men [2]to come from far, unto whom a messenger was sent; and, lo, they came: for whom thou didst wash thyself, paintedst thy eyes, and deckedst thyself with ornaments,[l]

41 And satest upon a [3]stately bed, and a table prepared before it, whereupon thou hast set mine incense and mine oil.[m]

42 And a voice of a multitude being at ease was with her: and with the men [4]of the common sort were brought [5]Sabeans from the wilderness, which put bracelets upon their hands, and beautiful crowns upon their heads.

43 Then said I unto her that was old in adulteries, Will they now commit [6]whoredoms with her, and she with them?

CHAPTER XXIV.

1 Under the parable of a boiling pot, 6 is shewed the irrevocable destruction of Jerusalem 15 By the sign of Ezekiel not mourning for the death of his wife, 19 is shewed the calamity of the Jews to be beyond all sorrow.

AGAIN in the ninth year, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, write thee the name of the day, even of this same day: the king of Babylon set himself against Jerusalem this same day.[s]

3 And utter a parable unto the rebellious house, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Set on a pot, set it on, and also pour water into it:[t]

4 Gather the pieces thereof into it, even every good piece, the thigh, and the shoulder; fill it with the choice bones.

5 Take the choice of the flock, and [9]burn also the bones under it, and make it boil well, and let them seethe the bones of it therein.

6 ¶ Wherefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Woe to the bloody city, to the pot whose scum is therein, and whose scum is not gone out of it! bring it out piece by piece; let no lot fall upon it.[u]

7 For her blood is in the midst of her; she set it upon the top of a rock; she poured it not upon the ground, to cover it with dust;[v]

8 That it might cause fury to come up to take vengeance; I have set her blood upon the top of a rock, that it should not be covered.[w]

9 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Woe to the bloody city! I will even make the pile for fire great.[x]

10 Heap on wood, kindle the fire, consume the flesh, and spice it well, and let the bones be burned.

11 Then set it empty upon the coals thereof, that the brass of it may be hot, and may burn, and that the filthiness of it may be molten in it, that the scum of it may be consumed.[a]

12 She hath wearied herself with lies, and her great scum went not forth out of her: her scum shall be in the fire.

13 In thy filthiness is lewdness: because I have purged thee, and thou wast not purged, thou shalt not be purged from thy filthiness any more, till I have caused my fury to rest upon thee.[b]

14 I the LORD have spoken it: it shall come to pass, and I will do it: I will not go back, neither will I spare, neither will I repent; according to thy ways, and according to thy doings, shall they judge thee, saith the Lord GOD.[c]

15 ¶ Also the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

16 Son of man, behold, I take away from thee the desire of thine eyes with a stroke: yet neither shalt thou mourn nor weep, neither shall thy tears [1]run down.

17 [2]Forbear to cry, make no mourning for the dead, bind the tire of thine head upon thee, and put on thy shoes upon thy feet, and cover not thy [3]lips, and eat not the bread of men.[d]

18 So I spake unto the people in the morning: and at even my wife died; and I did in the morning as I was commanded.

19 ¶ And the people said unto me, Wilt thou not tell us what these things are to us, that thou doest so?[e]

20 Then I answered them, The word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

21 Speak unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I will profane my sanctuary, the excellency of your strength, the desire of your eyes, and [4]that which your soul pitieth; and your sons and your daughters whom ye have left shall fall by the sword.[f]

22 And ye shall do as I have done: ye shall not cover your lips, nor eat the bread of men.[g]

23 And your tires shall be upon your heads, and your shoes upon your feet: ye shall not mourn nor weep; but ye shall pine away for your iniquities, and mourn one toward another.[h]

24 Thus Ezekiel is unto you a sign: according to all that he hath done shall ye do: and when this cometh, ye shall know that I am the Lord GOD.[i]

25 Also, thou son of man, shall it not be in the day when I take from them their strength, the joy of their glory, the desire of their eyes, and [5]that whereupon they set their minds, their sons and their daughters,[j]

26 That he that escapeth in that day shall come unto thee, to cause thee to hear it with thine ears?[k]

27 In that day shall thy mouth be opened to him which is escaped, and thou shalt speak, and be no more dumb: and thou shalt be a sign unto them; and they shall know that I am the LORD.[l]

CHAPTER XXV.

1 God's vengeance, for their insolency against the Jews, upon the Ammonites; 8 upon Moab and Seir, 12 upon Edom, 15 and upon the Philistines.

THE word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, set thy face against the Ammonites, and prophesy against them;[m]

3 And say unto the Ammonites, Hear the word of the Lord GOD; Thus saith the Lord GOD; Because thou saidst, Aha, against my sanctuary, when it was profaned; and against the land of Israel, when it was desolate; and against the house of Judah, when they went into captivity;[n]

4 Behold, therefore I will deliver thee to the [6]men of the east for a possession, and they shall set their palaces in thee, and make their dwellings in thee: they shall eat thy fruit, and they shall drink thy milk.

5 And I will make Rabbah a stable for camels, and the Ammonites a couchingplace for flocks: and ye shall know that I am the LORD.[o]

6 For thus saith the Lord GOD; Because thou hast clapped thine [7]hands, and stamped with the [8]feet, and rejoiced in [9]heart with all thy despite against the land of Israel;[p]

7 Behold, therefore I will stretch out mine hand upon thee, and will deliver thee for [10]a spoil to the heathen; and I will cut thee off from the people, and I will cause thee to perish out of the countries: I will destroy thee; and thou shalt know that I am the LORD.[q]

8 ¶ Thus saith the Lord GOD; Because that Moab and Seir do say, Behold, the house of Judah is like unto all the heathen;[r]

9 Therefore, behold, I will open the [11]side of Moab from the cities, from his cities which are on his frontiers, the glory of the country, Beth-jeshimoth, Baal-meon, and Kiriathaim,

10 Unto the men of the east [12]with the Ammonites, and will give them in possession, that the Ammonites may not be remembered among the nations.[s]

11 And I will execute judgments upon Moab; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

12 ¶ Thus saith the Lord GOD; Because that Edom hath dealt against the house of Judah [13]by taking vengeance, and hath greatly offended, and revenged himself upon them;[t]

13 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; I will also stretch out mine hand upon Edom, and will cut off man and beast from it; and I will make it desolate from Teman; and [14]they of Dedan shall fall by the sword.

14 And I will lay my vengeance upon Edom by the hand of my people Israel: and they shall do in Edom according to mine anger and according to my fury; and they shall know my vengeance, saith the Lord GOD.[u]

15 ¶ Thus saith the Lord GOD; Because the Philistines have dealt by revenge, and have taken vengeance with a despiteful heart, to destroy it [1]for the old hatred;[e]

16 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I will stretch out mine hand upon the Philistines, and I will cut off the Cherethims, and destroy the remnant of the [2]sea coast.[b]

17 And I will execute great vengeance upon them with furious rebukes; and they shall know that I am the LORD, when I shall lay my vengeance upon them.[c]

CHAPTER XXVI.

1 Tyrus, for insulting against Jerusalem, is threatened. 7 The power of Nebuchadrezzar against her. 15 The mourning and astonishment of the sea at her fall

AND it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, because that Tyrus hath said against Jerusalem, Aha, she is broken that was the gates of the people: she is turned unto me: I shall be replenished, now she is laid waste:[d]

3 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against thee, O Tyrus, and will cause many nations to come up against thee, as the sea causeth his waves to come up.

4 And they shall destroy the walls of Tyrus, and break down her towers: I will also scrape her dust from her, and make her like the top of a rock.[e]

5 It shall be a place for the spreading of nets in the midst of the sea: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord GOD: and it shall become a spoil to the nations.

6 And her daughters which are in the field shall be slain by the sword; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

7 ¶ For thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I will bring upon Tyrus Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, a king of kings, from the north, with horses, and with chariots, and with horsemen, and companies, and much people.[f]

8 He shall slay with the sword thy daughters in the field: and he shall make a fort against thee, and [3]cast a mount against thee, and lift up the buckler against thee.[g]

9 And he shall set engines of war against thy walls, and with his axes he shall break down thy towers.

10 By reason of the abundance of his horses their dust shall cover thee: thy walls shall shake at the noise of the horsemen, and of the wheels, and of the chariots, when he shall enter into thy gates, [4]as men enter into a city wherein is made a breach.

11 With the hoofs of his horses shall he tread down all thy streets: he shall slay thy people by the sword, and thy strong garrisons shall go down to the ground.

12 And they shall make a spoil of thy riches, and make a prey of thy merchandise: and they shall break down thy walls, and destroy [5]thy pleasant houses: and they shall lay thy stones and thy timber and thy dust in the midst of the water.

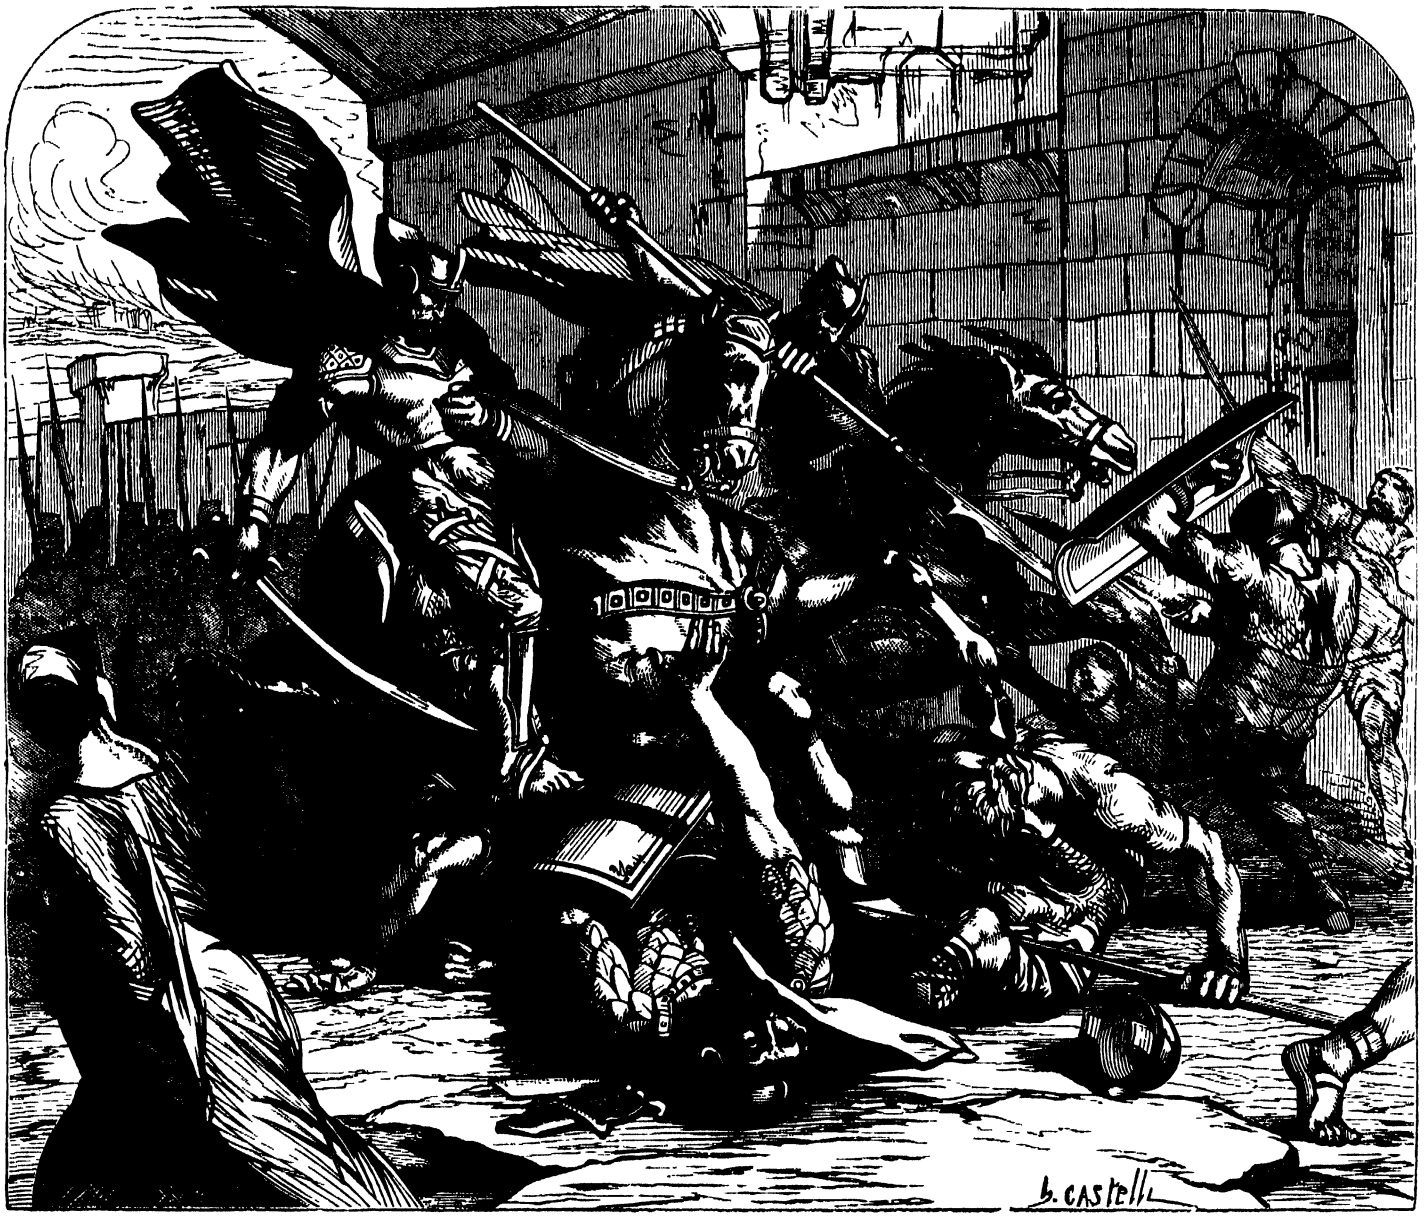
THE word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,



2 Now, thou son of man, take up a lamentation for Tyrus;[p]

3 And say unto Tyrus, O thou that art situate at the entry of the sea, which art a merchant of the people for many isles, Thus saith the Lord GOD; O Tyrus, thou hast said, I am [9]of perfect beauty.[q]

4 Thy borders are in the [10]midst of the seas, thy builders have perfected thy beauty.

5 They have [11]made all thy ship boards of fir trees of Senir: they have taken cedars from Lebanon to make masts for thee.[r]

6 Of the oaks of Bashan have they made thine oars; [12]the company of the Ashurites have made thy benches of ivory, brought out of the isles of Chittim.[s]

THE CAPTURE OF TYRE.

7 Fine linen with broidered work from Egypt was that which thou spreadest forth to be thy sail; [1]blue and purple from the isles of Elishah was that which covered thee.

8 The inhabitants of Zidon and Arvad were thy mariners: thy wise men, O Tyrus, that were in thee, were thy pilots.

9 The ancients of Gebal and the wise men thereof were in thee thy [2]calkers: all the ships of the sea with their mariners were in thee to occupy thy merchandise.[a]

10 They of Persia and of Lud and of Phut were in thine army, thy men of war: they hanged the shield and helmet in thee; they set forth thy comeliness.[b]

11 The men of Arvad with thine army were upon thy walls round about, and the Gammadims were in thy towers: they hanged their shields upon thy walls round about; they have made thy beauty perfect.[c]

12 Tarshish was thy merchant by reason of the multitude of all kind of riches; with silver, iron, tin, and lead, they traded in thy fairs.[d]

13 Javan, Tubal, and Meshech, they were thy merchants: they traded the persons of men and vessels of brass in thy [3]market.[e]

14 They of the house of Togarmah traded in thy fairs with horses and horsemen and mules.[f]

15 The men of Dedan were thy merchants; many isles were the merchandise of thine hand: they brought thee for a present horns of ivory and ebony.[g]

16 Syria was thy merchant by reason of the multitude of [4]the wares of thy making: they occupied in thy fairs with emeralds, purple, and broidered work, and fine linen, and coral, and [5]agate.

17 Judah, and the land of Israel, they were thy merchants: they traded in thy market wheat of Minnith, and Pannag, and honey, and oil, and [6]balm.[h]

CHAPTER XXVIII.

1 God's judgment upon the prince of Tyrus for his sacrilegious pride. 11 A lamentation of his great glory corrupted by sin. 20 The judgment of Zidon. 24 The restoration of Israel.

THE word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, say unto the prince of Tyrus, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Because thine heart is lifted up, and thou hast said, I am a God, I sit in the seat of God, in the [1]midst of the seas; yet thou art a man, and not God, though thou set thine heart as the heart of God:[a] a ver. 9, ch xxvii 3, 4, Isa. xxxi. 3.

3 Behold, thou art wiser than Daniel; there is no secret that they can hide from thee:[b]

4 With thy wisdom and with thine understanding thou hast gotten thee riches, and hast gotten gold and silver into thy treasures:

5 [2]By thy great wisdom and by thy traffick hast thou increased thy riches, and thine heart is lifted up because of thy riches:[c]

6 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Because thou hast set thine heart as the heart of God;

7 Behold, therefore I will bring strangers upon thee, the terrible of the nations: and they shall draw their swords against the beauty of thy wisdom, and they shall defile thy brightness.[a]

8 They shall bring thee down to the pit, and thou shalt die the deaths of them that are slain in the midst of the seas.

9 Wilt thou yet say before him that slayeth thee, I am God? but thou shalt be a man, and no God, in the hand of him that [1]slayeth thee.[b]

10 Thou shalt die the deaths of the uncircumcised by the hand of strangers: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord GOD.[c]

11 ¶ Moreover the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

12 Son of man, take up a lamentation upon the king of Tyrus, and say unto him, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Thou sealest up the sum, full of wisdom, and perfect in beauty.[d]

13 Thou hast been in Eden the garden of God; every precious stone was thy covering, the [2]sardius, topaz, and the diamond, the [3]beryl, the onyx, and the jasper, the sapphire, the [4]emerald, and the carbuncle, and gold: the workmanship of thy tabrets and of thy pipes was prepared in thee in the day that thou wast created.[e]

14 Thou art the anointed cherub that covereth; and I have set thee so: thou wast upon the holy mountain of God; thou hast walked up and down in the midst of the stones of fire.[f]

15 Thou wast perfect in thy ways from the day that thou wast created, till iniquity was found in thee.

16 By the multitude of thy merchandise they have filled the midst of thee with violence, and thou hast sinned: therefore I will cast thee as profane out of the mountain of God: and I will destroy thee, O covering cherub, from the midst of the stones of fire.[g]

17 Thine heart was lifted up because of thy beauty, thou hast corrupted thy wisdom by reason of thy brightness: I will cast thee to the ground, I will lay thee before kings, that they may behold thee.[h]

18 Thou hast defiled thy sanctuaries by the multitude of thine iniquities, by the iniquity of thy traffick: therefore will I bring forth a fire from the midst of thee, it shall devour thee, and I will bring thee to ashes upon the earth in the sight of all them that behold thee.

19 All they that know thee among the people shall be astonished at thee: thou shalt be [5]a terror, and never shalt thou be any more.[i]

20 ¶ Again the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

21 Son of man, set thy face against Zidon, and prophesy against it,[j]

22 And say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against thee, O Zidon; and I will be glorified in the midst of thee: and they shall know that I am the LORD, when I shall have executed judgments in her, and shall be sanctified in her.[k]

23 For I will send into her pestilence, and blood into her streets; and the wounded shall be judged in the midst of her by the sword upon her on every side; and they shall know that I am the LORD.[l]

24 ¶ And there shall be no more a pricking brier unto the house of Israel, nor any grieving thorn of all that are round about them, that despised them; and they shall know that I am the Lord GOD.[m]

25 Thus saith the Lord GOD; When I shall have gathered the house of Israel from the people among whom they are scattered, and shall be sanctified in them in the sight of the heathen, then shall they dwell in their land that I have given to my servant Jacob.[n]

26 And they shall dwell [6]safely therein, and shall build houses, and plant vineyards; yea, they shall dwell with confidence, when I have executed judgments upon all those that [7]despise them round about them; and they shall know that I am the LORD their God.[o]

CHAPTER XXIX.

1 The judgment of Pharaoh for his treachery to Israel. 8 The desolation of Egypt. 13 The restoration thereof after forty years 17 Egypt the reward of Nebuchadrezzar. 21 Israel shall be restored.

IN the tenth year, in the tenth month, in the twelfth day of the month, the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, set thy face against Pharaoh king of Egypt, and prophesy against him, and against all Egypt:[p]

3 Speak, and say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against thee, Pharaoh king of Egypt, the great dragon that lieth in the midst of his rivers, which hath said, My river is mine own, and I have made it for myself.[q]

4 But I will put hooks in thy jaws, and I will cause the fish of thy rivers to stick unto thy scales, and I will bring thee up out of the midst of thy rivers, and all the fish of thy rivers shall stick unto thy scales.[r]

5 And I will leave thee thrown into the wilderness, thee and all the fish of thy rivers: thou shalt fall upon the [8]open fields; thou shalt not be brought together, nor gathered: I have given thee for meat to the beasts of the field and to the fowls of the heaven.[s]

6 And all the inhabitants of Egypt shall know that I am the LORD, because they have been a staff of reed to the house of Israel.[t]

7 When they took hold of thee by thy hand, thou didst break, and rend all their shoulder: and when they leaned upon thee, thou brakest, and madest all their loins to be at a stand.[u]

8 ¶ Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I will bring a sword upon thee, and cut off man and beast out of thee.[v]

9 And the land of Egypt shall be desolate and waste; and they shall know that I am the LORD: because he hath said, The river is mine, and I have made it.

5 Ethiopia, and [7]Libya, and Lydia, and all the mingled people, and Chub, and the [8]men of the land that is in league, shall fall with them by the sword.[m]

6 Thus saith the LORD; They also that uphold Egypt shall fall; and the pride of her power shall come down: [9]from the tower of Syene shall they fall in it by the sword, saith the Lord GOD.[n]

7 And they shall be desolate in the midst of the countries that are desolate, and her cities shall be in the midst of the cities that are wasted.[a]

8 And they shall know that I am the LORD, when I have set a fire in Egypt, and when all her helpers shall be [1]destroyed.

9 In that day shall messengers go forth from me in ships to make the careless Ethiopians afraid, and great pain shall come upon them, as in the day of Egypt: for, lo, it cometh.[b]

10 Thus saith the Lord GOD; I will also make the multitude of Egypt to cease by the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon.[c]

CHAPTER XXXI.

1 A relation unto Pharaoh, 3 of the glory of Assyria, 10 and the fall thereof for pride. 18 The like destruction of Egypt.

BEFORE CHRIST 588.

AND it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the third month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, speak unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, and to his multitude; Whom art thou like in thy greatness?[a]

3 ¶ Behold, the Assyrian was a cedar in Lebanon [1]with fair branches, and with a shadowing shroud, and of an high stature; and his top was among the thick boughs.[b]

4 The waters [2]made him great, the deep [3]set him up on high with her rivers running round about his plants, and sent out her [4]little rivers unto all the trees of the field.[c]

5 Therefore his height was exalted above all the trees of the field, and his boughs were multiplied, and his branches became long because of the multitude of waters, [5]when he shot forth.[d]

6 All the fowls of heaven made their nests in his boughs, and under his branches did all the beasts of the field bring forth their young, and under his shadow dwelt all great nations.[e]

7 Thus was he fair in his greatness, in the length of his branches: for his root was by great waters.

8 The cedars in the garden of God could not hide him: the fir trees were not like his boughs, and the chesnut trees were not like his branches; nor any tree in the garden of God was like unto him in his beauty.[f]

9 I have made him fair by the multitude of his branches: so that all the trees of Eden, that were in the garden of God, envied him.

10 ¶ Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Because thou hast lifted up thyself in height, and he hath shot up his top among the thick boughs, and his heart is lifted up in his height;[a]

11 I have therefore delivered him into the hand of the mighty one of the heathen; [1]he shall surely deal with him: I have driven him out for his wickedness.

12 And strangers, the terrible of the nations, have cut him off, and have left him: upon the mountains and in all the valleys his branches are fallen, and his boughs are broken by all the rivers of the land; and all the people of the earth are gone down from his shadow, and have left him.[b]

13 Upon his ruin shall all the fowls of the heaven remain, and all the beasts of the field shall be upon his branches:[c]

14 To the end that none of all the trees by the waters exalt themselves for their height, neither shoot up their top among the thick boughs, neither their trees [2]stand up in their height, all that drink water: for they are all delivered unto death, to the nether parts of the earth, in the midst of the children of men, with them that go down to the pit.[d]

15 Thus saith the Lord GOD; In the day when he went down to the grave I caused a mourning: I covered the deep for him, and I restrained the floods thereof, and the great waters were stayed: and I caused Lebanon [3]to mourn for him, and all the trees of the field fainted for him.

16 I made the nations to shake at the sound of his fall, when I cast him down to hell with them that descend into the pit: and all the trees of Eden, the choice and best of Lebanon, all that drink water, shall be comforted in the nether parts of the earth.[e]

17 They also went down into hell with him unto them that be slain with the sword; and they that were his arm, that dwelt under his shadow in the midst of the heathen.

18 ¶ To whom art thou thus like in glory and in greatness among the trees of Eden? yet shalt thou be brought down with the trees of Eden unto the nether parts of the earth: thou shalt lie in the midst of the uncircumcised with them that be slain by the sword. This is Pharaoh and all his multitude, saith the Lord GOD.[f]

CHAPTER XXXII.

1 A lamentation for the fearful fall of Egypt. 11 The sword of Babylon shall destroy it 17 It shall be brought down to hell, among all the uncircumcised nations.

AND it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, in the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, take up a lamentation for Pharaoh king of Egypt, and say unto him, Thou art like a young lion of the nations, and thou art as a [4]whale in the seas: and thou camest forth with thy rivers, and troubledst the waters with thy feet, and fouledst their rivers.[h]

3 Thus saith the Lord GOD; I will therefore spread out my net over thee with a company of many people; and they shall bring thee up in my net.[i]

4 Then will I leave thee upon the land, I will cast thee forth upon the open field, and will cause all the fowls of the heaven to remain upon thee, and I will fill the beasts of the whole earth with thee.[j]

5 And I will lay thy flesh upon the mountains, and fill the valleys with thy height.[k]

6 I will also water with thy blood [5]the land wherein thou swimmest, even to the mountains; and the rivers shall be full of thee.

7 And when I shall [6]put thee out, I will cover the heaven, and make the stars thereof dark; I will cover the sun with a cloud, and the moon shall not give her light.[l]

8 All the [7]bright lights of heaven will I make [8]dark over thee, and set darkness upon thy land, saith the Lord GOD.

9 I will also [9]vex the hearts of many people, when I shall bring thy destruction among the nations, into the countries which thou hast not known.

10 Yea, I will make many people amazed at thee, and their kings shall be horribly afraid for thee, when I shall brandish my sword before them; and they shall tremble at every moment, every man for his own life, in the day of thy fall.[m]

11 ¶ For thus saith the Lord GOD; The sword of the king of Babylon shall come upon thee.[n]

12 By the swords of the mighty will I cause thy multitude to fall, the terrible of the nations, all of them: and they shall spoil the pomp of Egypt, and all the multitude thereof shall be destroyed.[o]

13 I will destroy also all the beasts thereof from beside the great waters; neither shall the foot of man trouble them any more, nor the hoofs of beasts trouble them.[p]

14 Then will I make their waters deep, and cause their rivers to run like oil, saith the Lord GOD.

15 When I shall make the land of Egypt desolate, and the country shall be [10]destitute of that whereof it was full, when I shall smite all them that dwell therein, then shall they know that I am the LORD.[q]

16 This is the lamentation wherewith they shall lament her: the daughters of the nations shall lament her: they shall lament for her, even for Egypt, and for all her multitude, saith the Lord GOD.[r]

17 ¶ It came to pass also in the twelfth year, in the fifteenth day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

18 Son of man, wail for the multitude of Egypt, and cast them down, even her, and the daughters of the famous nations, unto the nether parts of the earth, with them that go down into the pit.[s]

19 Whom dost thou pass in beauty? go down, and be thou laid with the uncircumcised.[t]

20 They shall fall in the midst of them that are slain by the sword: [11]she is delivered to the sword: draw her and all her multitudes.

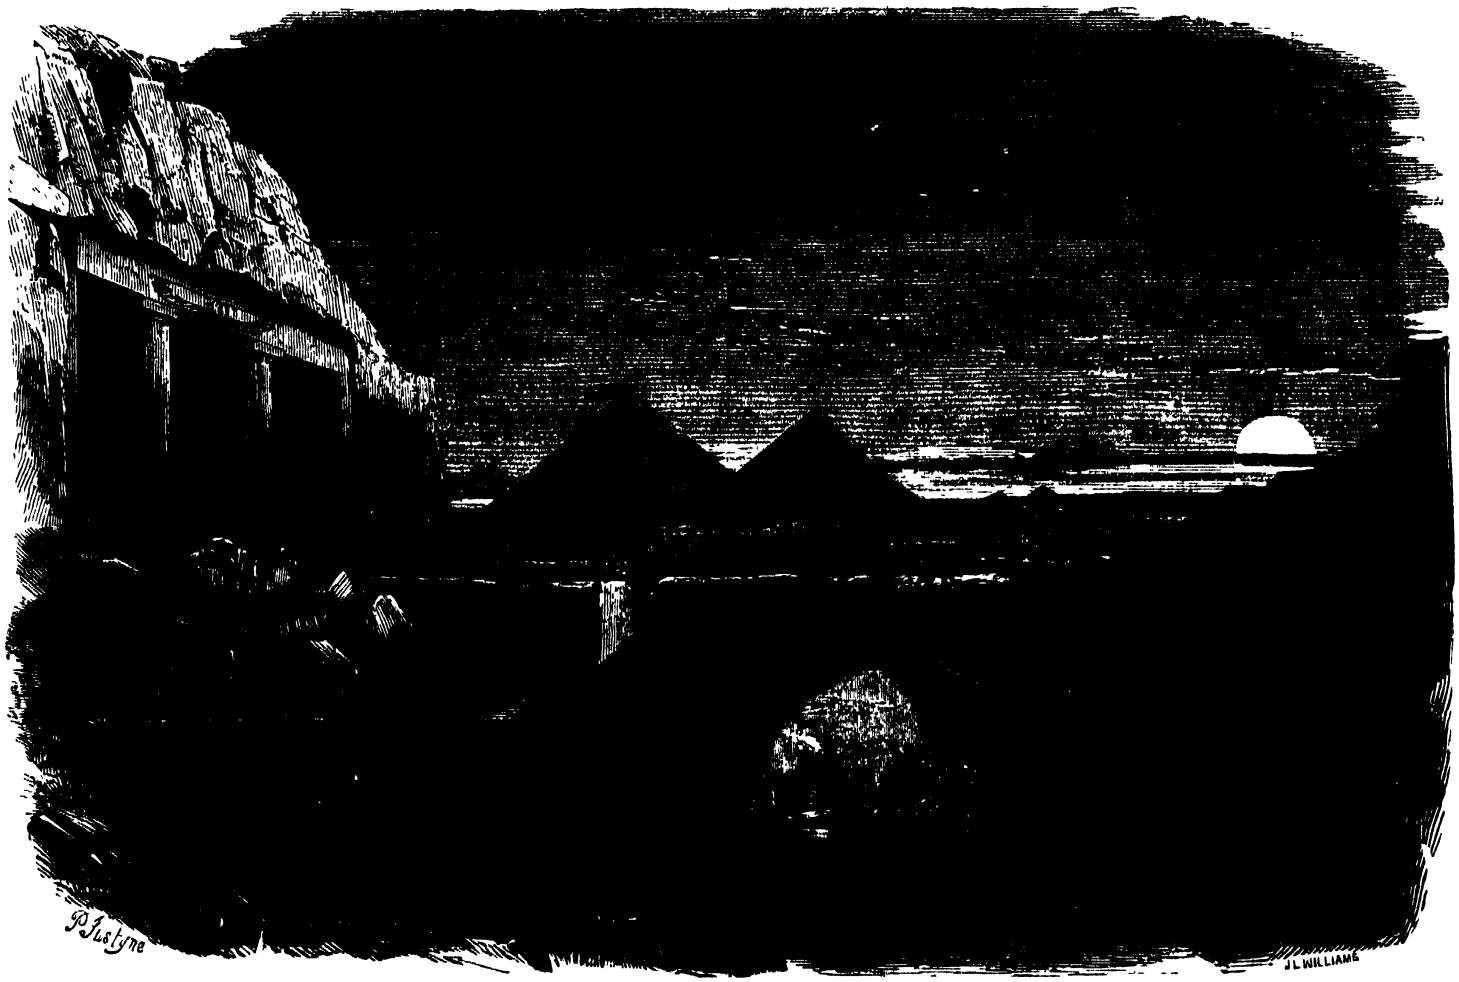
21 The strong among the mighty shall speak to him out of the midst of hell with them that help him: they are gone down, they lie uncircumcised, slain by the sword.[a]

22 Asshur is there and all her company: his graves are about him: all of them slain, fallen by the sword:[b]

23 Whose graves are set in the sides of the pit, and her company is round about her grave: all of them slain, fallen by the sword, which caused [1]terror in the land of the living.[c]

24 There is Elam and all her multitude round about her grave, all of them slain, fallen by the sword, which are gone down uncircumcised into the nether parts of the earth, which caused their terror in the land of the living; yet have they borne their shame with them that go down to the pit.[d]



25 They have set her a bed in the midst of the slain with all her multitude: her graves are round about him: all of them uncircumcised, slain by the sword: though their terror was caused in the land of the living, yet have they borne their shame with them that go down to the pit: he is put in the midst of them that be slain.

26 There is Meshech, Tubal, and all her multitude: her graves are round about him: all of them uncircumcised, slain by the sword, though they caused their terror in the land of the living.[e]

27 And they shall not lie with the mighty that are fallen of the uncircumcised, which are gone down to hell [2]with their weapons of war: and they have laid their swords under their heads, but their iniquities shall be upon their bones, though they were the terror of the mighty in the land of the living.[f]

28 Yea, thou shalt be broken in the midst of the uncircumcised, and shalt lie with them that are slain with the sword.

29 There is Edom, her kings, and all her princes, which with their might are [3]laid by them that were slain by the sword: they shall lie with the uncircumcised, and with them that go down to the pit.[g]

CHAPTER XXXIII.

1 According to the duty of a watchman, in warning the people, 7 Ezekiel is admonished of his duty 10 God sheweth the justice of his ways towards the penitent, and towards revolters. 17 He maintaineth his justice. 21 Upon the news of the taking of Jerusalem he propheseth the desolation of the land. 30 God's judgment upon the mockers of the prophets.

AGAIN the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, speak to the children of thy people, and say unto them, [1]When I bring the sword upon a land, if the people of the land take a man of their coasts, and set him for their watchman:[a]

3 If when he seeth the sword come upon the land, he blow the trumpet, and warn the people;

4 Then [2]whosoever heareth the sound of the trumpet, and taketh not warning; if the sword come, and take him away, his blood shall be upon his own head.[b]

5 He heard the sound of the trumpet, and took not warning; his blood shall be upon him. But he that taketh warning shall deliver his soul.

6 But if the watchman see the sword come, and blow not the trumpet, and the people be not warned; if the sword come, and take any person from among them, he is taken away in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at the watchman's hand.[c]

7 ¶ So thou, O son of man, I have set thee a watchman unto the house of Israel; therefore thou shalt hear the word at my mouth, and warn them from me.[d]

8 When I say unto the wicked, O wicked man, thou shalt surely die; if thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way, that wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand.

9 Nevertheless, if thou warn the wicked of his way to turn from it; if he do not turn from his way, he shall die in his iniquity; but thou hast delivered thy soul.

10 Therefore, O thou son of man, speak unto the house of Israel; Thus ye speak, saying, If our transgressions and our sins be upon us, and we pine away in them, how should we then live?[e]

11 Say unto them, As I live, saith the Lord GOD, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live: turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways; for why will ye die, O house of Israel?[f]

12 Therefore, thou son of man, say unto the children of thy people, The righteousness of the righteous shall not deliver him in the day of his transgression: as for the wickedness of the wicked, he shall not fall thereby in the day that he turneth from his wickedness; neither shall the righteous be able to live for his righteousness in the day that he sinneth.[g]

13 When I shall say to the righteous, that he shall surely live; if he trust to his own righteousness, and commit iniquity, all his righteousnesses shall not be remembered; but for his iniquity that he hath committed, he shall die for it.[h]

15 If the wicked restore the pledge, give again that he had robbed, walk in the statutes of life, without committing iniquity; he shall surely live, he shall not die.[k]

16 None of his sins that he hath committed shall be mentioned unto him: he hath done that which is lawful and right; he shall surely live.[k]

17 ¶ Yet the children of thy people say, The way of the Lord is not equal: but as for them, their way is not equal.[l]

18 When the righteous turneth from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, he shall even die thereby.[m]

19 But if the wicked turn from his wickedness, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall live thereby.

20 ¶ Yet ye say, The way of the Lord is not equal. O ye house of Israel, I will judge you every one after his ways.[n]

21 ¶ And it came to pass in the twelfth year of our captivity, in the tenth month, in the fifth day of the month, that one that had escaped out of Jerusalem came unto me, saying, The city is smitten.[o]

22 Now the hand of the LORD was upon me in the evening, afore he that was escaped came; and had opened my mouth, until he came to me in the morning; and my mouth was opened, and I was no more dumb.[p]

23 Then the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

24 Son of man, they that inhabit those wastes of the land of Israel speak, saying, Abraham was one, and he inherited the land: but we are many; the land is given us for inheritance.[q]

25 Wherefore say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Ye eat with the blood, and lift up your eyes toward your idols, and shed blood: and shall ye possess the land?[r]

26 Ye stand upon your sword, ye work abomination, and ye defile every one his neighbour's wife: and shall ye possess the land?[s]

27 Say thou thus unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; As I live, surely they that are in the wastes shall fall by the sword, and him that is in the open field will I give to the beasts [3]to be devoured, and they that be in the forts and in the caves shall die of the pestilence.[t]

28 For I will lay the land most desolate, and the pomp of her strength shall cease; and the mountains of Israel shall be desolate, that none shall pass through.[u]

29 Then shall they know that I am the LORD, when I have laid the land most desolate because of all their abominations which they have committed.

30 ¶ Also, thou son of man, the children of thy people still are talking [4]against thee by the walls and in the doors of the houses, and speak one to another, every one to his brother, saying, Come, I pray you, and hear what is the word that cometh forth from the LORD.[a]

31 And they come unto thee [1]as the people cometh, and [2]they sit before thee as my people, and they hear thy words, but they will not do them: for with their mouth [3]they shew much love, but their heart goeth after their covetousness.[b]

32 And, lo, thou art unto them as [4]a very lovely song of one that hath a pleasant voice, and can play well on an instrument: for they hear thy words, but they do them not.

33 And when this cometh to pass, (lo, it will come,) then shall they know that a prophet hath been among them.[c]

CHAPTER XXXIV.

1 A reproof of the shepherds. 7 God's judgment against them. 11 His providence for his flock. 20 The kingdom of Christ.

AND the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, prophesy against the shepherds of Israel, prophesy, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD unto the shepherds; Woe be to the shepherds of Israel that do feed themselves! should not the shepherds feed the flocks?[d]

3 Ye eat the fat, and ye clothe you with the wool, ye kill them that are fed: but ye feed not the flock.[e]

4 The diseased have ye not strengthened, neither have ye healed that which was sick, neither have ye bound up that which was broken, neither have ye brought again that which was driven away, neither have ye sought that which was lost; but with force and with cruelty have ye ruled them.[f]

5 And they were scattered, [5]because there is no shepherd: and they became meat to all the beasts of the field, when they were scattered.[g]

6 My sheep wandered through all the mountains, and upon every high hill: yea, my flock was scattered upon all the face of the earth, and none did search or seek after them.

7 ¶ Therefore, ye shepherds, hear the word of the LORD;

8 As I live, saith the Lord GOD, surely because my flock became a prey, and my flock became meat to every beast of the field, because there was no shepherd, neither did my shepherds search for my flock, but the shepherds fed themselves, and fed not my flock;[h]

9 Therefore, O ye shepherds, hear the word of the LORD;

10 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against the shepherds; and I will require my flock at their hand, and cause them to cease from feeding the flock; neither shall the shepherds feed themselves any more; for I will deliver my flock from their mouth, that they may not be meat for them.[i]

11 ¶ For thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I, even I, will both search my sheep, and seek them out.

13 And I will bring them out from the people, and gather them from the countries, and will bring them to their own land, and feed them upon the mountains of Israel by the rivers, and in all the inhabited places of the country.[k]

14 I will feed them in a good pasture, and upon the high mountains of Israel shall their fold be: there shall they lie in a good fold, and in a fat pasture shall they feed upon the mountains of Israel.[l]

15 I will feed my flock, and I will cause them to lie down, saith the Lord GOD.

16 I will seek that which was lost, and bring again that which was driven away, and will bind up that which was broken, and will strengthen that which was sick: but I will destroy the fat and the strong; I will feed them with judgment.[m]

17 And as for you, O my flock, thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I judge between [7]cattle and cattle, between the rams and the [8]he goats.[n]

18 Seemeth it a small thing unto you to have eaten up the good pasture, but ye must tread down with your feet the residue of your pastures? and to have drunk of the deep waters, but ye must foul the residue with your feet?

19 And as for my flock, they eat that which ye have trodden with your feet; and they drink that which ye have fouled with your feet.

20 ¶ Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD unto them; Behold, I, even I, will judge between the fat cattle and between the lean cattle.

21 Because ye have thrust with side and with shoulder, and pushed all the diseased with your horns, till ye have scattered them abroad;

22 Therefore will I save my flock, and they shall no more be a prey; and I will judge between cattle and cattle.[p]

23 And I will set up one shepherd over them, and he shall feed them, even my servant David; he shall feed them, and he shall be their shepherd.[q]

24 And I the LORD will be their God, and my servant David a prince among them; I the LORD have spoken it.[r]

25 And I will make with them a covenant of peace, and will cause the evil beasts to cease out of the land: and they shall dwell safely in the wilderness, and sleep in the woods.[s]

26 And I will make them and the places round about my hill a blessing; and I will cause the shower to come down in his season; there shall be showers of blessing.[t]

27 And the tree of the field shall yield her fruit, and the earth shall yield her increase, and they shall be safe in their land, and shall know that I am the LORD, when I have broken the bands of their yoke, and delivered them out of the hand of those that served themselves of them.[u]

28 And they shall no more be a prey to the heathen, neither shall the beast of the land devour them; but they shall dwell safely, and none shall make them afraid.[a]

29 And I will raise up for them a plant [1]of renown, and they shall be no more [2]consumed with hunger in the land, neither bear the shame of the heathen any more.[b]

30 Thus shall they know that I the LORD their God am with them, and that they, even the house of Israel, are my people, saith the Lord GOD.[c]

31 And ye my flock, the flock of my pasture, are men, and I am your God, saith the Lord GOD.[d]

CHAPTER XXXV.

The judgment of mount Seir for their hatred of Israel.

MOREOVER the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, set thy face against mount Seir, and prophesy against it,[e]

3 And say unto it, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, O mount Seir, I am against thee, and I will stretch out mine hand against thee, and I will make thee [3]most desolate.[f]

4 I will lay thy cities waste, and thou shalt be desolate, and thou shalt know that I am the LORD.[g]

5 Because thou hast had a [4]perpetual hatred, and hast [5]shed the blood of the children of Israel by the [6]force of the sword in the time of their calamity, in the time that their iniquity had an end:[h]

6 Therefore, as I live, saith the Lord GOD, I will prepare thee unto blood, and blood shall pursue thee: sith thou hast not hated blood, even blood shall pursue thee.[i]

7 Thus will I make mount Seir [7]most desolate, and cut off from it him that passeth out and him that returneth.[j]

8 And I will fill his mountains with his slain men: in thy hills, and in thy valleys, and in all thy rivers, shall they fall that are slain with the sword.[k]

9 I will make thee perpetual desolations, and thy cities shall not return: and ye shall know that I am the LORD.[l]

10 Because thou hast said, These two nations and these two countries shall be mine, and we will possess it; whereas the LORD was there:[m]

11 Therefore, as I live, saith the Lord GOD, I will even do according to thine anger, and according to thine envy which thou hast used out of thy hatred against them; and I will make myself known among them, when I have judged thee.[n]

12 And thou shalt know that I am the LORD, and that I have heard all thy blasphemies which thou hast spoken against the mountains of Israel, saying, They are laid desolate, they are given us [8]to consume.[o]

13 Thus with your mouth ye have [9]boasted against me, and have multiplied your words against me: I have heard them.[p]

14 Thus saith the Lord GOD; When the whole earth rejoiceth, I will make thee desolate.[q]

15 As thou didst rejoice at the inheritance of the house of Israel, because it was desolate, so will I do unto thee: thou shalt be desolate, O mount Seir, and all Idumea, even all of it: and they shall know that I am the LORD.[r]

CHAPTER XXXVI.

1 The land of Israel is comforted, both by destruction of the heathen, who spitefully used it, 8 and by the blessings of God promised unto it. 16 Israel was rejected for their sin, 21 and shall be restored without their desert 25 The blessings of Christ's kingdom.

ALSO, thou son of man, prophesy unto the mountains of Israel, and say, Ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the LORD:[s]

2 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Because the enemy hath said against you, Aha, even the ancient high places are our's in possession:[t]

3 Therefore prophesy and say, Thus saith the Lord GOD, [10]Because they have made you desolate, and swallowed you up on every side, that ye might be a possession unto the residue of the heathen, and [11]ye are taken up in the lips of talkers, and are an infamy of the people:[u]

4 Therefore, ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord GOD; Thus saith the Lord GOD to the mountains, and to the hills, to the [12]rivers, and to the valleys, to the desolate wastes, and to the cities that are forsaken, which became a prey and derision to the residue of the heathen that are round about;[v]

5 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Surely in the fire of my jealousy have I spoken against the residue of the heathen, and against all Idumea, which have appointed my land into their possession with the joy of all their heart, with despiteful minds, to cast it out for a prey.[w]

6 Prophesy therefore concerning the land of Israel, and say unto the mountains, and to the hills, to the rivers, and to the valleys, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I have spoken in my jealousy and in my fury, because ye have borne the shame of the heathen:[x]

7 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; I have lifted up mine hand, Surely the heathen that are about you, they shall bear their shame.[y]

8 ¶ But ye, O mountains of Israel, ye shall shoot forth your branches, and yield your fruit to my people of Israel; for they are at hand to come.

9 For, behold, I am for you, and I will turn unto you, and ye shall be tilled and sown:

10 And I will multiply men upon you, all the house of Israel, even all of it: and the cities shall be inhabited, and the wastes shall be builded:[z]

11 And I will multiply upon you man and beast; and they shall increase and bring fruit: and I will settle you after your old estates, and will do better unto you than at your beginnings: and ye shall know that I am the LORD.[a]

12 Yea, I will cause men to walk upon you, even my people Israel; and they shall possess thee, and thou shalt be their inheritance, and thou shalt no more henceforth bereave them of men.[a]

13 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Because they say unto you, Thou land devourest up men, and hast bereaved thy nations;[b]

14 Therefore thou shalt devour men no more, neither [1]bereave thy nations any more, saith the Lord GOD.

15 Neither will I cause men to hear in thee the shame of the heathen any more, neither shalt thou bear the reproach of the people any more, neither shalt thou cause thy nations to fall any more, saith the Lord GOD.[c]

16 ¶ Moreover the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

17 Son of man, when the house of Israel dwelt in their own land, they defiled it by their own way and by their doings: their way was before me as the uncleanness of a removed woman.[d]

18 Wherefore I poured my fury upon them for the blood that they had shed upon the land, and for their idols wherewith they had polluted it:[e]

19 And I scattered them among the heathen, and they were dispersed through the countries: according to their way and according to their doings I judged them.[f]

20 And when they entered unto the heathen, whither they went, they profaned my holy name, when they said to them, These are the people of the LORD, and are gone forth out of his land.[g]

21 ¶ But I had pity for mine holy name, which the house of Israel had profaned among the heathen, whither they went.[h]

22 Therefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord GOD; I do not this for your sakes, O house of Israel, but for mine holy name's sake, which ye have profaned among the heathen, whither ye went.[i]

23 And I will sanctify my great name, which was profaned among the heathen, which ye have profaned in the midst of them; and the heathen shall know that I am the LORD, saith the Lord GOD, when I shall be sanctified in you before [2]their eyes.[j]

24 For I will take you from among the heathen, and gather you out of all countries, and will bring you into your own land.[k]

25 ¶ Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean: from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you.[l]

26 A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you: and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh.[m]

27 And I will put my spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments, and do them.[n]

28 And ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers; and ye shall be my people, and I will be your God.[o]

29 I will also save you from all your uncleannesses: and I will call for the corn, and will increase it, and lay no famine upon you.[p]

CHAPTER XXXVII.

1 By the resurrection of dry bones, 11 the dead hope of Israel is revived. 15 By the uniting of two sticks, 18 is shewed the incorporation of Israel into Judah. 20 The promises of Christ's kingdom.

THE hand of the LORD was upon me, and carried me out in the spirit of the LORD, and set me down in the midst of the valley which was full of bones,[x]

2 And caused me to pass by them round about: and, behold, there were very many in the open [4]valley; and, lo, they were very dry.

3 And he said unto me, Son of man, can these bones live? And I answered, O Lord GOD, thou knowest.[y]

4 Again he said unto me, Prophesy upon these bones, and say unto them, O ye dry bones, hear the word of the LORD.

5 Thus saith the Lord GOD unto these bones; Behold, I will cause breath to enter into you, and ye shall live:[z]

6 And I will lay sinews upon you, and will bring up flesh upon you, and cover you with skin, and put breath in you, and ye shall live; and ye shall know that I am the LORD.[a]

7 So I prophesied as I was commanded: and as I prophesied, there was a noise, and behold a shaking, and the bones came together, bone to his bone.

8 And when I beheld, lo, the sinews and the flesh came up upon them, and the skin covered them above: but there was no breath in them.

9 Then said he unto me, Prophesy unto the [1]wind, prophesy, son of man, and say to the wind, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Come from the four winds, O breath, and breathe upon these slain, that they may live.[a]

10 So I prophesied as he commanded me, and the breath came into them, and they lived, and stood up upon their feet, an exceeding great army.[b]

11 ¶ Then he said unto me, Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel: behold, they say, Our bones are dried, and our hope is lost: we are cut off for our parts.[c]

12 Therefore prophesy and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel.[d]

13 And ye shall know that I am the LORD, when I have opened your graves, O my people, and brought you up out of your graves,

14 And shall put my spirit in you, and ye shall live, and I shall place you in your own land: then shall ye know that I the LORD have spoken it, and performed it, saith the LORD.[e]

15 ¶ The word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

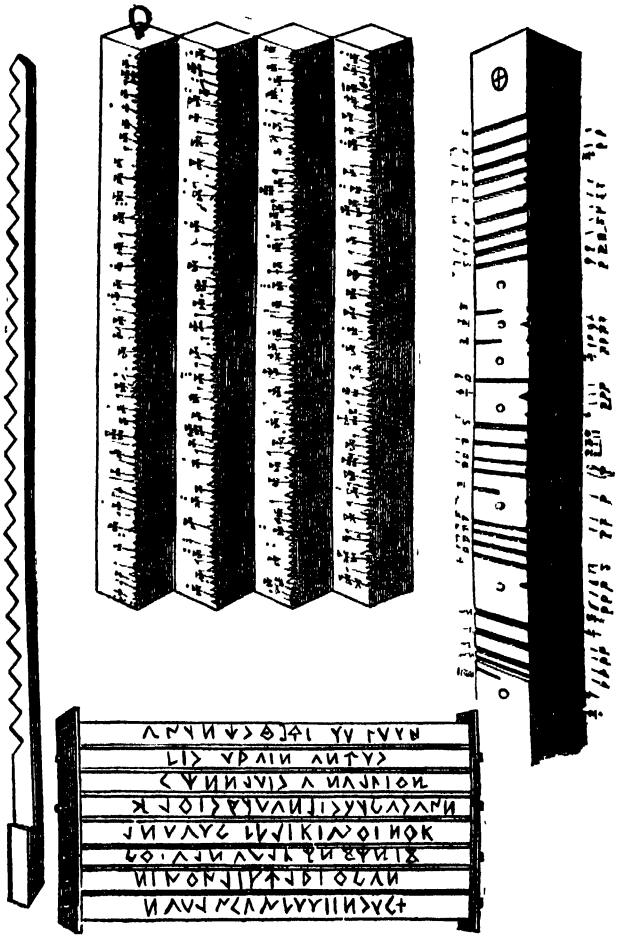
16 Moreover, thou son of man, take thee one stick, and write upon it, For Judah, and for the children of Israel his companions: then take another stick, and write upon it, For Joseph, the stick of Ephraim, and for all the house of Israel his companions:[f]

17 And join them one to another into one stick; and they shall become one in thine hand.[g]

18 ¶ And when the children of thy people shall speak unto thee, saying, Wilt thou not show us what thou meanest by these?[h]

19 Say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I will take the stick of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel his fellows, and will put them with him, even with the stick of Judah, and make them one stick, and they shall be one in mine hand.[i]

20 ¶ And the sticks whereon thou writest shall be in thine hand before their eyes.



21 And say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen, whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land:

22 And I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all: and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all:[j]

23 Neither shall they defile themselves any more with their idols, nor with their detestable things, nor with any of their transgressions: but I will save them out of all their dwellingplaces, wherein they have sinned, and will cleanse them: so shall they be my people, and I will be their God.[k]

24 And David my servant shall be king over them; and they all shall have one shepherd: they shall also walk in my judgments, and observe my statutes, and do them.[l]

25 And they shall dwell in the land that I have given unto Jacob my servant, wherein your fathers have dwelt; and they shall dwell therein, even they, and their children, and their children's children for ever: and my servant David shall be their prince for ever.[m]

SPECIMENS OF ANCIENT WRITING ON STICKS.—EZEKIEL XXXVII. 19, 20.

26 Moreover I will make a covenant of peace with them; it shall be an everlasting covenant with them: and I will place them, and multiply them, and will set my sanctuary in the midst of them for evermore.[n]

27 My tabernacle also shall be with them: yea, I will be their God, and they shall be my people.[o]

28 And the heathen shall know that I the LORD do sanctify Israel, when my sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for evermore.[p]

8 ¶ After many days thou shalt be visited: in the latter years thou shalt come into the land that is brought back from the sword, and is gathered out of many people, against the mountains of Israel, which have been always waste: but it is brought forth out of the nations, and they shall dwell safely all of them.[e]

10 Thus saith the Lord GOD; It shall also come to pass, that at the same time shall things come into thy mind, and thou shalt [2]think an evil thought:

11 And thou shalt say, I will go up to the land of unwalled villages; I will go to them that are at rest, that dwell [3]safely, all of them dwelling without walls, and having neither bars nor gates,[g]

14 ¶ Therefore, son of man, prophesy and say unto Gog, Thus saith the Lord GOD: In that day when my people of Israel dwelleth safely, shalt thou not know it?[j]

15 And thou shalt come from thy place out of the north parts, thou, and many people with thee, all of them riding upon horses, a great company, and a mighty army:[k]

17 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Art thou he of whom I have spoken in old time [5]by my servants the prophets of Israel, which prophesied in those days many years that I would bring thee against them?

21 And I will set my glory among the heathen, and all the heathen shall see my judgment that I have executed, and my hand that I have laid upon them.[i]

22 So the house of Israel shall know that I am the LORD their God from that day and forward.[j]

23 ¶ And the heathen shall know that the house of Israel went into captivity for their iniquity: because they trespassed against me, therefore hid I my face from them, and gave them into the hand of their enemies: so fell they all by the sword.[k]

24 According to their uncleanness and according to their transgressions have I done unto them, and hid my face from them.[l]

25 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Now will I bring again the captivity of Jacob, and have mercy upon the whole house of Israel, and will be jealous for my holy name;[a]

26 After that they have borne their shame, and all their trespasses whereby they have trespassed against me, when they dwelt safely in their land, and none made them afraid.[b]

27 When I have brought them again from the people, and gathered them out of their enemies' lands, and am sanctified in them in the sight of many nations;[c]

28 Then shall they know that I am the LORD their God, [1]which caused them to be led into captivity among the heathen: but I have gathered them unto their own land, and have left none of them any more there.[d]

29 Neither will I hide my face any more from them: for I have poured out my spirit upon the house of Israel, saith the Lord GOD.[e]

CHAPTER XL.

1 The time, manner, and end of the vision. 6 The description of the east gate, 20 of the north gate, 24 of the south gate, 32 of the east gate, 35 and of the north gate. 39 Eight tables. 44 The chambers. 48 The porch of the house.

IN the five and twentieth year of our captivity, in the beginning of the year, in the tenth day of the month, in the fourteenth year after that the city was smitten, in the selfsame day the hand of the LORD was upon me, and brought me thither.[f]

2 In the visions of God brought he me into the land of Israel, and set me upon a very high mountain, [2]by which was as the frame of a city on the south.[g]

3 And he brought me thither, and, behold, there was a man, whose appearance was like the appearance of brass, with a line of flax in his hand, and a measuring reed; and he stood in the gate.[h]

4 And the man said unto me, Son of man, behold with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears, and set thine heart upon all that I shall shew thee; for to the intent that I might shew them unto thee art thou brought hither: declare all that thou seest to the house of Israel.[i]

5 And behold a wall on the outside of the house round about, and in the man's hand a measuring reed of six cubits long by the cubit and an hand breadth: so he measured the breadth of the building, one reed; and the height, one reed.[j]

6 ¶ Then came he unto the gate [3]which looketh toward the east, and went up the stairs thereof, and measured the threshold of the gate, which was one reed broad; and the other threshold of the gate, which was one reed broad.

7 And every little chamber was one reed long, and one reed broad; and between the little chambers were five cubits; and the threshold of the gate by the porch of the gate within was one reed.

8 He measured also the porch of the gate within, one reed.

9 Then measured he the porch of the gate, eight cubits; and the posts thereof, two cubits; and the porch of the gate was inward.

10 And the little chambers of the gate eastward were three on this side, and three on that side; they three were of one measure: and the posts had one measure on this side and on that side.

11 And he measured the breadth of the entry of the gate, ten cubits; and the length of the gate, thirteen cubits.

12 The [4]space also before the little chambers was one cubit on this side, and the space was one cubit on that side: and the little chambers were six cubits on this side, and six cubits on that side.

13 He measured then the gate from the roof of one little chamber to the roof of another: the breadth was five and twenty cubits, door against door.

14 He made also posts of threescore cubits, even unto the post of the court round about the gate.

15 And from the face of the gate of the entrance unto the face of the porch of the inner gate were fifty cubits.

16 And there were [5]narrow windows to the little chambers, and to their posts within the gate round about, and likewise to the [6]arches: and windows were round about [7]inward: and upon each post were palm trees.[k]

17 Then brought he me into the outward court, and, lo, there were chambers, and a pavement made for the court round about: thirty chambers were upon the pavement.[l]

18 And the pavement by the side of the gates over against the length of the gates was the lower pavement.

19 Then he measured the breadth from the forefront of the lower gate unto the forefront of the inner court [8]without, an hundred cubits eastward and northward.

20 ¶ And the gate of the outward court [9]that looked toward the north, he measured the length thereof, and the breadth thereof.

21 And the little chambers thereof were three on this side and three on that side; and the posts thereof and the [10]arches thereof were after the measure of the first gate: the length thereof was fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits.

22 And their windows, and their arches, and their palm trees, were after the measure of the gate that looketh toward the east; and they went up unto it by seven steps; and the arches thereof were before them.[m]

23 And the gate of the inner court was over against the gate toward the north, and toward the east; and he measured from gate to gate an hundred cubits.

24 ¶ After that he brought me toward the south, and behold a gate toward the south: and he measured the posts thereof and the arches thereof according to these measures.

25 And there were windows in it and in the arches thereof round about, like those windows: the length

39 ¶ And in the porch of the gate were two tables on this side, and two tables on that side, to slay thereon the burnt offering and the sin offering and the trespass offering.[a]

40 And at the side without, [1]as one goeth up to the entry of the north gate, were two tables; and on the other side, which was at the porch of the gate, were two tables.

41 Four tables were on this side, and four tables on that side, by the side of the gate; eight tables, whereupon they slew their sacrifices.

42 And the four tables were of hewn stone for the burnt offering, of a cubit and an half long, and a cubit and an half broad, and one cubit high: whereupon also they laid the instruments wherewith they slew the burnt offering and the sacrifice.

43 And within were [2]hooks, an hand broad, fastened round about: and upon the tables was the flesh of the offering.

CHAPTER XLI.

The measures, parts, chambers, and ornaments of the temple.

AFTERWARD he brought me to the temple, and measured the posts, six cubits broad on the one side, and six cubits broad on the other side, which was the breadth of the tabernacle.

2 And the breadth of the [4]door was ten cubits; and the sides of the door were five cubits on the one side, and five cubits on the other side: and he measured the length thereof, forty cubits: and the breadth, twenty cubits.

3 Then went he inward, and measured the post of the door, two cubits; and the door, six cubits; and the breadth of the door, seven cubits.

4 So he measured the length thereof, twenty cubits; and the breadth, twenty cubits, before the temple: and he said unto me, This is the most holy place.[a]

5 After he measured the wall of the house, six cubits; and the breadth of every side chamber, four cubits, round about the house on every side.

6 And the side chambers were three, [1]one over another, and [2]thirty in order; and they entered into the wall which was of the house for the side chambers round about, that they might [3]have hold, but they had not hold in the wall of the house.[b]

7 And [4]there was an enlarging, and a winding about still upward to the side chambers: for the winding about of the house went still upward round about the house: therefore the breadth of the house was still upward, and so increased from the lowest chamber to the highest by the midst.[c]

8 I saw also the height of the house round about: the foundations of the side chambers were a full reed of six great cubits.[d]

9 The thickness of the wall, which was for the side chamber without, was five cubits: and that which was left was the place of the side chambers that were within.

10 And between the chambers was the wideness of twenty cubits round about the house on every side.

11 And the doors of the side chambers were toward the place that was left, one door toward the north, and another door toward the south: and the breadth of the place that was left was five cubits round about.

12 Now the building that was before the separate place at the end toward the west was seventy cubits broad; and the wall of the building was five cubits thick round about, and the length thereof ninety cubits.

13 So he measured the house, an hundred cubits long; and the separate place, and the building, with the walls thereof, an hundred cubits long;

14 Also the breadth of the face of the house, and of the separate place toward the east, an hundred cubits.

15 And he measured the length of the building over against the separate place which was behind it, and the [5]galleries thereof on the one side and on the other side, an hundred cubits, with the inner temple, and the porches of the court;

16 The door posts, and the narrow windows, and the galleries round about on their three stories, over against the door, [6]cieled with wood round about, [7]and from the ground up to the windows, and the windows were covered;[e]

17 To that above the door, even unto the inner house, and without, and by all the wall round about within and without, by [8]measure.

18 And it was made with cherubims and palm trees, so that a palm tree was between a cherub and a cherub; and every cherub had two faces;[f]

19 So that the face of a man was toward the palm tree on the one side, and the face of a young lion toward the palm tree on the other side: it was made through all the house round about.[g]

20 From the ground unto above the door were cherubims and palm trees made, and on the wall of the temple.

21 The [9]posts of the temple were squared, and the face of the sanctuary; the appearance of the one as the appearance of the other.

22 The altar of wood was three cubits high, and the length thereof two cubits; and the corners thereof, and the length thereof, and the walls thereof, were of wood: and he said unto me, This is the table that is before the LORD.[h]

23 And the temple and the sanctuary had two doors.[i]

24 And the doors had two leaves apiece, two turning leaves; two leaves for the one door, and two leaves for the other door.

25 And there were made on them, on the doors of the temple, cherubims and palm trees, like as were made upon the walls; and there were thick planks upon the face of the porch without.

26 And there were narrow windows and palm trees on the one side and on the other side, on the sides of the porch, and upon the side chambers of the house, and thick planks.[j]

1 The chambers for the priests. 13 The use thereof. 19 The measures of the outward court.

THEN he brought me forth into the utter court, the way toward the north: and he brought me into the chamber that was over against the separate place, and which was before the building toward the north.[k]

2 Before the length of an hundred cubits was the north door, and the breadth was fifty cubits.

3 Over against the twenty cubits which were for the inner court, and over against the pavement which was for the utter court, was gallery against gallery in three stories.[l]

4 And before the chambers was a walk of ten cubits breadth inward, a way of one cubit; and their doors toward the north.

5 Now the upper chambers were shorter: for the galleries [10]were higher than these, than the lower, [11]and than the middlemost of the building.

6 For they were in three stories, but had not pillars as the pillars of the courts: therefore the building was straitened more than the lowest and the middlemost from the ground.

7 And the wall that was without over against the chambers, toward the utter court on the forepart of the chambers, the length thereof was fifty cubits.

8 For the length of the chambers that were in the utter court was fifty cubits: and, lo, before the temple were an hundred cubits.

9 And [12]from under these chambers was [13]the entry on the east side, [1]as one goeth into them from the utter court.

10 The chambers were in the thickness of the wall of the court toward the east, over against the separate place, and over against the building.

11 And the way before them was like the appearance of the chambers which were toward the north, as long as they, and as broad as they: and all their goings out were both according to their fashions, and according to their doors.[e]

12 And according to the doors of the chambers that were toward the south was a door in the head of the way, even the way directly before the wall toward the east, as one entereth into them.

13 ¶ Then said he unto me, The north chambers and the south chambers, which are before the separate place, they be holy chambers, where the priests that approach unto the LORD shall eat the most holy things: there shall they lay the most holy things, and the meat offering, and the sin offering, and the trespass offering; for the place is holy.[b]

14 When the priests enter therein, then shall they not go out of the holy place into the utter court, but there they shall lay their garments wherein they minister; for they are holy; and shall put on other garments, and shall approach to those things which are for the people.[c]

15 Now when he had made an end of measuring the inner house, he brought me forth toward the gate whose prospect is toward the east, and measured it round about.

16 He measured the east [2]side with the measuring reed, five hundred reeds, with the measuring reed round about.

17 He measured the north side, five hundred reeds, with the measuring reed round about.

18 He measured the south side, five hundred reeds, with the measuring reed.

19 ¶ He turned about to the west side, and measured five hundred reeds with the measuring reed.

20 He measured it by the four sides: it had a wall round about, five hundred reeds long, and five hundred broad, to make a separation between the sanctuary and the profane place.[d]

CHAPTER XLIII.

1 The returning of the glory of God into the temple. 7 The sin of Israel hindered God's presence. 10 The prophet exhorteth them to repentance, and observation of the law of the house. 13 The measures, 18 and the ordinances of the altar.

AFTERWARD he brought me to the gate, even the gate that looketh toward the east:[e]

2 And, behold, the glory of the God of Israel came from the way of the east: and his voice was like a noise of many waters: and the earth shined with his glory.[f]

3 And it was according to the appearance of the vision which I saw, even according to the vision that I saw [3]when I came to destroy the city: and the visions were like the vision that I saw by the river Chebar; and I fell upon my face.[g]

4 And the glory of the LORD came into the house by the way of the gate whose prospect is toward the east.[h]

5 So the spirit took me up, and brought me into the inner court; and, behold, the glory of the LORD filled the house.[i]

6 And I heard him speaking unto me out of the house; and the man stood by me.[j]

7 ¶ And he said unto me, Son of man, the place of my throne, and the place of the soles of my feet, where I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel for ever, and my holy name, shall the house of Israel no more defile, neither they, nor their kings, by their whoredom, nor by the carcases of their kings in their high places.[k]

8 In their setting of their threshold by my thresholds, and their post by my posts, [4]and the wall between me and them, they have even defiled my holy name by their abominations that they have committed: wherefore I have consumed them in mine anger.[l]

9 Now let them put away their whoredom, and the carcases of their kings, far from me, and I will dwell in the midst of them for ever.[m]

10 ¶ Thou son of man, shew the house to the house of Israel, that they may be ashamed of their iniquities: and let them measure the [5]pattern.[n]

11 And if they be ashamed of all that they have done, shew them the form of the house, and the fashion thereof, and the goings out thereof, and the comings in thereof, and all the forms thereof, and all the ordinances thereof, and all the forms thereof, and all the laws thereof: and write it in their sight, that they may keep the whole form thereof, and all the ordinances thereof, and do them.

12 This is the law of the house; Upon the top of the mountain the whole limit thereof round about shall be most holy. Behold, this is the law of the house.[o]

13 ¶ And these are the measures of the altar after the cubits: The cubit is a cubit and an hand breadth; even the [6]bottom shall be a cubit, and the breadth a cubit, and the border thereof by the [7]edge thereof round about shall be a span: and this shall be the higher place of the altar.[p]

14 And from the bottom upon the ground even to the lower settle shall be two cubits, and the breadth one cubit; and from the lesser settle even to the greater settle shall be four cubits, and the breadth one cubit.

15 So [8]the altar shall be four cubits; and from [9]the altar and upward shall be four horns.

16 And the altar shall be twelve cubits long, twelve broad, square in the four squares thereof.

17 And the settle shall be fourteen cubits long and fourteen broad in the four squares thereof; and the border about it shall be half a cubit; and the bottom thereof shall be a cubit about; and his stairs shall look toward the east.[q]

19 And thou shalt give to the priests the Levites that be of the seed of Zadok, which approach unto me, to minister unto me, saith the Lord GOD, a young bullock for a sin offering.[b]

20 And thou shalt take of the blood thereof, and put it on the four horns of it, and on the four corners of the settle, and upon the border round about: thus shalt thou cleanse and purge it.

THEN he brought me back the way of the gate of the outward sanctuary which looketh toward the east; and it was shut.[g]

2 Then said the LORD unto me; This gate shall be shut, it shall not be opened, and no man shall enter in by it; because the LORD, the God of Israel, hath entered in by it, therefore it shall be shut.[h]

3 It is for the prince; the prince, he shall sit in it to eat bread before the LORD; he shall enter by the way of the porch of that gate, and shall go out by the way of the same.[i]

4 ¶ Then brought he me the way of the north gate before the house: and I looked, and, behold, the glory of the LORD filled the house of the LORD: and I fell upon my face.[j]

5 And the LORD said unto me, Son of man, [3]mark well, and behold with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears all that I say unto thee concerning all the ordinances of the house of the LORD, and all the laws thereof; and mark well the entering in of the house, with every going forth of the sanctuary.[k]

6 And thou shalt say to the rebellious, even to the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord GOD; O ye house of Israel, let it suffice you of all your abominations,[l]

7 In that ye have brought into my sanctuary [4]strangers, uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh, to be in my sanctuary, to pollute it, even my house, when ye offer my bread, the fat and the blood, and they have broken my covenant because of all your abominations.[m]

8 And ye have not kept the [5]charge of mine holy things: but ye have set keepers of my charge in my sanctuary for yourselves.[n]

9 ¶ Thus saith the Lord GOD; No stranger, uncircumcised in heart, nor uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into my sanctuary, of any stranger that is among the children of Israel.[o]

10 And the Levites that are gone away far from me, when Israel went astray, which went astray away from me after their idols; they shall even bear their iniquity.[p]

11 Yet they shall be ministers in my sanctuary, having charge at the gates of the house, and ministering to the house: they shall slay the burnt offering and the sacrifice for the people, and they shall stand before them to minister unto them.[q]

12 Because they ministered unto them before their idols, and [6]caused the house of Israel to fall into iniquity; therefore have I lifted up mine hand against them, saith the Lord GOD, and they shall bear their iniquity.[r]

13 And they shall not come near unto me, to do the office of a priest unto me, nor to come near to any of my holy things, in the most holy place: but they shall bear their shame, and their abominations which they have committed.[s]

14 But I will make them keepers of the charge of the house, for all the service thereof, and for all that shall be done therein.[t]

15 ¶ But the priests the Levites, the sons of Zadok, that kept the charge of my sanctuary when the children of Israel went astray from me, they shall come near to me to minister unto me, and they shall stand before me to offer unto me the fat and the blood, saith the Lord GOD:[u]

16 They shall enter into my sanctuary, and they shall come near to my table, to minister unto me, and they shall keep my charge.[v]

17 ¶ And it shall come to pass, that when they enter in at the gates of the inner court, they shall be clothed with linen garments; and no wool shall come upon them, whiles they minister in the gates of the inner court, and within.[w]

18 They shall have linen bonnets upon their heads, and shall have linen breeches upon their loins; they shall not gird themselves [7]with any thing that causeth sweat.[x]

31 The priests shall not eat of any thing that is dead of itself, or torn, whether it be fowl or beast.[l]

CHAPTER XLV.

1 The portion of land for the sanctuary, 6 for the city, 7 and for the prince 9 Ordinances for the prince.

MOREOVER, [4]when ye shall divide by lot the land for inheritance, ye shall offer an oblation unto the LORD, [5]an holy portion of the land: the length shall be the length of five and twenty thousand reeds, and the breadth shall be ten thousand. This shall be holy in all the borders thereof round about.[m]

2 Of this there shall be for the sanctuary five hundred in length, with five hundred in breadth, square round about; and fifty cubits round about for the [6]suburbs thereof.[n]

3 And of this measure shalt thou measure the length of five and twenty thousand, and the breadth of ten thousand: and in it shall be the sanctuary and the most holy place.[o]

4 The holy portion of the land shall be for the priests the ministers of the sanctuary, which shall come near to minister unto the LORD: and it shall be a place for their houses, and an holy place for the sanctuary.[p]

5 And the five and twenty thousand of length, and the ten thousand of breadth, shall also the Levites, the ministers of the house, have for themselves, for a possession for twenty chambers.[q]

6 ¶ And ye shall appoint the possession of the city five thousand broad, and five and twenty thousand long, over against the oblation of the holy portion: it shall be for the whole house of Israel.[r]

7 ¶ And a portion shall be for the prince on the one side and on the other side of the oblation of the holy portion, and of the possession of the city, before the oblation of the holy portion, and before the possession of the city, from the west side westward, and from the east side eastward: and the length shall be over against one of the portions, from the west border unto the east border.[s]

8 In the land shall be his possession in Israel: and my princes shall no more oppress my people; and the rest of the land shall they give to the house of Israel according to their tribes.[t]

9 ¶ Thus saith the Lord GOD; Let it suffice you, O princes of Israel: remove violence and spoil, and execute judgment and justice, take away your [7]exactions from my people, saith the Lord GOD.[u]

10 Ye shall have just balances, and a just ephah, and a just bath.[v]

11 The ephah and the bath shall be of one measure, that the bath may contain the tenth part of an homer, and the ephah the tenth part of an homer: the measure thereof shall be after the homer.

12 And the shekel shall be twenty gerahs: twenty shekels, five and twenty shekels, fifteen shekels, shall be your maneh.[w]

13 This is the oblation that ye shall offer; the sixth part of an ephah of an homer of wheat, and ye shall give the sixth part of an ephah of an homer of barley:

14 Concerning the ordinance of oil, the bath of oil, ye shall offer the tenth part of a bath out of the cor, which is an homer of ten baths; for ten baths are an homer:

15 And one [8]lamb out of the flock, out of two hundred, out of the fat pastures of Israel; for a meat offering, and for a burnt offering, and for [9]peace offerings, to make reconciliation for them, saith the Lord GOD.[x]

16 All the people of the land [10]shall give this oblation [11]for the prince in Israel.

17 And it shall be the prince's part to give burnt offerings, and meat offerings, and drink offerings, in the feasts, and in the new moons, and in the sabbaths,

CHAPTER XLVI.

1 Ordinances for the prince in his worship, 9 and for the people 16 An order for the prince's inheritance. 19 The courts for boiling and baking.

Before Christ 574.

THUS saith the Lord GOD; The gate of the inner court that looketh toward the east shall be shut the six working days; but on the sabbath it shall be opened, and in the day of the new moon it shall be opened.

2 And the prince shall enter by the way of the porch of that gate without, and shall stand by the post of the gate, and the priests shall prepare his burnt offering and his peace offerings, and he shall worship at the threshold of the gate: then he shall go forth; but the gate shall not be shut until the evening.[a]

3 Likewise the people of the land shall worship at the door of this gate before the LORD in the sabbaths and in the new moons.

4 And the burnt offering that the prince shall offer unto the LORD in the sabbath day shall be six lambs without blemish, and a ram without blemish.[b]

5 And the meat offering shall be an ephah for a ram, and the meat offering for the lambs [1]as he shall be able to give, and an hin of oil to an ephah.[c]

6 And in the day of the new moon it shall be a young bullock without blemish, and six lambs, and a ram: they shall be without blemish.

7 And he shall prepare a meat offering, an ephah for a bullock, and an ephah for a ram, and for the lambs according as his hand shall attain unto, and an hin of oil to an ephah.

8 And when the prince shall enter, he shall go in by the way of the porch of that gate, and he shall go forth by the way thereof.[d]

9 ¶ But when the people of the land shall come before the LORD in the solemn feasts, he that entereth in by the way of the north gate to worship shall go out by the way of the south gate; and he that entereth by the way of the south gate shall go forth by the way of the north gate: he shall not return by the way of the gate whereby he came in, but shall go forth over against it.[e]

10 And the prince in the midst of them, when they go in, shall go in; and when they go forth, shall go forth.

11 And in the feasts and in the solemnities the meat offering shall be an ephah to a bullock, and an ephah to a ram, and to the lambs as he is able to give, and an hin of oil to an ephah.[f]

12 Now when the prince shall prepare a voluntary burnt offering or peace offerings voluntarily unto the LORD, one shall then open him the gate that looketh toward the east, and he shall prepare his burnt offering and his peace offerings, as he did on the sabbath day: then he shall go forth; and after his going forth one shall shut the gate.[g]

13 Thou shalt daily prepare a burnt offering unto the LORD of a lamb [2]of the first year without blemish: thou shalt prepare it [3]every morning.[h]

14 And thou shalt prepare a meat offering for it every morning, the sixth part of an ephah, and the third part of an hin of oil, to temper with the fine flour; a meat offering continually by a perpetual ordinance unto the LORD.

15 Thus shall they prepare the lamb, and the meat offering, and the oil, every morning for a continual burnt offering.

16 ¶ Thus saith the Lord GOD; If the prince give a gift unto any of his sons, the inheritance thereof shall be his sons'; it shall be their possession by inheritance.

17 But if he give a gift of his inheritance to one of his servants, then it shall be his to the year of liberty; after it shall return to the prince: but his inheritance shall be his sons' for them.[i]

18 Moreover the prince shall not take of the people's inheritance by oppression, to thrust them out of their possession; but he shall give his sons inheritance out of his own possession: that my people be not scattered every man from his possession.[j]

19 ¶ After he brought me through the entry, which was at the side of the gate, into the holy chambers of the priests, which looked toward the north: and, behold, there was a place on the two sides westward.

20 Then said he unto me, This is the place where the priests shall boil the trespass offering and the sin offering, where they shall bake the meat offering; that they bear them not out into the utter court, to sanctify the people.[k]

21 Then he brought me forth into the utter court, and caused me to pass by the four corners of the court; and, behold, [4]in every corner of the court there was a court.

22 In the four corners of the court there were courts [5]joined of forty cubits long and thirty broad: these four [6]corners were of one measure.

23 And there was a row of building round about in them, round about them four, and it was made with boiling places under the rows round about.

24 Then said he unto me, These are the places of them that boil, where the ministers of the house shall boil the sacrifice of the people.[l]

4 Again he measured a thousand, and brought me through the waters; the waters were to the knees. Again he measured a thousand, and brought me through; the waters were to the loins.

6 And by the border of Ephraim, from the east side even unto the west side, a portion for Reuben.

7 And by the border of Reuben, from the east side unto the west side, a portion for Judah.

8 ¶ And by the border of Judah, from the east side unto the west side, shall be the offering which ye shall offer of five and twenty thousand reeds in breadth, and in length as one of the other parts, from the east side unto the west side: and the sanctuary shall be in the midst of it.[k]

9 The oblation that ye shall offer unto the LORD shall be of five and twenty thousand in length, and of ten thousand in breadth.

10 And for them, even for the priests, shall be this holy oblation; toward the north five and twenty thousand in length, and toward the west ten thousand in breadth, and toward the east ten thousand in breadth, and toward the south five and twenty thousand in length: and the sanctuary of the LORD shall be in the midst thereof.

11 [13]It shall be for the priests that are sanctified of the sons of Zadok; which have kept my [14]charge, which went not astray when the children of Israel went astray, as the Levites went astray.[l]

12 And this oblation of the land that is offered shall be unto them a thing most holy by the bor[der] of the Levites.

13 And over against the border of the priest[s] the Levites shall have five and twenty thousand in length, and ten thousand in breadth: all the length shall be five and twenty thousand, and the breadth ten thousand.

14 And they shall not sell of it, neither exchange, nor alienate the firstfruits of the land: for it is holy unto the LORD.[m]

15 ¶ And the five thousand, that are left in the breadth over against the five and twenty thousand, shall be a profane place for the city, for dwelling, and for suburbs: and the city shall be in the midst thereof.[n]

16 And these shall be the measures thereof; the north side four thousand and five hundred, and the south side four thousand and five hundred, and on the east side four thousand and five hundred, and the west side four thousand and five hundred.

17 And the suburbs of the city shall be toward the north two hundred and fifty, and toward the south two hundred and fifty, and toward the east two hundred and fifty, and toward the west two hundred and fifty.

18 And the residue in length over against the oblation of the holy portion shall be ten thousand eastward, and ten thousand westward: and it shall be over against the oblation of the holy portion; and the increase thereof shall be for food unto them that serve the city.

19 And they that serve the city shall serve it out of all the tribes of Israel.[a]

20 All the oblation shall be five and twenty thousand by five and twenty thousand: ye shall offer the holy oblation foursquare, with the possession of the city.

21 ¶ And the residue shall be for the prince, on the one side and on the other of the holy oblation, and of the possession of the city, over against the five and twenty thousand of the oblation toward the east border, and westward over against the five and twenty thousand toward the west border, over against the portions for the prince: and it shall be the holy oblation; and the sanctuary of the house shall be in the midst thereof.[b]

22 Moreover from the possession of the Levites, and from the possession of the city, being in the midst of that which is the prince's, between the border of Judah and the border of Benjamin, shall be for the prince.

23 As for the rest of the tribes, from the east side unto the west side, Benjamin shall have [1]a portion.

24 And by the border of Benjamin, from the east side unto the west side, Simeon shall have a portion.

25 And by the border of Simeon, from the east side unto the west side, Issachar a portion.

26 And by the border of Issachar, from the east side unto the west side, Zebulun a portion.

27 And by the border of Zebulun, from the east side unto the west side, Gad a portion.

28 And by the border of Gad, at the south side southward, the border shall be even from Tamar unto the waters of [2]strife in Kadesh, and to the river toward the great sea.[c]

29 This is the land which ye shall divide by lot unto the tribes of Israel for inheritance, and these are their portions, saith the Lord GOD.[d]

30 ¶ And these are the goings out of the city on the north side, four thousand and five hundred measures.

31 And the gates of the city shall be after the names of the tribes of Israel: three gates northward; one gate of Reuben, one gate of Judah, one gate of Levi.[e]

32 And at the east side four thousand and five hundred: and three gates; and one gate of Joseph, one gate of Benjamin, one gate of Dan.

33 And at the south side four thousand and five hundred measures: and three gates; one gate of Simeon, one gate of Issachar, one gate of Zebulun.

34 At the west side four [1]thousand and five hundred, with their three gates; one gate of Gad, one gate of Asher, one gate of Naphtali.[f]

35 It was round about eighteen thousand measures: and the name of the city from that day shall be, [3]The LORD is there.[g]

CHAPTER I.

BEFORE CHRIST 603

1 Jehoiakim's captivity. 3 Ashpenaz taketh Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah. 8 They refusing the king's portion do prosper with pulse and water. 17 Their excellency in wisdom.

IN the third year of the reign of Jehoiakim king of Judah came Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon unto Jerusalem, and besieged it.[a]

2 And the Lord gave Jehoiakim king of Judah into his hand, with part of the vessels of the house of God: which he carried into the land of Shinar to the house of his god; and he brought the vessels into the treasure house of his god.[b]

3 ¶ And the king spake unto Ashpenaz the master of his eunuchs, that he should bring [1]certain of the children of Israel, and of the king's seed, and of the princes;

4 Children in whom was no blemish, but well favoured, and skilful in all wisdom, and cunning in knowledge, and understanding science, and such as had ability in them to stand in the king's palace, and whom they might teach the learning and the tongue of the Chaldeans.[c] c Lev. xxiv. 19, 20; Acts vii. 22.

5 And the king appointed them a daily provision of the king's meat, and of [1]the wine which he drank: so nourishing them three years, that at the end thereof they might stand before the king.[a]

6 Now among these were of the children of Judah, Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah:

7 Unto whom the prince of the eunuchs gave names: for he gave unto Daniel the name of Beltoshazzar; and to Hananiah, of Shadrach; and to Mishael, of Meshach; and to Azariah, of Abed-nego.[b]

8 ¶ But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would

12 Prove thy servants, I beseech thee, ten days; and let them give us [5]pulse [6]to eat, and water to drink.

13 Then let our countenances be looked upon before thee, and the countenance of the children that eat of the portion of the king's meat: and as thou seest, deal with thy servants.

14 So he consented to them in this matter, and proved them ten days.

15 And at the end of ten days their countenances appeared fairer and fatter in flesh than all the children which did eat the portion of the king's meat.

16 Thus Melzar took away the portion of their not defile himself with the portion of the king's meat, nor with the wine which he drank: therefore he requested of the prince of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself.[c]

9 Now God had brought Daniel into favour and tender love with the prince of the eunuchs.[d]

10 And the prince of the eunuchs said unto Daniel, I fear my lord the king, who hath appointed your meat and your drink: for why should he see your faces [2]worse liking than the children which are of your [3]sort? then shall ye make me endanger my head to the king.

11 Then said Daniel to [4]Melzar, whom the prince of the eunuchs had set over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, meat, and the wine that they should drink; and gave them pulse.

17 ¶ As for these four children, God gave them knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom: and [7]Daniel had understanding in all visions and dreams.[e]

18 Now at the end of the days that the king had said he should bring them in, then the prince of the eunuchs brought them in before Nebuchadnezzar.

19 And the king communed with them; and among them all was found none like Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah: therefore stood they before the king.[f]

20 And in all matters of [8]wisdom and understanding, that the king enquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers that were in all his realm.[a]

21 And Daniel [1]continued even unto the first year of king Cyrus.[b]

CHAPTER II.

1 Nebuchadnezzar, forgetting his dream, requireth it of the Chaldeans, by promises and threatenings. 10 They acknowledging their inability are judged to die. 14 Daniel obtaining some respite findeth the dream. 19 He blesseth God. 24 He staying the decree is brought to the king. 31 The dream. 36 The interpretation. 46 Daniel's advancement.

AND in the second year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar Nebuchadnezzar dreamed dreams, wherewith his spirit was troubled, and his sleep brake from him.[c]

2 Then the king commanded to call the magicians, and the astrologers, and the sorcerers, and the Chaldeans, for to shew the king his dreams. So they came and stood before the king.[d]

3 And the king said unto them, I have dreamed a dream, and my spirit was troubled to know the dream.

4 Then spake the Chaldeans to the king in Syriack, O king, live for ever: tell thy servants the dream, and we will shew the interpretation.[e]

5 The king answered and said to the Chaldeans, The thing is gone from me: if ye will not make known unto me the dream, with the interpretation thereof, ye shall be [2]cut in pieces, and your houses shall be made a dunghill.[f]

6 But if ye shew the dream, and the interpretation thereof, ye shall receive of me gifts and [3]rewards and great honour: therefore shew me the dream, and the interpretation thereof.[g]

7 They answered again and said, Let the king tell his servants the dream, and we will shew the interpretation of it.

8 The king answered and said, I know of certainty that ye would [4]gain the time, because ye see the thing is gone from me.

9 But if ye will not make known unto me the dream, there is but one decree for you: for ye have prepared lying and corrupt words to speak before me, till the time be changed: therefore tell me the dream, and I shall know that ye can shew me the interpretation thereof.[h]

10 ¶ The Chaldeans answered before the king, and said, There is not a man upon the earth that can shew the king's matter: therefore there is no king, lord, nor ruler, that asked such things at any magician, or astrologer, or Chaldean.

11 And it is a rare thing that the king requireth, and there is none other that can shew it before the king, except the gods, whose dwelling is not with flesh.[i]

12 For this cause the king was angry and very furious, and commanded to destroy all the wise men of Babylon.

13 And the decree went forth that the wise men should be slain; and they sought Daniel and his fellows to be slain.

13 Or, but for the intent that the interpretation may be made known to the king

14 ¶ Then Daniel [5]answered with counsel and wisdom to Arioch the [6]captain of the king's guard, which was gone forth to slay the wise men of Babylon:

15 He answered and said to Arioch the king's captain, Why is the decree so hasty from the king? Then Arioch made the thing known to Daniel.

16 Then Daniel went in, and desired of the king that he would give him time, and that he would shew the king the interpretation.

17 Then Daniel went to his house, and made the thing known to Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, his companions:

18 That they would desire mercies [7]of the God of heaven concerning this secret; [8]that Daniel and his fellows should not perish with the rest of the wise men of Babylon.[j]

19 ¶ Then was the secret revealed unto Daniel in a night vision. Then Daniel blessed the God of heaven.[k]

20 Daniel answered and said, Blessed be the name of God for ever and ever: for wisdom and might are his:[l]

21 And he changeth the times and the seasons: he removeth kings, and setteth up kings: he giveth wisdom unto the wise, and knowledge to them that know understanding:[m]

22 He revealeth the deep and secret things: he knoweth what is in the darkness, and the light dwelleth with him.[n]

23 I thank thee, and praise thee, O thou God of my fathers, who hast given me wisdom and might, and hast made known unto me now what we desired of thee: for thou hast now made known unto us the king's matter.[o]

24 ¶ Therefore Daniel went in unto Arioch, whom the king had ordained to destroy the wise men of Babylon: he went and said thus unto him; Destroy not the wise men of Babylon: bring me in before the king, and I will shew unto the king the interpretation.

25 Then Arioch brought in Daniel before the king in haste, and said thus unto him, [9]I have found a man of the [10]captives of Judah, that will make known unto the king the interpretation.

26 The king answered and said to Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, Art thou able to make known unto me the dream which I have seen, and the interpretation thereof?

27 Daniel answered in the presence of the king, and said, The secret which the king hath demanded cannot the wise men, the astrologers, the magicians, the soothsayers, shew unto the king;

28 But there is a God in heaven that revealeth secrets, and [11]maketh known to the king Nebuchadnezzar what shall be in the latter days. Thy dream, and the visions of thy head upon thy bed, are these;[p]

29 As for thee, O king, thy thoughts [12]came into thy mind upon thy bed, what should come to pass hereafter: and he that revealeth secrets maketh known to thee what shall come to pass.[q]

30 But as for me, this secret is not revealed to me for any wisdom that I have more than any living, [13]but for their sakes that shall make known the interpretation to the king, and that thou mightest know the thoughts of thy heart.[a]

31 ¶ Thou, O king, [1]sawest, and behold a great image. This great image, whose brightness was excellent, stood before thee; and the form thereof was terrible.

32 This image's head was of fine gold, his breast and his arms of silver, his belly and his [2]thighs of brass,[b]

33 His legs of iron, his feet part of iron and part of clay.

34 Thou sawest till that a stone was cut out [3]without hands, which smote the image upon his feet that were of iron and clay, and brake them to pieces.[c]

35 Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold, broken to pieces together, and became like the chaff of the summer threshing-floors; and the wind carried them away, that no place was found for them: and the stone that smote the image became a great mountain, and filled the whole earth.[d]

36 ¶ This is the dream; and we will tell the interpretation thereof before the king.

37 Thou, O king, art a king of kings: for the God of heaven hath given thee a kingdom, power, and strength, and glory.[e]

38 And wheresoever the children of men dwell, the beasts of the field and the fowls of the heaven hath he given into thine hand, and hath made thee ruler over them all. Thou art this head of gold.[f]

39 And after thee shall arise another kingdom inferior to thee, and another third kingdom of brass, which shall bear rule over all the earth.[g]

40 And the fourth kingdom shall be strong as iron: forasmuch as iron breaketh in pieces and subdueth all things: and as iron that breaketh all these, shall it break in pieces and bruise.[h]

41 And whereas thou sawest the feet and toes, part of potters' clay, and part of iron, the kingdom shall be divided; but there shall be in it of the strength of the iron, forasmuch as thou sawest the iron mixed with miry clay.[i]

42 And as the toes of the feet were part of iron, and part of clay, so the kingdom shall be partly strong, and partly [4]broken.

43 And whereas thou sawest iron mixed with miry clay, they shall mingle themselves with the seed of men: but they shall not cleave [5]one to another, even as iron is not mixed with clay.

44 And in [6]the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: and the [7]kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever.[j]

45 Forasmuch as thou sawest that the stone was cut out of the mountain [8]without hands, and that it brake in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver, and the gold; the great God hath made known to the king what shall come to pass [9]hereafter: and the dream is certain, and the interpretation thereof sure.[k]

46 ¶ Then the king Nebuchadnezzar fell upon his face, and worshipped Daniel, and commanded that they should offer an oblation and sweet odours unto him.[l]

47 The king answered unto Daniel, and said, Of a truth it is, that your God is a God of gods, and a Lord of kings, and a revealer of secrets, seeing thou couldest reveal this secret.

48 Then the king made Daniel a great man, and gave him many great gifts, and made him ruler over the whole province of Babylon, and chief of the governors over all the wise men of Babylon.[m]

49 Then Daniel requested of the king, and he set Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, over the affairs of the province of Babylon: but Daniel sat in the gate of the king.[n]

CHAPTER III.

1 Nebuchadnezzar dedicateth a golden image in Dura. 8 Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego are accused for not worshipping the image. 13 They, being threatened, make a good confession. 19 God delivereth them out of the furnace. 26 Nebuchadnezzar seeing the miracle blesseth God.

NEBUCHADNEZZAR the king made an image of gold, whose height was threescore cubits, and the breadth thereof six cubits: he set it up in the plain of Dura, in the province of Babylon.

2 Then Nebuchadnezzar the king sent to gather together the princes, the governors, and the captains, the judges, the treasurers, the counsellors, the sheriffs, and all the rulers of the provinces, to come to the dedication of the image which Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up.

3 Then the princes, the governors, and captains, the judges, the treasurers, the counsellors, the sheriffs, and all the rulers of the provinces, were gathered together unto the dedication of the image that Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up; and they stood before the image that Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

4 Then an herald cried [10]aloud, To you [11]it is commanded, O people, nations, and languages,[o]

5 That at what time ye hear the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery, [12]dulcimer, and all kinds of musick, ye fall down and worship the golden image that Nebuchadnezzar the king hath set up:

6 And whoso falleth not down and worshippeth shall the same hour be cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace.[p]

7 Therefore at that time, when all the people heard the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery, and all kinds of musick, all the people, the nations, and the languages, fell down and worshipped the golden image that Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up.

8 ¶ Wherefore at that time certain Chaldeans came near, and accused the Jews.[q]

9 They spake and said to the king Nebuchadnezzar, O king, live for ever.[r]

SHADRACH, MESHACH, AND ABEDNEGO IN THE FIERY FURNACE.—DANIEL III. 25.

10 Thou, O king, hast made a decree, that every man that shall hear the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery, and dulcimer, and all kinds of musick, shall fall down and worship the golden image:

11 And whoso falleth not down and worshippeth, that he should be cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace.

12 There are certain Jews whom thou hast set over the affairs of the province of Babylon, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego; these men, O king, [1]have not regarded thee: they serve not thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up.[a]

13 ¶ Then Nebuchadnezzar in his rage and fury commanded to bring Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego. Then they brought these men before the king.

14 Nebuchadnezzar spake and said unto them, Is it [2]true, O Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, do not ye serve my gods, nor worship the golden image which I have set up?

15 Now if ye be ready that at what time ye hear the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery, and dulcimer, and all kinds of musick, ye fall down and worship the image which I have made; well: but if ye worship not, ye shall be cast the same hour into the midst of a burning fiery furnace; and who is that God that shall deliver you out of my hands?[b]

16 Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, answered and said to the king, O Nebuchadnezzar, we are not careful to answer thee in this matter.[c]

17 If it be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of thine hand, O king.

18 But if not, be it known unto thee, O king, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up.

19 ¶ Then was Nebuchadnezzar [3]full of fury, and the form of his visage was changed against Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego: therefore he spake, and commanded that they should heat the furnace one seven times more than it was wont to be heated.

20 And he commanded the [4]most mighty men that were in his army to bind Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, and to cast them into the burning fiery furnace.

21 Then these men were bound in their [5]coats, their hosen, and their [6]hats, and their other garments, and were cast into the midst of the burning fiery furnace.

22 Therefore because the king's [7]commandment was urgent, and the furnace exceeding hot, the [8]flame of the fire slew those men that took up Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego.

23 And these three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, fell down bound into the midst of the burning fiery furnace.

24 Then Nebuchadnezzar the king was astonied, and rose up in haste, and spake, and said unto his [9]counsellors, Did not we cast three men bound into the midst of the fire? They answered and said unto the king, True, O king.

25 He answered and said, Lo, I see four men loose, walking in the midst of the fire, and [10]they have no hurt; and the form of the fourth is like the Son of God.[d]

26 ¶ Then Nebuchadnezzar came near to the [11]mouth of the burning fiery furnace, and spake, and said, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, ye servants of the most high God, come forth, and come hither. Then Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, came forth of the midst of the fire.

27 And the princes, governors, and captains, and the king's counsellors, being gathered together, saw these men, upon whose bodies the fire had no power, nor was an hair of their head singed, neither were their coats changed, nor the smell of fire had passed on them.[e]

28 Then Nebuchadnezzar spake, and said, Blessed be the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, who hath sent his angel, and delivered his servants that trusted in him, and have changed the king's word, and yielded their bodies, that they might not serve nor worship any god, except their own God.[f]

29 Therefore [12]I make a decree, That every people, nation, and language, which speak [13]any thing amiss against the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, shall be [14]cut in pieces, and their houses shall be made a dunghill: because there is no other God that can deliver after this sort.[g]

30 Then the king [15]promoted Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, in the province of Babylon.

4 ¶ I Nebuchadnezzar was at rest in mine house, and flourishing in my palace:

5 I saw a dream which made me afraid, and the thoughts upon my bed and the visions of my head troubled me.[k]

6 Therefore made I a decree to bring in all the wise men of Babylon before me, that they might make known unto me the interpretation of the dream.

7 Then came in the magicians, the astrologers, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers: and I told the dream before them; but they did not make known unto me the interpretation thereof.[l]

8 ¶ But at the last Daniel came in before me, whose name was Belteshazzar, according to the name of my god, and in whom is the spirit of the holy gods: and before him I told the dream, saying,[m]

DANIEL INTERPRETING THE DREAM OF NEBUCHADNEZZAR.

9 O Belteshazzar, master of the magicians, because I know that the spirit of the holy gods is in thee, and no secret troubleth thee, tell me the visions of my dream that I have seen, and the interpretation thereof.[a]

10 Thus were the visions of mine head in my bed; [1]I saw, and behold a tree in the midst of the earth, and the height thereof was great.[b]

11 The tree grew, and was strong, and the height thereof reached unto heaven, and the sight thereof to the end of all the earth:

12 The leaves thereof were fair, and the fruit thereof much, and in it was meat for all: the beasts of the field had shadow under it, and the fowls of the heaven dwelt in the boughs thereof, and all flesh was fed of it.[c]

13 I saw in the visions of my head upon my bed, and, behold, a watcher and an holy one came down from heaven;[d]

14 He cried [2]aloud, and said thus, Hew down the tree, and cut off his branches, shake off his leaves, and scatter his fruit: let the beasts get away from under it, and the fowls from his branches:[e]

15 Nevertheless leave the stump of his roots in the 16 Let his heart be changed from man's, and let a beast's heart be given unto him; and let seven times pass over him.[a]

17 This matter is by the decree of the watchers, and the demand by the word of the holy ones: to the intent that the living may know that the most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will, and setteth up over it the basest of men.[b]

18 This dream I king Nebuchadnezzar have seen. Now thou, O Belteshazzar, declare the interpretation thereof, forasmuch as all the wise men of my kingdom are not able to make known unto me the interpretation: but thou art able; for the spirit of the holy gods is in thee.[c]

him. The king spake, and said, Belteshazzar, let not the dream, or the interpretation thereof, trouble thee. Belteshazzar answered and said, My lord, the dream be to them that hate thee, and the interpretation thereof to thine enemies.[d]

20 The tree that thou sawest, which grew, and was strong, whose height reached unto the heaven, and the sight thereof to all the earth;[e]

21 Whose leaves were fair, and the fruit thereof much, and in it was meat for all; under which the beasts of the field dwelt, and upon whose branches the fowls of the heaven had their habitation:

22 It is thou, O king, that art grown and become strong: for thy greatness is grown, and reacheth unto heaven, and thy dominion to the end of the earth.[f]

23 And whereas the king saw a watcher and an holy one coming down from heaven, and saying, Hew the tree down, and destroy it; yet leave the stump of the roots thereof in the earth, even with a band of iron and brass, in the tender grass of the field; and let it be wet with the dew of heaven, and let his portion be with the beasts of the field, till seven times pass over him;[e]

24 This is the interpretation, O king, and this is the decree of the most High, which is come upon my lord the king:

25 That they shall drive thee from men, and thy dwelling shall be with the beasts of the field, and they shall make thee to eat grass as oxen, and they shall wet thee with the dew of heaven, and seven times shall pass over thee, till thou know that the most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will.[h]

26 And whereas they commanded to leave the stump of the tree roots; thy kingdom shall be sure unto thee, after that thou shalt have known that the heavens do rule.[c]

27 Wherefore, O king, let my counsel be acceptable unto thee, and break off thy sins by righteousness, and thine iniquities by shewing mercy to the poor; if it may be [1]a lengthening of thy tranquillity.[d]

28 ¶ All this came upon the king Nebuchadnezzar.

29 At the end of twelve months he walked [2]in the palace of the kingdom of Babylon.

30 The king spake, and said, Is not this great Babylon, that I have built for the house of the kingdom by the might of my power, and for the honour of my majesty?[e]

31 While the word was in the king's mouth, there fell a voice from heaven, saying, O king Nebuchadnezzar, to thee it is spoken; The kingdom is departed from thee:[f]

32 And they shall drive thee from men, and thy dwelling shall be with the beasts of the field: they shall make thee to eat grass as oxen, and seven times shall pass over thee, until thou know that the most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will.[g]

33 The same hour was the thing fulfilled upon Nebuchadnezzar: and he was driven from men, and did eat grass as oxen, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven, till his hairs were grown like eagles' feathers, and his nails like birds' claws.

34 And at the end of the days I Nebuchadnezzar lifted up mine eyes unto heaven, and mine understanding returned unto me, and I blessed the most High, and I praised and honoured him that liveth for ever, whose dominion is an everlasting dominion, and his kingdom is from generation to generation:[h]

35 And all the inhabitants of the earth are reputed as nothing: and he doeth according to his will in the army of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth: and none can stay his hand, or say unto him, What doest thou?[i]

36 At the same time my reason returned unto me; and for the glory of my kingdom, mine honour and brightness returned unto me; and my counsellors and my lords sought unto me; and I was established in my kingdom, and excellent majesty was added unto me.[j]

37 Now I Nebuchadnezzar praise and extol and honour the King of heaven, all whose works are truth, and his ways judgment: and those that walk in pride he is able to abase.[k]

CHAPTER V.

1 Belshazzar's impious feast. 5 A handwriting, unknown to the magicians, troubleth the king. 10 At the commendation of the queen Daniel is brought. 17 He, reproving the king of pride and idolatry, 25 readeth and interpreteth the writing. 30 The monarchy is translated to the Medes.

BELSHAZZAR the king made a great feast to a thousand of his lords, and drank wine before the thousand.[l]

2 Belshazzar, whiles he tasted the wine, commanded to bring the golden and silver vessels which his [3]father Nebuchadnezzar had [4]taken out of the temple which was in Jerusalem; that the king, and his princes, his wives, and his concubines, might drink therein.[m]

3 Then they brought the golden vessels that were taken out of the temple of the house of God which was at Jerusalem; and the king, and his princes, his wives, and his concubines, drank in them.

4 They drank wine, and praised the gods of gold, and of silver, of brass, of iron, of wood, and of stone.[n]

5 ¶ In the same hour came forth fingers of a man's hand, and wrote over against the candlestick upon the plaister of the wall of the king's palace: and the king saw the part of the hand that wrote.[o]

6 Then the king's [5]countenance [6]was changed, and his thoughts troubled him, so that the [7]joints of his loins were loosed, and his knees smote one against another.[p]

7 The king cried [8]aloud to bring in the astrologers, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers. And the king spake, and said to the wise men of Babylon, Whosoever shall read this writing, and shew me the interpretation thereof, shall be clothed with [9]scarlet, and have a chain of gold about his neck, and shall be the third ruler in the kingdom.[q]

8 Then came in all the king's wise men: but they could not read the writing, nor make known to the king the interpretation thereof.[r]

9 Then was king Belshazzar greatly troubled, and his [10]countenance was changed in him, and his lords were astonied.[s]

10 ¶ Now the queen by reason of the words of the king and his lords came into the banquet house: and the queen spake and said, O king, live for ever: let not thy thoughts trouble thee, nor let thy countenance be changed:[t]

11 There is a man in thy kingdom, in whom is the spirit of the holy gods; and in the days of thy father light and understanding and wisdom, like the wisdom of the gods, was found in him; whom the king

13 Then was Daniel brought in before the king. And the king spake and said unto Daniel, Art thou that Daniel, which art of the children of the captivity of Judah, whom the king my [6]father brought out of Jewry?

CHAPTER VI.

1 Daniel is made chief of the presidents. 4 They conspiring against him obtain an idolatrous decree. 10 Daniel, accused of the breach thereof, is cast into the lions' den. 18 Daniel is saved. 24 His adversaries devoured, 25 and God magnified by a decree.

IT pleased Darius to set over the kingdom an hundred and twenty princes, which should be over the whole kingdom;[a]

2 And over these three presidents; of whom Daniel was first: that the princes might give accounts unto them, and the king should have no damage.

3 Then this Daniel was preferred above the presidents and princes, because an excellent spirit was in him; and the king thought to set him over the whole realm.[b]

4 ¶ Then the presidents and princes sought to find occasion against Daniel concerning the kingdom; but they could find none occasion nor fault; forasmuch as he was faithful, neither was there any error or fault found in him.[c]

5 Then said these men, We shall not find any occasion against this Daniel, except we find it against him concerning the law of his God.

6 Then these presidents and princes [1]assembled together to the king, and said thus unto him, King Darius, live for ever.[d]

7 All the presidents of the kingdom, the governors, and the princes, the counsellors, and the captains, have consulted together to establish a royal statute, and to make a firm [2]decree, that whosoever shall ask a petition of any God or man for thirty days, save of thee, O king, he shall be cast into the den of lions.

8 Now, O king, establish the decree, and sign the writing, that it be not changed, according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which [3]altereth not.[e]

9 Wherefore king Darius signed the writing and the decree.

10 ¶ Now when Daniel knew that the writing was signed, he went into his house; and his windows being open in his chamber toward Jerusalem, he kneeled upon his knees three times a day, and prayed, and gave thanks before his God, as he did aforetime.[f]

11 Then these men assembled, and found Daniel praying and making supplication before his God.

12 Then they came near, and spake before the king concerning the king's decree; Hast thou not signed a decree, that every man that shall ask a petition of any God or man within thirty days, save of thee, O king, shall be cast into the den of lions? The king answered and said, The thing is true, according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which altereth not.[g]

13 Then answered they and said before the king, That Daniel, which is of the children of the captivity of Judah, regardeth not thee, O king, nor the decree that thou hast signed, but maketh his petition three times a day.[h]

14 Then the king, when he heard these words, was sore displeased with himself, and set his heart on Daniel to deliver him: and he laboured till the going down of the sun to deliver him.[i]

15 Then these men assembled unto the king, and said unto the king, Know, O king, that the law of the Medes and Persians is, That no decree nor statute which the king establisheth may be changed.[j]

16 Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. Now the king spake and said unto Daniel, Thy God whom thou servest continually, he will deliver thee.

17 And a stone was brought, and laid upon the mouth of the den; and the king sealed it with his own signet, and with the signet of his lords; that the purpose might not be changed concerning Daniel.[k]

18 ¶ Then the king went to his palace, and passed the night fasting: neither were [4]instruments of musick brought before him: and his sleep went from him.[l]

19 Then the king arose very early in the morning, and went in haste unto the den of lions.

20 And when he came to the den, he cried with a lamentable voice unto Daniel: and the king spake and said to Daniel, O Daniel, servant of the living God, is thy God, whom thou servest continually, able to deliver thee from the lions?[m]

21 Then said Daniel unto the king, O king, live for ever.[n]

22 My God hath sent his angel, and hath shut the lions' mouths, that they have not hurt me: forasmuch as before him innocency was found in me; and also before thee, O king, have I done no hurt.[o]

23 Then was the king exceeding glad for him, and commanded that they should take Daniel up out of the den. So Daniel was taken up out of the den, and no manner of hurt was found upon him, because he believed in his God.[p]

24 ¶ And the king commanded, and they brought those men which had accused Daniel, and they cast them into the den of lions, them, their children, and their wives; and the lions had the mastery of them, and brake all their bones in pieces or ever they came at the bottom of the den.[q]

25 ¶ Then king Darius wrote unto all people, nations, and languages, that dwell in all the earth; Peace be multiplied unto you.[r]

26 I make a decree, That in every dominion of my kingdom men tremble and fear before the God of Daniel: for he is the living God, and stedfast for ever, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed, and his dominion shall be even unto the end.[s]

27 He delivereth and rescueth, and he worketh signs and wonders in heaven and in earth, who hath delivered Daniel from the [5]power of the lions.[t]

28 So this Daniel prospered in the reign of Darius, and in the reign of Cyrus the Persian.[u]

DANIEL IN THE LION'S DEN.—DANIEL VI. 22.

CHAPTER VII.

1 Daniel's vision of four beasts. 9 Of God's kingdom. 15 The interpretation thereof.

IN the first year of Belshazzar king of Babylon Daniel [1]had a dream and visions of his head upon his bed: then he wrote the dream, and told the sum of the [2]matters.[a]

2 Daniel spake and said, I saw in my vision by night, and, behold, the four winds of the heaven strove upon the great sea.

3 And four great beasts came up from the sea, diverse one from another.[b]

4 The first was like a lion, and had eagle's wings: I beheld till the wings thereof were plucked, [3]and it was lifted up from the earth, and made stand upon the feet as a man, and a man's heart was given to it.[c]

5 And behold another beast, a second, like to a bear, and [4]it raised up itself on one side, and it had three ribs in the mouth of it between the teeth of it: and they said thus unto it, Arise, devour much flesh.[d]

6 After this I beheld, and lo another, like a leopard, which had upon the back of it four wings of a fowl; the beast had also four heads; and dominion was given to it.[e]

7 After this I saw in the night visions, and behold a fourth beast, dreadful and terrible, and strong exceedingly; and it had great iron teeth: it devoured and brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with the feet of it: and it was diverse from all the beasts that were before it; and it had ten horns.[f]

8 I considered the horns, and, behold, there came up among them another little horn, before whom there were three of the first horns plucked up by the roots: and, behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of man, and a mouth speaking great things.[g]

9 ¶ I beheld till the thrones were cast down, and the Ancient of days did sit, whose garment was white as snow, and the hair of his head like the pure wool: his throne was like the fiery flame, and his wheels as burning fire.[h]

10 A fiery stream issued and came forth from before him: thousand thousands ministered unto him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him: the judgment was set, and the books were opened.[i]

11 I beheld then because of the voice of the great words which the horn spake: I beheld even till the beast was slain, and his body destroyed, and given to the burning flame.[j]

12 As concerning the rest of the beasts, they had their dominion taken away: yet [5]their lives were prolonged for a season and time.

13 I saw in the night visions, and, behold, one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him.[k]

14 And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages, should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed.[l]

15 ¶ I Daniel was grieved in my spirit in the midst of my [6]body, and the visions of my head troubled me.[m]

16 I came near unto one of them that stood by, and asked him the truth of all this. So he told me, and made me know the interpretation of the things.

17 These great beasts, which are four, are four kings, which shall arise out of the earth.[n]

18 But the saints of the [7]most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever.[o]

19 Then I would know the truth of the fourth beast, which was diverse [8]from all the others, exceeding dreadful, whose teeth were of iron, and his nails of brass; which devoured, brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with his feet;[p]

20 And of the ten horns that were in his head, and of the other which came up, and before whom three fell; even of that horn that had eyes, and a mouth that spake very great things, whose look was more stout than his fellows.

21 I beheld, and the same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them;[q]

22 Until the Ancient of days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the most High; and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom.[r]

23 Thus he said, The fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall be diverse from all kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall tread it down, and break it in pieces.[s]

24 And the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise: and another shall rise after them; and he shall be diverse from the first, and he shall subdue three kings.[t]

25 And he shall speak great words against the most High, and shall wear out the saints of the most High, and think to change times and laws: and they shall be given into his hand until a time and times and the dividing of time.[u]

26 But the judgment shall sit, and they shall take away his dominion, to consume and to destroy it unto the end.[v]

27 And the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all [9]dominions shall serve and obey him.[w]

28 Hitherto is the end of the matter. As for me Daniel, my cogitations much troubled me, and my countenance changed in me: but I kept the matter in my heart.[x]

CHAPTER VIII.

1 Daniel's vision of the ram and he goat. 13 The two thousand three hundred days of sacrifice. 15 Gabriel comforteth Daniel, and interpreteth the vision.

IN the third year of the reign of king Belshazzar a vision appeared unto me, even unto me Daniel, after that which appeared unto me at the first.[a]

2 And I saw in a vision; and it came to pass, when I saw, that I was at Shushan in the palace, which is in the province of Elam; and I saw in a vision, and I was by the river of Ulai.[b]

3 Then I lifted up mine eyes, and saw, and, behold, there stood before the river a ram which had two horns: and the two horns were high; but one was higher than [1]the other, and the higher came up last.

4 I saw the ram pushing westward, and northward, and southward; so that no beasts might stand before him, neither was there any that could deliver out of his hand; but he did according to his will, and became great.[c]

5 And as I was considering, behold, an he goat came from the west on the face of the whole earth, and [2]touched not the ground: and the goat had [3]a notable horn between his eyes.[d]

6 And he came to the ram that had two horns, which I had seen standing before the river, and ran unto him in the fury of his power.

7 And I saw him come close unto the ram, and he was moved with choler against him, and smote the ram, and brake his two horns: and there was no power in the ram to stand before him, but he cast him down to the ground, and stamped upon him: and there was none that could deliver the ram out of his hand.

HEAD OF ALEXANDER THE GREAT, HORNED. FROM A COIN IN THE BODLEIAN LIBRARY.

8 Therefore the he goat waxed very great: and when he was strong, the great horn was broken; and for it came up four notable ones toward the four winds of heaven.[e]

9 And out of one of them came forth a little horn, which waxed exceeding great, toward the south, and toward the east, and toward the pleasant land.[f]

10 And it waxed great, even [4]to the host of heaven; and it cast down some of the host and of the stars to the ground, and stamped upon them.[g]

11 Yea, he magnified himself even [5]to the prince of the host, and by him the daily sacrifice was taken away, and the place of his sanctuary was cast down.[h]

12 And [6]an host was given him against the daily sacrifice by reason of transgression, and it cast down the truth to the ground; and it practised, and prospered.[i]

13 ¶ Then I heard one saint speaking, and another saint said unto [7]that certain saint which spake, How long shall be the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, and the transgression [8]of desolation, to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot?[j]

14 And he said unto me, Unto two thousand and three hundred [9]days; then shall the sanctuary be [10]cleansed.

15 ¶ And it came to pass, when I, even I Daniel, had seen the vision, and sought for the meaning, then, behold, there stood before me as the appearance of a man.[k]

16 And I heard a man's voice between the banks of Ulai, which called, and said, Gabriel, make this man to understand the vision.[l]

17 So he came near where I stood: and when he came, I was afraid, and fell upon my face: but he said unto me, Understand, O son of man: for at the time of the end shall be the vision.[m]

18 Now as he was speaking with me, I was in a deep sleep on my face toward the ground: but he touched me, and [11]set me upright.[n]

19 And he said, Behold, I will make thee know what shall be in the last end of the indignation: for at the time appointed the end shall be.[o]

20 The ram which thou sawest having two horns are the kings of Media and Persia.[p]

21 And the rough goat is the king of Grecia: and the great horn that is between his eyes is the first king.[q]

22 Now that being broken, whereas four stood up for it, four kingdoms shall stand up out of the nation, but not in his power.[r]

23 And in the latter time of their kingdom, when the transgressors [12]are come to the full, a king of fierce countenance, and understanding dark sentences, shall stand up.[s]

24 And his power shall be mighty, but not by his own power: and he shall destroy wonderfully, and shall prosper, and practise, and shall destroy the mighty and the [13]holy people.[t]

25 And through his policy also he shall cause craft to prosper in his hand; and he shall magnify himself in his heart, and by [14]peace shall destroy many: he shall also stand up against the Prince of princes; but he shall be broken without hand.[u] which was told is true: wherefore shut thou up the vision; for it shall be for many days.[a]

CHAPTER IX.

1 Daniel, considering the time of the captivity, 3 maketh confession of sins, 16 and prayeth for the restoration of Jerusalem. 20 Gabriel informeth him of the seventy weeks.

IN the first year of Darius the son of Ahasuerus, of the seed of the Medes, [1]which was made king over the realm of the Chaldeans;[c]

2 In the first year of his reign I Daniel understood by books the number of the years, whereof the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah the prophet, that he would accomplish seventy years in the desolations of Jerusalem.[d]

3 ¶ And I set my face unto the Lord God, to seek by prayer and supplications, with fasting, and sackcloth, and ashes:[e]

4 And I prayed unto the LORD my God, and made my confession, and said, O Lord, the great and dreadful God, keeping the covenant and mercy to them that love him, and to them that keep his commandments;[f]

5 We have sinned, and have committed iniquity, and have done wickedly, and have rebelled, even by departing from thy precepts and from thy judgments:[g]

6 Neither have we hearkened unto thy servants the prophets, which spake in thy name to our kings, our princes, and our fathers, and to all the people of the land.[h]

7 O Lord, righteousness [2]belongeth unto thee, but unto us confusion of faces, as at this day; to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and unto all Israel, that are near, and that are far off, through all the countries whither thou hast driven them, because of their trespass that they have trespassed against thee.[i]

2 Or, thou hast, &c.

8 O Lord, to us belongeth confusion of face, to our kings, to our princes, and to our fathers, because we have sinned against thee.[e]

9 To the Lord our God belong mercies and forgivenesses, though we have rebelled against him;[4]

10 Neither have we obeyed the voice of the LORD our God, to walk in his laws, which he set before us by his servants the prophets.[c]

11 Yea, all Israel have transgressed thy law, even by departing, that they might not obey thy voice; therefore the curse is poured upon us, and the oath that is written in the law of Moses the servant of God, because we have sinned against him.[d]

12 And he hath confirmed his words, which he spake against us, and against our judges that judged us, by bringing upon us a great evil: for under the whole heaven hath not been done as hath been done upon Jerusalem.[e]

13 As it is written in the law of Moses, all this evil is come upon us: yet [1]made we not our prayer before the LORD our God, that we might turn from our iniquities, and understand thy truth.[f]

14 Therefore hath the LORD watched upon the evil, and brought it upon us: for the LORD our God is righteous in all his works which he doeth: for we obeyed not his voice.[g]

15 And now, O Lord our God, that hast brought thy people forth out of the land of Egypt with a mighty hand, and hast [2]gotten thee renown, as at this day; we have sinned, we have done wickedly.[h]

16 ¶ O Lord, according to all thy righteousness, I beseech thee, let thine anger and thy fury be turned away from thy city Jerusalem, thy holy mountain: because for our sins, and for the iniquities of our fathers, Jerusalem and thy people are become a reproach to all that are about us.[i]

17 Now therefore, O our God, hear the prayer of thy servant, and his supplications, and cause thy face to shine upon thy sanctuary that is desolate, for the Lord's sake.[j]

18 O my God, incline thine ear, and hear; open thine eyes, and behold our desolations, and the city which is called by thy name: for we do not present our supplications before thee for our righteousnesses, but for thy great mercies.[k]

19 O Lord, hear; O Lord, forgive; O Lord, hearken and do; defer not, for thine own sake, O my God: for thy city and thy people are called by thy name.[l]

20 ¶ And whiles I was speaking, and praying, and confessing my sin and the sin of my people Israel, and presenting my supplication before the LORD my God for the holy mountain of my God;[m]

21 Yea, whiles I was speaking in prayer, even the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in the vision at the beginning, being caused to fly swiftly, touched me about the time of the evening oblation.[n]

22 And he informed me, and talked with me, and said, O Daniel, I am now come forth [3]to give thee skill and understanding.

23 At the beginning of thy supplications the [4]commandment came forth, and I am come to shew thee; for thou art greatly beloved: therefore understand the matter, and consider the vision.[o]

24 Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city, [5]to finish the transgression, and [6]to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and [7]prophecy, and to anoint the most Holy.[p]

25 Know therefore and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment [8]to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the Messiah the Prince shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks: the street [9]shall be built again, and the [10]wall, even [11]in troublous times.[q]

26 And after threescore and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off, but [12]not for himself: and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and unto the end of the war [13]desolations are determined.[r]

27 And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week: and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease, and for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate, even until the consummation, and that determined shall be poured upon the desolate.[s]

CHAPTER X.

1 Daniel having humbled himself seeth a vision. 10 Being troubled with fear he is comforted by the angel.

IN the third year of Cyrus king of Persia a thing was revealed unto Daniel, whose name was called Belteshazzar; and the thing was true, but the time appointed was long: and he understood the thing, and had understanding of the vision.[t]

2 In those days I Daniel was mourning three [14]full weeks.

3 I ate no [15]pleasant bread, neither came flesh nor wine in my mouth, neither did I anoint myself at all, till three whole weeks were fulfilled.[u]

4 And in the four and twentieth day of the first month, as I was by the side of the great river, which is Hiddekel;[v]

5 Then I lifted up mine eyes, and looked, and behold a certain man clothed in linen, whose loins were girded with fine gold of Uphaz:[w]

6 His body also was like the beryl, and his face as the appearance of lightning, and his eyes as lamps of fire, and his arms and his feet like in colour to polished brass, and the voice of his words like the voice of a multitude.[x]

7 And I Daniel alone saw the vision: for the men that were with me saw not the vision; but a great quaking fell upon them, so that they fled to hide themselves.[y]

8 Therefore I was left alone, and saw this great vision, and there remained no strength in me: for my [16]comeliness was turned in me into corruption, and I retained no strength.[z]

CHAPTER XI.

1 The overthrow of Persia by the king of Grecia. 5 Leagues and conflicts between the kings of the south and of the north. 30 The invasion and tyranny of the Romans.

ALSO I in the first year of Darius the Mede, even I, stood to confirm and to strengthen him.[f]

2 And now will I shew thee the truth. Behold, there shall stand up yet three kings in Persia; and the fourth shall be far richer than they all: and by his strength through his riches he shall stir up all against the realm of Grecia.

3 And a mighty king shall stand up, that shall rule with great dominion, and do according to his will.[g]

4 And when he shall stand up, his kingdom shall be broken, and shall be divided toward the four winds of heaven; and not to his posterity, nor according to his dominion which he ruled: for his kingdom shall be plucked up, even for others beside those.[h]

5 ¶ And the king of the south shall be strong, and one of his princes; and he shall be strong above him, and have dominion; his dominion shall be a great dominion.

6 And in the end of years they [2]shall join themselves together; for the king's daughter of the south shall come to the king of the north to make [3]an agreement: but she shall not retain the power of the arm; neither shall he stand, nor his arm: but she shall be given up, and they that brought her, and [4]he that begat her, and he that strengthened her in these times.

7 But out of a branch of her roots shall one stand up [5]in his estate, which shall come with an army, and shall enter into the fortress of the king of the north, and shall deal against them, and shall prevail:

8 And shall also carry captives into Egypt their gods, with their princes, and with [6]their precious vessels of silver and of gold; and he shall continue more years than the king of the north.

9 So the king of the south shall come into his kingdom, and shall return into his own land.

10 But his sons [7]shall be stirred up, and shall assemble a multitude of great forces: and one shall certainly come, and overflow, and pass through: [8]then shall he return, and be stirred up, even to his fortress.[i]

11 And the king of the south shall be moved with choler, and shall come forth and fight with him, even with the king of the north: and he shall set forth a great multitude; but the multitude shall be given into his hand.

12 And when he hath taken away the multitude, his heart shall be lifted up; and he shall cast down many ten thousands: but he shall not be strengthened by it.

13 For the king of the north shall return, and shall set forth a multitude greater than the former, and shall certainly come [9]after certain years with a great army and with much riches.[j]

14 And in those times there shall many stand up against the king of the south: also [10]the robbers of thy people shall exalt themselves to establish the vision; but they shall fall.

15 So the king of the north shall come, and cast up a mount, and take [11]the most fenced cities: and the arms of the south shall not withstand, neither [12]his chosen people, neither shall there be any strength to withstand.

16 But he that cometh against him shall do according to his own will, and none shall stand before him: and he shall stand in the [13]glorious land, which by his hand shall be consumed.[k]

17 He shall also set his face to enter with the strength of his whole kingdom, and [14]upright ones with him; thus shall he do: and he shall give him the daughter of women, [15]corrupting her: but she shall not stand on his side, neither be for him.[l]

18 After this shall he turn his face unto the isles, and shall take many: but a prince [16]for his own behalf shall cause [17]the reproach offered by him to cease; without his own reproach he shall cause it to turn upon him.

19 Then he shall turn his face toward the fort of his own land: but he shall stumble and fall, and not be found.[m]

20 Then shall stand up [18]in his estate [19]a raiser of taxes in the glory of the kingdom: but within few days he shall be destroyed, neither in [20]anger, nor in battle.

21 And [21]in his estate shall stand up a vile person, to whom they shall not give the honour of the kingdom: but he shall come in peaceably, and obtain the kingdom by flatteries.[n]

22 And with the arms of a flood shall they be

23 And after the league made with him he shall work deceitfully: for he shall come up, and shall become strong with a small people.[b]

CHAPTER XII.

1 Michael shall deliver Israel from their troubles 5 Daniel is informed of the time

AND at that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people: and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time: and at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book.[q]

2 And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt.[r]

3 And they that be [15]wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever.[s]

4 But thou, O Daniel, shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time of the end: many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased.[t]

5 ¶ Then I Daniel looked, and, behold, there stood other two, the one on this side of the [16]bank of the river, and the other on that side of the bank of the river.[u]

6 And one said to the man clothed in linen, which was [17]upon the waters of the river, How long shall it be to the end of these wonders?[v]

7 And I heard the man clothed in linen, which was upon the waters of the river, when he held up his right hand and his left hand unto heaven, and sware by him that liveth for ever that it shall be for a time, times, and an half; and when he shall have accomplished to scatter the power of the holy people, all these things shall be finished.[c]

8 And I heard, but I understood not: then said I, O my Lord, what shall be the end of these things?

9 And he said, Go thy way, Daniel: for the words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end.[d]

10 Many shall be purified, and made white, and tried; but the wicked shall do wickedly: and none of the wicked shall understand; but the wise shall understand.[e]

11 And from the time that the daily sacrifice shall be taken away, and [1]the abomination that [2]maketh desolate set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days.[f]

12 Blessed is he that waiteth, and cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days.

The Book of HOSEA

CHAPTER I.

1 Hosea, to shew God's judgment for spiritual whoredom, taketh Gomer, 4 and hath by her Jezreel, 6 Lo-ruhamah, 8 and Lo-ammi 10 The restoration of Judah and

BEFORE CHRIST 785.

Hosea was contemporary with Isaiah, Micah, and Amos, and directed his prophecies chiefly against the kingdom of the Ten Tribes His ministry extended from the time of Hezekiah to that of Jeroboam the Second, and thus embraced a period of nearly sixty years

THE word of the LORD that came unto Hosea, the son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joash, king of Israel.

2 The beginning of the word of the LORD by Hosea. And the LORD said to Hosea, Go, take unto thee a wife of whoredoms and children of whoredoms: for the land hath committed great whoredom, departing from the LORD.[a]

3 So he went and took Gomer the daughter of Diblaim; which conceived, and bare him a son.

4 And the LORD said unto him, Call his name Jezreel; for yet a little while, and I will [1]avenge the blood of Jezreel upon the house of Jehu, and will cause to cease the kingdom of the house of Israel.[b]

5 And it shall come to pass at that day, that I will break the bow of Israel in the valley of Jezreel.

6 ¶ And she conceived again, and bare a daughter. And God said unto him, Call her name [1]Lo-ruhamah: for [2]I will no more have mercy upon the house of Israel; [3]but I will utterly take them away.[a]

7 But I will have mercy upon the house of Judah, and will save them by the LORD their God, and will not save them by bow, nor by sword, nor by battle, by horses, nor by horsemen.[b]

8 ¶ Now when she had weaned Lo-ruhamah, she conceived, and bare a son.

9 Then said God, Call his name [4]Lo-ammi: for ye are not my people, and I will not be your God.

10 ¶ Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered; and it shall come to pass, that [5]in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people, there it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living God.[c]

11 Then shall the children of Judah and the children of Israel be gathered together, and appoint themselves one head, and they shall come up out of the land: for great shall be the day of Jezreel.[d]

SAY ye unto your brethren, [6]Ammi; and to your sisters, [7]Ruhamah.

2 Plead with your mother, plead: for she is not my wife, neither am I her husband: let her therefore put away her whoredoms out of her sight, and her adulteries from between her breasts;[e]

3 Lest I strip her naked, and set her as in the day that she was born, and make her as a wilderness, and set her like a dry land, and slay her with thirst.[f]

4 And I will not have mercy upon her children; for they be the children of whoredoms.[g]

5 For their mother hath played the harlot: she that conceived them hath done shamefully: for she said, I will go after my lovers, that give me my bread and my water, my wool and my flax, mine oil and my [8]drink.[h]

6 ¶ Therefore, behold, I will hedge up thy way with thorns, and [9]make a wall, that she shall not find her paths.[i]

7 And she shall follow after her lovers, but she shall not overtake them; and she shall seek them, but shall not find them: then shall she say, I will go and return to my first husband; for then was it better with me than now.[j]

8 For she did not know that I gave her corn, and [10]wine, and oil, and multiplied her silver and gold, [11]which they prepared for Baal.[k]

9 Therefore will I return, and take away my corn in the time thereof, and my wine in the season thereof, and will [12]recover my wool and my flax given to cover her nakedness.[l]

10 And now will I discover her [13]lewdness in the sight of her lovers, and none shall deliver her out of mine hand.[m]

11 I will also cause all her mirth to cease, her feast days, her new moons, and her sabbaths, and all her solemn feasts.[n]

12 And I will [14]destroy her vines and her fig trees, whereof she hath said, These are my rewards that my lovers have given me: and I will make them a forest, and the beasts of the field shall eat them.[o]

15 And I will give her her vineyards from thence, and the valley of Achor for a door of hope: and she shall sing there, as in the days of her youth, and as in the day when she came up out of the land of Egypt.[c]

16 And it shall be at that day, saith the LORD, that thou shalt call me [2]Ishi; and shalt call me no more [3]Baali.

17 For I will take away the names of Baalim out of her mouth, and they shall no more be remembered by their name.[d]

CHAPTER IV.

1 God's judgments against the sins of the people, 6 and of the priests, 12 and against their idolatry. 15 Judah is exhorted to take warning by Israel's calamity

HEAR the word of the LORD, ye children of Israel: for the LORD hath a controversy with the inhabitants of the land, because there is no truth, nor mercy, nor knowledge of God in the land.[n]

2 By swearing, and lying, and killing, and stealing, and committing adultery, they break out, and blood toucheth [7]blood.

3 Therefore shall the land mourn, and every one that dwelleth therein shall languish, with the beasts of the field, and with the fowls of heaven; yea, the fishes of the sea also shall be taken away.[o]

4 Yet let no man strive, nor reprove another: for thy people are as they that strive with the priest.[p]

5 Therefore shalt thou fall in the day, and the prophet also shall fall with thee in the night, and I will [8]destroy thy mother.[q]

6 ¶ My people are [9]destroyed for lack of knowledge: because thou hast rejected knowledge, I will also reject thee, that thou shalt be no priest to me: seeing thou hast forgotten the law of thy God, I will also forget thy children.[r]

7 As they were increased, so they sinned against me: therefore will I change their glory into shame.[s]

8 They eat up the sin of my people, and they [10]set their heart on their iniquity.

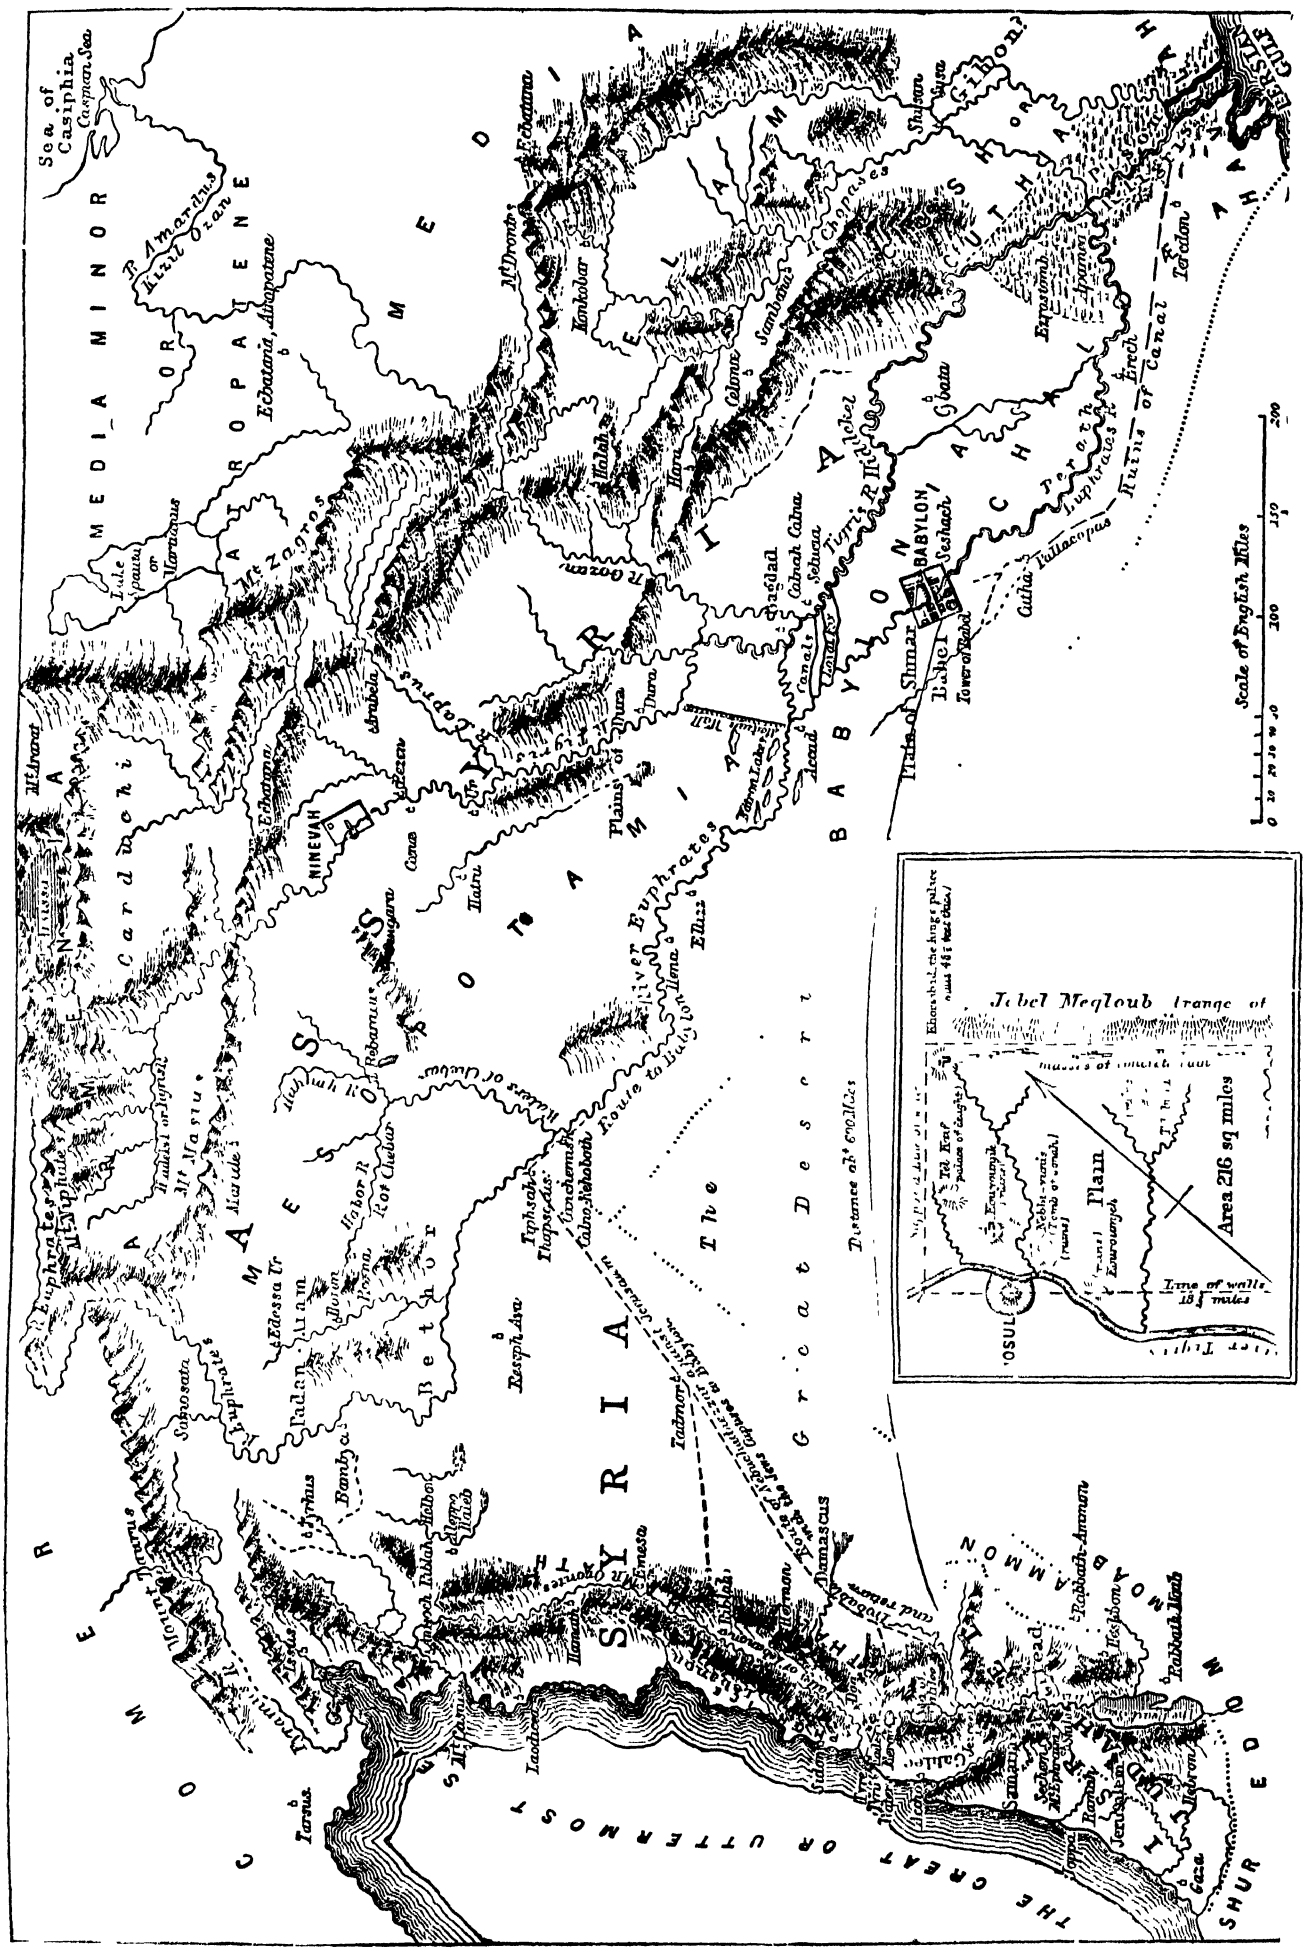
9 And there shall be, like people, like priest: and I will [11]punish them for their ways, and [12]reward them their doings.[t]

10 For they shall eat, and not have enough: they shall commit whoredom, and shall not increase: because they have left off to take heed to the LORD.[u]

11 Whoredom and wine and new wine take away the heart.[v]

12 ¶ My people ask counsel at their stocks, and their staff declareth unto them: for the spirit of whoredoms hath caused them to err, and they have gone a whoring from under their God.[w]

13 They sacrifice upon the tops of the mountains, and burn incense upon the hills, under oaks and poplars and elms, because the shadow thereof is good: therefore your daughters shall commit whoredom, and your spouses shall commit adultery.[x]



14 [13]I will not punish your daughters when they commit whoredom, nor your spouses when they commit adultery: for themselves are separated with whores, and they sacrifice with harlots: therefore the people that doth not understand shall [14]fall.[y]

15 ¶ Though thou, Israel, play the harlot, yet let not Judah offend; and come not ye unto Gilgal, neither go ye up to Beth-aven, nor swear, The LORD liveth.[a]

16 For Israel slideth back as a backsliding heifer: now the LORD will feed them as a lamb in a large place.[b]

17 Ephraim is joined to idols: let him alone.[c]

18 Their drink [1]is sour: they have committed whoredom continually: her [2]rulers with shame do love, Give ye.

19 The wind hath bound her up in her wings, and they shall be ashamed because of their sacrifices.[d]

1 God's judgments against the priests, the people, and the princes of Israel, for their manifold sins, 15 until they repent.

HEAR ye this, O priests; and hearken, ye house of Israel; and give ye ear, O house of the king; for judgment is toward you, because ye have been a snare on Mizpah, and a net spread upon Tabor.[e]

2 And the revolters are profound to make slaughter, [3]though I have been [4]a rebuker of them all.[f]

f Isa xxix. 15

3 I know Ephraim, and Israel is not hid from me: for now, O Ephraim, thou committest whoredom, and Israel is defiled.[a]

4 [1]They will not frame their doings to turn unto their God: for the spirit of whoredoms is in the midst of them, and they have not known the LORD.[b]

5 And the pride of Israel doth testify to his face: therefore shall Israel and Ephraim fall in their iniquity; Judah also shall fall with them.[c]

6 They shall go with their flocks and with their herds to seek the LORD; but they shall not find him; he hath withdrawn himself from them.[d]

7 They have dealt treacherously against the LORD: for they have begotten strange children: now shall a month devour them with their portions.[e]

8 Blow ye the cornet in Gibeah, and the trumpet in Ramah: cry aloud at Beth-aven, after thee, O Benjamin.[f]

9 Ephraim shall be desolate in the day of rebuke: among the tribes of Israel have I made known that which shall surely be.

10 The princes of Judah were like them that remove the bound: therefore I will pour out my wrath upon them like water.[g]

11 Ephraim is oppressed and broken in judgment, because he willingly walked after the commandment.[h]

12 Therefore will I be unto Ephraim as a moth, and to the house of Judah as [2]rottenness.[i]

13 When Ephraim saw his sickness, and Judah saw his wound, then went Ephraim to the Assyrian, and sent [3]to king Jareb: yet could he not heal you, nor cure you of your wound.[j]

14 For I will be unto Ephraim as a lion, and as a young lion to the house of Judah: I, even I, will tear and go away; I will take away, and none shall rescue him.[k]

15 ¶ I will go and return to my place, [4]till they acknowledge their offence, and seek my face: in their affliction they will seek me early.[l]

CHAPTER VI.

1 An exhortation to repentance. 4 A complaint of their untowardness and iniquity.

COME, and let us return unto the LORD: for he hath torn, and he will heal us; he hath smitten, and he will bind us up.[m]

2 After two days will he revive us: in the third day he will raise us up, and we shall live in his sight.[n]

3 Then shall we know, if we follow on to know the LORD: his going forth is prepared as the morning; and he shall come unto us as the rain, as the latter and former rain unto the earth.[o]

4 ¶ O Ephraim, what shall I do unto thee? O Judah, what shall I do unto thee? for your [5]goodness is as a morning cloud, and as the early dew it goeth away.[p]

5 Therefore have I hewed them by the prophets; I have slain them by the words of my mouth: [6]and thy judgments are as the light that goeth forth.[q]

10 I have seen an horrible thing in the house of Israel: there is the whoredom of Ephraim, Israel is defiled.[v]

11 Also, O Judah, he hath set an harvest for thee, when I returned the captivity of my people.[w]

CHAPTER VII.

1 A reproof of manifold sins. 11 God's wrath against them for their hypocrisy.

WHEN I would have healed Israel, then the iniquity of Ephraim was discovered, and the [11]wickedness of Samaria: for they commit falsehood; and the thief cometh in, and the troop of robbers [12]spoileth without.[x]

2 And they [13]consider not in their hearts that I remember all their wickedness: now their own doings have beset them about; they are before my face.[y]

3 They make the king glad with their wickedness, and the princes with their lies.[z]

4 They are all adulterers, as an oven heated by the baker, [14]who ceaseth [15]from raising after he hath kneaded the dough, until it be leavened.[a]

5 In the day of our king the princes have made him sick [16]with bottles of wine; he stretched out his hand with scorners.

6 For they have [17]made ready their heart like an oven, whiles they lie in wait: their baker sleepeth all the night; in the morning it burneth as a flaming fire.

7 They are all hot as an oven, and have devoured their judges; all their kings are fallen: there is none among them that calleth unto me.[b]

8 Ephraim, he hath mixed himself among the people; Ephraim is a cake not turned.[c]

9 Strangers have devoured his strength, and he knoweth it not: yea, gray hairs are [18]here and there upon him, yet he knoweth not.[d]

10 And the pride of Israel testifieth to his face: and they do not return to the LORD their God, nor seek him for all this.[e]

11 ¶ Ephraim also is like a silly dove without heart: they call to Egypt, they go to Assyria.[f]

12 When they shall go, I will spread my net upon them; I will bring them down as the fowls of the heaven; I will chastise them, as their congregation hath heard.[g]

13 Woe unto them! for they have fled from me: [19]destruction unto them! because they have transgressed against me: though I have redeemed them, yet they have spoken lies against me.[e]

14 And they have not cried unto me with their heart, when they howled upon their beds: they assemble themselves for corn and wine, and they rebel against me.[f]

15 Though I have [1]bound and strengthened their arms, yet do they imagine mischief against me.

16 They return, but not to the most High: they are like a deceitful bow: their princes shall fall by the sword for the rage of their tongue: this shall be their derision in the land of Egypt.[c]

CHAPTER VIII.

1, 12 Destruction is threatened for their impiety, 5 and idolatry.

SET the trumpet to [2]thy mouth. He shall come as an eagle against the house of the LORD, because they have transgressed my covenant, and trespassed against my law.[d]

2 Israel shall cry unto me, My God, we know thee.[e]

3 Israel hath cast off the thing that is good: the enemy shall pursue him.

4 They have set up kings, but not by me: they have made princes, and I knew it not: of their silver and their gold have they made them idols, that they may be cut off.[f]

5 ¶ Thy calf, O Samaria, hath cast thee off; mine anger is kindled against them: how long will it be ere they attain to innocency?[g]

6 For from Israel was it also: the workman made it; therefore it is not God: but the calf of Samaria shall be broken in pieces.

7 For they have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind: it hath no [3]stalk: the bud shall yield no meal: if so be it yield, the strangers shall swallow it up.[h]

8 Israel is swallowed up: now shall they be among the Gentiles as a vessel wherein is no pleasure.[i]

9 For they are gone up to Assyria, a wild ass alone by himself: Ephraim hath hired [4]lovers.[j]

10 Yea, though they have hired among the nations, now will I gather them, and they shall [5]sorrow [6]a little for the burden of the king of princes.[k]

11 Because Ephraim hath made many altars to sin, altars shall be unto him to sin.[l]

12 I have written to him the great things of my law, but they were counted as a strange thing.[m]

13 [7]They sacrifice flesh for the sacrifices of mine offerings, and eat it; but the LORD accepteth them not; now will he remember their iniquity, and visit their sins: they shall return to Egypt.[n]

14 For Israel hath forgotten his Maker, and buildeth temples; and Judah hath multiplied fenced cities: but I will send a fire upon his cities, and it shall devour the palaces thereof.[o]

CHAPTER IX.

The distress and captivity of Israel for their sins and idolatry.

REJOICE not, O Israel, for joy, as other people: for thou hast gone a whoring from thy God, thou hast loved a reward [8]upon every cornfloor.[p]

2 The floor and the [9]wine-press shall not feed them, and the new wine shall fail in her.[q]

3 They shall not dwell in the LORD'S land; but Ephraim shall return [10]to Egypt, and they shall eat unclean things in Assyria.[r]

4 They shall not offer wine offerings to the LORD, neither shall they be pleasing unto him: their sacrifices shall be unto them as the bread of mourners; all that eat thereof shall be polluted: for their bread for their soul shall not come into the house of the LORD.[s]

5 What will ye do in the solemn day, and in the day of the feast of the LORD?[t]

6 For, lo, they are gone because of [11]destruction: Egypt shall gather them up, Memphis shall bury them: [12]the pleasant places for their silver, nettles shall possess them: thorns shall be in their tabernacles.[u]

7 The days of visitation are come, the days of recompence are come; Israel shall know it. the prophet is a fool, the [13]spiritual man is mad, for the multitude of thine iniquity, and the great hatred.[v]

8 The watchman of Ephraim was with my God: but the prophet is a snare of a fowler in all his ways, and hatred [14]in the house of his God.[w]

9 They have deeply corrupted themselves, as in the days of Gibeah: therefore he will remember their iniquity, he will visit their sins.[x]

10 I found Israel like grapes in the wilderness; I saw your fathers as the firstripe in the fig tree at her first time: but they went to Baal-peor, and separated themselves unto that shame; and their abominations were according as they loved.[y]

11 As for Ephraim, their glory shall fly away like a bird, from the birth, and from the womb, and from the conception.

12 Though they bring up their children, yet will I bereave them, that there shall not be a man left: yea, woe also to them when I depart from them![z]

13 Ephraim, as I saw Tyrus, is planted in a pleasant place: but Ephraim shall bring forth his children to the murderer.[a]

14 Give them, O LORD: what wilt thou give? give them a miscarrying womb and dry breasts.[b]

15 All their wickedness is in Gilgal: for there I hated them: for the wickedness of their doings I will drive them out of mine house, I will love them no more: all their princes are revolters.[c]

16 Ephraim is smitten, their root is dried up, they shall bear no fruit: yea, though they bring forth, yet will I slay even [15]the beloved fruit of their womb.[d]

17 My God will cast them away, because they did not hearken unto him: and they shall be wanderers among the nations.[e]

CHAPTER X.

Israel is reproved and threatened for their impiety and idolatry.

ISRAEL is [1]an empty vine, he bringeth forth fruit unto himself: according to the multitude of his fruit he hath increased the altars; according to the goodness of his land they have made goodly

2 [3]Their heart is divided; now shall they be found faulty: he shall [4]break down their altars, he shall spoil their images.[b]

BETH-AVEN, NOW BEIT-AVAN.

4 They have spoken words, swearing falsely in making a covenant: thus judgment springeth up as hemlock in the furrows of the field.[d]

5 The inhabitants of Samaria shall fear because of the calves of Beth-aven: for the people thereof shall mourn over it, and [5]the priests thereof that rejoiced on it, for the glory thereof, because it is departed from it.[e]

6 It shall be also carried unto Assyria for a present to king Jareb: Ephraim shall receive shame, and Israel shall be ashamed of his own counsel.[f]

CHAPTER XI.

1 The ingratitude of Israel unto God for his benefits. 5 His judgment. 8 God's mercy toward them.

WHEN Israel was a child, then I loved him, and called my son out of Egypt.[p]

2 As they called them, so they went from them: they sacrificed unto Baalim, and burned incense to graven images.[q]

3 I taught Ephraim also to go, taking them by their arms; but they knew not that I healed them.[a]

4 I drew them with cords of a man, with bands of love: and I was to them as they that [1]take off the yoke on their jaws, and I laid meat unto them.[b]

5 ¶ He shall not return into the land of Egypt, but the Assyrian shall be his king, because they refused to return.[c]

6 And the sword shall abide on his cities, and shall consume his branches, and devour them, because of their own counsels.[d]

7 And my people are bent to backsliding from me: though they called them to the most High, [2]none at all would exalt him.[e]

8 How shall I give thee up, Ephraim? how shall I deliver thee, Israel? how shall I make thee as Admah? how shall I set thee as Zeboim? mine heart is turned within me, my repentings are kindled together.[f]

9 I will not execute the fierceness of mine anger, I will not return to destroy Ephraim: for I am God, and not man; the Holy One in the midst of thee: and I will not enter into the city.[g]

10 They shall walk after the LORD: he shall roar like a lion: when he shall roar, then the children shall tremble from the west.[h]

11 They shall tremble as a bird out of Egypt, and as a dove out of the land of Assyria: and I will place them in their houses, saith the LORD.[i]

12 Ephraim compasseth me about with lies, and the house of Israel with deceit: but Judah yet ruleth with God, and is faithful [3]with the saints.[j]

CHAPTER XII.

1 A reproof of Ephraim, Judah, and Jacob. 3 By former favours he exhorteth to repentance 7 Ephraim's sins provoke God

4 Yea, he had power over the angel, and prevailed: he wept, and made supplication unto him: he found him in Beth-el, and there he spake with us;[n]

6 Therefore turn thou to thy God: keep mercy and judgment, and wait on thy God continually.[p]

7 ¶ He is [6]a merchant, the balances of deceit are in his hand: he loveth to [7]oppress.[q]

11 Is there iniquity in Gilead? surely they are vanity: they sacrifice bullocks in Gilgal; yea, their altars are as heaps in the furrows of the fields.[u]

12 And Jacob fled into the country of Syria, and Israel served for a wife, and for a wife he kept sheep.[v]

13 And by a prophet the LORD brought Israel out of Egypt, and by a prophet was he preserved.[w]

14 Ephraim provoked him to anger [11]most bitterly: therefore shall he leave his [12]blood upon him, and his reproach shall his Lord return unto him.[x]

CHAPTER XIII.

1 Ephraim's glory, by reason of idolatry, vanisheth 5 God's anger for their unkindness. 9 A promise of God's mercy 15 A judgment for rebellion.

WHEN Ephraim spake trembling, he exalted himself in Israel; but when he offended in Baal, he died.[y]

2 And now they sin more and more, and have made them molten images of their silver, and idols according to their own understanding, all of it the work of the craftsmen: they say of them, Let [13]the men that sacrifice kiss the calves.[z]

3 Therefore they shall be as the morning cloud, and as the early dew that passeth away, as the chaff that is driven with the whirlwind out of the floor, and as the smoke out of the chimney.[a]

4 Yet I am the LORD thy God from the land of Egypt, and thou shalt know no god but me: for there is no saviour beside me.[b]

5 ¶ I did know thee in the wilderness, in the land of [14]great drought.[c]

6 According to their pasture, so were they filled; they were filled, and their heart was exalted; therefore have they forgotten me.[d]

7 Therefore I will be unto them as a lion: as a leopard by the way will I observe them:[e]

8 I will meet them as a bear that is bereaved of her whelps, and will rend the caul of their heart, and there will I devour them like a lion: [15]the wild beast shall tear them.[f]

9 ¶ O Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself; but in me [16]is thine help.[g]

10 [17]I will be thy king: where is any other that may save thee in all thy cities? and thy judges of whom thou saidst, Give me a king and princes?[h]

11 I gave thee a king in mine anger, and took him away in my wrath.[i]

12 The iniquity of Ephraim is bound up; his sin is hid.[j]

13 The sorrows of a travailing woman shall come upon him: he is an unwise son; for he should not stay [1]long in the place of the breaking forth of children.[a]

14 I will ransom them from the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death: O death, I will be thy plagues; O grave, I will be thy destruction: repentance shall be hid from mine eyes.[b]

15 ¶ Though he be fruitful among his brethren, an east wind shall come, the wind of the LORD shall come up from the wilderness, and his spring shall become dry, and his fountain shall be dried up: he shall spoil the treasure of all [2]pleasant vessels.[c]

16 Samaria shall become desolate; for she hath rebelled against her God: they shall fall by the sword: their infants shall be dashed in pieces, and their women with child shall be ripped up.[d]

CHAPTER XIV.

1 An exhortation to repentance. 4 A promise of God's blessing.

O ISRAEL, return unto the LORD thy God; for thou hast fallen by thine iniquity.[e]

2 Take with you words, and turn to the LORD: say unto him, Take away all iniquity, and [3]receive us graciously: so will we render the calves of our lips.[f]

3 Asshur shall not save us; we will not ride upon horses: neither will we say any more to the work of our hands, Ye are our gods: for in thee the fatherless findeth mercy.[g]

4 ¶ I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely: for mine anger is turned away from him.[h]

5 I will be as the dew unto Israel: he shall [4]grow as the lily, and [5]cast forth his roots as Lebanon.[i]

6 His branches shall spread, and his beauty shall be as the olive tree, and his smell as Lebanon.[j]

7 They that dwell under his shadow shall return; they shall revive as the corn, and [6]grow as the vine: the [7]scent thereof shall be as the wine of Lebanon.[k]

8 Ephraim shall say, What have I to do any more with idols? I have heard him, and observed him: I am like a green fir tree. From me is thy fruit found.[l]

9 Who is wise, and he shall understand these things? prudent, and he shall know them? for the ways of the LORD are right, and the just shall walk in them: but the transgressors shall fall therein.[m]

MOUNT LEBANON AND ITS VICINITY.

CHAPTER I.

1 Joel, declaring sundry judgments of God, exhorteth to observe them, 8 and to mourn. 14 He prescribeth a fast for complaint.

THE word of the LORD that came to Joel the son of Pethuel.

2 Hear this, ye old men, and give ear, all ye inhabitants of the land. Hath this been in your days, or even in the days of your fathers?[a]

3 Tell ye your children of it, and let your children tell their children, and their children another generation.[b]

4 [1]That which the palmerworm hath left hath the locust eaten; and that which the locust hath left hath the cankerworm eaten; and that which the cankerworm hath left hath the caterpiller eaten.[c]

5 Awake, ye drunkards, and weep; and howl, all ye drinkers of wine, because of the new wine; for it is cut off from your mouth.[d]

6 For a nation is come up upon my land, strong, and without number, whose teeth are the teeth of a lion, and he hath the cheek teeth of a great lion.[e]

7 He hath laid my vine waste, and [2]barked my fig tree: he hath made it clean bare, and cast it away; the branches thereof are made white.[f]

8 ¶ Lament like a virgin girded with sackcloth for the husband of her youth.[g]

9 The meat offering and the drink offering is cut off from the house of the LORD; the priests, the LORD's ministers, mourn.[h]

10 The field is wasted, the land mourneth; for the corn is wasted: the new wine is [3]dried up, the oil languisheth.[i]

11 Be ye ashamed, O ye husbandmen; howl, O ye vinedressers, for the wheat and for the barley; because the harvest of the field is perished.[i]

12 The vine is dried up, and the fig tree languisheth; the pomegranate tree, the palm tree also, and the apple tree, even all the trees of the field, are withered: because joy is withered away from the sons of men.[a]

13 Gird yourselves, and lament, ye priests: howl, ye ministers of the altar: come, lie all night in sackcloth, ye ministers of my God: for the meat offering and the drink offering is withholden from the house of your God.[b]

14 ¶ Sanctify ye a fast, call a solemn assembly, gather the elders and all the inhabitants of the land into the house of the LORD your God, and cry unto the LORD,[c]

15 Alas for the day! for the day of the LORD is at hand, and as a destruction from the Almighty shall it come.[d]

16 Is not the meat cut off before our eyes, yea, joy and gladness from the house of our God?[e]

17 The [1]seed is rotten under their clods, the garners are laid desolate, the barns are broken down; for the corn is withered.

18 How do the beasts groan! the herds of cattle are perplexed, because they have no pasture; yea, the flocks of sheep are made desolate.[f]

19 O LORD, to thee will I cry: for the fire hath devoured the [2]pastures of the wilderness, and the flame hath burned all the trees of the field.[g]

20 The beasts of the field cry also unto thee: for the rivers of waters are dried up, and the fire hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness.[h]

CHAPTER II.

1 He sheweth unto Zion the terribleness of God's judgment. 12 He exhorteth to repentance, 15 prescribeth a fast, 18 promiseth a blessing thereon. 21 He comforteth Zion with present, 28 and future blessings.

BLOW ye the trumpet in Zion, and sound an alarm in my holy mountain: let all the inhabitants of the land tremble: for the day of the LORD cometh, for it is nigh at hand;[i]

2 A day of darkness and of gloominess, a day of clouds and of thick darkness, as the morning spread upon the mountains: a great people and a strong; there hath not been ever the like, neither shall be any more after it, even to the years of [3]many generations.[j]

3 A fire devoureth before them; and behind them a flame burneth: the land is as the garden of Eden before them, and behind them a desolate wilderness; yea, and nothing shall escape them.[k]

4 The appearance of them is as the appearance of horses: and as horsemen, so shall they run.[l]

5 Like the noise of chariots on the tops of mountains shall they leap, like the noise of a flame of fire that devoureth the stubble, as a strong people set in battle array.[m]

6 Before their face the people shall be much pained: all faces shall gather [4]blackness.[n]

7 They shall run like mighty men; they shall climb the wall like men of war; and they shall march every one on his ways, and they shall not break their ranks:

8 Neither shall one thrust another; they shall walk every one in his path: and when they fall upon the [5]sword, they shall not be wounded.

9 They shall run to and fro in the city; they shall run upon the wall, they shall climb up upon the houses; they shall enter in at the windows like a thief.[o]

10 The earth shall quake before them; the heavens shall tremble: the sun and the moon shall be dark, and the stars shall withdraw their shining:[p]

11 And the LORD shall utter his voice before his army: for his camp is very great: for he is strong that executeth his word: for the day of the LORD is great and very terrible; and who can abide it?[q]

12 ¶ Therefore also now, saith the LORD, turn ye even to me with all your heart, and with fasting, and with weeping, and with mourning:[r]

13 And rend your heart, and not your garments, and turn unto the LORD your God: for he is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repenteth him of the evil.[s]

14 Who knoweth if he will return and repent, and leave a blessing behind him; even a meat offering and a drink offering unto the LORD your God?[t]

15 ¶ Blow the trumpet in Zion, sanctify a fast, call a solemn assembly:[u]

16 Gather the people, sanctify the congregation, assemble the elders, gather the children, and those that suck the breasts: let the bridegroom go forth of his chamber, and the bride out of her closet.[v]

17 Let the priests, the ministers of the LORD, weep between the porch and the altar, and let them say, Spare thy people, O LORD, and give not thine heritage to reproach, that the heathen should [6]rule over them: wherefore should they say among the people, Where is their God?[w]

18 ¶ Then will the LORD be jealous for his land, and pity his people.[x]

19 Yea, the LORD will answer and say unto his people, Behold, I will send you corn, and wine, and oil, and ye shall be satisfied therewith: and I will no more make you a reproach among the heathen:[y]

20 But I will remove far off from you the northern army, and will drive him into a land barren and desolate, with his face toward the east sea, and his hinder part toward the utmost sea, and his stink shall come up, and his ill savour shall come up, because [7]he hath done great things.[z]

21 ¶ Fear not, O land; be glad and rejoice: for the LORD will do great things.

22 Be not afraid, ye beasts of the field: for the pastures of the wilderness do spring, for the tree beareth her fruit, the fig tree and the vine do yield their strength.[a]

23 Be glad then, ye children of Zion, and rejoice in the LORD your God: for he hath given you [8]the former rain [9]moderately, and he will cause to come down for you the rain, the former rain, and the latter rain in the first month.[b]

24 And the floors shall be full of wheat, and the fats shall overflow with wine and oil.[c]

SELLING THE CHILDREN OF JEWISH CAPTIVES.—JOEL III. 3, 6

CHAPTER III.

1 God's judgments against the enemies of his people. 9 God will be known in his judgment. 18 His blessing upon the church.

FOR, behold, in those days, and in that time, when I shall bring again the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem,[a]

2 I will also gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat, and will plead with them there for my people and for my heritage Israel, whom they have scattered among the nations, and parted my land.[b]

3 And they have cast lots for my people; and have given a boy for an harlot, and sold a girl for wine, that they might drink.[c]

4 Yea, and what have ye to do with me, O Tyre, and Zidon, and all the coasts of Palestine? will ye render me a recompence? and if ye recompense me, swiftly and speedily will I return your recompence upon your own head;[d]

5 Because ye have taken my silver and my gold, and have carried into your temples my goodly [1]pleasant things:[e]

6 The children also of Judah and the children of Jerusalem have ye sold unto [2]the Grecians, that ye might remove them far from their border.

9 ¶ Proclaim ye this among the Gentiles; [1]Prepare war, wake up the mighty men, let all the men of war draw near; let them come up:[c]

11 Assemble yourselves, and come, all ye heathen, and gather yourselves together round about: thither [3]cause thy mighty ones to come down, O LORD.

12 Let the heathen be wakened, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat: for there will I sit to judge all the heathen round about.

16 The LORD also shall roar out of Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem; and the heavens and the earth shall shake: but the LORD will be the [5]hope of his people, and the strength of the children of Israel.[i]

17 So shall ye know that I am the LORD your God dwelling in Zion, my holy mountain: then shall Jerusalem be [6]holy, and there shall no strangers pass through her any more.[j]

18 ¶ And it shall come to pass in that day, that the mountains shall drop down new wine, and the hills shall flow with milk, and all the rivers of Judah shall flow with waters, and a fountain shall come forth of the house of the LORD, and shall water the valley of Shittim.[k]

19 Egypt shall be a desolation, and Edom shall be a desolate wilderness, for the violence against the children of Judah, because they have shed innocent blood in their land.[l]

20 But Judah shall dwell for ever, and Jerusalem from generation to generation.[m]

21 For I will cleanse their blood that I have not cleansed: [7]for the LORD dwelleth in Zion.[n]

The Book of AMOS.

CHAPTER I.

1 Amos sheweth God's judgment upon Syria, 6 upon the Philistines, 9 upon Tyrus, 11 upon Edom, 13 upon Ammon.

Before Christ 784

THE words of Amos, who was among the herdmen of Tekoa, which he saw concerning Israel in the days of Uzziah king of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joash king of Israel, two years before the earthquake.[a]

2 And he said, The LORD will roar from Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem; and the habitations of the shepherds shall mourn, and the top of Carmel shall wither.[b]

3 Thus saith the LORD; For three transgressions of Damascus, [1]and for four, I will not [2]turn away the punishment thereof; because they have threshed Gilead with threshing instruments of iron:[c]

4 But I will send a fire into the house of Hazael, which shall devour the palaces of Ben-hadad.[d]

5 I will break also the bar of Damascus, and cut off the inhabitant from [3]the plain of Aven, and him that holdeth the sceptre from [1]the house of Eden: and the people of Syria shall go into captivity unto Kir, saith the LORD.[e]

6 ¶ Thus saith the LORD; For three transgressions of Gaza, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because they [2]carried away captive the whole captivity, to deliver them up to Edom:[f]

7 But I will send a fire on the wall of Gaza, which shall devour the palaces thereof:[g]

8 And I will cut off the inhabitant from Ashdod, and him that holdeth the sceptre from Ashkelon, and I will turn mine hand against Ekron: and the remnant of the Philistines shall perish, saith the Lord GOD.[h]

9 ¶ Thus saith the LORD; For three transgressions of Tyrus, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because they delivered up the whole captivity to Edom, and remembered not [3]the brotherly covenant:[i]

10 But I will send a fire on the wall of Tyrus, which shall devour the palaces thereof.[j]

11 ¶ Thus saith the LORD; For three transgressions of Edom, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because he did pursue his brother with the sword, and [4]did cast off all pity, and his anger did tear perpetually, and he kept his wrath for ever:[k]

12 But I will send a fire upon Teman, which shall devour the palaces of Bozrah.[l]

13 ¶ Thus saith the LORD; For three transgressions of the children of Ammon, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because they have ripped up the women with child of Gilead, that they might enlarge their border:[m]

14 But I will kindle a fire in the wall of Rabbah, and it shall devour the palaces thereof, with shouting in the day of battle, with a tempest in the day of the whirlwind:[n]

15 And their king shall go into captivity, he and his princes together, saith the LORD.[o]

CHAPTER II.

1 God's wrath against Moab, 4 upon Judah, 6 and upon Israel. 9 God complaineth of their unthankfulness.

THUS saith the LORD; For three transgressions of Moab, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof, because he burned the bones of the king of Edom into lime:[a]

2 But I will send a fire upon Moab, and it shall devour the palaces of Kirioth: and Moab shall die with tumult, with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet:[b]

3 And I will cut off the judge from the midst thereof, and will slay all the princes thereof with him, saith the LORD.[c]

4 ¶ Thus saith the LORD; For three transgressions of Judah, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because they have despised the law of the LORD, and have not kept his commandments, and their lies caused them to err, after the which their fathers have walked:[d]

5 But I will send a fire upon Judah, and it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem.[e]

6 ¶ Thus saith the LORD; For three transgressions of Israel, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because they sold the righteous for silver, and the poor for a pair of shoes;[f]

7 That pant after the dust of the earth on the head of the poor, and turn aside the way of the meek: and a man and his father will go in unto the same maid, to profane my holy name:[g]

8 And they lay themselves down upon clothes laid to pledge by every altar, and they drink the wine of [5]the condemned in the house of their god.[h]

9 ¶ Yet destroyed I the Amorite before them, whose height was like the height of the cedars, and he was strong as the oaks; yet I destroyed his fruit from above, and his roots from beneath.[i]

10 Also I brought you up from the land of Egypt, and led you forty years through the wilderness, to possess the land of the Amorite.[k]

11 And I raised up of your sons for prophets, and of your young men for Nazarites. Is it not even thus O ye children of Israel? saith the LORD.[l]

12 But ye gave the Nazarites wine to drink; and commanded the prophets, saying, Prophesy not.[m]

13 Behold, [6]I am pressed under you, as a cart is pressed that is full of sheaves.[n]

14 Therefore the flight shall perish from the swift, and the strong shall not strengthen his force, neither shall the mighty deliver [7]himself:[o]

15 Neither shall he stand that handleth the bow; and he that is swift of foot shall not deliver himself: neither shall he that rideth the horse deliver himself.[p]

16 And he that is [8]courageous among the mighty shall flee away naked in that day, saith the LORD.

CHAPTER III.

1 The necessity of God's judgment against Israel. 9 The publication of it, with the causes thereof.

HEAR this word that the LORD hath spoken against you, O children of Israel, against the whole family which I brought up from the land of Egypt, saying,

2 You only have I known of all the families of the earth: therefore I will [9]punish you for all your iniquities.[a]

3 Can two walk together, except they be agreed?

4 Will a lion roar in the forest, when he hath no prey? will a young lion [10]cry out of his den, if he have taken nothing?

REVELLING REGARDLESS OF IMPENDING RUIN.—AMOS VI. 4—6.

7 And also I have withholden the rain from you, when there were yet three months to the harvest: and I caused it to rain upon one city, and caused it not to rain upon another city: one piece was rained upon, and the piece whereupon it rained not withered.

8 So two or three cities wandered unto one city, to drink water; but they were not satisfied: yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.[c]

9 I have smitten you with blasting and mildew: [1]when your gardens and your vineyards and your fig trees and your olive trees increased, the palmerworm devoured them: yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.[b]

10 I have sent among you the pestilence [2]after the manner of Egypt: your young men have I slain with the sword, [3]and have taken away your horses; and I have made the stink of your camps to come up unto your nostrils: yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.[c]

11 I have overthrown some of you, as God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah, and ye were as a firebrand plucked out of the burning: yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.[d]

CHAPTER V.

1 A lamentation for Israel. 4 An exhortation to repentance. 21 God rejecteth their hypocritical service.

HEAR ye this word which I take up against you, even a lamentation, O house of Israel.[g]

2 The virgin of Israel is fallen; she shall no more rise: she is forsaken upon her land; there is none to raise her up.

3 For thus saith the Lord GOD; The city that went out by a thousand shall leave an hundred, and that which went forth by an hundred shall leave ten, to the house of Israel.

4 ¶ For thus saith the LORD unto the house of Israel, Seek ye me, and ye shall live:[a]

5 But seek not Beth-el, nor enter into Gilgal, and pass not to Beer-sheba: for Gilgal shall surely go into captivity, and Beth-el shall come to nought.[b]

6 Seek the LORD, and ye shall live; lest he break out like fire in the house of Joseph, and devour it, and there be none to quench it in Beth-el.[c]

7 Ye who turn judgment to wormwood, and leave off righteousness in the earth,[d]

8 Seek him that maketh the seven stars and Orion, and turneth the shadow of death into the morning, and maketh the day dark with night: that calleth for the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth: The LORD is his name:[e]

9 That strengtheneth the [1]spoiled against the strong, so that the spoiled shall come against the fortress.

10 They hate him that rebuketh in the gate, and they abhor him that speaketh uprightly.[f]

11 Forasmuch therefore as your treading is upon the poor, and ye take from him burdens of wheat: ye have built houses of hewn stone, but ye shall not dwell in them; ye have planted [2]pleasant vineyards, but ye shall not drink wine of them.[g]

12 For I know your manifold transgressions and your mighty sins: they afflict the just, they take a bribe, and they turn aside the poor in the gate from their right.[h]

13 Therefore the prudent shall keep silence in that time; for it is an evil time.

14 Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live: and so the LORD, the God of hosts, shall be with you, as ye have spoken.[i]

15 Hate the evil, and love the good, and establish judgment in the gate: it may be that the LORD God of hosts will be gracious unto the remnant of Joseph.[j]

16 Therefore the LORD, the God of hosts, the Lord, saith thus; Wailing shall be in all streets; and they shall say in all the highways, Alas! alas! and they shall call the husbandman to mourning, and such as are skilful of lamentation to wailing.[k]

17 And in all vineyards shall be wailing: for I will pass through thee, saith the LORD.[l]

18 Woe unto you that desire the day of the LORD! to what end is it for you? the day of the LORD is darkness, and not light.[m]

19 As if a man did flee from a lion, and a bear met him; or went into the house, and leaned his hand on the wall, and a serpent bit him.[n]

20 Shall not the day of the LORD be darkness, and not light? even very dark, and no brightness in it?

21 ¶ I hate, I despise your feast days, and I will not [3]smell in your solemn assemblies.[o]

22 Though ye offer me burnt offerings and your meat offerings, I will not accept them: neither will I regard the [4]peace offerings of your fat beasts.[p]

23 Take thou away from me the noise of thy songs; for I will not hear the melody of thy viols.

THE JUDGMENT AGAINST AMAZIAH.—AMOS VII. 17

CHAPTER VII.

1 The judgments of the grasshoppers, 4 and of the fire, are diverted by the prayer of Amos. 7 By the wall of a plumbline is signified the rejection of Israel. 10 Amaziah complaineth of Amos. 14 Amos sheweth his calling, 16 and Amaziah's judgment.

THUS hath the Lord GOD shewed unto me; and, behold, he formed [1]grasshoppers in the beginning of the shooting up of the latter growth; and, lo, it was the latter growth after the king's mowings.

2 And it came to pass, that when they had made an end of eating the grass of the land, then I said, O Lord GOD, forgive, I beseech thee: [2]by whom shall Jacob arise? for he is small.[a]

3 The LORD repented for this: It shall not be, saith the LORD.[b]

4 ¶ Thus hath the Lord GOD shewed unto me: and, behold, the Lord GOD called to contend by fire, and it devoured the great deep, and did eat up a part.

5 Then said I, O Lord GOD, cease, I beseech thee: by whom shall Jacob arise? for he is small.[c]

6 The LORD repented for this: This also shall not be, saith the Lord GOD.

8 And the LORD said unto me, Amos, what seest thou? And I said, A plumbline. Then said the Lord, Behold, I will set a plumbline in the midst of my people Israel: I will not again pass by them any more:[a]

9 And the high places of Isaac shall be desolate, and the sanctuaries of Israel shall be laid waste; and I will rise against the house of Jeroboam with the sword.[b]

10 ¶ Then Amaziah the priest of Beth-el sent to Jeroboam king of Israel, saying, Amos hath conspired against thee in the midst of the house of Israel: the land is not able to bear all his words.[c]

11 For thus Amos saith, Jeroboam shall die by the sword, and Israel shall surely be led away captive out of their own land.

EDOM AND MOUNT

CHAPTER I.

1 Jonah, sent to Nineveh, fleeth to Tarshish. 4 He is bewrayed by a tempest, 11 thrown into the sea, 17 and swallowed by a fish

NOW the word of the LORD came unto [1]Jonah the son of Amittai, saying,[a]

2 Arise, go to Nineveh, that great city, and cry against it; for their wickedness is come up before me.[b]

3 But Jonah rose up to flee unto Tarshish from the presence of the LORD, and went down to Joppa; and he found a ship going to Tarshish: so he paid the fare thereof, and went down into it, to go with them unto Tarshish from the presence of the LORD.[c]

4 ¶ But the LORD [2]sent out a great wind into the sea, and there was a mighty tempest in the sea, so that the ship was [3]like to be broken.[d]

5 Then the mariners were afraid, and cried every man unto his god, and cast forth the wares that were in the ship into the sea, to lighten it of them. But Jonah was gone down into the sides of the ship; and he lay, and was fast asleep.[e]

6 So the shipmaster came to him, and said unto him, What meanest thou, O sleeper? arise, call upon thy God, if so be that God will think upon us, that we perish not.[f]

7 And they said every one to his fellow, Come, and let us cast lots, that we may know for whose cause this evil is upon us. So they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonah.[g]

8 Then said they unto him, Tell us, we pray thee, for whose cause this evil is upon us; What is thine occupation? and whence comest thou? what is thy country? and of what people art thou?

9 And he said unto them, I am an Hebrew; and I fear [4]the LORD, the God of heaven, which hath made the sea and the dry land.[h]

10 Then were the men [5]exceedingly afraid, and said unto him, Why hast thou done this? For the men knew that he fled from the presence of the LORD, because he had told them.

11 ¶ Then said they unto him, What shall we do unto thee, that the sea [6]may be calm unto us? for the sea [7]wrought, and was tempestuous.

12 And he said unto them, Take me up, and cast me forth into the sea; so shall the sea be calm unto you: for I know that for my sake this great tempest is upon you.[i]

13 Nevertheless the men [8]rowed hard to bring it to the land; but they could not: for the sea wrought, and was tempestuous against them.[j] compassed me about: all thy billows and thy waves passed over me.[a]

4 Then I said, I am cast out of thy sight; yet I will look again toward thy holy temple.[b]

5 The waters compassed me about, even to the soul: the depth closed me round about, the weeds were wrapped about my head.[c]

6 I went down to the [1]bottoms of the mountains; the earth with her bars was about me for ever: yet hast thou brought up my life from [2]corruption, O LORD my God.[d]

1 Jonah, sent again, preacheth to the Ninevites. 5 Upon their repentance, 10 God repenteth.

AND the word of the LORD came unto Jonah the second time, saying,

2 Arise, go unto Nineveh, that great city, and preach unto it the preaching that I bid thee.

3 So Jonah arose, and went unto Nineveh, according to the word of the LORD. Now Nineveh was an [3]exceeding great city of three days' journey.

5 ¶ So the people of Nineveh believed God, and proclaimed a fast, and put on sackcloth, from the greatest of them even to the least of them.[i]

6 For word came unto the king of Nineveh, and he arose from his throne, and he laid his robe from him, and covered him with sackcloth, and sat in ashes.[j]

7 And he caused it to be proclaimed and [4]published through Nineveh by the decree of the king and his [5]nobles, saying, Let neither man nor beast, herd nor flock, taste any thing: let them not feed, nor drink water:[k]

8 But let man and beast be covered with sackcloth, and cry mightily unto God: yea, let them turn every one from his evil way, and from the violence that is in their hands.[l]

9 Who can tell if God will turn and repent, and turn away from his fierce anger, that we perish not?[m]

10 ¶ And God saw their works, that they turned from their evil way; and God repented of the evil, that he had said that he would do unto them; and he did it not.[n]

CHAPTER IV.

1 Jonah, repining at God's mercy, 4 is reproved by the type of a gourd.

BUT it displeased Jonah exceedingly, and he was very angry.

2 And he prayed unto the LORD, and said, I pray thee, O LORD, was not this my saying, when I was yet in my country? Therefore I fled before unto Tarshish: for I knew that thou art a gracious God, and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repentest thee of the evil.[a]

3 Therefore now, O LORD, take, I beseech thee, my life from me; for it is better for me to die than to live.[b]

4 ¶ Then said the LORD, [1]Doest thou well to be angry?

5 So Jonah went out of the city, and sat on the east side of the city, and there made him a booth, and sat under it in the shadow, till he might see what would become of the city.

6 And the LORD God prepared a [2]gourd, and made it to come up over Jonah, that it might be a shadow over his head, to deliver him from his grief. So Jonah [3]was exceeding glad of the gourd.

7 But God prepared a worm when the morning rose the next day, and it smote the gourd that it withered.

2 [1]Hear, all ye people; hearken, O earth, and [2]all that therein is: and let the Lord GOD be witness against you, the Lord from his holy temple.[b]

3 For, behold, the LORD cometh forth out of his place, and will come down, and tread upon the high places of the earth.[c]

4 And the mountains shall be molten under him, and the valleys shall be cleft, as wax before the fire, and as the waters that are poured down [3]a steep place.[d]

7 And all the graven images thereof shall be beaten to pieces, and all the hires thereof shall be burned with the fire, and all the idols thereof will I lay desolate: for she gathered it of the hire of an harlot, and they shall return to the hire of an harlot.[b]

13 O thou inhabitant of Lachish, bind the chariot to the swift beast: she is the beginning of the sin to the daughter of Zion: for the transgressions of Israel were found in thee.[g]

14 Therefore shalt thou give presents [8]to Moresheth-gath: the houses of [9]Achzib shall be a lie to the kings of Israel.[h]

15 Yet will I bring an heir unto thee, O inhabitant of Mareshah: [10]he shall come unto Adullam the glory of Israel.[i]

1 Against oppression. 4 A lamentation 7 A reproof of injustice and idolatry. 12 A promise of restoring Jacob

WOE to them that devise iniquity, and work evil upon their beds! when the morning is light, they practise it, because it is in the power of their hand.[k]

2 And they covet fields, and take them by violence; and houses, and take them away: so they [11]oppress a man and his house, even a man and his heritage.[l]

3 Therefore thus saith the LORD; Behold, against this family do I devise an evil, from which ye shall not remove your necks; neither shall ye go haughtily: for this time is evil.[m]

4 ¶ In that day shall one take up a parable against you, and lament [12]with a doleful lamentation, and say, We be utterly spoiled: he hath changed the portion of my people: how hath he removed it from me! [13]turning away he hath divided our fields.[n]

13 The breaker is come up before them: they have broken up, and have passed through the gate, and are gone out by it: and their king shall pass before them, and the LORD on the head of them.[t]

CHAPTER III.

1 The cruelty of the princes. 5 The falsehood of the prophets. 8 The security of them both.

AND I said, Hear, I pray you, O heads of Jacob, and ye princes of the house of Israel: Is it not for you to know judgment?[u]

2 Who hate the good, and love the evil; who pluck off their skin from off them, and their flesh from off their bones;

3 Who also eat the flesh of my people, and flay their skin from off them; and they break their bones, and chop them in pieces, as for the pot, and as flesh within the caldron.[v]

4 Then shall they cry unto the LORD, but he will not hear them: he will even hide his face from them at that time, as they have behaved themselves ill in their doings.[w]

5 ¶ Thus saith the LORD concerning the prophets that make my people err, that bite with their teeth, and cry, Peace; and he that putteth not into their mouths, they even prepare war against him.[x]

6 Therefore night shall be unto you, [21]that ye shall not have a vision; and it shall be dark unto you, [22]that ye shall not divine; and the sun shall go down over the prophets, and the day shall be dark over them.[y]

7 Then shall the seers be ashamed, and the diviners confounded: yea, they shall all cover their [1]lips; for there is no answer of God.[a]

8 ¶ But truly I am full of power by the spirit of the LORD, and of judgment, and of might, to declare unto Jacob his transgression, and to Israel his sin.

9 Hear this, I pray you, ye heads of the house of Jacob, and princes of the house of Israel, that abhor judgment, and pervert all equity.

10 They build up Zion with [2]blood, and Jerusalem with iniquity.[c]

11 The heads thereof judge for reward, and the priests thereof teach for hire, and the prophets thereof divine for money: yet will they lean upon the LORD, [3]and say, Is not the LORD among us? none evil can come upon us.[d]

12 Therefore shall Zion for your sake be plowed as a field, and Jerusalem shall become heaps, and the mountain of the house as the high places of the forest.[e]

5 O my people, remember now what Balak king of Moab consulted, and what Balaam the son of Beor answered him from Shittim unto Gilgal; that ye may know the righteousness of the LORD.[i]

6 ¶ Wherewith shall I come before the LORD, and bow myself before the high God? shall I come before him with burnt offerings, with calves [5]of a year old?

2 The [13]good man is perished out of the earth: and there is none upright among men: they all lie in wait for blood; they hunt every man his brother with a net.[t]

3 ¶ That they may do evil with both hands earnestly, the prince asketh, and the judge asketh for a reward; and the great man, he uttereth [14]his mischievous desire: so they wrap it up.[u]

4 The best of them is as a brier: the most upright is sharper than a thorn hedge: the day of thy watchmen and thy visitation cometh; now shall be their perplexity.[v]

5 ¶ Trust ye not in a friend, put ye not confidence in a guide: keep the doors of thy mouth from her that lieth in thy bosom.[w]

6 For the son dishonoureth the father, the daughter riseth up against her mother, the daughter in law against her mother in law; a man's enemies are the men of his own house.[x]

7 Therefore I will look unto the LORD; I will wait for the God of my salvation: my God will hear me.[y]

8 ¶ Rejoice not against me, O mine enemy: when I fall, I shall arise; when I sit in darkness, the LORD shall be a light unto me.[z]

THE burden of Nineveh. The book of the vision of Nahum the Elkoshite.[a]

2 [1]God is jealous, and the LORD revengeth; the LORD revengeth, and [2]is furious; the LORD will take vengeance on his adversaries, and he reserveth wrath for his enemies.[b]

3 The LORD is slow to anger, and great in power, and will not at all acquit the wicked: the LORD hath his way in the whirlwind and in the storm, and the clouds are the dust of his feet.[c]

4 He rebuketh the sea, and maketh it dry, and drieth up all the rivers: Bashan languisheth, and Carmel, and the flower of Lebanon languisheth.[d]

5 The mountains quake at him, and the hills melt, and the earth is burned at his presence, yea, the world, and all that dwell therein.[e]

6 Who can stand before his indignation? and who can [3]abide in the fierceness of his anger? his fury is poured out like fire, and the rocks are thrown down by him.[f]

7 The LORD is good, a [4]strong hold in the day of trouble; and he knoweth them that trust in him.[g]

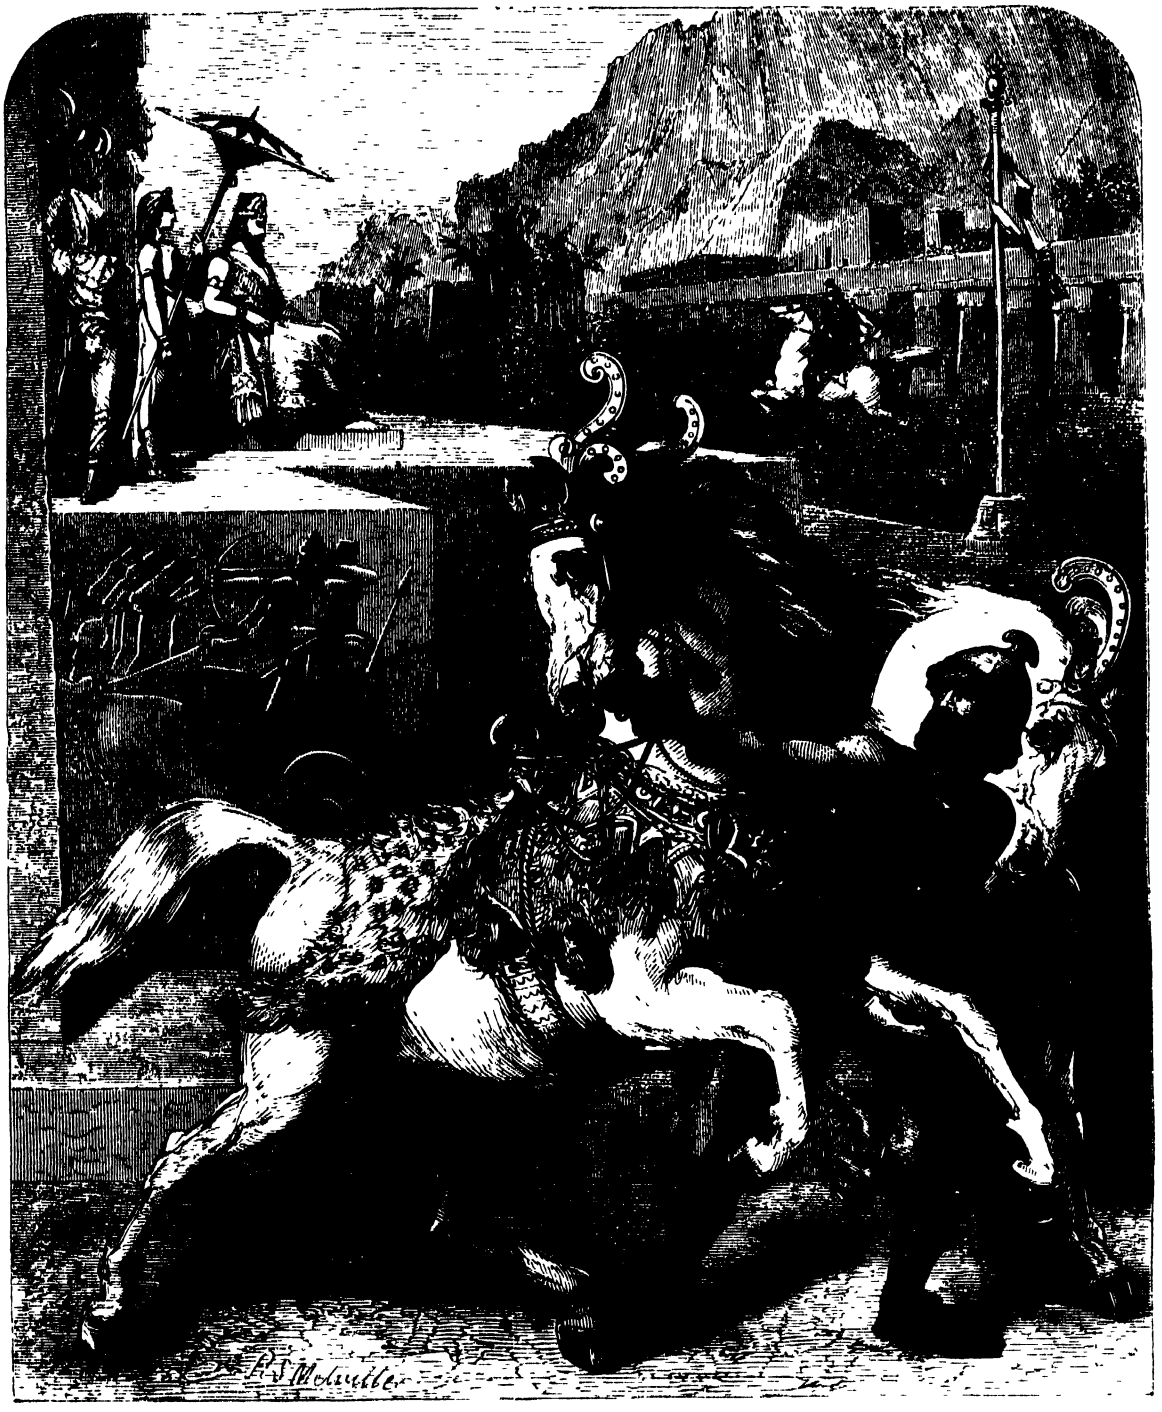
8 But with an overrunning flood he will make an utter end of the place thereof, and darkness shall pursue his enemies.[h]

9 What do ye imagine against the LORD? he will make an utter end: affliction shall not rise up the second time.[i]

10 For while they be folden together as thorns, and while they are drunken as drunkards, they shall be devoured as stubble fully dry.[j]

11 There is one come out of thee, that imagineth evil against the LORD, [5]a wicked counsellor.[k]

12 Thus saith the LORD; [6]Though they be quiet, and likewise many, yet thus shall they be [7]cut down, when he shall pass through. Though I have afflicted thee, I will afflict thee no more.[l]



13 For now will I break his yoke from off thee, and will burst thy bonds in sunder.[m]

14 And the LORD hath given a commandment concerning thee, that no more of thy name be sown: out of the house of thy gods will I cut off the graven image and the molten image: I will make thy grave; for thou art vile.[n]

15 Behold upon the mountains the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace! O

CHARIOT HORSES OF NINEVEH.

Judah, [1]keep thy solemn feasts, perform thy vows: for [2]the wicked shall no more pass through thee; he is utterly cut off.[a]

CHAPTER II.

The fearful and victorious armies of God against Nineveh.

HE [3]that dasheth in pieces is come up before thy face: keep the munition, watch the way, make thy loins strong, fortify thy power mightily.[b]

2 For the LORD hath turned away [4]the excellency of Jacob, as the excellency of Israel: for the emptiers have emptied them out, and marred their vine branches.[c]

3 The shield of his mighty men is made red, the valiant men are [5]in scarlet: the chariots shall be with [6]flaming torches in the day of his preparation, and the fir trees shall be terribly shaken.[d]

4 The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall justle one against another in the broad ways: [7]they shall seem like torches, they shall run like the lightnings.

5 He shall recount his [8]worthies: they shall stumble in their walk; they shall make haste to the wall thereof, and the [9]defence shall be prepared.

6 The gates of the rivers shall be opened, and the palace shall be [10]dissolved.

7 And [11]Huzzab shall be [12]led away captive, she shall be brought up, and her maids shall lead her as with the voice of doves, tabering upon their breasts.[e]

9 Take ye the spoil of silver, take the spoil of gold: [3]for there is none end of the store and glory out of all the [4]pleasant furniture.

10 She is empty, and void, and waste: and the heart melteth, and the knees smite together, and much pain is in all loins, and the faces of them all gather blackness.[e]

11 Where is the dwelling of the lions, and the feedingplace of the young lions, where the lion, even the old lion, walked, and the lion's whelp, and none made them afraid?[h]

12 The lion did tear in pieces enough for his whelps, and strangled for his lionesses, and filled his holes with prey, and his dens with ravin.

13 Behold, I am against thee, saith the LORD of hosts, and I will burn her chariots in the smoke, and the sword shall devour thy young lions: and I will cut off thy prey from the earth, and the voice of thy messengers shall no more be heard.[c]

CHAPTER III.

The miserable ruin of Nineveh.

WOE to the [5]bloody city! it is all full of lies and robbery; the prey departeth not;[d]

2 The noise of a whip, and the noise of the rattling of the wheels, and of the prancing horses, and of the jumping chariots.

3 The horseman lifteth up both [6]the bright sword and the glittering spear: and there is a multitude of slain, and a great number of carcases; and there is none end of their corpses; they stumble upon their corpses:

4 Because of the multitude of the whoredoms of the wellfavoured harlot, the mistress of witchcrafts, that selleth nations through her whoredoms, and families through her witchcrafts.[e]

5 Behold, I am against thee, saith the LORD of hosts; and I will discover thy skirts upon thy face, and I will shew the nations thy nakedness, and the kingdoms thy shame.[f]

6 And I will cast abominable filth upon thee, and make thee vile, and will set thee as a gazingstock.[g]

7 And it shall come to pass, that all they that look upon thee shall flee from thee, and say, Nineveh is laid waste: who will bemoan her? whence shall I seek comforters for thee?[h]

8 Art thou better than [7]populous No, that was situate among the rivers, that had the waters round about it, whose rampart was the sea, and her wall was from the sea?[i]

9 Ethiopia and Egypt were her strength, and it was infinite; Put and Lubim were [8]thy helpers.

10 Yet was she carried away, she went into captivity: her young children also were dashed in pieces at the top of all the streets: and they cast lots for her honourable men, and all her great men were bound in chains.[j]

11 Thou also shalt be drunken: thou shalt be hid, thou also shalt seek strength because of the enemy.[k]

12 All thy strong holds shall be like fig trees with the firstripe figs: if they be shaken, they shall even fall into the mouth of the eater.[l]

13 Behold, thy people in the midst of thee are women: the gates of thy land shall be set wide open unto thine enemies: the fire shall devour thy bars.[m]

14 Draw thee waters for the siege, fortify thy strong holds: go into clay, and tread the morter, make strong the brickkiln.[n]

15 There shall the fire devour thee; the sword shall cut thee off, it shall eat thee up like the canker-worm: make thyself many as the cankerworm, make thyself many as the locusts.[o]

16 Thou hast multiplied thy merchants above the stars of heaven: the cankerworm [9]spoileth, and fleeth away.

17 Thy crowned are as the locusts, and thy captains as the great grasshoppers, which camp in the hedges in the cold day, but when the sun ariseth they flee away, and their place is not known where they are.[p]

18 Thy shepherds slumber, O king of Assyria: thy nobles shall dwell in the dust: thy people is scattered upon the mountains, and no man gathereth them.[q]

19 There is no [10]healing of thy bruise; thy wound is grievous: all that hear the bruit of thee shall clap the hands over thee: for upon whom hath not thy wickedness passed continually?[r]

CHAPTER I.

1 Unto Habakkul, complaining of the iniquity of the land, b is shewed the fearful vengeance by the Chaldeans. 12 He complaineth that vengeance should be executed by them who are far worse.

BEFORE CHRIST 606

THE burden which Habakkuk the prophet did see.

2 O LORD, how long shall I cry, and thou wilt not hear! even cry out unto thee of violence, and thou wilt not save![a]

3 Why dost thou shew me iniquity, and cause me to behold grievance? for spoiling and violence are before me: and there are that raise up strife and contention.

4 Therefore the law is slacked, and judgment doth never go forth: for the wicked doth compass about the righteous; therefore [1]wrong judgment proceedeth.

5 ¶ Behold ye among the heathen, and regard, and wonder marvellously: for I will work a work in your days, which ye will not believe, though it be told you.[c]

6 For, lo, [2]I raise up the Chaldeans, that bitter and hasty nation, which shall march through the [3]breadth of the land, to possess the dwellingplaces that are not their's.[d]

7 They are terrible and dreadful: [4]their judgment and their dignity shall proceed of themselves.

8 Their horses also are swifter than the leopards, and are more [1]fierce than the evening wolves: and their horsemen shall spread themselves, and their horsemen shall come from far; they shall fly as the eagle that hasteth to eat.[a]

9 They shall come all for violence: [2]their faces shall sup up as the east wind, and they shall gather the captivity as the sand.

10 And they shall scoff at the kings, and the princes shall be a scorn unto them: they shall deride every strong hold; for they shall heap dust, and take it.

11 Then shall his mind change, and he shall pass over, and offend, imputing this his power unto his god.[b]

12 ¶ Art thou not from everlasting, O LORD my God, mine Holy One? we shall not die. O LORD, thou hast ordained them for judgment; and, O [3]mighty God, thou hast [4]established them for correction.[c]

13 Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look on [5]iniquity: wherefore lookest thou upon them that deal treacherously, and holdest thy tongue when the wicked devoureth the man that is more righteous than he?[d]

14 And makest men as the fishes of the sea, as the [6]creeping things, that have no ruler over them?[e]

15 They take up all of them with the angle, they catch them in their net, and gather them in their [7]drag: therefore they rejoice and are glad.[f]

16 Therefore they sacrifice unto their net, and burn incense unto their drag; because by them their portion is fat, and their meat [8]plenteous.[g]

1 Habakkuk in his prayer trembleth at God's majesty. 17 The confidence of his faith.

A PRAYER of Habakkuk the prophet [2]upon Shigionoth.[c]

2 O LORD, I have heard [3]thy speech, and was afraid: O LORD, [4]revive thy work in the midst of the years, in the midst of the years make known; in wrath remember mercy.[d]

3 God came from [5]Teman, and the Holy One from mount Paran. Selah. His glory covered the heavens, and the earth was full of his praise.[e]

4 And his brightness was as the light; he had [6]horns coming out of his hand: and there was the hiding of his power.

5 Before him went the pestilence, and [7]burning coals went forth at his feet.[f]

6 He stood, and measured the earth: he beheld, and drove asunder the nations; and the everlasting mountains were scattered, the perpetual hills did bow: his ways are everlasting.[g]

7 I saw the tents of [8]Cushan [9]in affliction: and the curtains of the land of Midian did tremble.

8 Was the LORD displeased against the rivers? was thine anger against the rivers? was thy wrath against the sea, that thou didst ride upon thine horses and [10]thy chariots of salvation?[h]

9 Thy bow was made quite naked, according to the oaths of the tribes, even thy word. Selah. [11]Thou didst cleave the earth with rivers.[i]

10 The mountains saw thee, and they trembled: the overflowing of the water passed by: the deep uttered his voice, and lifted up his hands on high.[j]

11 The sun and moon stood still in their habitation: [12]at the light of thine arrows they went, and at the shining of thy glittering spear.[k]

12 Thou didst march through the land in indignation, thou didst thresh the heathen in anger.[l]

13 Thou wentest forth for the salvation of thy people, even for salvation with thine anointed; thou woundedst the head out of the house of the wicked, by [13]discovering the foundation unto the neck. Selah.[m]

14 Thou didst strike through with his staves the head of his villages: they [14]came out as a whirlwind to scatter me: their rejoicing was as to devour the poor secretly.

1 An exhortation to repentance. 4 The judgment of the Philistines, 8 of Moab and Ammon, 12 of Ethiopia and Assyria.

2 Before the decree bring forth, before the day pass as the chaff, before the fierce anger of the LORD come upon you, before the day of the LORD'S anger come upon you.[c]

3 Seek ye the LORD, all ye meek of the earth, which have wrought his judgment; seek righteousness, seek meekness: it may be ye shall be hid in the day of the LORD'S anger.[d]

4 ¶ For Gaza shall be forsaken, and Ashkelon a desolation: they shall drive out Ashdod at the noon day, and Ekron shall be rooted up.[e]

5 Woe unto the inhabitants of the sea coast, the nation of the Cherethites! the word of the LORD is against you; O Canaan, the land of the Philistines, I will even destroy thee, that there shall be no inhabitant.[f]

6 And the sea coast shall be dwellings and cottages for shepherds, and folds for flocks.[g]

7 And the coast shall be for the remnant of the house of Judah; they shall feed thereupon: in the houses of Ashkelon shall they lie down in the evening: [2]for the LORD their God shall visit them, and turn away their captivity.[h]

8 ¶ I have heard the reproach of Moab, and the revilings of the children of Ammon, whereby they have reproached my people, and magnified themselves against their border.[i]

9 Therefore as I live, saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Surely Moab shall be as Sodom, and the children of Ammon as Gomorrah, even the breeding of nettles, and saltpits, and a perpetual desolation: the residue of my people shall spoil them, and the remnant of my people shall possess them.[j]

10 This shall they have for their pride, because they have reproached and magnified themselves against the people of the LORD of hosts.[k]

11 The LORD will be terrible unto them: for he will famish all the gods of the earth; and men shall worship him, every one from his place, even all the isles of the heathen.[l]

12 ¶ Ye Ethiopians also, ye shall be slain by my sword.[m]

13 And he will stretch out his hand against the north, and destroy Assyria; and will make Nineveh a desolation, and dry like a wilderness.[n]

14 And flocks shall lie down in the midst of her, all the beasts of the nations: both the [3]cormorant and the bittern shall lodge in the [4]upper lintels of it; their voice shall sing in the windows; desolation shall be in the thresholds: [5]for he shall uncover the cedar work.[o]

5 The just LORD is in the midst thereof; he will not do iniquity: [8]every morning doth he bring his judgment to light, he faileth not; but the unjust knoweth no shame.[t]

6 I have cut off the nations: their [9]towers are desolate; I made their streets waste, that none passeth by: their cities are destroyed, so that there is no man, that there is none inhabitant.

7 I said, Surely thou wilt fear me, thou wilt receive instruction; so their dwelling should not be cut off, howsoever I punished them: but they rose early, and corrupted all their doings.[u]

8 ¶ Therefore wait ye upon me, saith the LORD, until the day that I rise up to the prey: for my determination is to gather the nations, that I may assemble the kingdoms, to pour upon them mine indignation, even all my fierce anger: for all the earth shall be devoured with the fire of my jealousy.[v]

CHAPTER I.

1 Haggai reproveth the people for neglecting the building of the house. 7 He inciteth them to the building. 12 He promiseth God's assistance to them being forward.

BEFORE CHRIST 520.

IN the second year of Darius the king, in the sixth month, in the first day of the month, came the word of the LORD [1]by Haggai the prophet unto Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, [2]governor of Judah, and to Joshua the son of Josedech, the high priest, saying,[a]

2 Thus speaketh the LORD of hosts, saying, This people say, The time is not come, the time that the LORD'S house should be built.

3 Then came the word of the LORD by Haggai the prophet, saying,[b]

4 Is it time for you, O ye, to dwell in your cieled houses, and this house lie waste?[c]

5 Now therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts; [3]Consider your ways.[d]

THE MESSAGE OF HAGGAI TO ZERUBBABEL AND JOSHUA.—HAGGAI II.

6 Ye have sown much, and bring in little; ye eat, but ye have not enough; ye drink, but ye are not filled with drink; ye clothe you, but there is none warm; and he that earneth wages earneth wages to put it into a bag [1]with holes.[a]

7 ¶ Thus saith the LORD of hosts; Consider your ways.

8 Go up to the mountain, and bring wood, and build the house; and I will take pleasure in it, and I will be glorified, saith the LORD.

9 Ye looked for much, and, lo, it came to little; and when ye brought it home, I did [2]blow upon it. Why? saith the LORD of hosts. Because of mine house that is waste, and ye run every man unto his own house.[b]

10 Therefore the heaven over you is stayed from dew, and the earth is stayed from her fruit.[c]

11 And I called for a drought upon the land, and upon the mountains, and upon the corn, and upon the new wine, and upon the oil, and upon that which the ground bringeth forth, and upon men, and upon cattle, and upon all the labour of the hands.[d]

12 ¶ Then Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, and Joshua the son of Josedech, the high priest, with all the remnant of the people, obeyed the voice of the LORD their God, and the words of Haggai the prophet, as the LORD their God had sent him, and the people did fear before the LORD.[a]

13 Then spake Haggai the LORD'S messenger in the LORD'S message unto the people, saying, I am with you, saith the LORD.[b]

14 And the LORD stirred up the spirit of Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and the spirit of Joshua the son of Josedech, the high priest, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people; and they came and did work in the house of the LORD of hosts, their God,[c]

15 In the four and twentieth day of the sixth month, in the second year of Darius the king.

CHAPTER II.

1 He encourageth the people to the work, by promise of greater glory to the second temple than was in the first. 10 In the type of holy things and unclean he sheweth their sins hindered the work. 20 God's promise to Zerubbabel.

IN the seventh month, in the one and twentieth day of the month, came the word of the LORD [1]by the prophet Haggai, saying,

2 Speak now to Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to Joshua the son of Josedech, the high priest, and to the residue of the people, saying,

3 Who is left among you that saw this house in her first glory? and how do ye see it now? is it not in your eyes in comparison of it as nothing?[d]

4 Yet now be strong, O Zerubbabel, saith the LORD; and be strong, O Joshua, son of Josedech, the high priest; and be strong, all ye people of the land, saith the LORD, and work: for I am with you, saith the LORD of hosts:[e]

5 According to the word that I covenanted with you when ye came out of Egypt, so my spirit remaineth among you: fear ye not.[f]

6 For thus saith the LORD of hosts; Yet once, it is a little while, and I will shake the heavens, and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land;[g]

7 And I will shake all nations, and the desire of all nations shall come: and I will fill this house with glory, saith the LORD of hosts.[h]

8 The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith the LORD of hosts.

9 The glory of this latter house shall be greater than of the former, saith the LORD of hosts: and in this place will I give peace, saith the LORD of hosts.[i]

10 ¶ In the four and twentieth day of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius, came the word of the LORD by Haggai the prophet, saying,

11 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; Ask now the priests concerning the law, saying,[j]

12 If one bear holy flesh in the skirt of his garment, and with his skirt do touch bread, or pottage, or wine, or oil, or any meat, shall it be holy? And the priests answered and said, No.

13 Then said Haggai, If one that is unclean by a dead body touch any of these, shall it be unclean? And the priests answered and said, It shall be unclean.[k]

14 Then answered Haggai, and said, So is this people, and so is this nation before me, saith the LORD; and so is every work of their hands; and that which they offer there is unclean.[l]

15 And now, I pray you, consider from this day and upward, from before a stone was laid upon a stone in the temple of the LORD:[m]

16 Since those days were, when one came to an heap of twenty measures, there were but ten: when one came to the pressfat for to draw out fifty vessels out of the press, there were but twenty.[n]

17 I smote you with blasting and with mildew and with hail in all the labours of your hands; yet ye turned not to me, saith the LORD.[o]

18 Consider now from this day and upward, from the four and twentieth day of the ninth month, even from the day that the foundation of the LORD'S temple was laid, consider it.[p]

19 Is the seed yet in the barn? yea, as yet the vine, and the fig tree, and the pomegranate, and the olive tree, hath not brought forth: from this day will I bless you.[q]

20 ¶ And again the word of the LORD came unto Haggai in the four and twentieth day of the month, saying,

21 Speak to Zerubbabel, governor of Judah, saying, I will shake the heavens and the earth;[r]

22 And I will overthrow the throne of kingdoms, and I will destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the heathen; and I will overthrow the chariots, and those that ride in them; and the horses and their riders shall come down, every one by the sword of his brother.[s]

23 In that day, saith the LORD of hosts, will I take thee, O Zerubbabel, my servant, the son of Shealtiel, saith the LORD, and will make thee as a signet: for I have chosen thee, saith the LORD of hosts.[t]

CHAPTER I.

1 Zechariah exhorteth to repentance. 7 The vision of the horses. 12 At the prayer of the angel comfortable promises are made to Jerusalem 18 The vision of the four horns, and the four carpenters.

BEFORE CHRIST 520

IN the eighth month, in the second year of Darius, came the word of the LORD unto Zechariah, the son of Berechiah, the son of Iddo the prophet, saying,[a]

2 The LORD hath been [1]sore displeased with your fathers.

3 Therefore say thou unto them, Thus saith the LORD of hosts; Turn ye unto me, saith the LORD of hosts, and I will turn unto you, saith the LORD of hosts.[b]

4 Be ye not as your fathers, unto whom the former prophets have cried, saying, Thus saith the LORD of hosts; Turn ye now from your evil ways, and from your evil doings: but they did not hear, nor hearken unto me, saith the LORD.[c]

5 Your fathers, where are they? and the prophets, do they live for ever?

6 But my words and my statutes, which I commanded my servants the prophets, did they not [2]take hold of your fathers? and they returned and said, Like as the LORD of hosts thought to do unto us, according to our ways, and according to our doings, so hath he dealt with us.[d]

7 ¶ Upon the four and twentieth day of the eleventh month, which is the month Sebat, in the second year of Darius, came the word of the LORD unto Zechariah, the son of Berechiah, the son of Iddo the prophet, saying,

8 I saw by night, and behold a man riding upon a red horse, and he stood among the myrtle trees that were in the bottom; and behind him were there red horses, [3]speckled, and white.[e]

9 Then said I, O my lord, what are these? And the angel that talked with me said unto me, I will shew thee what these be.

10 And the man that stood among the myrtle trees answered and said, These are they whom the LORD hath sent to walk to and fro through the earth.[f]

11 And they answered the angel of the LORD that stood among the myrtle trees, and said, We have walked to and fro through the earth, and, behold, all the earth sitteth still, and is at rest.[g]

12 ¶ Then the angel of the LORD answered and said, O LORD of hosts, how long wilt thou not have mercy on Jerusalem and on the cities of Judah,

13 And the LORD answered the angel that talked with me with good words and comfortable words.[b]

14 So the angel that communed with me said unto me, Cry thou, saying, Thus saith the LORD of hosts; I am jealous for Jerusalem and for Zion with a great jealousy.[c]

15 And I am very sore displeased with the heathen that are at ease: for I was but a little displeased, and they helped forward the affliction.[d]

16 Therefore thus saith the LORD; I am returned to Jerusalem with mercies: my house shall be built in it, saith the LORD of hosts, and a line shall be stretched forth upon Jerusalem.[e]

17 Cry yet, saying, Thus saith the LORD of hosts; My cities through [1]prosperity shall yet be spread abroad; and the LORD shall yet comfort Zion, and shall yet choose Jerusalem.[f]

18 ¶ Then lifted I up mine eyes, and saw, and behold four horns.

19 And I said unto the angel that talked with me, What be these? And he answered me, These are the horns which have scattered Judah, Israel, and Jerusalem.[g]

20 And the LORD shewed me four carpenters.

21 Then said I, What come these to do? And he spake, saying, These are the horns which have scattered Judah, so that no man did lift up his head: but these are come to fray them, to cast out the horns of the Gentiles, which lifted up their horn over the land of Judah to scatter it.[h]

I LIFTED up mine eyes again, and looked, and behold a man with a measuring line in his hand.[i]

2 Then said I, Whither goest thou? And he said unto me, To measure Jerusalem, to see what is the breadth thereof, and what is the length thereof.[j]

3 And, behold, the angel that talked with me went forth, and another angel went out to meet him,

4 And said unto him, Run, speak to this young man, saying, Jerusalem shall be inhabited as towns without walls for the multitude of men and cattle therein:[k]

5 For I, saith the LORD, will be unto her a wall of fire round about, and will be the glory in the midst of her.[l]

6 ¶ Ho, ho, come forth, and flee from the land of the north, saith the LORD: for I have spread you abroad as the four winds of the heaven, saith the LORD.[m]

7 Deliver thyself, O Zion, that dwellest with the daughter of Babylon.[n]

8 For thus saith the LORD of hosts; After the glory hath he sent me unto the nations which spoiled you: for he that toucheth you toucheth the apple of his eye.[o]

CHAPTER III.

1 Under the type of Joshua, the restoration of the church, 8 Christ the Branch is promised.

AND he shewed me Joshua the high priest standing before the angel of the LORD, and [3]Satan standing at his right hand [4]to resist him.[u]

2 And the LORD said unto Satan, The LORD rebuke thee, O Satan; even the LORD that hath chosen Jerusalem rebuke thee: is not this a brand plucked out of the fire?[v]

3 Now Joshua was clothed with filthy garments, and stood before the angel.[w]

4 And he answered and spake unto those that stood before him, saying, Take away the filthy garments from him. And unto him he said, Behold, I have caused thine iniquity to pass from thee, and I will clothe thee with change of raiment.[x]

5 And I said, Let them set a fair mitre upon his head. So they set a fair mitre upon his head, and clothed him with garments. And the angel of the LORD stood by.[y]

6 And the angel of the LORD protested unto Joshua, saying,

7 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; If thou wilt walk in my ways, and if thou wilt keep my [5]charge, then thou shalt also judge my house, and shalt also keep my courts, and I will give thee [6]places to walk among these that stand by.[z]

8 Hear now, O Joshua the high priest, thou, and thy fellows that sit before thee: for they are men wondered at: for, behold, I will bring forth my servant the BRANCH.[a]

9 For behold the stone that I have laid before Joshua; upon one stone shall be seven eyes: behold, I will engrave the graving thereof, saith the LORD of hosts, and I will remove the iniquity of that land in one day.[b]

10 In that day, saith the LORD of hosts, shall ye call every man his neighbour under the vine and under the fig tree.[c]

3 And two olive trees by it, one upon the right side of the bowl, and the other upon the left side thereof.[c]

14 For thus saith the LORD of hosts; As I thought to punish you, when your fathers provoked me to wrath, saith the LORD of hosts, and I repented not:[c]

2 And Hamath also shall border thereby; Tyrus, and Zidon, though it be very wise.[k]

3 And Tyrus did build herself a strong hold, and heaped up silver as the dust, and fine gold as the mire of the streets.[l]

4 Behold, the Lord will cast her out, and he will smite her power in the sea; and she shall be devoured with fire.[m]

5 Ashkelon shall see it, and fear; Gaza also shall see it, and be very sorrowful, and Ekron; for her expectation shall be ashamed; and the king shall perish from Gaza, and Ashkelon shall not be inhabited.[n]

6 And a bastard shall dwell in Ashdod, and I will cut off the pride of the Philistines.[o]

7 And I will take away his [5]blood out of his mouth, and his abominations from between his teeth: but he that remaineth, even he, shall be for our God, and he shall be as a governor in Judah, and Ekron as a Jebusite.

8 And I will encamp about mine house because of the army, because of him that passeth by, and because of him that returneth: and no oppressor shall pass through them any more: for now have I seen with mine eyes.[p]

9 ¶ Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion; shout, O daughter of Jerusalem: behold, thy King cometh unto thee: he is just, and having salvation; lowly, and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt the foal of an ass.[q]

10 And I will cut off the chariot from Ephraim, and the horse from Jerusalem, and the battle bow shall be cut off: and he shall speak peace unto the heathen: and his dominion shall be from sea even to sea, and from the river even to the ends of the earth.[r]

11 As for thee also, [6]by the blood of thy covenant I have sent forth thy prisoners out of the pit wherein is no water.[s]

12 ¶ Turn you to the strong hold, ye prisoners of hope: even to day do I declare that I will render double unto thee;[t]

13 When I have bent Judah for me, filled the bow with Ephraim, and raised up thy sons, O Zion, against thy sons, O Greece, and made thee as the sword of a mighty man.

14 And the LORD shall be seen over them, and his arrow shall go forth as the lightning: and the Lord GOD shall blow the trumpet, and shall go with whirlwinds of the south.[u]

15 The LORD of hosts shall defend them; and they shall devour, and [7]subdue with sling stones; and they shall drink, and make a noise as through wine; and they [8]shall be filled like bowls, and as the corners of the altar.[v]

16 And the LORD their God shall save them in that day as the flock of his people: for they shall be as the stones of a crown, lifted up as an ensign upon his land.[w]

ZECHARIAH HAVING BROKEN HIS STAFF, RECEIVES THIRTY PIECES OF SILVER.—ZECHARIAH XI. 10—14

CHAPTER X.

1 God is to be sought unto, and not idols. 5 As he visited his flock for sin, so he will save and restore them.

ASK ye of the LORD rain in the time of the latter rain; so the LORD shall make [1]bright clouds, and give them showers of rain, to every one grass in the field.[a]

2 For the [2]idols have spoken vanity, and the diviners have seen a lie, and have told false dreams; they comfort in vain: therefore they went their way as a flock, they [3]were troubled, because there was no shepherd.[b]

3 Mine anger was kindled against the shepherds, and I [4]punished the goats: for the LORD of hosts hath visited his flock the house of Judah, and hath made them as his goodly horse in the battle.[c]

4 Out of him came forth the corner, out of him the nail, out of him the battle bow, out of him every oppressor together.[d]

5 ¶ And they shall be as mighty men, which tread down their enemies in the mire of the streets in the battle: and they shall fight, because the LORD is with them, and [5]the riders on horses shall be confounded.[e]

6 And I will strengthen the house of Judah, and I will save the house of Joseph, and I will bring them again to place them; for I have mercy upon them: and they shall be as though I had not cast them off: for I am the LORD their God, and will hear them.[f]

7 And they of Ephraim shall be like a mighty man, and their heart shall rejoice as through wine: yea, their children shall see it, and be glad; their heart shall rejoice in the LORD.[g]

8 I will hiss for them, and gather them; for I have redeemed them: and they shall increase as they have increased.[h]

2 Howl, fir tree; for the cedar is fallen; because the [1]mighty are spoiled: howl, O ye oaks of Bashan; for [2]the forest of the vintage is come down.[f]

3 ¶ There is a voice of the howling of the shepherds; for their glory is spoiled: a voice of the roaring of young lions; for the pride of Jordan is spoiled.

4 Thus saith the LORD my God; Feed the flock of the slaughter;[g]

5 Whose possessors slay them, and hold themselves not guilty: and they that sell them say, Blessed be the LORD; for I am rich: and their own shepherds pity them not.[h]

6 For I will no more pity the inhabitants of the land, saith the LORD: but, lo, I will [3]deliver the men every one into his neighbour's hand, and into the hand of his king: and they shall smite the land, and out of their hand I will not deliver them.

7 And I will feed the flock of slaughter, [4]even you, O poor of the flock. And I took unto me two staves; the one I called Beauty, and the other I called [5]Bands; and I fed the flock.[i]

8 Three shepherds also I cut off in one month; and my soul [6]lothed them, and their soul also abhorred me.[j]

9 Then said I, I will not feed you: that that dieth, let it die; and that that is to be cut off, let it be cut off; and let the rest eat every one the flesh [7]of another.[k]

10 ¶ And I took my staff, even Beauty, and cut it asunder, that I might break my covenant which I had made with all the people.

1 Jerusalem a cup of trembling to herself, 3 and a burdensome stone to her adversaries. 6 The victorious restoring of Judah. 9 The repentance of Jerusalem.

THE burden of the word of the LORD for Israel, saith the LORD, which stretcheth forth the heavens, and layeth the foundation of the earth, and formeth the spirit of man within him.[q]

2 Behold, I will make Jerusalem a cup of [13]trembling unto all the people round about, [14]when they shall be in the siege both against Judah and against Jerusalem.[r]

3 ¶ And in that day will I make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all people: all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces, though all the people of the earth be gathered together against it.[s]

4 In that day, saith the LORD, I will smite every horse with astonishment, and his rider with madness: and I will open mine eyes upon the house of Judah, and will smite every horse of the people with blindness.[t]

5 And the governors of Judah shall say in their heart, [15]The inhabitants of Jerusalem shall be my strength in the LORD of hosts their God.

6 ¶ In that day will I make the governors of Judah like an hearth of fire among the wood, and like a torch of fire in a sheaf; and they shall devour all the people round about, on the right hand and on the left: and Jerusalem shall be inhabited again in her own place, even in Jerusalem.[u]

7 The LORD also shall save the tents of Judah first, that the glory of the house of David and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem do not magnify themselves against Judah.

8 In that day shall the LORD defend the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and he that is [16]feeble among them at that day shall be as David; and the house of David shall be as God, as the angel of the LORD before them.[a]

9 ¶ And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will seek to destroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem.[b]

10 And I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplications: and they shall look upon me whom they have pierced, and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his firstborn.[c]

11 In that day shall there be a great mourning in Jerusalem, as the mourning of Hadadrimmon in the valley of Megiddon.[d]

12 And the land shall mourn, [1]every family apart; the family of the house of David apart, and their wives apart; the family of the house of Nathan apart, and their wives apart;[e]

13 The family of the house of Levi apart, and their wives apart; the family [2]of Shimei apart, and their wives apart;

14 All the families that remain, every family apart, and their wives apart.

1 The fountain of purgation for Jerusalem, 2 from idolatry, and false prophecy. 7 The death of Christ, and the trial of a third part.

IN that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem for sin and for [3]uncleanness.[f]

2 ¶ And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the LORD of hosts, that I will cut off the names of the idols out of the land, and they shall no more be remembered: and also I will cause the prophets and the unclean spirit to pass out of the land.[g]

3 And it shall come to pass, that when any shall yet prophesy, then his father and his mother that begat him shall say unto him, Thou shalt not live; for thou speakest lies in the name of the LORD: and his father and his mother that begat him shall thrust him through when he prophesieth.[h]

4 And it shall come to pass in that day, that the prophets shall be ashamed every one of his vision, when he hath prophesied; neither shall they wear [4]a rough garment [5]to deceive:[i]

5 But he shall say, I am no prophet, I am an husbandman; for man taught me to keep cattle from my youth.[a]

7 ¶ Awake, O sword, against my shepherd, and against the man that is my fellow, saith the LORD of hosts: smite the shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered: and I will turn mine hand upon the little ones.[b]

15 And so shall be the plague of the horse, of the mule, of the camel, and of the ass, and of all the beasts that shall be in these tents, as this plague.[e]

16 ¶ And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations which came against Jerusalem shall even go up from year to year to worship the King, the LORD of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles.[f]

19 This shall be the [5]punishment of Egypt, and the punishment of all nations that come not up to keep the feast of tabernacles.

20 ¶ In that day shall there be upon the [6]bells of the horses, HOLINESS UNTO THE LORD; and the pots in the LORD'S house shall be like the bowls before the altar.[i]

21 Yea, every pot in Jerusalem and in Judah shall be holiness unto the LORD of hosts: and all they that sacrifice shall come and take of them, and seethe therein: and in that day there shall be no more the Canaanite in the house of the LORD of hosts.[j]

1 Malachi complaineth of Israel's unkindness 6 Of their grossness 12 and profaneness.

THE burden of the word of the LORD to Israel [1]by Malachi.

2 I have loved you, saith the LORD. Yet ye say, Wherein hast thou loved us? Was not Esau Jacob's brother? saith the LORD: yet I loved Jacob,[a]

3 And I hated Esau, and laid his mountains and his heritage waste for the dragons of the wilderness.[b]

4 Whereas Edom saith, We are impoverished, but we will return and build the desolate places; thus saith the LORD of hosts, They shall build, but I will throw down; and they shall call them, The border of wickedness, and, The people against whom the LORD hath indignation for ever.

6 ¶ A son honoureth his father, and a servant his master: if then I be a father, where is mine honour? and if I be a master, where is my fear? saith the LORD of hosts unto you, O priests, that despise my name. And ye say, Wherein have we despised thy name?[d]

7 [3]Ye offer polluted bread upon mine altar; and ye say, Wherein have we polluted thee? In that ye say, The table of the LORD is contemptible.[e]

8 And if ye offer the blind [4]for sacrifice, is it not evil? and if ye offer the lame and sick, is it not evil? offer it now unto thy governor; will he be pleased with thee, or accept thy person? saith the LORD of hosts.[f]

9 And now, I pray you, beseech [5]God that he will be gracious unto us: this hath been [6]by your means: will he regard your persons? saith the LORD of hosts.[g]

10 Who is there even among you that would shut the doors for nought? neither do ye kindle fire on mine altar for nought. I have no pleasure in you, saith the LORD of hosts, neither will I accept an offering at your hand.[a]

11 For from the rising of the sun even unto the going down of the same my name shall be great among the Gentiles; and in every place incense shall be offered unto my name, and a pure offering: for my name shall be great among the heathen, saith the LORD of hosts.[b]

12 ¶ But ye have profaned it, in that ye say, The table of the LORD is polluted; and the fruit thereof, even his meat, is contemptible.[c]

13 Ye said also, Behold, what a weariness is it! [1]and ye have snuffed at it, saith the LORD of hosts; and ye brought that which was torn, and the lame, and the sick; thus ye brought an offering: should I accept this of your hand? saith the LORD.[d]

14 But cursed be the deceiver, which hath in his flock a male, and voweth, and sacrificeth unto the Lord a corrupt thing: for I am a great King, saith the LORD of hosts, and my name is dreadful among the heathen.[e]

CHAPTER II.

1 He sharply reproveth the priests for neglecting their covenant, 11 and the people for idolatry, 14 for adultery, 17 and for infidelity.

AND now, O ye priests, this commandment is for you.

2 If ye will not hear, and if ye will not lay it to heart, to give glory unto my name, saith the LORD of hosts, I will even send a curse upon you, and I will curse your blessings: yea, I have cursed them already, because ye do not lay it to heart.[f]

3 Behold, I will [2]corrupt your seed, and [3]spread dung upon your faces, even the dung of your solemn feasts; and [4]one shall take you away with it.[g]

4 And ye shall know that I have sent this commandment unto you, that my covenant might be with Levi, saith the LORD of hosts.

5 My covenant was with him of life and peace; and I gave them to him for the fear wherewith he feared me, and was afraid before my name.[h]

6 The law of truth was in his mouth, and iniquity was not found in his lips: he walked with me in peace and equity, and did turn many away from iniquity.[i]

7 For the priest's lips should keep knowledge, and they should seek the law at his mouth: for he is the messenger of the LORD of hosts.[j]

8 But ye are departed out of the way; ye have caused many to [5]stumble at the law; ye have corrupted the covenant of Levi, saith the LORD of hosts.[k]

9 Therefore have I also made you contemptible and base before all the people, according as ye have not kept my ways, but [6]have been partial in the law.[l]

10 Have we not all one father? hath not one God created us? why do we deal treacherously every man against his brother, by profaning the covenant of our fathers?[m]

11 ¶ Judah hath dealt treacherously, and an abomination is committed in Israel and in Jerusalem; for Judah hath profaned the holiness of the LORD which he [7]loved, and hath married the daughter of a strange god.[n]

12 The LORD will cut off the man that doeth this, [8]the master and the scholar, out of the tabernacles of Jacob, and him that offereth an offering unto the LORD of hosts.[o]

13 And this have ye done again, covering the altar of the LORD with tears, with weeping, and with crying out, insomuch that he regardeth not the offering any more, or receiveth it with good will at your hand.

14 ¶ Yet ye say, Wherefore? Because the LORD hath been witness between thee and the wife of thy youth, against whom thou hast dealt treacherously: yet is she thy companion, and the wife of thy covenant.[p]

15 And did not he make one? Yet had he the [9]residue of the spirit. And wherefore one? That he might seek [10]a godly seed. Therefore take heed to your spirit, and let none deal [11]treacherously against the wife of his youth.[q]

16 For the LORD, the God of Israel, saith [12]that he hateth putting away: for one covereth violence with his garment, saith the LORD of hosts: therefore take heed to your spirit, that ye deal not treacherously.[r]

17 ¶ Ye have wearied the LORD with your words. Yet ye say, Wherein have we wearied him? When ye say, Every one that doeth evil is good in the sight of the LORD, and he delighteth in them; or, Where is the God of judgment?[s]

CHAPTER III.

1 Of the messenger, majesty, and grace of Christ. 7 Of the rebellion, 8 sacrilege, 13 and infidelity of the people. 16 The promise of blessing to them that fear God.

BEHOLD, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me: and the Lord, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple, even the messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in: behold, he shall come, saith the LORD of hosts.[t]

2 But who may abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth? for he is like a refiner's fire, and like fullers' sope:[u]

3 And he shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver: and he shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the LORD an offering in righteousness.[v]

4 Then shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto the LORD, as in the days of old, and as in [13]former years.[w]

CHAPTER I.

Very scanty are the notices which we have of the author of this Gospel. In Mark ii. 14 he is introduced to us as Levi, the son of Alphæus, and may therefore have been the brother of James the Less, who, in Matthew x 3, is also called "the son of Alphæus." By profession he was a publican, an officer under the Roman Power, who was engaged in the collection of rates or taxes. After embracing the Christian faith, he dropped the name of Levi for that of Matthew, just as the Apostle of the nations gave up the name of Saul for that of Paul.

Of his apostolic labours out of Palestine, we know nothing. He comes before us as a writer rather than a worker. Not that he was wanting in active effort; as a follower of Christ, that was impossible; but whether he travelled and carried Christianity into other lands, or not, we have no means of determining.

Whether he wrote his narrative in Hebrew or in Greek, is a point still in dispute —while there are not a few authorities who contend for its Hebrew origin, that is, for its having been written in Syro-Chaldaic, as the vernacular language of the Hebrew Christians in Palestine, yet the weight of opinion is now in favour of its Greek original.

From the whole of the narrative, it is clear that Matthew wrote for the Jews; and to meet the Jewish predilection for what was outward and visible, he strongly presents to our view the human nature of Christ; yet maintaining, throughout his composition, that Jesus was the Messiah promised to the fathers, and predicted by the prophets in their own Scriptures.

Jechonias begat Salathiel; and Salathiel begat Zorobabel;[a]

13 And Zorobabel begat Abiud; and Abiud begat Eliakim; and Eliakim begat Azor;

14 And Azor begat Sadoc; and Sadoc begat Achim; and Achim begat Eliud;

15 And Eliud begat Eleazar; and Eleazar begat Matthan; and Matthan begat Jacob;

16 And Jacob begat Joseph the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called Christ.

17 So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations; and from David until the carrying away into Babylon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Babylon unto Christ are fourteen generations.

18 ¶ Now the birth of Jesus Christ was on this wise: When as his mother Mary was espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child of the Holy Ghost.[b]

19 Then Joseph her husband, being a just man, and not willing to make her a publick example, was minded to put her away privily.[c]

20 But while he thought on these things, behold, the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife: for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost.[d]

21 And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name [1]JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins.[e]

22 Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying,

23 Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and [2]they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us.[f]

24 Then Joseph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had bidden him, and took unto him his wife:

25 And knew her not till she had brought forth her firstborn son: and he called his name JESUS.[g]

CHAPTER II.

1 The wise men out of the east are directed to Christ by a star. 11 They worship him, and offer their presents. 14 Joseph fleeth into Egypt, with Jesus and his mother. 16 Herod slayeth the children: 20 himself dieth. 23 Christ is brought back again into Galilee to Nazareth.

NOW when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judæa in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem,[a]

2 Saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him.[b]

3 When Herod the king had heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him.

4 And when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where Christ should be born.[j]

5 And they said unto him, In Bethlehem of Judæa: for thus it is written by the prophet,

6 And thou Bethlehem, in the land of Juda, art not the least among the princes of Juda: for out of thee shall come a Governor, that shall [3]rule my people Israel.[k]

7 Then Herod, when he had privily called the wise men, enquired of them diligently what time the star appeared.

8 And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, Go and search diligently for the young child; and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also.

9 When they had heard the king, they departed; and, lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was.

Matthew's narrative takes the priority in time of all the rest; and between his record of the Saviour's life, and the records of Mark and Luke, there is such a correspondence as to have given to the three the name of the SYNOPTICAL GOSPELS. John's narrative differs from the other three in its depth of spiritual truth, and in a fuller exhibition of the Divinity of Christ

1 "The book of the generation"—that is, the roll of the pedigree It is thought by some that the genealogical tables of both Matthew and Luke were extracted from those registers which were preserved in public offices or repositories

"The Son of David" was one of the special titles given to the promised Messiah

5, 6 Though there was an interval of some three hundred and sixty-six years between Rachab and David, it is possible that the blessing of longevity was bestowed on several of the progenitors of David, as it was on his father Jesse.—1 Sam xvii 12

8. "Joram begat Ozias"—we learn from 2 Chron. xvi.—xxvi., that three generations came between Jeroboam and Uzziah. and we are told that it is very common among the Orientals to abridge their genealogical tables, if by such an abbreviation they can preserve the line of descent.

16. "The husband of Mary"—the object of the Evangelist is to show that Christ was, by legal descent, the heir of the throne of David.

18 "Mary was espoused to Joseph"—that is, betrothed. The interval between the betrothal and the fact of marriage was sometimes considerable; but during this period the woman was, in the eye of the law, the man's wife

19. "To put her away privily."—that is, according to the form prescribed by the law in Deut. xxiv. 1, for, had Joseph brought her to open justice, her punishment would have been death.

CHAPTER II.

We have here the visit and adoration of the magi from the far East, during the latter days of Herod the Great; the unusual physical phenomenon in the heavens by which these magi were influenced; the flight of Joseph, with Mary and the infant Jesus, into Egypt; the barbarous and inhuman conduct of Herod in his slaughter of the innocents; his death, which was followed by a supernatural intimation to Joseph to return to the land of Judea, with his settlement in Nazareth.

1 "Bethlehem of Judæa"—this town was otherwise known by the name of Ephrath and Ephratah, Gen xxxv. 19; xlviii 7; Micah v 2, and stood six Roman miles to the south of Jerusalem. In Ruth i 1 and iv. 18—22 it is mentioned as the place of David's family, and is therefore called "the city of David"

"In the days of Herod the king"—this was Herod the Great, the son of Antipater, who, being driven from his tetrarchy by the pretender Antigonus, fled to Rome, insinuated himself into the favour of Antony, and was by the voice of the senate appointed king of Judea, and had this title confirmed to him three years afterwards by Octavianus, in consequence of the overthrow of Antigonus

It was by this Herod the Temple was rebuilt, or repaired, enlarged, and adorned; but neither this magnificent deed, nor his liberality in other public works, nor even his provident care of his subjects during a severe famine, could atone for his heartless cruelties. Perhaps no man who ever sat upon a throne—not even Nero himself—was more hated than this very Herod. He died in the seventieth year of his age; and the events which are here recorded took place a short time before his death.

"Wise men from the east:"—they may have come from Arabia, or Persia, or Chaldea, while the term magi, or wise men, points them out as possessed of more than usual attainments in philosophy and science. There is no reason for supposing that they belonged to the priesthood, or could lay claim to regal dignity. In common with others, they had received the impression that the state of the nations was indicative of some impending revolution, and of the appearance of some illustrious hero and 10 When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy.

11 ¶ And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him: and when they had opened their treasures, they [1]presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.[e]

12 And being warned of God in a dream that they should not return to Herod, they departed into their own country another way.[f]

13 And when they were departed, behold, the angel of the Lord appeareth to Joseph in a dream, saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be thou there until I bring thee word: for Herod will seek the young child to destroy him.

14 When he arose, he took the young child and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt:

15 And was there until the death of Herod: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, Out of Egypt have I called my son.[c]

16 ¶ Then Herod, when he saw that he was mocked of the wise men, was exceeding wroth, and sent forth, and slew all the children that were in Bethlehem, and in all the coasts thereof, from two years old and under, according to the time which he had diligently enquired of the wise men.

17 Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremy the prophet, saying,[d]

18 In Rama was there a voice heard, lamentation, and weeping, and great mourning, Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not.

19 ¶ But when Herod was dead, behold, an angel of the Lord appeareth in a dream to Joseph in Egypt, 20 Saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and go into the land of Israel: for they are dead which sought the young child's life.

21 And he arose, and took the young child and his mother, and came into the land of Israel.

22 But when he heard that Archelaus did reign in Judæa in the room of his father Herod, he was afraid to go thither: notwithstanding, being warned of God in a dream, he turned aside into the parts of Galilee:[e]

23 And he came and dwelt in a city called Nazareth: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophets, He shall be called a Nazarene.[f]

CHAPTER III.

1 John preacheth. his office; life, and baptism. 7 He reprehendeth the Pharisees, 13 and baptizeth Christ in Jordan.

IN those days came John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judæa,[g]

2 And saying, Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.[h]

3 For this is he that was spoken of by the prophet Esaias, saying, The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.[i]

4 And the same John had his raiment of camel's hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins; and his meat was locusts and wild honey.[j]

5 Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judæa, and all the region round about Jordan,[k]

6 And were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins.[l]

7 ¶ But when he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees come to his baptism, he said unto them, O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?[m]

8 Bring forth therefore fruits [2]meet for repentance:

9 And think not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father: for I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.[n]

10 And now also the ax is laid unto the root of the trees: therefore every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire.[o]

11 I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance: but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost, and with fire:[p]

12 Whose fan is in his hand, and he will throughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat into the garner; but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire.[q]

13 ¶ Then cometh Jesus from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him.[r]

14 But John forbad him, saying, I have need to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to me?

15 And Jesus answering said unto him, Suffer it to be so now: for thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness. Then he suffered him.

16 And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water: and, lo, the heavens deliverer. They connected greatness with royalty, and hence they went direct to the palace to inquire after the new born king.

9. "The star . . . . went before them:"—this star was probably the Shechinah, or symbol of Divine glory, which was so often seen, and in various forms, under the Old Testament Economy, and the last manifestation of which took place at the conversion of Saul of Tarsus. Hence it could move or it could rest, at any moment or at any spot, which no star or planet could do.

22. "Archelaus did reign in Judæa:"—only four days before his own dissolution, Herod put his son Antipater to death, and nominated Archelaus, who was his son by a Samaritan woman, as his successor. His appointment was confirmed by the Roman senate under the title of Ethnarch, including the government of Judea, Idumea, and Samaria; but his conduct was such that he was afterwards deposed, and banished to Venice in Gaul. The Emperor then united Judea and Samaria to the province of Syria, placed Judea under a procurator, and under the Roman power it remained till some years after the death of Christ.

23. "A city called Nazareth:"—this small Galilean town, situated in the territory of Zebulon, was from fifty to seventy miles north of Jerusalem, and stood on an elevated site, about midway between Mount Tabor and Cana. It is now a place of no importance.

"That it might be fulfilled."—it is a just observation of Alford's, that "the accomplishment of a promise formally made, is often alleged as the cause of an action extending wider than the promise, and purposed long before its utterance." This remark applies to any passage in the New Testament where we find the phrase—"that it might be fulfilled."

SYNOPSIS:—Luke i., ii. Matt. iii. 1—12; Mark i. 2—9; Luke iii. 1—20 Matt. iii. 13—17; Mark i. 10, 11, Luke iii. 21—23; John i. 32—34.

With this chapter, which relates to the mission and active labours of John as the forerunner of Christ, begins the synoptic narrative of the three Evangelists. The burden of our remarks on this particular portion of Matthew's record we shall reserve till we come to the narrative of St. Luke. Nearly thirty years have already rolled away, and we discern the Baptist entering upon his work with a strong heart and a mighty purpose.

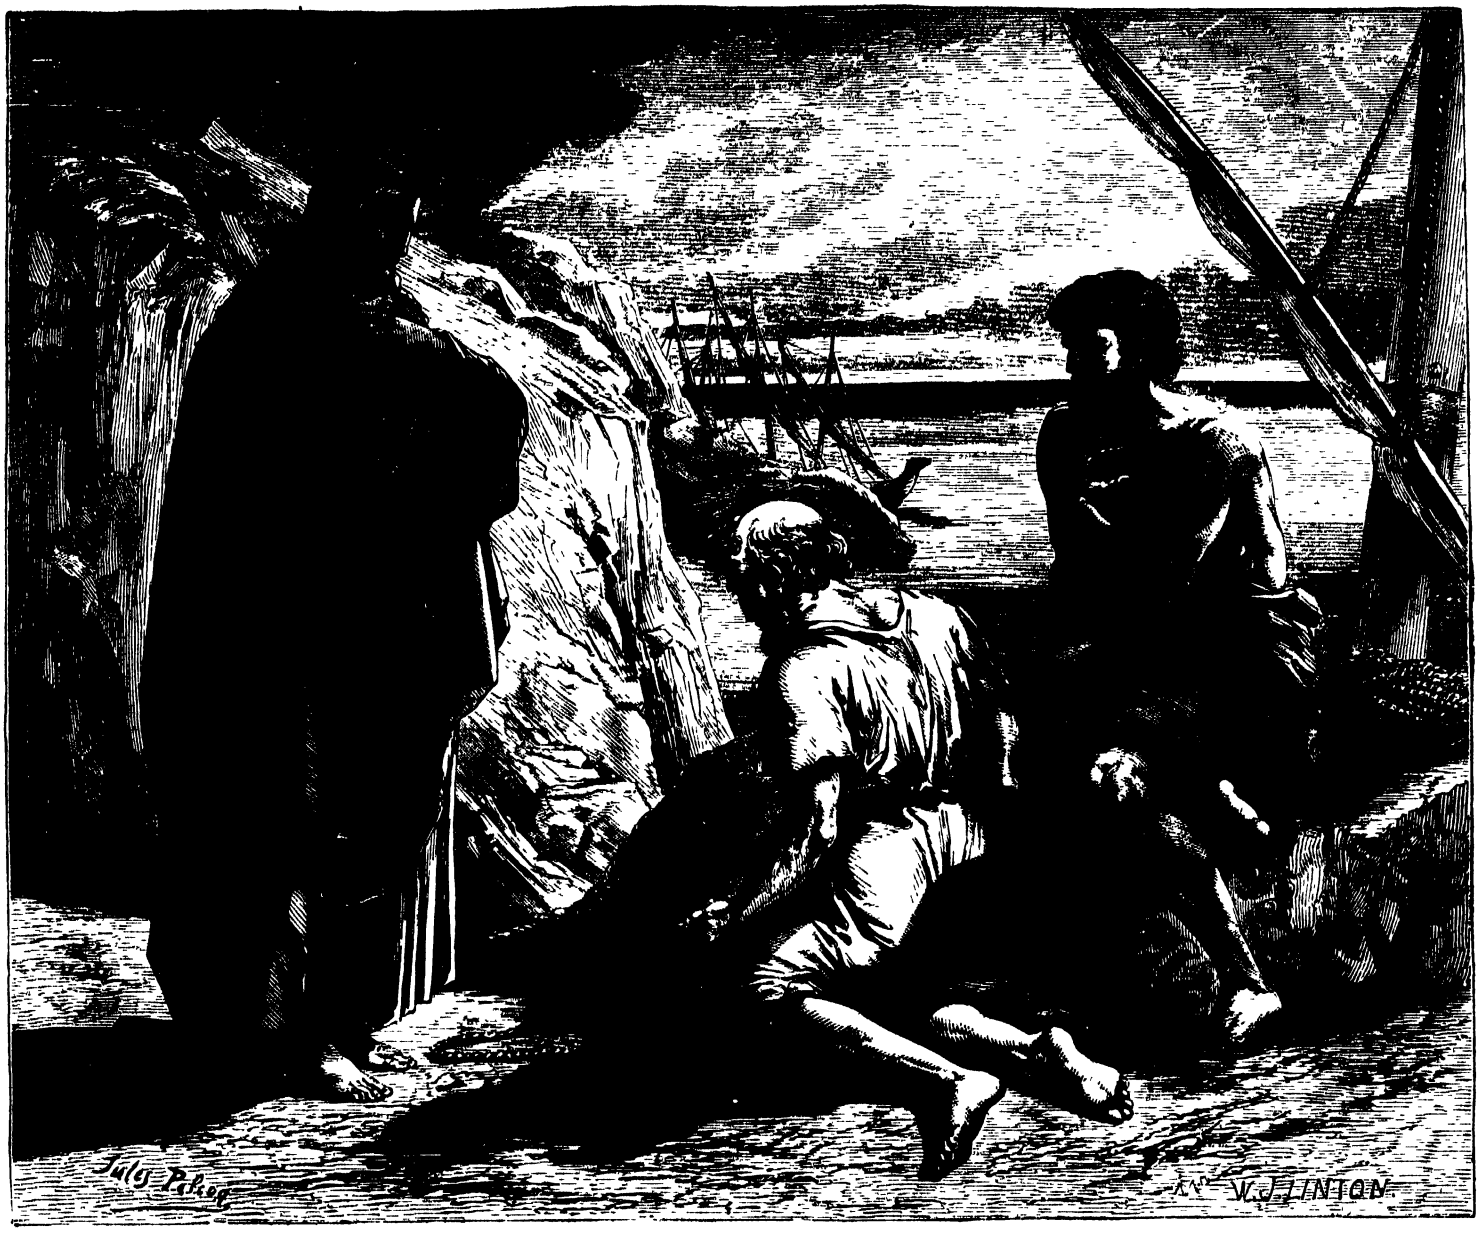
1. "In those days:"—see Luke iii 1, 2. The wilderness of Judea was bounded by the river Jordan and the Dead Sea, and is called by St. Luke the country about the Jordan.

4. "His raiment of camel's hair"—this was the rough garment of the prophets, woven out of camel's hair, not the skin of the animal. The locust, according to Lev. xi. 22, was used as food, and is still eaten in the East. The wild honey was abundant, and when used moderately was nutritious.



8. "Fruits meet for repentance"—by coming to him, and submitting to his baptism, they professed to be the subjects of repentance, and therefore he requires of them such a course of life and action as would bespeak the reality of their profession.

15. "Thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness:"—that is, every Divine ordinance. John was "a man sent from God;" but John did no miracle. How, then, were the people to be assured that he held his commission immediately from Heaven? Christ comes to be baptised of John, as of one who was fulfilling a Divine ordinance. He therefore attests the mission and the ministry of John, his forerunner; and while he is in the act of doing this, the Father attests the mission of his own Son as the Redeemer of the world.

CHAPTER IV.

SYNOPSIS:—Matt iv. 1—11; Mark i 12—13; Luke iv. 1—13. Matt. iv 12—17; Mark i. 14, 15; Luke iv. 14, 15 Matt. iv. 18—22; Mark i. 16—20 Matt. iv. 23—25; vii. 29.

We are here introduced into one of the deeply mysterious scenes of our Lord's life. As the Redeemer of men, he must first encounter and overcome the power by which man was vanquished. For this purpose he is led up, under Divine guidance, into a desert, far away from human sympathy and aid, that, single-handed and alone, he may enter into conflict with the concentration of all evil, in the person of the Evil One. Till this fight was fought, he was not qualified to enter on any future scene of his ministry. As sin had converted Paradise into a wilderness, Christ, by his victory, has converted the wilderness into a Paradise again.

17 ¶ From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.[c]

18 ¶ And Jesus, walking by the sea of Galilee, saw two brethren, Simon called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers.[d]

3. "The tempter came to him:"—we believe that the devil was personally present with the Incarnate One in the desert, and that each successive temptation was presented outwardly, Satan not having the power to enter a sinless mind.

11. "Then the devil leaveth him:"—but St. Luke tells us it was only for a season; and therefore we are led to infer that Christ was the subject of repeated and frequent temptation.

15. "Galilee of the Gentiles:"—Galilee was divided into Upper and Lower; the former, or Upper Galilee, lay on the north, and was inhabited partly by Syrians, Phœnicians, and Arabians, and hence called "Galilee of the Gentiles." The latter, or Lower Galilee, especially the valley along the Sea of Tiberias, was fertile and populous.

25. "And from Decapolis:"—some think that this was a canton of Judea, within the half-tribe of Manasseh, east of the Jordan; but others refer it to certain cities of Persia, united by some alliance, of which Scythopolis was the chief, and which, in the time of our Lord, were inhabited chiefly by Greeks.

9 Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God.

10 Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.[j]

11 Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you [1]falsely, for my sake.[k]

12 Rejoice, and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you.[l]

13 ¶ Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted? it is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men.[m]

14 Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid.[n]

15 Neither do men light a candle, and put it under [2]a bushel, but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house.[o]

16 Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.[p]

17 ¶ Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil.[q]

18 For verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled.[r]

19 Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven: but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven.[s]

20 For I say unto you, That except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven.[t]

21 ¶ Ye have heard that it was said [3]by them of old time, Thou shalt not kill; and whosoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment:[u]

22 But I say unto you, That whosoever is angry with his brother without a cause shall be in danger of the judgment: and whosoever shall say to his brother, [4]Raca, shall be in danger of the council: but whosoever shall say, Thou fool, shall be in danger of hell fire.[v]

23 Therefore if thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath ought against thee;[w]

24 Leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift.[x]

25 Agree with thine adversary quickly, whiles thou art in the way with him; lest at any time the adversary deliver thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and thou be cast into prison.[y]

26 Verily I say unto thee, Thou shalt by no means come out thence, till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing.

27 ¶ Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not commit adultery:[z]

CHAPTER V.

In the Sermon on the Mount, which fills up the next three chapters, we have an enumeration of the virtues which constitute the Christian character, and the blessings that shall be conferred, and we may consider Christ's Sermon on the Mount as the point of transition from the yoke of bondage to the freedom of the Gospel. It points to the relation that existed between a dispensation which had all but passed away, and the new era of universal love and mercy. It sets forth the kingdom of God as the grand final end of the Old Economy—the consummation for which that economy gradually, but most surely, prepared the way.

1. "Went up into a mountain:"—while some have sought this mountain in the Hill of Blessing, in the immediate neighbourhood of Capernaum, the Church of Rome refers it to the singular ascent known by the name of TELL-HATTAN, but this is deemed too far remote from the scene of the Saviour's previous labours, and now the weight of authority leans to MOUNT TABOR, which, at about two hours' distance east of Nazareth, and only a few points south of Capernaum, rises in towering majesty above every other in the country, and is, with regard to verdure, one of the finest and most beautiful hills on which the eye can rest. On the brow of this lofty height, and surrounded by the most glorious landscape, did the Saviour reiterate the law of Sinai, in all the depth of its spiritual import—the one universal law of moral being.

13—16. "Wherewith shall it be salted?"—what is to be salted? The earth. What is to salt it? The holy character of Christ's disciples, just as the light in them was to illumine and guide a dark, dark world.

18. "One jot or one tittle:"—the jot or iota refers to the Hebrew יוֹד, which is the smallest letter in that alphabet; and the tittle denotes the slightest change in the formation of a Hebrew letter. For example, the two letters ר and ד are very like each other. Now there is a word in which the a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart.[a]

29 And if thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell.[b]

30 And if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell.

31 It hath been said, Whosoever shall put away his wife, let him give her a writing of divorcement:[c]

32 But I say unto you, That whosoever shall put away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery: and whosoever shall marry her that is divorced committeth adultery.[d]

33 ¶ Again, ye have heard that it hath been said by them of old time, Thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths:[e]

34 But I say unto you, Swear not at all; neither by heaven; for it is God's throne:[f]

35 Nor by the earth; for it is his footstool: neither by Jerusalem; for it is the city of the great King.[g]

36 Neither shalt thou swear by thy head, because thou canst not make one hair white or black.

37 But let your communication be, Yea, yea; Nay, nay: for whatsoever is more than these cometh of evil.[h]

38 ¶ Ye have heard that it hath been said, An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth:[i]

39 But I say unto you, That ye resist not evil: but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also.[j]

40 And if any man will sue thee at the law, and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloke also.

41 And whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain.[k]

42 Give to him that asketh thee, and from him that would borrow of thee turn not thou away.[l]

43 ¶ Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy.[m]

44 But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you;[n]

45 That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven: for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust.[o]

46 For if ye love them which love you, what reward have ye? do not even the publicans the same?[p]

CHAPTER VI.

1 Christ continueth his sermon in the mount, speaking of alms, 5 prayer, 14 forgiving our brethren, 16 fasting, 19 where our treasure is to be laid up, 24 of serving God, and mammon 25 exhorteth not to be careful for worldly things · 33 but to seek God's kingdom.

TAKE heed that ye do not your [1]alms before men, to be seen of them: otherwise ye have no reward [2]of your Father which is in heaven.[r]

2 Therefore when thou doest thine alms, [3]do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, that they may have glory of men. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward.[s]

3 But when thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth:

4 That thine alms may be in secret: and thy Father which seeth in secret himself shall reward thee openly.[t]

5 ¶ And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are: for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward.

6 But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly.[u]

7 But when ye pray, use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do: for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking.[v]

8 Be not ye therefore like unto them: for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask him.

9 After this manner therefore pray ye: Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name.[w]

10 Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven.[x]

11 Give us this day our daily bread.[y]

12 And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.[z]

13 And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us first is used, which signifies to profane; but if we insert the second, the sense is then to praise; and taking the whole sentence in which this word occurs, the change in the reading is most marked:—if we retain the first letter, it is, "Ye shall not PROFANE my holy name;" but if we substitute the second, it is, "Ye shall not PRAISE my holy name." Every element of light and life which was common to the Old Economy was now to re-appear in himself as the Living and the True; nor should one jot or tittle of the old disappear till it had been consummated in Him and his work.

22. "Say to his brother, RACA:"—this word was used as a term of contempt; while the corresponding word "FOOL," if we may judge from its use in other parts of Scripture, was employed to express whatever is reprobate and wicked in the extreme.

"In danger of hell fire:"—to the south-east of Jerusalem was the valley of Hinnom, in which the idolatrous Jews of earlier days were wont to burn their children to Moloch, and into which the bodies of criminals, after execution, were thrown to be consumed. To his hearers the words of Jesus were full of deep and solemn meaning.

CHAPTER VI.

2. "Sound a trumpet."—the words are not to be taken literally, but as a proverbial expression, to denote any kind of ostentatious display.

5. "In the corners of the streets:"—there were certain fixed hours in the service of the Synagogue for the offering of prayer; but if the time overtook a man unexpectedly, then he was to pray wherever he happened to be at the moment; in the street or anywhere else. But these hypocrites from evil: For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen.[a]

14 For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you:[b]

15 But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses.[c]

16 ¶ Moreover when ye fast, be not, as the hypocrites, of a sad countenance: for they disfigure their faces, that they may appear unto men to fast. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward.[d]

17 But thou, when thou fastest, anoint thine head, and wash thy face;[e]

18 That thou appear not unto men to fast, but unto thy Father which is in secret: and thy Father, which seeth in secret, shall reward thee openly.

16. "Disfigure their faces:"—the reference is to the practice of covering the head with ashes, which disfigured the countenance, or of neglecting to wash during a season of fasting. But in this, as in other prescribed duties, everything depended not on the outward form, but on the inward reality.

22 The light of the body is the eye: if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light.[c]

28, 29. "Consider the lilies:"—some would take these lilies as inclusive of all wild flowers; but we prefer to restrict the term to the Crown Imperial, which grows wild in Palestine; or to the Amaryllis lutea, whose golden liliaceous flowers cover the autumnal fields of the Levant. And not more beautiful than just are the words of the amiable and pious Doddridge:—"Every microscope in which a flower is viewed, affords a lively comment on this text." 26 And every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand:

CHAPTER VII.

1. "Judge not:"—this does not forbid us to form an opinion; but in expressing that opinion, not to speak as if we could judge or pronounce on the motives which influence others. We can condemn any line of conduct only on evidence clear and convincing.

3. "The mote;" . . . "the beam:"—this may be a proverbial phrase to express the greater sin of the man who undertakes to censure, than of him who is censured, or it may be designed to set forth "the relative magnitude which our own faults and those of our brother ought to hold in our estimation;" but we are strongly of opinion, that its true application is to the incapacity of any one to form a correct judgment of another's conduct, while he himself is under the influence of evil. His diseased mental vision magnifies the mote in his brother's eye into a beam; while the beam in his own eye he regards as a mote. He is thus incapable of forming a true judgment.

5. "See clearly to cast out the mote:"—instead of dwelling on our brother's faults or errors till they become magnified into enormities, and of holding them up to the gaze and reprobation of others, our Lord here teaches us that the duty of reformation is to begin with self, and then we shall be enabled to help our brother to free himself from what is wrong in his life and character—performing on his behalf every kindly office which the genius of the Christian faith could prompt or dictate. In harmony with this is the teaching of the Apostle James (v 19, 20).

6. "Give not that which is holy unto the dogs"—the holy things here spoken of point to the sacrificial offerings, which it would be a profanation to give unto dogs; and to cast pearls before swine, would be to misappropriate that which was good and costly.

13, 14. "Enter ye in at the strait gate."—while the great majority of men deceive themselves as to the difficulties connected with an entrance into the kingdom of God, how few are even willing to undergo the necessary labour, or go through the self-denying struggles which are called for in order to gain the blessed end! Hence it is, that they lose everlasting life.

22. "Have we not prophesied in thy name?"—supernatural gifts were no evidence of a renewed and sanctified state of soul. While miracles were effects produced by the power of the Spirit acting through the human agent, the presence and activity of that power in any given individual were no evidence of inward, spiritual life. The contradiction between the personal character and the miraculous gifts was quite enough to determine who were the true and who were the false among those professed teachers and guides of the people.

24—27. "Heareth these sayings of mine:"—in these concluding verses, our Lord is careful to make prominent, as Neander remarks, "the great 27 And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell: and great was the fall of it.

28 And it came to pass, when Jesus had ended these sayings, the people were astonished at his doctrine:[a]

29 For he taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes.[b]

CHAPTER VIII.

2 Christ cleanseth the leper, 5 healeth the centurion's servant, 14 Peter's mother in law, 16 and many other diseased: 18 sheweth how he is to be followed: 23 stilleth the tempest on the sea, 28 driveth the devils out of two men possessed, 31 and suffereth them to go into the swine.

WHEN he was come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed him.

2 And, behold, there came a leper and worshipped him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.[c]

3 And Jesus put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will; be thou clean. And immediately his leprosy was cleansed.

4 And Jesus saith unto him, See thou tell no man; but go thy way, shew thyself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them.[d]

5 ¶ And when Jesus was entered into Capernaum, there came unto him a centurion, beseeching him,[e]

6 And saying, Lord, my servant lieth at home sick of the palsy, grievously tormented.

7 And Jesus saith unto him, I will come and heal him.

8 The centurion answered and said, Lord, I am not worthy that thou shouldest come under my roof: but speak the word only, and my servant shall be healed.[f]

9 For I am a man under authority, having soldiers under me: and I say to this man, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it.

10 When Jesus heard it, he marvelled, and said to them that followed, Verily I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel.

11 And I say unto you, That many shall come from the east and west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven.[g]

12 But the children of the kingdom shall be cast out into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.[h]

13 And Jesus said unto the centurion, Go thy way; and as thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee. And his servant was healed in the selfsame hour.

14 ¶ And when Jesus was come into Peter's house, he saw his wife's mother laid, and sick of a fever.[i]

15 And he touched her hand, and the fever left her: and she arose, and ministered unto them.

16 ¶ When the even was come, they brought unto him many that were possessed with devils: and he cast out the spirits with his word, and healed all that were sick:[j]

17 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the prophet, saying, Himself took our infirmities, and bare our sicknesses.[k]

18 ¶ Now when Jesus saw great multitudes about him, he gave commandment to depart unto the other side.

19 And a certain scribe came, and said unto him, Master, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest.[l]

20 And Jesus saith unto him, The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head.

21 And another of his disciples said unto him, Lord, suffer me first to go and bury my father.[m] truth announced in the beginning, and carried through the discourse, namely, that a right disposition of heart is essential in all things, according to their right application of his words, his hearers were to judge themselves, and find their destiny described." Synopsis.—Matt. viii. 1—4, Mark i. 40—45, Luke v. 12—16. Matt. viii. 5—13; Luke vii. 1—10. Matt. viii. 14—17, Mark i. 29—34, Luke iv. 31—44. Mark i. 35—39; Luke v. 1—11. Matt. viii. 18—27, Mark iv. 35—41; Luke viii. 22—25. Matt. viii. 28—34, Mark. v. 1—20, Luke viii. 26—39.

We have listened to Christ as the world's Great Teacher, as he has been expounding Divine truth for the guidance of mankind, and we are now to come down with him from the mount, and to be witnesses of those miracles which stand out with such sublimity and grandeur in the sacred history. These miracles are spoken of as simply his "works;" as if in him the supernatural was nothing more than the natural heightened and intensified; as if the miraculous were only another mode or revelation of his ordinary procedure.

And here it is of the first moment that we get the true idea of a miracle. We utterly reject the notion of its being "a violation of the laws of Nature;" or of its being a reversing or suspending of those laws, so as to disturb or derange the established order of things. We resolve a miracle into nothing less than an immediate act of God's power; in other words, the production of an unexpected result or effect, as the necessary sequence to the presence of a new cause. Now, if we resolve a miracle into the immediate act of God, then we believe with Olshausen, that to the creature every act of God is a miracle; till considered in relation to him as the First Cause, it appears as pure law and order.

1. "Great multitudes followed him:"—that is, into Capernaum, as the next scene of his labours. Some of these had doubtless been with him on the mount, and on their way to the city were joined by many others.

2. "There came a leper:"—in our notes on Leviticus xiv. 1—37, we have entered at length into the subject of leprosy, as well as into the Divine law relating to the treatment of the unhappy persons afflicted by this loathsome disease. In the present instance, the leper had heard of Christ's character and works of mercy; and full of simple, genuine faith, he put himself in contact with the Saviour, fell at his feet, and implicitly committed himself to his gracious aid. His form of address bespeaks the depth and the force of his faith—"if thou wilt," he did not question his power, for he felt assured that there was no limit to the active and saving energy of the Great Worker; but he, at the same time, knew that any exertion of his power rested on his own sovereign will. The man was therefore just in the attitude to appreciate the Saviour's interposition, and at once the healing virtue passed over from Christ to the leper, and immediately his cure was effected. To him that believeth, all things are possible

4. "Offer the gift that Moses commanded:"—this command, with all which it includes, will be found in Leviticus xiv. 2—12. That which strikes us in this injunction of our Lord is the fact, that up to the day of his death he never interfered with the Mosaic institutions—never attempted to disturb them, or set them aside. On the contrary, he ever enjoined a faithful fulfilment of all the obligations involved in the ancient law, till their very observance should beget in them the conscious need of the true righteousness, which was to be found only in him and through his mediation.

"For a testimony unto them:"—if the man had been cleansed—entirely healed of his leprosy, without the intervention or service of the priesthood, then to admit the fact of the cure was to admit the corresponding fact of Christ's supernatural power. What a condemnation this of their own unbelief, and of their rejection of him as the Messiah and Sent of God!

5. "There came unto him a centurion:"—the leper met Jesus on his way to Capernaum, but having entered the city, he finds another suppliant at his feet in the person of a Roman military officer, whose servant was sick of the palsy. This centurion, whose rank gave him the command of one hundred men, was probably one of the Roman garrison of Capernaum, a Gentile, and therefore brought up in the element of Pagan life; but living among the Jews, had become a proselyte to the Jewish faith.

Matthew says that the centurion himself came to Jesus, whereas Luke (vii. 3) says, that "he sent unto him the elders of the Jews," to prefer his 22 But Jesus said unto him, Follow me; and let the dead bury their dead.

23 ¶ And when he was entered into a ship, his disciples followed him.

24 And, behold, there arose a great tempest in the sea, insomuch that the ship was covered with the waves: but he was asleep.[a]

25 And his disciples came to him, and awoke him, saying, Lord, save us: we perish.

26 And he saith unto them, Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith? Then he arose, and rebuked the winds and the sea; and there was a great calm.[b]

27 But the men marvelled, saying, What manner of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him!

28 ¶ And when he was come to the other side into the country of the Gergesenes, there met him two possessed with devils, coming out of the tombs, exceeding fierce, so that no man might pass by that way.[c]

29 And, behold, they cried out, saying, What have we to do with thee, Jesus, thou Son of God? art thou come hither to torment us before the time?

30 And there was a good way off from them an herd of many swine feeding.

31 So the devils besought him, saying, If thou cast us out, suffer us to go away into the herd of swine.

32 And he said unto them, Go. And when they were come out, they went into the herd of swine: and, behold, the whole herd of swine ran violently down a steep place into the sea, and perished in the waters.

33 And they that kept them fled, and went their ways into the city, and told every thing, and what was befallen to the possessed of the devils.

34 And, behold, the whole city came out to meet Jesus: and when they saw him, they besought him that he would depart out of their coasts.[d]

CHAPTER IX.

2 Christ curing one sick of the palsy, 9 calleth Matthew from the receipt of custom, 10 eateth with publicans and sinners, 14 defendeth his disciples for not fasting, 20 cureth the bloody issue, 23 raiseth from death Jairus' daughter, 27 giveth sight to two blind men, 32 healeth a dumb man possessed of a devil, 36 and hath compassion of the multitude.

AND he entered into a ship, and passed over, and came into his own city.[e]

2 And, behold, they brought to him a man sick of the palsy, lying on a bed: and Jesus seeing their faith said unto the sick of the palsy; Son, be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee.[f]

3 And, behold, certain of the scribes said within themselves, This man blasphemeth.

4 And Jesus knowing their thoughts said, Wherefore think ye evil in your hearts?[g]

5 For whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and walk?

6 But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (then saith he to the sick of the palsy,) Arise, take up thy bed, and go unto thine house.

7 And he arose, and departed to his house.

8 But when the multitudes saw it, they marvelled, and glorified God, which had given such power unto men.

9 ¶ And as Jesus passed forth from thence, he saw a man, named Matthew, sitting at the receipt of custom: and he saith unto him, Follow me. And he arose, and followed him.[h] request. It is true that a man is said to do that which is done by others in his name and at his request, but the two accounts admit of an easier reconciliation. In the first instance, he may have preferred his request through these elders, and afterwards have appeared before the Saviour in his own person. This is confirmed by the language of the ninth verse, in which he speaks in the first person—"I am a man under authority."

9. "Under authority:"—he had men above him as well as men under him, and therefore he knew what it was to obey orders, as well as to have his orders obeyed. And he reasoned thus:—if through military ranks the word of command runs from the highest to the lowest with all but the speed of lightning, and with all the force of law, what must be the force and efficacy of his word, to whose one will everything is subordinate?

12. "The children of the kingdom:"—the Jews with whom God had established his covenant, in whose midst he had set up his kingdom, and to whom first he sent his own Son to turn their hearts to the obedience of faith. A Gentile proselyte is saved, but the people despising their privileges are cast out.

15. "She arose, and ministered unto them:"—in ordinary cases, even when fever is wholly subdued, the patient is left the subject of great exhaustion; but so perfect was the recovery effected by the Saviour on Peter's wife's mother, that her strength was equal to immediate and active service.

16. "Many that were possessed with devils,"—than the doctrine of demoniacal possession, there is none more difficult within the wide compass of Revelation. Of the existence of evil spirits there can be no doubt, nor of their influence over man. Now there are certain states of body and mind which render man more susceptible of their influence, and of which they take advantage in bringing him under their power. Thus it is said of Judas on the night of Christ's betrayal, that "the devil entered into him." Satan had entered into him long before that, but the man's conduct had been such as to give the great enemy complete power over him, so that he hurried him from one act to another, till he rushed on, and laying his hand on the awful prerogative of God, put an end to his life. We do not say that all who were possessed were extremely wicked or abandoned. This possession was often found in connection with disease of body, as well as corruption of heart. Still, it is not to be resolved into disease. It was a living and conscious power that had possession of the man, and from the character of the times in which our Lord appeared, this possession was more than usually common. If, therefore, he came to conquer all evil, it was no less a display of his mercy than of his power, thus to deliver man from the grasp of such a foe.

31. "If thou cast us out, suffer us to go away into the herd of swine:"—here the personality of these evil spirits is placed beyond all controversy. But how can we reconcile it with the benevolent character of Christ, that he should allow these spirits to enter the herd of swine, and thus effect their destruction? Two things are here worthy of remark:—first, these spirits acknowledge their subjection to Christ; nor can they act without his immediate permission. This is an important fact lying on the very face of the narrative; and secondly, swine being ceremonially unclean, and forbidden by the Mosaic law, the Saviour employed these spirits as instruments to punish the transgressors of the law by the loss of their property, and to prove to them, and to the nation at large, that the times of reformation had come, that obedience was the condition of the Divine favour, that self-denial lies at the root of all religion, and that everything is to be sacrificed rather than the soul and her eternal interests. Does not this bespeak benevolence of the highest order—love infinite in its depth, compass, and end?

The Saviour is still before us in the field of a sublime activity, multiplying his deeds of grandeur, and glorifying his power. Having returned to the western shore of the lake after his cure of the demoniac, Jesus went straightway to Capernaum—"his own city"—where he found himself surrounded by those who excited his sympathy and compassion, who appealed to his power and love, and on whose behalf he showed himself strong to save.

1. "Passed over:"—that is, to the western side of the Lake of Tiberias, on which the city of Capernaum stood.

2. "A man sick of the palsy:"—afflicted with the same malady as the cen-

CHRIST SENDING FORTH THE APOSTLES.—MATTHEW X.

10 ¶ And it came to pass, as Jesus sat at meat in the house, behold, many publicans and sinners came and sat down with him and his disciples.[a]

11 And when the Pharisees saw it, they said unto his disciples, Why eateth your Master with publicans and sinners?[b]

12 But when Jesus heard that, he said unto them, They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick.

13 But go ye and learn what that meaneth, I will have mercy, and not sacrifice: for I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.[c]

14 ¶ Then came to him the disciples of John, saying, Why do we and the Pharisees fast oft, but thy disciples fast not?[d]

15 And Jesus said unto them, Can the children of the bridechamber mourn, as long as the bridegroom is with them? but the days will come, when the bridegroom shall be taken from them, and then shall they fast.[e]

16 No man putteth a piece of [1]new cloth unto an old garment, for that which is put in to fill it up taketh from the garment, and the rent is made worse.

17 Neither do men put new wine into old bottles: else the bottles break, and the wine runneth out, and the bottles perish: but they put new wine into new bottles, and both are preserved.

18 ¶ While he spake these things unto them, behold, there came a certain ruler, and worshipped him, saying, My daughter is even now dead: but come and lay thy hand upon her, and she shall live.[f]

19 And Jesus arose, and followed him, and so did his disciples.

20 ¶ And, behold, a woman, which was diseased with an issue of blood twelve years, came behind him, and touched the hem of his garment:[g]

21 For she said within herself, If I may but touch his garment, I shall be whole.

22 But Jesus turned him about, and when he saw her, he said, Daughter, be of good comfort; thy faith hath made thee whole. And the woman was made whole from that hour.[h]

25 But when the people were put forth, he went in, and took her by the hand, and the maid arose.

26 And [2]the fame hereof went abroad into all that land.

27 ¶ And when Jesus departed thence, two blind men followed him, crying, and saying, Thou son of David, have mercy on us.[k]

28 And when he was come into the house, the blind men came to him: and Jesus saith unto them, Believe ye that I am able to do this? They said unto him, Yea, Lord.

29 Then touched he their eyes, saying, According to your faith be it unto you.

turion's servant. But what was this disease? Not what we understand by palsy or paralysis. It may have been what, in medical nomenclature, is called TETANUS, or one of the various forms of EPILEPSY. The miracle lay not in the cure—for neither of these diseases is deemed incurable—but in the mode by which the cure was effected. He spake, and it was done.

3—8. "This man blasphemeth:"—Christ, overlooking for the moment the physical malady in the interesting condition of the man's mind, declares unto him, on the ground of his penitence and faith, the absolution and remission of his sins. This roused the opposition of the Jewish authorities, who immediately charged him with blasphemy; on which he appeals to their own reason:—"Whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and walk?" The power which forgives sin is the only power which, by its own unaided word, can work a miracle; and to prove to you that I have this power, I say to the sick of the palsy, "Arise, take up thy bed, and go unto thine house."

9. "He saw a man, named Matthew."—the Evangelist does not here introduce his own call to the Apostleship out of any feeling of pride and ostentation, but simply to connect his house with the subsequent scene, for "the house," mentioned in the next verse, was his own house, where he received and entertained the Saviour.

"Sitting at the receipt of custom:"—as this was by the Lake of Tiberias, it is not unlikely that Matthew was employed in receiving certain dues connected with the traffic on the water

15. "Then shall they fast:"—Christ, as the Bridegroom, had come to exalt our humanity, and therefore it was not the time for his disciples and friends to fast and mourn; but when he should be taken from them—leave the world, and go to the Father—then would they both fast and weep:—see John xvi. 20.

16 "New cloth unto an old garment:"—the dress of Oriental nations is not made of our woollen cloths, and fabrics of stronger texture, but principally of cotton or calico; and to put a new piece into an old and worn-out garment, would subject the old to such a strain as would increase or multiply the rent.

17. "New wine into old bottles:"—these bottles were made of skins; and the new wine in its fermentation would burst the old skins.

The design of Christ in these two significant illustrations is, to teach John's disciples the contrast between the narrow and restricted life of Judaism, and the free, generous, unconfined life of Christianity; as also to impress upon them the fact, that the time had now come for the passing away for ever of the Old Economy, and for the setting up of that one grand spiritual kingdom of God, which "is not meat and drink, but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost."

23. "Saw the minstrels:"—when death entered a family, minstrels, who played upon pipes, and wailing women were employed or hired to weep and mourn for the dead. Their number was in proportion to the wealth and influence of the family. For some further remarks on this renewed instance of miraculous power, see Mark v. 36 and Luke viii. 49, with the Notes.

27—38. The account of the healing of two blind men, of the cure effected on the dumb man possessed with a devil, and of our Lord's compassion for the multitude who were without competent spiritual teachers and guides, is peculiar to our Evangelist. It is not found in the other Three Gospels.

CHAPTER X.

1 Christ sendeth out his twelve apostles, enabling them with power to do miracles, 5 giveth them their charge, teacheth them, 16 comforteth them against persecutions; 40 and promiseth a blessing to those that receive them.

AND when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power [1]against unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease.[a]

2 Now the names of the twelve apostles are these; The first, Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother; James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother;[b]

3 Philip, and Bartholomew; Thomas, and Matthew the publican; James the son of Alphæus, and Lebbæus, whose surname was Thaddæus;

4 Simon the Canaanite, and Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed him.[c]

5 These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not:[d]

6 But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.[e]

7 And as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand.[f]

8 Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils: freely ye have received, freely give.[g]

9 [2]Provide neither gold, nor silver, nor brass in your purses,[h]

10 Nor scrip for your journey, neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet [3]staves: for the workman is worthy of his meat.[i]

11 And into whatsoever city or town ye shall enter, enquire who in it is worthy; and there abide till ye go thence.[j]

12 And when ye come into an house, salute it.

13 And if the house be worthy, let your peace come upon it: but if it be not worthy, let your peace return to you.[k]

14 And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear your words, when ye depart out of that house or city, shake off the dust of your feet.[l]

15 Verily I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, than for that city.[m]

16 ¶ Behold, I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves: be ye therefore wise as serpents, and [4]harmless as doves.[n]

17 But beware of men: for they will deliver you up to the councils, and they will scourge you in their synagogues;[o]

18 And ye shall be brought before governors and kings for my sake, for a testimony against them and the Gentiles.[p]

19 But when they deliver you up, take no thought how or what ye shall speak: for it shall be given you in that same hour what ye shall speak.[q]

20 For it is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which speaketh in you.[r]

21 And the brother shall deliver up the brother to death, and the father the child: and the children shall rise up against their parents, and cause them to be put to death.[s]

22 And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake: but he that endureth to the end shall be saved.[t]

23 But when they persecute you in this city, flee ye into another: for verily I say unto you, Ye shall not [5]have gone over the cities of Israel, till the Son of man be come.[u]

24 The disciple is not above his master, nor the servant above his lord.[v]

25 It is enough for the disciple that he be as his master, and the servant as his lord. If they have called the master of the house [6]Beelzebub, how much more shall they call them of his houshold?[w]

26 Fear them not therefore: for there is nothing covered, that shall not be revealed; and hid, that shall not be known.[x]

27 What I tell you in darkness, that speak ye in light: and what ye hear in the ear, that preach ye upon the housetops.

28 And fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell.[y]

29 Are not two sparrows sold for a [7]farthing? and one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father.

30 But the very hairs of your head are all numbered.[z]

CHAPTER X.

SYNOPSIS.—Matt. x. 1—42; Mark vi. 7—13; Luke ix. 1—6

The last two verses of the preceding chapter lead us to the conclusion, that the sphere of Christ's public labours had now become much too large for himself alone to completely fill, and therefore he selected a certain number of his more intimate friends and more advanced followers, to be the teachers of his doctrine, and the founders of his kingdom. When this election to office took place, none of the Evangelists inform us; and here we have not the choosing, but the sending forth of the Twelve on their sublime and saving mission.

1. "He gave them power:"—such a supernatural impartation of the Spirit as should act through them to the accomplishment of the most stupendous, impressive, and incontrovertible deeds; and to which they might everywhere and always refer as their credentials of office.

2—4. "The names of the twelve apostles:"—the order in which these names occur in the narrative of the different Evangelists and in the Acts of the Apostles greatly differs, but that we are to infer from this that there existed any priority or pre-eminence among them, we do not believe. If Peter had stood last in the list instead of first, and if Judas Iscariot had stood first instead of last, this would not have altered the relation of either to the whole body, nor affected their influence.

5. "Any city of the Samaritans:"—these Samaritans "were the Gentile inhabitants of the country between Judea and Galilee, consisting of heathens whom Shalmaneser, King of Assyria, brought from Babylon and other places." From 2 Kings xvii. 24—41, we learn that they strangely mixed the worship of Jehovah with their gross and debasing idolatries.

7. "The kingdom of heaven:"—a comprehensive term for the Reign of Grace on earth, in connection with which heavenly principles are at work in our fallen, sinful humanity, producing in the disciples of Christ a meetness for the world of perfect life and unchangeable happiness. The means of grace lead to the hope of glory.

9, 10. The prohibition in these two verses extends to the three essentials of earthly life—MONEY, FOOD, CLOTHING. The disciples were to set out on their present mission in the spirit of simple and entire dependence on Him who sent them, without making any previous provision whatever.

The "scrip" was the wallet in which travellers carried their food and clothing; as they were forbidden to take either of these with them, they needed not the RABDON, or stick, on which the wallet was borne from the shoulder. They were at liberty to take their staff or walking-stick, but nothing more.

17. "Deliver you up to the councils:"—these councils were smaller courts, appointed in every city, to take cognizance of causes both civil and criminal:—ut. xvi. 18.

"Take no thought:"—they were not to distract and distress themselves

31 Fear ye not therefore, ye are of more value than many sparrows.

32 Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven.[a]

33 But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven.[b]

34 Think not that I am come to send peace on earth: I came not to send peace, but a sword.[c]

35 For I am come to set a man at variance against his father, and the daughter against her mother, and the daughter in law against her mother in law.[d]

36 And a man's foes shall be they of his own houshold.[e]

37 He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me: and he that loveth son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me.[f]

38 And he that taketh not his cross, and followeth after me, is not worthy of me.[g]

39 He that findeth his life shall lose it: and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it.[h]

40 ¶ He that receiveth you receiveth me, and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me.[i]

41 He that receiveth a prophet in the name of a prophet shall receive a prophet's reward; and he that receiveth a righteous man in the name of a righteous man shall receive a righteous man's reward.[j]

42 And whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, he shall in no wise lose his reward.[k]

CHAPTER XI.

2 John sendeth his disciples to Christ. 7 Christ's testimony concerning John. 18 The opinion of the people, both concerning John and Christ. 20 Christ upbraideth the unthankfulness and unrepentance of Chorazin, Bethsaida, and Capernaum: 25 and praising his Father's wisdom in revealing the gospel to the simple, 28 he calleth to him all such as feel the burden of their sins.

AND it came to pass, when Jesus had made an end of commanding his twelve disciples, he departed thence to teach and to preach in their cities.

2 Now when John had heard in the prison the works of Christ, he sent two of his disciples,[l]

3 And said unto him, Art thou he that should come, or do we look for another?[m]

4 Jesus answered and said unto them, Go and shew John again those things which ye do hear and see:

5 The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached to them.[n]

6 And blessed is he, whosoever shall not be offended in me.[o]

7 ¶ And as they departed, Jesus began to say unto the multitudes concerning John, What went ye out into the wilderness to see? A reed shaken with the wind?[p] as to their defence. He who is the only Fountain of wisdom and truth would stand by them, and teach them both what and how they should speak.

23. "Till the Son of man be come."—the reference is not to the end of the dispensation, but to the destruction of Jerusalem. According to Alford, "these two subjects accompany and interpenetrate one another in a manner wholly inexplicable to those who are unaccustomed to the wide import of Scripture prophecy, which speaks very generally not so much of events themselves—points of time—as of a series of events, all ranging under one great description;" and therefore he thinks that in all such expressions we must look onwards to the great final coming of the Lord, as the end of all prophecy.

CHAPTER XI.

SYNOPSIS.—Matt. xi. 1—30; Luke vii. 18—35; x. 13—18, 21, 22.

Whether the preceding charge to the Twelve was delivered in the house of Matthew or in the open air—whether in some retired spot, or while prosecuting a journey, we have no means of knowing. But the Saviour having given his Apostles their sublime commission, and having, in his instructions to them, laid down principles which, in their spirit, admit of universal application to both ministers and missionaries in all future time, he sets out afresh on his own appointed work of teaching, and, in connection with that teaching, of revealing his wondrous and saving power. Olshausen says that "the narrative of the mission of the two disciples of St. John is made use of by St. Matthew, only as a means of connecting therewith those discourses of Jesus in which are portrayed the different positions of the people with regard to the person of Jesus. The proud understood Jesus as little as they did John; the humble recognised that which is DIVINE, under the most sacred forms, because they themselves, in fact, were seeking after this only."

JOHN IN PRISON.—MATTHEW XIV. 10.

2. "In the prison:"—the reasons for John's imprisonment are given in chap. xiv. 3—5; and there, in the fortress of Machairus, he had been languishing for several months. He was not, however, forbidden all intercourse with his followers, and from them he was ever hearing of the wonderful power of Christ in the deeds which he performed. Hence his message to him, and the inquir which it involved.

"THE SON OF MAN IS LORD EVEN OF THE SABBATH DAY."—MATTHEW XII. 8.

8 But what went ye out for to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? behold, they that wear soft clothing are in kings' houses.

9 But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? yea, I say unto you, and more than a prophet.[a]

10 For this is he, of whom it is written, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee.[b]

11 Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist: notwithstanding he that is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he.

12 And from the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven [1]suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force.[c]

13 For all the prophets and the law prophesied until John.[d]

14 And if ye will receive it, this is Elias, which was for to come.[e]

15 He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.[f]

16 ¶ But whereunto shall I liken this generation? It is like unto children sitting in the markets, and calling unto their fellows,[g]

17 And saying, We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced; we have mourned unto you, and ye have not lamented.

18 For John came neither eating nor drinking, and they say, He hath a devil.

19 The Son of man came eating and drinking, and they say, Behold a man gluttonous, and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners. But wisdom is justified of her children.[h]

20 ¶ Then began he to upbraid the cities wherein most of his mighty works were done, because they repented not:[i]

21 Woe unto thee, Chorazin! woe unto thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works, which were done in you, had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes.[j]

22 But I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the day of judgment, than for you.[k]

23 And thou, Capernaum, which art exalted unto heaven, shalt be brought down to hell: for if the mighty works, which have been done in thee, had been done in Sodom, it would have remained until this day.[l]

24 But I say unto you, That it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom in the day of judgment, than for thee.[m]

25 ¶ At that time Jesus answered and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes.[n]

26 Even so, Father: for so it seemed good in thy sight.

27 All things are delivered unto me of my Father: and no man knoweth the Son, but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him.[o]

28 ¶ Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.

29 Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls.[p]

30 For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.

3. "Art thou he that should come?"—this was a title given to the Messiah. This message was probably designed to remove the doubts of his disciples—to confirm their faith in Christ's Messiahship, and to withdraw their thoughts from John and his ministration, in order that they might be fixed upon Christ as the Divine Teacher and the promised Deliverer. It is possible, also, that, while thus promoting the spiritual welfare of his disciples, John might desire to be assured that Jesus, to whom he sent these messengers, was that Holy and Divine person whom he had baptized, upon whom he had seen the Spirit descend, on behalf of whom he had received the heavenly testimony, declaring him to be the Son of God, and whom he had announced as the antitype shadowed forth by the Paschal Lamb, and, as such, the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world. To this prudent and pious inquiry the Saviour responded by a reply addressed to the eye as well as to the ear; that the messengers might perceive, in the fulfilment of prophecies relating to the promised Messiah, and familiar to every Jew, that he who performed those acts of mercy and deeds of power was indeed the Christ, the Son of God.

7. "A reed shaken with the wind:"—the reed abounded on the banks of the Jordan, and was the sport of every breeze. The point of the Saviour's question is this:—Did you expect to find in John—a man who has thus proved himself true to his convictions—one who is fickle, changeful, and the sport of outward influences? John is not that man

11. "Is greater than he:"—in the words of Neander, "this superiority does not refer to moral worth, in which, certainly, Christ could not intend to place 'the least' in the Christian Church above this man of God; but refers to advantages for comprehending the nature and power of the Gospel, here termed the kingdom of God. In this sense the greatest or most enlightened under the Old Testament dispensation is not equal to the feeblest disciple of Christ enjoying the light and knowledge of the Gospel.

12. "Suffereth violence:"—it is, from its very spirituality, violently opposed by a carnal selfish world; and yet by the violent only—by those who violently, earnestly, perseveringly struggle against such carnality and worldliness in Divine strength—can the kingdom be taken, or be entered.

14. "This is Elias:"—for the true interpretation of this phrase, see the Notes on Mal. iv. 5, 6.

16—19. "Whereunto shall I liken this generation? . . . Wisdom is justified of her children:"—the Saviour here charges the Jews with all the fickleness of children in their little games and pastimes, whom nothing can long please or satisfy. Now their music is full of mirth and joy, and then it is sad and sorrowful; but both are alike unwelcome to their companions, who will neither dance nor be sad. So it was with them in relation to John and his illustrious Master. The Baptist came as the ascetic of the desert, preaching repentance, with fasting, self-denial, and severe mortification, and they treat him as a madman—as one possessed or beside himself. The Son of man, whose whole ministry formed a perfect contrast to that of his forerunner, freely mingled in the scenes and society of men, and shared their human joys, and they look upon him as a glutton and a wine-bibber—given up to luxury and self-indulgence. How false the estimate thus formed of both! "Wisdom is justified of her children:"—she had her children, and they could recognise the operations of an Infinite Wisdom in the ministry of both; for while the multitude, to use the words of Neander, "sunk in worldly-mindedness and self-conceit, and deaf to the voice of Divine Wisdom, took offence, for opposite reasons, at both these messengers of God, the humble and susceptible disciples of the Wisdom of God, on the other hand, could understand the different stand-points of John and Jesus, and appreciate the reasons for their different modes of life and action."

21. "Woe unto thee, Chorazin! woe unto thee, Bethsaida!"—the first of these places, which is mentioned only here, was a small town in Galilee, on the shores of the Lake of Tiberias, or Genesareth, not far from the city of Capernaum. Its precise locality is now unknown. Bethsaida, which literally means "the house of fishing," was also a town of Galilee, situated on the west of Jordan, near the Sea of Tiberias, and distinguished as the birth-place of Andrew, Peter, and Philip.

25. "Hid these things from the wise and prudent:"—from those who affected to be enlightened and informed, and who placed their human intelligence above the revelation and the knowledge of God; but revealed to babes—the child-like in disposition, and therefore susceptible of impression.

27. "No man knoweth the Son:"—the essential nature of Christ, as the only-begotten Son of God, is just as profound a mystery as the essence or being of the Father; while the relation between the two is a depth which we can never fathom. Nor is it possible, but by inward spiritual illumination, that we can perceive or apprehend the relation of both Father and Son to the soul recovered from sin and death.

28—30. These cheering and inexhaustible words, which have been preserved by Matthew alone, teach us that the obedience which flows from an inward Divine life, and which is rendered in the spirit of love, is easy when contrasted with the bondage of sin, and leads to corresponding rest and joy.

It is a fact which stands distinctly out on every page of the Christian Revelation, that "Christianity has its yoke, and demands obedience to the supremacy of the word of Christ, and the discipline of his Spirit; but by strength divinely imparted the yoke becomes easy, and the burden becomes light. The Law and the Gospel alike demand obedience; but the Gospel, with the demand, bestows the power to obey.

CHAPTER XII.

1 Christ reproveth the blindness of the Pharisees concerning the breach of the sabbath, 3 by scriptures, 9 by reason, 13 and by a miracle. 22 He healeth the man possessed that was blind and dumb. 31 Blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall never be forgiven. 36 Account shall be made of idle words. 38 He rebuketh the unfaithful, who seek after a sign: 49 and sheweth who is his brother, sister, and mother.

AT that time Jesus went on the sabbath day through the corn; and his disciples were an hungred, and began to pluck the ears of corn, and to eat.[a]

2 But when the Pharisees saw it, they said unto him, Behold, thy disciples do that which is not lawful to do upon the sabbath day.

3 But he said unto them, Have ye not read what David did, when he was an hungred, and they that were with him;[b]

4 How he entered into the house of God, and did eat the shewbread, which was not lawful for him to eat, neither for them which were with him, but only for the priests?[c]

5 Or have ye not read in the law, how that on the sabbath days the priests in the temple profane the sabbath, and are blameless?[d]

6 But I say unto you, That in this place is one greater than the temple.[e]

7 But if ye had known what this meaneth, I will have mercy, and not sacrifice, ye would not have condemned the guiltless.[f]

CHAPTER XII.

SYNOPSIS.—Matt xii. 1—8; Mark ii 23—28; Luke vi. 1—5 Matt. xii. 9—21; Mark iii 1—6; Luke vi 6—11. Matt xii. 22—45; Mark iii 20—30; Luke xi. 14—26, 29—36. Matt. xii. 46—50; Mark iii. 31—35; Luke viii. 19—21.

It is a striking fact in the history of our Lord, that though possessed of unlimited power, he never performed a miracle to satisfy his own will or want, when the momentary need could be supplied by natural and accessible means; still he was always willing and ready to interpose that power on behalf of others when nothing else could secure the desired effect. Strange to say, however, the most benevolent manifestation of this power called forth the most determined opposition; so much so, that many of the Jews assigned these benevolent deeds to Satanic agency, and thus shut their hearts against the very influence which Christ was employing for the subjugation and regeneration of man. This leads the Saviour to speak of the sin against the Holy Ghost, and to point out who they were that could claim any true spiritual relationship to him as the Son of God and the Saviour of the world.

1. "On the Sabbath day:"—according to Luke, this was "on the second Sabbath after the first;" the first Sabbath after the second day from the Passover, when, according to the Mosaic institution, the first sheaf of corn was offered to the Lord in the Temple. From this day seven Sabbaths were reckoned to the day of Pentecost.

"Began to pluck the ears of corn:"—and having plucked them, they rubbed them in their hands to set free the grain, which, Robinson tells us, is still a customary process in Eastern countries.

2. "The Pharisees:"—of all the sects into which the Jews were divided, the Pharisees, or Separatists, as the word signifies, who piqued themselves on their superior sanctity and intelligence, were by far the most numerous. Of their origin, little, if anything, is known. Their system of doctrine and practice was the growth of ages, and led to the most contemptible selfishness. There is equal point and truth in Lightfoot's remark—"The best of Pharisees are the worst of men;" for their professed piety was based on that most consummate of all hypocrisies which makes religion a veil for the indulgence of every passion and the commission of every wrong. Such was their character as a sect; though there were a few noble exceptions.

"Not lawful to do upon the Sabbath day:"—though always on the alert, it is worthy of remark that these supercilious selfish Pharisees did not presume to condemn the deed of Christ's disciples; for their own published law—Deut. xxiii. 25—allowed the plucking of the ears of corn in any field through which there lay an open path. The charge preferred against these disciples was that of Sabbath-breaking—a charge at once refuted by our Lord, who refers, in verses 3—6, to the fact of David satisfying his hunger with the fact of the priests profaning the Sabbath by the servile work which they had officially to do on that hallowed day, but which was allowed, and even sanctified, by being done in the Temple; and then to the fact that there was One present on the occasion greater than the Temple. He did not—he would not—condemn the act of these his disciples, for they were engaged in the service of One that was greater than the Temple. He, as the Lord of the Sabbath, knew what was its law, its spirit, its design. Man is not the slave of the Sabbath; but the Sabbath is the minister of man; and if that day be appropriated to works of mercy and of need—to God's honour and man's spiritual welfare—its design is fulfilled.

9. "He went into their synagogue:"—the synagogue was a place of public assembly, and where divine worship was performed. It is said that the synagogue had no existence before the time of the Captivity, but that subsequent to that event, meetings of the people for public instruction became frequent; that these meetings were first held in private houses, or in the open air; that appropriate buildings were afterwards erected, and were built wherever there were worshippers in numbers sufficient to associate and assemble; that there were some hundreds of these synagogues in Jerusalem at the time it was subdued by the Romans; that these buildings in some respects corresponded, in their construction, with the Temple; that in each was an ark, or chest, which contained a copy of the law; that each synagogue had its proper officers—its council, composed of elders, or men of age and influence, to whom pertained the supreme direction, with their president, who was known by the designation of ruler, or chief ruler of the synagogue; that this council had power to excommunicate and punish offenders; that the service performed in these synagogues consisted of the offering of public prayers, which was followed by reciting the condemnatory portions of the law; then came the repetition of their phylacteries, followed by the reading of the Law and the Prophets; then followed an exposition of Scripture and a practical exhortation; and the whole was concluded with a short prayer and benediction. The exposition might devolve on one of the elders, or be performed by any more distinguished worshipper who happened to be present. This fact explains Luke iv. 17—20.

14. "Held a council:"—Mark says, "with the Herodians." This is the first time the Evangelist speaks of a council being held to put Jesus to death.

19. "He shall not strive, nor cry:"—his was a ministry, not of strife and contest, but of peace. He was to ride forth because of meekness. His gentleness made him great. And one of the distinguishing marks of the followers of Christ, is the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, ever remembering that "a soft answer turneth away wrath," and "he that is slow to anger is better than the mighty," and "he that ruleth his spirit, than he that

21 And in his name shall the Gentiles trust.

22 ¶ Then was brought unto him one possessed with a devil, blind, and dumb: and he healed him, insomuch that the blind and dumb both spake and saw.[a]

23 And all the people were amazed, and said, Is not this the son of David?

24 But when the Pharisees heard it, they said, This fellow doth not cast out devils, but by [1]Beelzebub the prince of the devils.[b]

25 And Jesus knew their thoughts, and said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and every city or house divided against itself shall not stand:[c]

26 And if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how shall then his kingdom stand?

27 And if I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your children cast them out? therefore they shall be your judges.

28 But if I cast out devils by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God is come unto you.[d]

29 Or else how can one enter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he first bind the strong man? and then he will spoil his house.[e]

30 He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad.

31 ¶ Wherefore I say unto you, All manner of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men: but the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men.[f]

32 And whosoever speaketh a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him: but whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, neither in the world to come.[g]

33 Either make the tree good, and his fruit good; or else make the tree corrupt, and his fruit corrupt: for the tree is known by his fruit.[h]

34 O generation of vipers, how can ye, being evil, speak good things? for out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh.[i]

35 A good man out of the good treasure of the heart bringeth forth good things: and an evil man out of the evil treasure bringeth forth evil things.

36 But I say unto you, That every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment.

37 For by thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned.

38 ¶ Then certain of the scribes and of the Pharisees answered, saying, Master, we would see a sign from thee.[j]

39 But he answered and said unto them, An evil and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign; and there shall no sign be given to it, but the sign of the prophet Jonas:[k]

40 For as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly; so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth.[l]

41 The men of Nineveh shall rise in judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it: because they repented at the preaching of Jonas; and, behold, a greater than Jonas is here.[m]

42 The queen of the south shall rise up in the judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it: for she came from the uttermost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and, behold, a greater than Solomon is here.[n]

43 When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry places, seeking rest, and findeth none.[o]

44 Then he saith, I will return into my house from whence I came out; and when he is come, he findeth it empty, swept, and garnished.

45 Then goeth he, and taketh with himself seven

23. "Is not this the son of David?"—it is clear from Matt. i. 1, that this designation was the especial title of the Messiah. The words, in their present interrogatory form, may be regarded as a confession of his Messiahship.

27. "By whom do your children cast them out?"—we know, from the facts of the Old Testament history, and from the words of our Lord, in Matt. vii. 22, that the power of working miracles was not confined to the Prophets, or to the Apostles, and if that power could in no case be resolved into anything lower than the Infinite and Divine, then how could his works, so replete with benignant and merciful results, be looked upon as designs and deeds of Satan? Hence the force of the Saviour's words—"If Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself;"—as if he had said, If I am the mere agent of Satan, and am in league with him, then he is working against himself, to the overthrow of his own kingdom, and the loss of his own power.

31, 32. "The blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men:"—by ascribing the works of Christ to Satanic agency, in opposition to the clearest proof and the highest demonstration, they put themselves in direct antagonism to the One only Power by which Christ professed to perform his miracles, and the only Power which was henceforth to act, through his own mysterious mediation, on their hearts, to subdue, renovate, and sanctify them; and, therefore, if men continued in this state of wilful and determined opposition to this saving Power, they placed themselves beyond the reach of forgiveness and salvation. The crime is not peculiar to the age of our Lord, and not confined to those who were eye-witnesses of his miracles; but in our own day is to be found in the wilful and persevering rejection of the only means of salvation. While life continues there is hope; but it is quite possible for men, through unbelief and contempt of the Gospel, to force their way into the world of everlasting woe. From such fatal conduct may the good Lord deliver us!

33. "Make the tree good, and his fruit good:"—the application of these words is very striking. The Jews could not deny either the reality or the beneficence of the Saviour's miracles, and yet they ascribed them to Satanic agency. Now, says Christ, if the fruit be good, must not the tree which yields the fruit be good also? or if the tree be bad, must not the fruit be bad also? Deny, if you will, the goodness of the deeds—declare them to be bad—and you will be consistent in tracing them to diabolical influence; but if you admit their goodness and beneficence, then it follows that I am of God. To this there was no reply.

36. "Every idle word:"—that is, every rash and evil-designed word. Words are but the medium of thought; and since thoughts have their seat in the heart, the state of the heart in the sight of God must determine every man's condition for ever.

40, 41. On the interpretation and use of these verses, see Notes on Jonah i. 17; iii. 5—10.

42. "The queen of the south:"—she was the reigning queen of Ethiopia, the queens of which were usually called Candace; and if we may believe the Abyssinian tradition, she embraced the Hebrew faith in Jerusalem. The Arabians, however, claim this princess, under the name of BALKIS, which is supposed by some to be nearer the truth, since Sheba, whence she came, was a tract in Arabia Felix, near the shores of the Red Sea, and abounded in aromatics, and gold, and precious stones.

50. "The same is my brother, and sister, and mother:"—from these words it is very clear that there are ties or relationships more intimate, more endearing, and more permanent, than those of earth and time. Christ has partaken of our nature, and we are called upon to partake of his; and when, by the operation of the Holy Spirit upon the heart, we are brought into a spiritual relationship to Christ, he becomes our Elder Brother, and we are exalted to the honour of membership in the holy family of Christ's kindred, and are numbered among the sons and daughters of the Most High, and are constituted joint heirs with Christ in his kingdom, felicity, and glory. The kingdom, the throne, and the glory belonging to Christ, by virtue of his mediatorial office, are by Christ assigned to them that believe on his name.

The Evangelist here gives us a collection of parables; but whether he has recorded them in the order in which they were delivered by our Saviour or not, we are unable to determine. They have reference to the development and progress of God's kingdom in the world; and we, having them before us in a collective form, are able to consider the scope and meaning of each individual way side, and the fowls came and devoured them up:

5 Some fell upon stony places, where they had not much earth: and forthwith they sprung up, because they had no deepness of earth:

6 And when the sun was up, they were scorched; and because they had no root, they withered away.

7 And some fell among thorns; and the thorns sprung up, and choked them:

8 But other fell into good ground, and brought forth fruit, some an hundredfold, some sixtyfold, some thirtyfold.[a]

9 Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.[b]

10 And the disciples came, and said unto him, Why speakest thou unto them in parables?

11 He answered and said unto them, Because it is given unto you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given.[c]

12 For whosoever hath, to him shall be given, and he shall have more abundance: but whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken away even that he hath.[d]

13 Therefore speak I to them in parables: because they seeing see not; and hearing they hear not, neither do they understand.

14 And in them is fulfilled the prophecy of Esaias, which saith, By hearing ye shall hear, and shall not understand; and seeing ye shall see, and shall not perceive:[e]

15 For this people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed; lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and should understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them.[f]

16 But blessed are your eyes, for they see: and your ears, for they hear.[g]

17 For verily I say unto you, That many prophets and righteous men have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them.[h]

18 ¶ Hear ye therefore the parable of the sower.[i]

19 When any one heareth the word of the kingdom, and understandeth it not, then cometh the wicked one, and catcheth away that which was sown in his heart. This is he which received seed by the way side.[j]

20 But he that received the seed into stony places, the same is he that heareth the word, and anon with joy receiveth it;[k]

21 Yet hath he not root in himself, but dureth for a while: for when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, by and by he is offended.[l]

22 He also that received seed among the thorns is he that heareth the word; and the care of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, choke the word, and he becometh unfruitful.[m]

23 But he that received seed into the good ground is he that heareth the word, and understandeth it; which also beareth fruit, and bringeth forth, some an hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty.

24 ¶ Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man which sowed good seed in his field:

25 But while men slept, his enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat, and went his way.

26 But when the blade was sprung up, and brought forth fruit, then appeared the tares also.

27 So the servants of the householder came and said unto him, Sir, didst not thou sow good seed in thy field? from whence then hath it tares?

28 He said unto them, An enemy hath done this. The servants said unto him, Wilt thou then that we go and gather them up?

29 But he said, Nay; lest while ye gather up the tares, ye root up also the wheat with them.

parable, and by comparing the one with the other, gain a deeper insight into all revealed and spiritual truth.

1. "The house:"—pointing, doubtless, to his dwelling at Capernaum, otherwise called "his own city." The "sea side" was the shore of the Lake of Tiberias.

3. "Spake to them in parables:"—a great deal of ingenuity has been displayed in the effort to distinguish between the parable and the similitude—the parable and the fable—the parable and the allegory—the parable and the proverb. Suffice it to say here, that the word PARABLE is derived from the Greek, and signifies to compare one thing with another. It is some fact, subject, or event, thrown out as the basis of comparison, with the view of illustrating and enforcing some great spiritual truth.

5. "Stony places;"—the native rocks, which had but a thin layer of earth, and on which the radiation would cause the seed to spring up quickly, but as quickly to be scorched and destroyed.

THE SOWER.

29. "The tares:"—the word rendered TARE signifies the DARNEL, so well known for its intoxicating qualities, and which was the pest of the agriculturist. In Aleppo it grows abundantly in the corn-fields. In the time of harvest it is drawn up by the hand, along with the wheat, then gathered out, bound in bundles, and burned. Naturalists tell us that it is "the only poisonous the true counterpart to corn in nature, and hard to distinguish from wheat. We may conceive, therefore, that Christ had both these facts present to his mind—the resemblance of the darnel to the true grain, and its poisonous character. Nor is it less evident, that in the striking change of the term which he employs to designate these tares, he penetrates into the physiology of Nature itself; and in thus distinguishing the genuine from the spurious—the fruitful grain from the noxious tare—even from their first origin and seed, the Saviour teaches his disciples to make a difference between what is not from God, but from the Evil One, although it stands, with false and hypocritical appearance, in the midst of that which is good and real.

The readiness of the human mind to embrace error is forcibly presented to our notice in the parable of the good seed and the tares. The enemy sought and found opportunity to scatter spurious seed among the wheat, and, having done this, we are told "he went his way." The soil was so congenial, that the tares thus secretly planted needed no watchful care, and, although left to themselves, were found to produce abundantly. Mark the diversity of evils that followed. The soil capable of producing food for man yielded

30 Let both grow together until the harvest: and in the time of harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather ye together first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them: but gather the wheat into my barn.[a]

31 ¶ Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and sowed in his field:[b]

32 Which indeed is the least of all seeds: but when it is grown, it is the greatest among herbs, and becometh a tree, so that the birds of the air come and lodge in the branches thereof.

33 ¶ Another parable spake he unto them; The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took, and hid in three [1]measures of meal, till the whole was leavened.[c]

34 All these things spake Jesus unto the multitude in parables; and without a parable spake he not unto them:[d]

35 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying, I will open my mouth in parables; I will utter things which have been kept secret from the foundation of the world.[e]

36 Then Jesus sent the multitude away, and went into the house: and his disciples came unto him, saying, Declare unto us the parable of the tares of the field.

37 He answered and said unto them, He that soweth the good seed is the Son of man;

38 The field is the world; the good seed are the children of the kingdom; but the tares are the children of the wicked one;[f]

39 The enemy that sowed them is the devil; the harvest is the end of the world; and the reapers are the angels.[g]

40 As therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire; so shall it be in the end of this world.

41 The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all [2]things that offend, and them which do iniquity;[h]

42 And shall cast them into a furnace of fire: there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth.[i]

43 Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun poison, and the tares were a hindrance both to the growth of the wheat, and to the quantity of the wheat. The pure seed was subjected to suspicion and to injury, increased toil was entailed on the reapers, and the efforts of the sower were to an extent counteracted. Such is the tendency of error.

30. "Let both grow together:"—in the outward and visible church, which is a mixture of the good and evil—of the contrite worshipper, and the unhumbled professor.

32. "Becometh a tree:"—it is well known that the mustard-tree attains to a very large size in Judea, notwithstanding the smallness of its seed.

44. "Treasure hid in a field:"—the insecurity of property, arising from the want of establishments, like our modern banks, in those earlier times, led the Orientals, on leaving home, to hide a great deal of valuable property in fields, gardens, and courts of houses, and very often near to some tree, to mark the spot. In many instances the proprietors never returned to take possession of it; and hence it was quite a possible thing for such treasure as is here described to be found in a field.

45. "A merchant man, seeking goodly pearls:"—to deal in precious stones is still a vocation in the East, and not a few of such dealers travel in search of what is uncommon and rare; and for some one rich and rare specimen, they will sometimes dispose of their entire stock.

48. "Gathered the good into vessels:"—the Levitical law interdicted the use of all fish which were without fins, and hence it was no common quantity that must have been thus thrown aside.

52. "Like unto a man that is an householder:"—the interpretation put upon this whole verse by Alford is, that every one who is enrolled as a disciple of Christ, and is taught as such, "is like a householder (the Great Householder being the Lord himself) who puts forth from his store new things and old;" that is, he adds, "Ye yourselves, scribes of the kingdom of heaven, instructed as ye shall fully be in the meaning of these sayings, shall be like householders, from your own stores of knowledge hereafter, bringing out not only your present understanding of them, but even new and deeper meanings." Better still are the words of Neander:—"As a householder shows his visitors his jewels—exhibits, in pleasing alternation, the modern and the antique—and leads them from the common to the rare, so must the teacher of Divine truth, in the new manifestation of the kingdom of God, bring out of his treasures of knowledge truths old and new, and gradually lead his hearers from the old and usual to the new and unaccustomed." The old is ever to become new by being presented to the mind in new points of view—the same truths, viewed in various aspects. The one grand idea is, that in the Old and New Testament revelations there is enough to insure both variety in the matter and in the mode of our teaching.

A cluster of brilliants, from their very nature, present beauties to the eye of the beholder, but these beauties largely depend upon the manner in which the cluster receives the light and reflects its rays. So it is with Divine truth: it is ever beautiful, but the effect may be heightened or diminished by the mode in which it is presented to our view. The Old Testament casts its hallowed light upon the New Testament, and the New receives this light, increases it, and again reflects it.

"Parables possess," says St. Jerome, "an inward marrow, different from what their outward form would lead us to expect; and as gold is sought in the earth, the kernel in the nut, and the hidden fruit in the rough coating of the chesnut, so in parables there is a Divine spirit and meaning which we must explore."

CHAPTER XIV.

1 Herod's opinion of Christ. 3 Wherefore John Baptist was beheaded. 13 Jesus departeth into a desert place: 15 where he feedeth five thousand men with five loaves and two fishes: 22 he walketh on the sea to his disciples: 34 and landing at Gennesaret, healeth the sick by the touch of the hem of his garment.

AT that time Herod the tetrarch heard of the fame of Jesus,[a]

2 And said unto his servants, This is John the Baptist; he is risen from the dead; and therefore mighty works [1]do shew forth themselves in him.

3 ¶ For Herod had laid hold on John, and bound him, and put him in prison for Herodias' sake, his brother Philip's wife.[b]

4 For John said unto him, It is not lawful for thee to have her.[c]

5 And when he would have put him to death, he feared the multitude, because they counted him as a prophet.[d]

6 But when Herod's birthday was kept, the daughter of Herodias danced [2]before them, and pleased Herod.

7 Whereupon he promised with an oath to give her whatsoever she would ask.

8 And she, being before instructed of her mother, said, Give me here John Baptist's head in a charger.

9 And the king was sorry: nevertheless for the oath's sake, and them which sat with him at meat, he commanded it to be given her.

10 And he sent, and beheaded John in the prison.

11 And his head was brought in a charger, and given to the damsel: and she brought it to her mother.

12 And his disciples came, and took up the body, and buried it, and went and told Jesus.

13 ¶ When Jesus heard of it, he departed thence by ship into a desert place apart: and when the people had heard thereof, they followed him on foot out of the cities.[e]

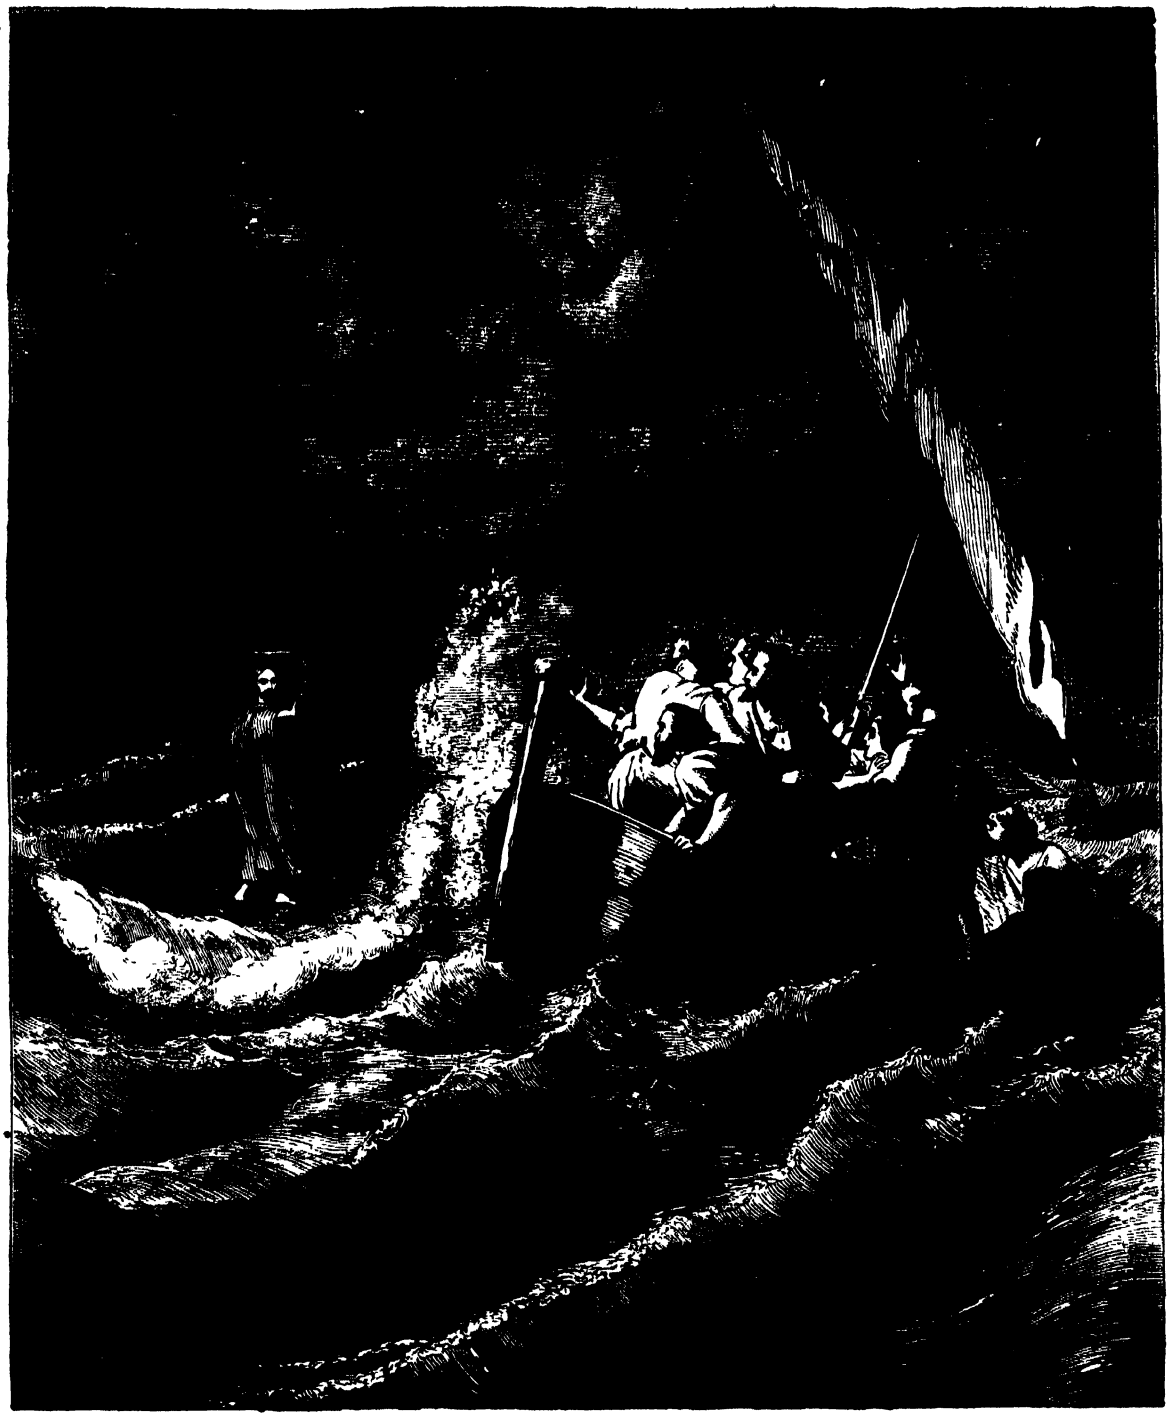
CHAPTER XIV.

SYNOPSIS:—Matt. xiv. 1—12, Mark v 14—29, Luke iii. 19, 20; ix. 7—9 Matt. xiv. 13—21; Mark vi. 30—44, Luke ix. 10—17, John vi. 1—15. Matt. xiv. 22—36; Mark vi. 45—56, John vi. 16—21.

In chapters xiv.—xvii. there seems to be no traceable connection. But, fragmentary as their character may be, they are yet of inestimable worth, and supply us with lessons of great moment. The joy of the wicked and the afflictions of the righteous; the power of Christ, and the infirmity of man; the Christian's faith, and the future glory of the Redeemer and the redeemed, are presented to our view.

1. "Herod the tetrarch." — this was Herod Antipas, the son of Herod the Great, and brother of Archelaus. He was tetrarch of Galilee and Perea; married the daughter of Aretas, an Arabian king; but during a visit to his half-brother, Herod-Philip, he became enamoured of his wife, Herodias, and prevailed upon her to leave her husband, and live with him. This step led to a war between him and his father-in-law, which broke out before the death of Tiberius, and in which he was totally defeated, and his army destroyed by Aretas. He afterwards went to Rome; but the Emperor Caligula banished both him and Herodias to some place in Gaul, whence he was removed to Spain, where he died.

10. "Beheaded John in the prison:"—the Evangelist Luke (iii. 19, 20) had anticipated the death of John, and here Matthew speaks of the event as past. The events here related are supposed to have taken place at Machairus, a fortress and frontier town between Perea and Arabia, near to which Antipas had a palace.



13 "He departed thence by ship into a desert place apart:"—as the Elder Brother of man, Jesus had his sympathies deep and true. The report of John's death filled his human soul with sorrow, and for a season he seeks retirement. From Capernaum, he crossed the Lake of Tiberias—John vi. 1—into a desert place connected with the city of Bethsaida, and there obtained, in this hour of grief, renewed refreshment and invigoration. On coming forth from his retirement, the Redeemer entered upon still wider scenes and circles of activity. He saw "a great multitude, and was moved with compassion toward them, and healed their sick."

BURIAL OF JOHN THE BAPTIST.—MATTHEW XIV. 12.

15. "His disciples came to him:"—we learn from the narrative in Mark, that the Twelve had returned from their mission ere our Lord had withdrawn into retirement, and had related to him "both what they had done, and what they had taught." The success of their labours as his avowed followers had tended to heighten and extend the fame of Christ himself, till it reached the ears of Herod, whose conscience was aroused, and whose fears were awakened lest this Jesus should prove to be John the Baptist, risen from the dead. Such is the way with sinners. Everything excites their suspicion, they quake at every shadow, they look upon every man as an enemy.

"The time is now past:"—we are told "it was evening," or the decline of

"IT IS I; BE NOT AFRAID."—MATTHEW XIV. 27.

16 But Jesus said unto them, They need not depart; give ye them to eat.

17 And they say unto him, We have here but five loaves, and two fishes.

18 He said, Bring them hither to me.

19 And he commanded the multitude to sit down on the grass, and took the five loaves, and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, he blessed, and brake, and gave the loaves to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude.[a]

20 And they did all eat, and were filled: and they took up of the fragments that remained twelve baskets full.

21 And they that had eaten were about five thousand men, beside women and children.

22 ¶ And straightway Jesus constrained his day; that is, about three o'clock in the afternoon. With the Jews the day closed at six o'clock; this therefore was the first evening; for in the twenty-third verse we read, that after Jesus had performed the miracle of feeding these five thousand, "he went up into a mountain to pray," and that "when THE EVENING was come, he was there alone." We have thus a second evening, or the hour which was regarded as late in the night. Between these two evenings is the period indicated by the phrase, "the time is now past." It was too late in the day to send them on their journey without provision for their bodily wants; unless they could reach the surrounding villages before six o'clock, and buy victuals for themselves.

We are told by St. John (vi. 4), that "the passover, a feast of the Jews, was nigh," which will account for the multitude by which Christ was now surrounded. They were on their way to Jerusalem, to attend the great national festival.

disciples to get into a ship, and to go before him unto the other side, while he sent the multitudes away.

23 And when he had sent the multitudes away, he went up into a mountain apart to pray: and when the evening was come, he was there alone.[a]

24 But the ship was now in the midst of the sea, tossed with waves: for the wind was contrary.

25 And in the fourth watch of the night Jesus went unto them, walking on the sea.

26 And when the disciples saw him walking on the sea, they were troubled, saying, It is a spirit; and they cried out for fear.[b]

27 But straightway Jesus spake unto them, saying, Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid.

28 And Peter answered him and said, Lord, if it be thou, bid me come unto thee on the water.

29 And he said, Come. And when Peter was come down out of the ship, he walked on the water, to go to Jesus.

30 But when he saw the wind [1]boisterous, he was afraid; and beginning to sink, he cried, saying, Lord, save me.

31 And immediately Jesus stretched forth his hand, and caught him, and said unto him, O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?

32 And when they were come into the ship, the wind ceased.

33 Then they that were in the ship came and worshipped him, saying, Of a truth thou art the Son of God.[c]

34 ¶ And when they were gone over, they came into the land of Gennesaret.[d]

35 And when the men of that place had knowledge of him, they sent out into all that country round about, and brought unto him all that were diseased;

36 And besought him that they might only touch the hem of his garment: and as many as touched were made perfectly whole.[e]

3 Christ reproveth the scribes and Pharisees for transgressing God's commandments through their own traditions: 11 teacheth how that which goeth into the mouth doth not defile a man. 21 He healeth the daughter of the woman of Canaan, 30 and other great multitudes: 32 and with seven loaves and a few little fishes feedeth four thousand men, beside women and children.

THEN came to Jesus scribes and Pharisees, which were of Jerusalem, saying,[f]

2 Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? for they wash not their hands when they eat bread.[g]

3 But he answered and said unto them, Why do ye also transgress the commandment of God by your tradition?

4 For God commanded, saying, Honour thy father and mother: and, He that curseth father or mother, let him die the death.[h]

5 But ye say, Whosoever shall say to his father or his mother, It is a gift, by whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me;[i]

6 And honour not his father or his mother, he shall be free. Thus have ye made the commandment of God of none effect by your tradition.

17. "They say unto him:"—here again John tells us that it was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, who spoke; and that the five barley loaves and two fishes were the property of a lad, who in all probability belonged to one of the caravans now on their way to the metropolis.

20 "They did all eat, and were filled:"—according to Meyer, and his opinion is endorsed by Alford, "the process of the miracle is thus to be conceived—the Lord blessed, and gave the loaves and fishes to the disciples, as they were; and then, during their distribution of them, the miraculous increase took place, so that they broke and distributed enough for all." On the contrary, we believe that the multiplication or increase took place immediately under the hand of the Saviour himself, and while, perhaps, he was in the act of giving thanks; that the act of thanksgiving past, the increase of provision was present to the eye of the multitude, as well as to the eye of his disciples, before he commanded the disciples to give to the multitude.

"Twelve baskets full."—the word rendered "basket" is KOPHINOS, and points to that kind of travelling basket which was the usual accompaniment of the Jew in his travels, and in which he carried his provisions.

22. "He sent the multitudes away:"—the beloved disciple tells us, in his narrative of this miracle, that the people were so struck by the wonder-working power of Christ, as to acknowledge him to be the Messiah, and fain would they have taken him, even by force, and made him a king. He at once, therefore, dispersed them, and himself withdrew into solitude.

24. "In the midst of the sea"—this was the Lake of Tiberias, otherwise called "the Sea of Galilee;" and which, from the winds sweeping down the mountains which overhung it, was often and suddenly lashed into storm.

25. "In the fourth watch."—previous to the Captivity, the Hebrews divided their night into three watches; but subsequently to that event, they, in imitation of the Romans, divided it into four. The fourth watch was from three to six o'clock in the morning.

26. "It is a spirit:"—the disciples were believers in a spiritual world, and in spiritual existence. It never occurred to them, that the miraculous power of their Master, whom they had left on shore, might be exerted to lift him above the laws of his physical nature; and hence they never thought that this appearance was, or could be, the personal Christ himself. It was not till he spake that they became cognisant of the fact. How slow we all are to believe in an omnipotent Saviour!

34. "Came into the land of Gennesaret:"—a beautiful and fertile plain on the western shore of the lake, at whose northern extremity stood Capernaum, at which, or near which, our Lord and his disciples now landed:—John vi. 24, 25.

CHAPTER XV.

SYNOPSIS:—Matt. xv. 1—20; Mark vii. 1—23. Matt. xv. 21—28; Mark vii. 24—30 Matt. xv. 29—30; Mark vii 31—37, viii. 1—9

Here we have a continuation of those FRAGMENTA of St. Matthew, which may be regarded as supplementary to the preceding portion of his narrative. While there are those who maintain that these Scribes and Pharisees came expressly from Jerusalem, after the Passover alluded to in John vi. 4, to watch our Lord, we find Olshausen, with more caution, if not reserve, thus expressing himself:—"It would be rash to draw any inference from the presence of the Pharisees and Scribes who came down from Jerusalem; for the fact that they came from Jerusalem does not prove that they belonged to Jerusalem; and just as little, that they were sent for the purpose of watching him. We can only infer from the form of Christ's discourse against the Pharisees, that the occurrence belongs to the latter period of his ministry, for during his earlier labours he did not usually express himself so strongly against them as he does here."

1. "Came to Jesus scribes and Pharisees:"—for an account of the religious sect of the Pharisees, see the Notes on chap. xii. 14.

The Scribes were generally of the Levitical order, and existed long before any sect was known among the Jews Their chief vocation was the transcription and exposition of the Sacred Law. In New Testament times, they were devoted to letters and public instruction—expounding the Law, and addressing the people in their Synagogues.

The fanatical hatred of the Pharisees against our Lord, was but the effect of the opposition which his previous ministry in Jerusalem had excited; and hence the present attempt of those who followed him into Galilee, to entangle him by their subtle and perplexing questions.

2. "The tradition of the elders:"—it is a lamentable fact, that the man; but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth a man.[a]

12 Then came his disciples, and said unto him, Knowest thou that the Pharisees were offended, after they heard this saying?

13 But he answered and said, Every plant, which my heavenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted up.[b]

14 Let them alone: they be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch.[c]

15 Then answered Peter and said unto him, Declare unto us this parable.[d]

16 And Jesus said, Are ye also yet without understanding?[e]

17 Do not ye yet understand, that whatsoever entereth in at the mouth goeth into the belly, and is cast out into the draught?[f]

18 But those things which proceed out of the mouth come forth from the heart; and they defile the man.[g]

19 For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies:[h]

20 These are the things which defile a man: but to eat with unwashen hands defileth not a man.

21 ¶ Then Jesus went thence, and departed into the coasts of Tyre and Sidon.[i]

22 And, behold, a woman of Canaan came out of the same coasts, and cried unto him, saying, Have mercy on me, O Lord, thou son of David; my daughter is grievously vexed with a devil.

23 But he answered her not a word. And his disciples came and besought him, saying, Send her away; for she crieth after us.

24 But he answered and said, I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel.[j]

25 Then came she and worshipped him, saying, Lord, help me.

26 But he answered and said, It is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it to dogs.[k]

28 Then Jesus answered and said unto her, O woman, great is thy faith: be it unto thee even as thou wilt. And her daughter was made whole from that very hour.

29 And Jesus departed from thence, and came nigh unto the sea of Galilee; and went up into a mountain, and sat down there.[l]

30 And great multitudes came unto him, having with them those that were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and cast them down at Jesus' feet; and he healed them:[m]

31 Insomuch that the multitude wondered, when they saw the dumb to speak, the maimed to be whole, the lame to walk, and the blind to see: and they glorified the God of Israel.

32 ¶ Then Jesus called his disciples unto him, and said, I have compassion on the multitude, because they continue with me now three days, and have nothing to eat: and I will not send them away fasting, lest they faint in the way.[n]

33 And his disciples say unto him, Whence should we have so much bread in the wilderness, as to fill so great a multitude?[o]

34 And Jesus saith unto them, How many loaves have ye? And they said, Seven, and a few little fishes.

35 And he commanded the multitude to sit down on the ground.

36 And he took the seven loaves and the fishes, and gave thanks, and brake them, and gave to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude.[p]

37 And they did all eat, and were filled: and they took up of the broken meat that was left seven baskets full.

38 And they that did eat were four thousand men, beside women and children.

39 And he sent away the multitude, and took ship, and came into the coasts of Magdala.[q]

Jews came to attach more importance to the traditionary gloss of Scripture, than to Scripture itself. The Written Word they compared to water; but their traditions to wine

"They wash not their hands"—the duty of washing before eating was one of their traditions, but formed no part of the revealed and published Law. Yet the Jew attached vast importance to this traditionary act; so much so, that it is reported of a certain Rabbi, while in prison, and with scarcely sufficient water to sustain life, that he preferred dying of thirst to eating with unwashen hands.

3. "Why do ye also transgress the commandment of God?"—so transgress or go beyond the commandment, as to disregard the authority of God and render the Divine precept of no effect.

5. "It is a gift."—that is, something consecrated to God and his service; under this pretext they claimed exemption from helping their parents. "By whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me, it is a gift:"—in other words, "Whatever property I have, and out of which I might help thee, is consecrated and given up to God." Thus the man held himself free from all obligation to his father or his mother, and the Sanhedrim, acting on their traditions, also held him free. What sophistry! What injustice! As if the claims of God and his service could ever set aside or interfere with the discharge of filial duty!

12. "Knowest thou that the Pharisees were offended?"—they might have interpreted the Saviour's words in the preceding verse, and which were addressed to the multitude, as an attack upon the Mosaical law in respect to food; but knowing the tendency of their whole system "to smother true religion under a mass of outward forms," the Saviour, instead of softening down what was so offensive to them, presented the doctrine yet more broadly—yet more distinctly. He never modified his teaching, or consulted the prejudices and predilections of his hearers, when truth and everlasting interests were involved.

13. "Every plant:"—this may be taken as inclusive not only of their doctrine, but of the Pharisees themselves personally. As a sect, they rested on a purely human basis, and their teaching was rather a perversion than an inculcation of the truth of God.

15 "This parable"—it was not, in the proper sense of the word, a parable, but only a figurative form of expression, involving a hard or difficult saying.

21. "Into the coasts of Tyre and Sidon:"—as Christ does not appear to have actually entered into the Gentile territories, the verse may be rendered—"Then Jesus went thence, and departed towards the coasts of Tyre and Sidon."

29. "Came nigh unto the sea of Galilee."—to the eastern side of the lake, as we learn from St. Mark; and the word here rendered "mountain" points rather to the high land contiguous to the water.

32—38. There are certain critics who would have us believe in the identity of this miracle with that narrated in the preceding chapter, but the evidence is all against them. It is true that the situation in the wilderness, the kind of food, the blessing, the breaking and the distributing of the bread, all correspond; but "every circumstance which could vary does vary in the two accounts."

The word rendered "baskets," in the thirty-seventh verse, is different from that so rendered in chap. xiv. 20. In the present instance, each basket was large enough to contain a man's body; and in such a basket was Paul let down from the wall of Damascus—Acts ix. 25. These baskets were sometimes used for sleeping in when journeying through the desert.

39. "Came into the coasts of Magdala:"—this was a small town about three miles from the Lake of Tiberias, on its western side, whose vicinity embraced the same district of country as Dalmanutha—Mark viii. 10. From this little town or village of Magdala, which was supposed to have been her birthplace, one of our Lord's attendants was named Mary Magdalene, or Mary of Magdala.

CHAPTER XVI.

SYNOPSIS.—Matt. xvi 1—4; Mark viii 10—12 Matt xvi. 5—12, Mark viii 13—21. Matt xvi 13—28, Mark viii 27, ix. 1; Luke ix 18—27

The Pharisees, who lived in a world of external forms, and were familiar with the seen and the temporal, rather than with the unseen and eternal, give the Saviour an opportunity—by their cavils, objections, and constant demands for some outward and visible sign—not only of administering to themselves the most sharply-pointed rebuke, but of counselling his own disciples against the tendency of their doctrines and beliefs; from which he passes to the enumeration of some of the grand vital truths connected with the foundation and progress of his own kingdom in the world.

1. "The Pharisees also with the Sadducees."—of the Pharisees, as one of the great religious sects among the Jews, and of their professed principles, see Notes on chap. xii 14 The Sadducees formed another important sect, and differed on many points from the Pharisees. They were less numerous than the Pharisees, but more eminent, being composed of the higher classes They had not the same sway over the people as the Pharisees, and they were careful never to come into collision with their power. The founder of this sect was Sadu, a disciple of Antigonus of Sachos, who—perverting the doctrine of his master, that we should never act for the sake of mere reward—denied that there was any future state of reward and punishment This, of course, involved the denial of the separate existence of the soul, with the resurrection of the dead They did not believe in the fact of angel or spirit; nor in an over-ruling Providence, or that God exercised any influence over man, but left him entirely to the freedom of his own will and action. They took the Written Law in its literal acceptation, and rejected everything in the form of tradition. They agreed in nothing but—DENYING; their only bond of union was opposition to the Pharisees.

2—4. "It will be fair weather:"—the sun was perhaps setting, and throwing back its rich and splendid glow, and thus gave birth to the Saviour's remark. They could judge from external phenomena as to the weather: why could they not also discern from the higher phenomena in the moral world, manifested in his person, ministry, and miracles, the signs of the times of the Messiah's advent? But seeing they would not see, and hearing they would not understand, the Saviour, therefore, referred to the case of the prophet Jonas, and left them to reflect upon the instruction conveyed by the three days, as regarded the prophet, and the forty days, as regarded Nineveh.

6 "Leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees:"—in turning to Mark, we find that, for "Sadducees," he reads, "Herodians," which is to be accounted for from the fact that the dependents and supporters of Herod's dynasty were for the most part Sadducees in religious sentiment.

12. "The doctrine of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees."—see verses 1, 6; xii. 14.

13. "Into the coasts of Cæsarea Philippi:"—a town in the northern part of Judea, in the vicinity of Mount Hermon, not far from the source of the Jordan, and about a day's journey from Sidon. Philip the Tetrarch, son of Herod, enlarged it, added to its prosperity, and gave to it the name of Cæsarea, in honour of Tiberius Cæsar.

18. "Thou art Peter"—this name was not now given to this Apostle for the first time, since we learn from John i. 42 that it was bestowed upon him on his first interview with the Saviour, and the Saviour here only takes advantage of his name in connection with his confession —Thou art Peter—the man of rock—and on this rock or foundation-truth, involved in thy confession, and including the whole person and work of thy Master, I will build my Church. The Dean of Canterbury says, justly.—"Nothing can be farther from any legitimate interpretation of this promise than the idea of a perpetual primacy in the successors of Peter; the very notion of succession is precluded by the form of the comparison, which concerns the person, and him only, so far as it involves a direct promise."

and to Peter was it given to open the kingdom both to Jews and Gentiles, as the Apostle who first preached to both the gospel of reconciliation, after the resurrection and ascension of Christ.

"Whatsoever thou shalt bind—loose on earth:"—this promise was not confined to Peter, as we learn from John xx. 20—23.

21. "Suffer many things—be killed:"—up to this point we have had no intimation of our Lord's death; but, having entered on the second great division of his ministry, he keeps before his own mind, and the mind of his disciples, that this was introductory to his mysterious sufferings and decease.

CHAPTER XVII.

1 The transfiguration of Christ. 14 He healeth the lunatick, 22 foretelleth his own passion, 24 and payeth tribute.

AND after six days Jesus taketh Peter, James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into an high mountain apart,[a]

2 And was transfigured before them: and his face did shine as the sun, and his raiment was white as the light.

3 And, behold, there appeared unto them Moses and Elias talking with him.

4 Then answered Peter, and said unto Jesus, Lord, it is good for us to be here: if thou wilt, let us make here three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias.

5 While he yet spake, behold, a bright cloud overshadowed them: and behold a voice out of the cloud, which said, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him.[b]

6 And when the disciples heard it, they fell on their face, and were sore afraid.[c]

7 And Jesus came and touched them, and said, Arise, and be not afraid.[d]

8 And when they had lifted up their eyes, they saw no man, save Jesus only.

9 And as they came down from the mountain, Jesus charged them, saying, Tell the vision to no man, until the Son of man be risen again from the dead.[e]

10 And his disciples asked him, saying, Why then say the scribes that Elias must first come?[f]

11 And Jesus answered and said unto them, Elias truly shall first come, and restore all things.[g]

12 But I say unto you, That Elias is come already, and they knew him not, but have done unto him whatsoever they listed. Likewise shall also the Son of man suffer of them.[h]

13 Then the disciples understood that he spake unto them of John the Baptist.[i]

14 ¶ And when they were come to the multitude, there came to him a certain man, kneeling down to him, and saying,[j]

15 Lord, have mercy on my son: for he is lunatick, and sore vexed: for ofttimes he falleth into the fire, and oft into the water.

16 And I brought him to thy disciples, and they could not cure him.

17 Then Jesus answered and said, O faithless and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I suffer you? bring him hither to me.

18 And Jesus rebuked the devil; and he departed out of him: and the child was cured from that very hour.

19 Then came the disciples to Jesus apart, and said, Why could not we cast him out?

20 And Jesus said unto them, Because of your unbelief: for verily I say unto you, If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you.[k]

21 Howbeit this kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting.

22 ¶ And while they abode in Galilee, Jesus said unto them, The Son of man shall be betrayed into the hands of men:[l]

23 And they shall kill him, and the third day he shall be raised again. And they were exceeding sorry.

24 ¶ And when they were come to Capernaum, they that received [1]tribute money came to Peter, and said, Doth not your master pay tribute?[m]

25 He saith, Yes. And when he was come into the house, Jesus prevented him, saying, What thinkest thou, Simon? of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tribute? of their own children, or of strangers?

26 Peter saith unto him, Of strangers. Jesus saith unto him, Then are the children free.

27 Notwithstanding, lest we should offend them, go thou to the sea, and cast an hook, and take up the fish that first cometh up; and when thou hast opened his mouth, thou shalt find [2]a piece of money: that take, and give unto them for me and thee.

of Christ's empire in the annihilation of the Jewish polity, and the universal triumph of Christianity, but the great event to which they refer is Christ's second advent—his final coming.

CHAPTER XVII.

SYNOPSIS.—Matt xvii 1–13 Mark ix 2–13 Luke ix 28–36 Matt xvii. 14–21, Mark ix 14–29, Luke ix 37–43. Matt xvii 22, 23, Mark ix 30–32, Luke ix. 44, 45. Matt xvii. 24–27

The unparalleled event in the life of Christ, here recorded, is to be taken not only as a grand representation, prefiguring the kingdom of God in its progress and development, but as a sublime preparation of the Great Incarnate for his approaching sufferings and death. From the Mount of Transfiguration he came down to the valley of humiliation, and, through toil and trial, urged his way to the Garden and the Cross.

1. "Bringeth them up into an high mountain"—ancient tradition placed the scene of the transfiguration on Tabor's lovely height; but for no other reason, it would seem, than that this mountain was the highest in Galilee, and its surrounding beauties were unequalled in their life and grandeur. But this tradition is now given up. Within six miles of Cæsarea Philippi stands the Mount Paneas, which is part of the grand and lofty mountain-range of Hermon, running between Damascus and the Lake of Tiberias, forming the northern boundary of the country beyond the Jordan, while the beauty of the surrounding country surprises and delights every eye. In the midst of these external glories, on Hermon's favoured height, did the Redeemer of the world, in his transfiguration, draw around him the sevenfold light and splendour of eternity.

The three disciples whom he took with him up the mount formed the narrower circle of his particular friends. He took three, that there might be a competent testimony.

2. "His face did shine as the sun"—such was the effulgence of his own Godhead, as it streamed through the thick veil of his flesh, that while his countenance was as the sun shining in his strength, his very raiment appeared as if woven of the purest light. The brightness which was now coming from him, and flowing around him, was the concentration and fulness of the Divine glory; and it burned with an effulgence which would have eclipsed a whole firmament of suns and stars. Without laying aside his corporeal nature, the Son of Man stood radiant with the glory of an indwelling Deity; heaven and earth were present as witnesses of his majesty; the cloud of light fell like rich and beauteous drapery from the eternal throne, and inclosed the mount, while all was hushed into solemn silence. Neither sound nor motion was to be heard, till the Holy One had spoken:—"THIS IS MY BELOVED SON, IN WHOM I AM WELL PLEASED."

3. "Moses and Elias talking with him:"—Moses, the giver of the Law; Elijah, the restorer of the Law. Moses and Elijah were representatives, one of the Law, and the other of the Prophets; Christ and his disciples were representatives of the Gospel, and the Gospel, rightly understood, is the Law fulfilled and the Prophecies accomplished.

10—13. On these verses, see chap. iv. 12; xi. 7—15; xiv. 1—13.

CHAPTER XVIII.

1 Christ warneth his disciples to be humble and harmless: 7 to avoid offences, and not to despise the little ones: 15 teacheth how we are to deal with our brethren, when they offend us: 21 and how oft to forgive them: 23 which he setteth forth by a parable of the king, that took account of his servants, 32 and punished him, who shewed no mercy to his fellow.

AT the same time came the disciples unto Jesus, saying, Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?[a]

2 And Jesus called a little child unto him, and set him in the midst of them,

3 And said, Verily I say unto you, Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.[b]

4 Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven.[c]

5 And whoso shall receive one such little child in my name receiveth me.[d]

6 But whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea.[e]

7 ¶ Woe unto the world because of offences! for it must needs be that offences come; but woe to that man by whom the offence cometh![f]

8 Wherefore if thy hand or thy foot offend thee, cut them off, and cast them from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life halt or maimed, rather than having two hands or two feet to be cast into everlasting fire.[g]

9 And if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life with one eye, rather than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire.

10 Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones; for I say unto you, That in heaven their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in heaven.[h]

13 And if so be that he find it, verily I say unto you, he rejoiceth more of that sheep, than of the ninety and nine which went not astray.

14 Even so it is not the will of your Father which is in heaven, that one of these little ones should perish.

15 ¶ Moreover if thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone: if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother.[k]

23 ¶ Therefore is the kingdom of heaven likened unto a certain king, which would take account of his servants.

24 And when he had begun to reckon, one was brought unto him, which owed him ten thousand [1]talents.

14—21. St. Mark gives the fullest account of this miracle; the reader is therefore referred to his Gospel, chap. ix. 14—29, and Notes.

24—27. "Doth not your Master pay tribute?"—this was not a political, but an ecclesiastical tax—the Temple-tribute of half a shekel of silver—every Jew of twenty years of age and upwards paid annually to the Temple in Jerusalem.

"Then are the children free:"—"as kings do not tax their own children, so the Messiah—the Son of God and Theocratic King—for whose appearance the whole Temple discipline was but preparatory, was not bound to pay this purely ecclesiastical tax." Still he would give them no occasion to accuse him of any violation of the law—see Exod. xxx. 13; 2 Kings xii. 4.

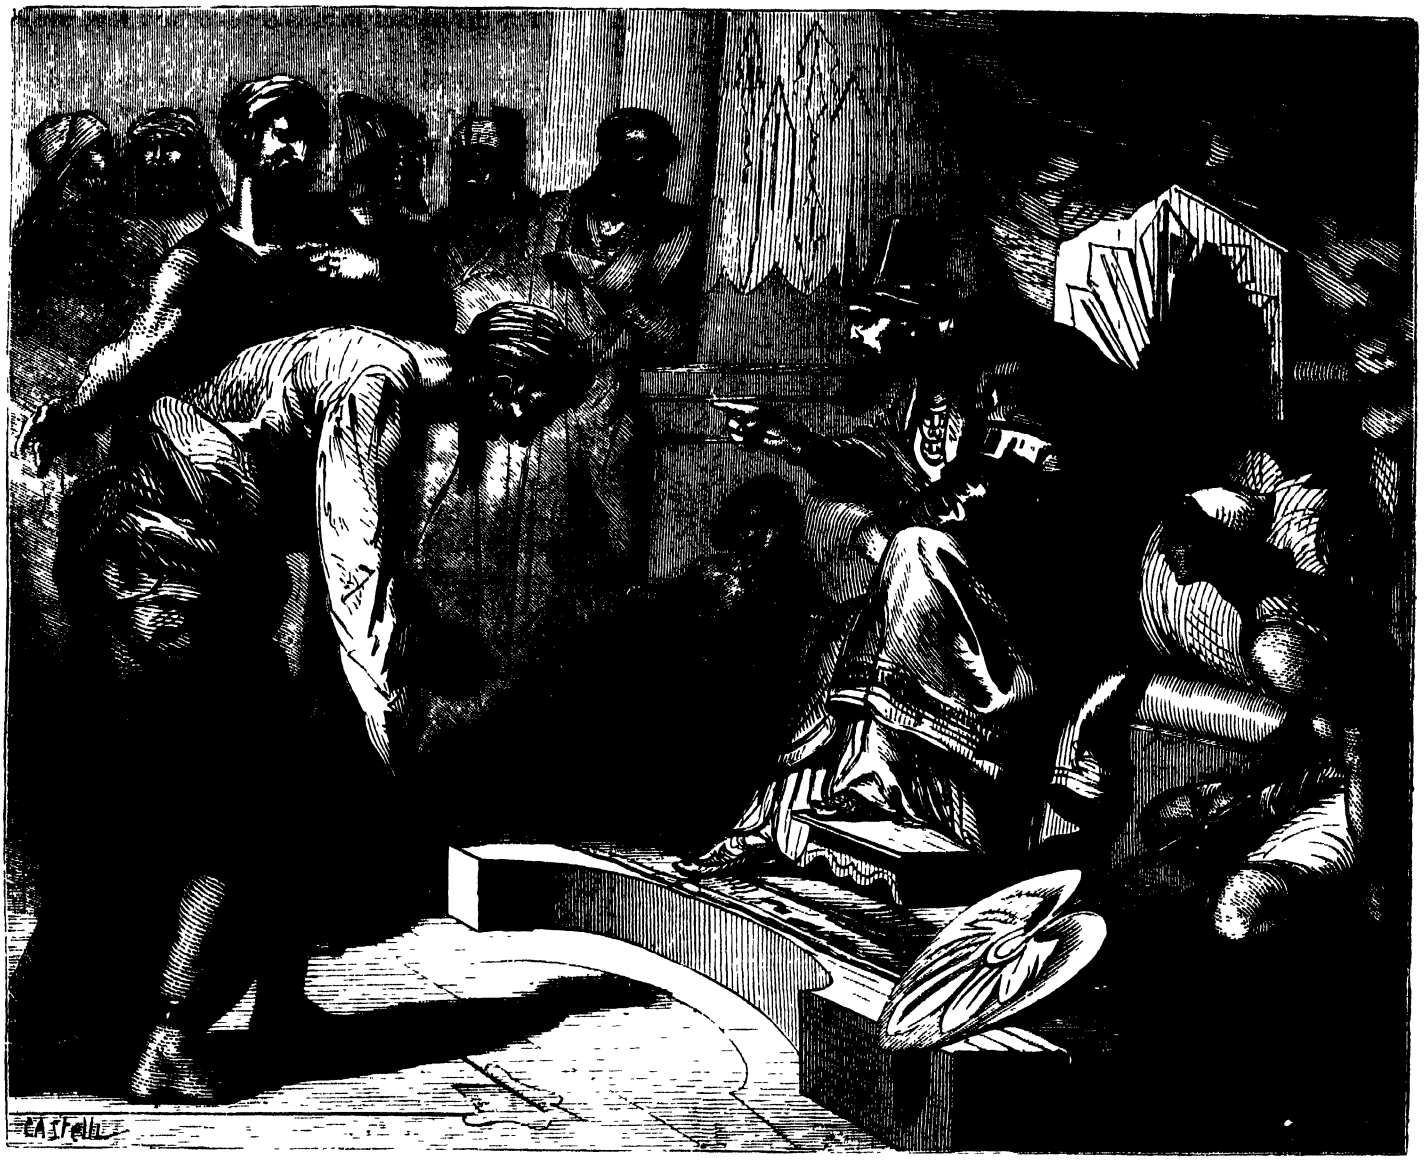
"Thou shalt find a piece of money:"—grant it, that the fish had swallowed the money; the knowledge which Christ had of this fact, and of the fish being in a particular part of the water at the time of Peter's arrival at the lake, and that it should be the first that his hook would take up, gave to the whole transaction the character of a true miracle.

CHAPTER XVIII.

SYNOPSIS.—Matt xviii. 1—35; Mark ix 33—50; Luke ix. 46—50.

It is possible that the fact of three of their number having been selected to accompany the Saviour to the Mount of Transfiguration may have led to the conversation of the disciples, on their way to Capernaum, as to pre-eminence in the kingdom of God. This conversation sharpened into a severe and angry contest which tended to wound the feelings and to alienate the heart. This will account for the character and form of the present address, in which the Redeemer dwells on those peculiar features of character which are essential to an entrance into his kingdom

3. "Become as little children"—the child-like spirit and disposition lies at the basis of all holy, spiritual, elevated character.



6 "A millstone were hanged about his neck."—death by drowning was a punishment known among the Egyptians, Greeks, and Romans, but not among the Hebrews. This, therefore, may have been with the Jews a proverbial phrase arising out of the practice of other nations.

10. "Their angels do always behold the face of my Father:"—it may have been a popular belief among the Jews, as among ourselves, that children have each his guardian angel, who dwells in the presence of God, and comes forth to minister to his little charge But as the word "angel" is used, in Acts xii. 15, for the human departed spirit, this has led some expositors to regard the words before us as a warning against offending these little ones, from the fact that the spirits of departed children are present with God, and therefore all children are dear unto him.

17. "Tell it unto the church:"—among the Jews, offences were reported to the Synagogue; and, if the law provided no punishment, the Synagogue dealt with such offences accordingly. To this, perhaps, our Lord here alludes.

"As a publican:"—so long as the publican held his office, he was excluded from the synagogue to which he had previously belonged.

21. "Till seven times?"—the Jewish Doctors said, three times; Peter said, seven times; Jesus says, seventy times seven. There is to be no limit

25 But forasmuch as he had not to pay, his lord commanded him to be sold, and his wife, and children, and all that he had, and payment to be made.[a]

26 The servant therefore fell down, and [1]worshipped him, saying, Lord, have patience with me, and I will pay thee all.

27 Then the lord of that servant was moved with compassion, and loosed him, and forgave him the debt.

28 But the same servant went out, and found one of his fellowservants, which owed him an hundred [2]pence: and he laid hands on him, and took him by the throat, saying, Pay me that thou owest.

29 And his fellowservant fell down at his feet, and besought him, saying, Have patience with me, and I will pay thee all.

30 And he would not: but went and cast him into prison, till he should pay the debt.

31 So when his fellowservants saw what was done, they were very sorry, and came and told unto their lord all that was done.

32 Then his lord, after that he had called him, said unto him, O thou wicked servant, I forgave thee all that debt, because thou desiredst me:

33 Shouldest not thou also have had compassion on thy fellowservant, even as I had pity on thee?

34 And his lord was wroth, and delivered him to the tormentors, till he should pay all that was due unto him.

35 So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their trespasses.[b] to the exercise of forgiveness. We are never to cease to forgive, just as God is ever, for Christ's sake, forgiving us.

24. "Ten thousand talents:"—the Jewish talent was a little more than £342 in silver; and in gold it was worth about £5,475; so that ten thousand talents in silver would be equal to £3,420,000, and in gold, to £54,750,000. If we adopt the Roman talent, this will reduce these amounts at least one-third. Contrasted with such immense sums, how insignificant was the amount—one hundred pence, or £3 2s. 6d.—due to him from his fellow-servant! In reading the Scriptures, care must be taken not to confound the laws, the customs, or the costume of modern days with those of early times, otherwise the propriety of many allusions and expressions will not be discerned

CHRIST BLESSING LITTLE CHILDREN.—MATTHEW XIX. 13, 14.

CHAPTER XIX.

Christ healeth the sick: 3 answereth the Pharisees concerning divorcement: 10 sheweth when marriage is necessary: 13 receiveth little children: 16 instructeth the young man how to attain eternal life, 20 and how to be perfect: 23 telleth his disciples how hard it is for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God, 27 and promiseth reward to those that forsake any thing to follow him.

AND it came to pass, that when Jesus had finished these sayings, he departed from Galilee, and came into the coasts of Judæa beyond Jordan;[a]

2 And great multitudes followed him; and he healed them there.[b]

3 ¶ The Pharisees also came unto him, tempting him, and saying unto him, Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause?

They likewise had a daily allowance. Whatever they saved of these, or procured by any other means, with their master's consent, was called their PECULIUM. This money, with their master's permission, they put out at interest, or sometimes purchased with it a slave for themselves, from whose labour they might make profit. Such a slave was called servi vicarius, and formed part of the PECULIUM, with which, also, slaves sometimes purchased their own freedom.

35. A somewhat difficult verse: our conduct in the forgiveness of others appears to be the rule and measure of God's procedure with us. Olshausen says, that "exclusion from the face of the Lord is made to depend on the want of love to others arising from the want of faith, without which there can be no love in the soul" The words of the text are not less emphatic than solemn.—"So likewise shall my heavenly Father do unto you,"—that is, according to Stier, "precisely as the parable represents it, and not otherwise, will he do certainly to you also, my disciples and apostles, if ye forgive not your brethren . . . The important expression, 'from the heart,' shows that all judgment is referred to him who alone knows the heart, and before whom every one who forgives not from the heart will be tried in heaven and shut out." An unforgiving spirit proves a heart destitute of the spirit of the Gospel; for it is written, "Be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you"

The grand design of the parable is to set forth the exuberant grace of God towards our fallen race in contrast with the claims and requirements of unbending justice In the scheme of Divine mediation, the law of God is fully honoured, therefore justice can lay no restriction on the exercise of grace; and on this foundation it is that Sovereign Love erects its throne, and proclaims, through Christ, forgiveness to the chief of sinners But how unfathomable must be the depth of that mercy which thus provides for the forgiveness of sin! And what a sublime revelation does it give us of the justice and the mercy of God as exhibited in the work of Christ!

CHAPTER XIX.

SYNOPSIS.—Matt xix 1—15, Mark x. 1—16, Luke xviii. 15—17. Matt. xix. 16—30; Mark x 17—31, Luke xviii 18—30.

In John x. 40 we read that Jesus "went away again beyond Jordan into the place where John at first baptized, and there he abode." This was in the vicinity of Bethabara, in Perea, and what is here related by our Evangelist is supposed to have taken place partly during Christ's stay in Perea, and partly when he had returned from Jerusalem into Judea. This creates a considerable interval between the delivery of the discourse recorded in the preceding chapter and the incidents there narrated; but this interval is, to a certain extent, filled up by the narrative of Luke ix. 51—xviii. 14, or xix. 48. The incidents and discourses thus given by St. Luke are not even touched by the other Evangelists, and are derived from materials supplied during two different journeys of Christ, which he has incorporated into one continuous narrative. The circumstance mentioned by Luke (x. 38), that Jesus is already at Bethany, while at xvii. 11 he represents him on the borders of Galilee and Samaria, is easily explained by referring the former passage to the time of Christ's presence in Jerusalem at the Feast of Dedication, and the latter passages to his presence at Ephraim. The only difficulty which meets us here, as Olshausen shows, is, that nothing is said of Christ's coming to Jerusalem, and his stay there. But this silence is of no importance, since the Feast journeys are entirely omitted by Luke, as also by Matthew and Mark; and therefore we must not wonder that he does not give his readers fuller information as to the minuter incidents after the last journey from Galilee.

1. "Departed from Galilee"—he left Galilee for Jerusalem to attend the Feast of Dedication. He did not, however, return to Galilee, but went into Perea, and there remained. From Perea he came to Bethany (John xi), which was beyond Jordan, on the confines of Judea

3—6 "The Pharisees came, tempting him"—the question here submitted to our Lord was one which was warmly debated between the rival Rabbinical schools of Hillel and Schammai, both of whom confounded the political and juridical with the moral elements of the question The school of Hillel asserted the right of arbitrary divorce, while the school of Schammai denied any such right except in the case of adultery.

"For every cause"—that is, for any cause which a man may choose to prefer against his wife. The mere statement of the question was its refutation.

"They twain shall be one flesh"—as the male and the female were both originally shut up in Adam, so it was the great work of the Redeemer to lead back all human relations to their original intentions: he here asserts that the idea of marriage, as a Divine institution, is to be realised in this life in that sacred union by which the man and his wife are joined into one whole, so as to constitute one life. The wedded pair are one flesh, or ONE MAN, within the limits of their united earthly life.

7. "Give a writing of divorcement"—the Saviour having stated the cause that rendered a dissolution of marriage lawful, the Pharisees conceive that he has put himself in direct antagonism with Moses, and hence this, their second question. Moses gave no such commandment · he only suffered them so to do in certain special cases. If it be true that the laws of a state "do not aim to realise moral ideas, or to create a moral sense, but to bring about outward civilisation," it follows that since the marriage relation involves the idea of imperfection, there must exist some provision in law to render possible the dissolution of the outward union. Thus far the great Hebrew legislator condescended to the weakness and the obduracy of his people; but he left the original institution of marriage intact, and our Lord proceeds to show that the Gospel inculcates a higher standard of morality.

10. "If the case of the man be so:"—in the third verse, the Pharisees put the question—"is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause?"—to which Christ has replied—"for no cause except adultery." If that be the only cause for separation, say the disciples, then it is not good to marry.

CHAPTER XX.

1 Christ, by the similitude of the labourers in the vineyard, sheweth that God is debtor unto no man 17 foretelleth his passion: 20 by answering the mother of Zebedee's children teacheth his disciples to be lowly: 30 and giveth two blind men their sight.

FOR the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an householder, which went out early in the morning to hire labourers into his vineyard.

2 And when he had agreed with the labourers for a [1]penny a day, he sent them into his vineyard.

3 And he went out about the third hour, and saw others standing idle in the marketplace,

4 And said unto them, Go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you. And they went their way.

5 Again he went out about the sixth and ninth hour, and did likewise.

6 And about the eleventh hour he went out, and found others standing idle, and saith unto them, Why stand ye here all the day idle?

7 They say unto him, Because no man hath hired us. He saith unto them, Go ye also into the vineyard; and whatsoever is right, that shall ye receive.

8 So when even was come, the lord of the vineyard saith unto his steward, Call the labourers, and give them their hire, beginning from the last unto the first.

The probabilities of happiness, in their judgment, were not such as to encourage men to form a union thus declared to be binding.

12 Here we may remark that a single life is not better nor more holy than a married life, but, at times, is more free from cares, and, as such, affords the opportunity of devoting a larger portion of our time to spiritual employments. Upon a subject bearing so largely upon the welfare of mankind, we cannot do better than adopt the pious example of one of the early fathers of the Christian Church, who expresses himself to this effect —

"In every state may I learn to be content, since in every state I may save my soul. Marriage is good, and a single life is good, but that which is fittest is best for me. May I wisely choose the way I should go, and then, without looking back, go on till I come to thee, my God. Let me not seek undue redresses of the troubles incident to my condition, nor vainly amuse myself with desire of change. Marriage is nothing, and single life nothing, but as they furnish means, or remove impediments, towards attaining the kingdom of heaven."

16—22 "Good Master, what good thing shall I do?"—the spirit in which this young man came to our Lord, says Alford, "seems to have been that of excessive admiration for Jesus as a Teacher of eminent virtue, and of desire to know from him by what work of exceeding merit he might win eternal life. Our Lord corrects the false notion, by showing that obedience to every command will be required of him who, by his own merit, seeks to obtain eternal life."

24. "A camel to go through the eye of a needle:"—this is a proverbial phrase to express what is humanly impossible. All attempts, therefore, to pervert the word camel into cable, and "the eye of a needle" into a gateway known by the name of "THE NEEDLE'S EYE," are, as we consider it, very unnecessary.

28 "In the regeneration:"—that is, in the final restitution of all things. The expression, to "sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel," has perplexed most of the commentators, and has been most variously interpreted. The simplest exposition is this—if, according to Christ's own declaration, men are to be judged by the word which he spake unto them, then the Apostles, as the first teachers and propagators of that truth, shall sit in subordination with him in the seat of judgment, and act the part of assessors as each is judged by the truth which Christ uttered, and which they taught. With what unutterable worth and importance does this invest the revealed truth of God; and with what solemnity and self-application should we listen to it! "The day of judgment," says Tertullian, "is the day of regeneration, as it is called in the Gospel, because our bodies shall be regenerated by glory there, as our souls are by faith here."

CHAPTER XX

SYNOPSIS.—Matt. xx. 1-16, 17—19, Mark x. 32-34, Luke xviii. 31-34. Matt. xx. 20—28, Mark x. 35—45. Matt. xx. 29—34, Mark x. 46—52, Luke xviii. 35-43.

To keep down everything like pride and ambition in the hearts of his disciples, to whom he had just promised that they should sit on twelve thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel, the Lord adds this deeply instructive parable, in which he shows that no priority of nation, or rank or place, or power, or office, would avail in contrast with faithful and devoted service, and that even the Jews themselves, who, as a nation, had been for thousands of years the chosen people of God, and to whom pertained "the adoption, and the glory, and the covenants, and the giving of the law, and the service of God, and the promises, and of whom, as concerning the flesh, the Christ came," should have no advantage over the Gentiles, who were now to be brought into the New Dispensation, and partake with them in all the blessings of infinite love.

1. "The kingdom of heaven"—a phrase for the Dispensation of Grace, with its fulness of life and blessing.

2 "A penny a day"—that was the Roman denarius, which was equal to sevenpence-halfpenny of our money. It was about this time the pay of a Roman soldier, and a liberal rate it was for a day's labour, if we bear in mind that in Cisalpine Gaul the charge for a day's entertainment at an inn was but one-twentieth of this sum.

3 "The third hour"—the phrase in the first verse—"early in the morning"—denotes six in the morning, and here "the third hour" points to nine o'clock, or three hours later.

11. "They murmured against the goodman of the house"—it does not appear that he entered into terms with any parties except those whom he hired early in the morning, and when, at the close of the day, he gave them individually their full amount of wages, not only was he free from all further obligation, but had a perfect right in dealing with the others to rise from the lower ground of equity to the higher ground of generosity, and reward their labour according to his own good pleasure. So in reference to the Jews, with whom God had entered into covenant. Every condition of that covenant, on the part of God, had been fulfilled; and if, in the overflowing of his infinite love, he was pleased to include the Gentiles in the immense and everlasting provisions of his grace, the mouth of the Jew was for ever shut. His negligence rendered him insusceptible of richer communications; and hence the Gentile, by his very receptiveness and appreciation of the blessings bestowed upon him, would come to take the priority of the Jew; and thus the last would be first, and the first be last.

19 "Deliver him to the Gentiles."—that is, to the Roman nation as the chief portion of the heathen world.

sit, the one on thy right hand, and the other on the left, in thy kingdom.[a]

22 But Jesus answered and said, Ye know not what ye ask. Are ye able to drink of the cup that I shall drink of, and to be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with? They say unto him, We are able.[b]

23 And he saith unto them, Ye shall drink indeed of my cup, and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with: but to sit on my right hand, and on my left, is not mine to give, but it shall be given to them for whom it is prepared of my Father.[c]

24 And when the ten heard it, they were moved with indignation against the two brethren.[d]

25 But Jesus called them unto him, and said, Ye know that the princes of the Gentiles exercise dominion over them, and they that are great exercise authority upon them.

26 But it shall not be so among you: but whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister;[e]

27 And whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant:[f]

28 Even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.[g]

29 And as they departed from Jericho, a great multitude followed him.[h]

30 ¶ And, behold, two blind men sitting by the way side, when they heard that Jesus passed by, cried out, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou son of David.[i]

31 And the multitude rebuked them, because they should hold their peace: but they cried the more, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou son of David.

32 And Jesus stood still, and called them, and said, What will ye that I shall do unto you?

33 They say unto him, Lord, that our eyes may be opened.

34 So Jesus had compassion on them, and touched their eyes: and immediately their eyes received sight, and they followed him.

CHAPTER XXI.

1 Christ rideth into Jerusalem upon an ass, 12 driveth the buyers and sellers out of the temple, 17 curseth the fig tree, 23 putteth to silence the priests and elders, 28 and rebuketh them by the similitude of the two sons, 33 and the husbandmen, who slew such as were sent unto them.

AND when they drew nigh unto Jerusalem, and were come to Bethphage, unto the mount of Olives, then sent Jesus two disciples,[j]

2 Saying unto them, Go into the village over against you, and straightway ye shall find an ass tied, and a colt with her: loose them, and bring them unto me.

3 And if any man say ought unto you, ye shall say, The Lord hath need of them; and straightway he will send them.

4 All this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying,

5 Tell ye the daughter of Sion, Behold, thy King cometh unto thee, meek, and sitting upon an ass, and a colt the foal of an ass.[k]

6 And the disciples went, and did as Jesus commanded them,[l]

7 And brought the ass, and the colt, and put on them their clothes, and they set him thereon.[m]

8 And a very great multitude spread their garments in the way; others cut down branches from the trees, and strawed them in the way.[n]

9 And the multitudes that went before, and that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna to the son of David: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord; Hosanna in the highest.[o]

10 And when he was come into Jerusalem, all the city was moved, saying, Who is this?[p]

11 And the multitude said, This is Jesus the prophet of Nazareth of Galilee.[q]

12 ¶ And Jesus went into the temple of God, and cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the moneychangers, and the seats of them that sold doves,[r]

20. "The mother of Zebedee's children."—her name was Salome, and her sons' names were James and John, the first of whom suffered martyrdom under Herod, Acts xii. 1, 2, and the second was, through a long life, no stranger to tribulation and suffering—to exile and sorrow. The mother preferred the request to Jesus in the name of her sons, which her sons, perhaps, repeated; for Christ's reply is addressed directly to them and not to her, nor through her

23. "Is not mine to give."—the words, "it shall be given to them," are in italics, to denote that they are not in the original, and by the omission of these words we gain the sense of the passage. The Father appoints the honour, and the Redeemer confers it in accordance with that appointment

25—28. "The princes of the Gentiles exercise dominion."—nothing corresponding to magisterial rule or authority was to have existence in his kingdom, and therefore the object of the Saviour in this exhortation is to repress the spirit of ambition on both sides, and press upon them a closer conformity to that humility and its corresponding virtues, of which they had the perfect exemplar in himself. All true greatness has its root in humility.

30. "Two blind men"—in Mark and Luke mention is made of only one of them—probably because that one was known, for Mark mentions him by name; and as his name is preserved, we may presume that he was born in a superior rank of life, and to better hopes, and therefore excited unusual sympathy.

32. "What will ye?"—these words justify the practice of embodying, whenever needful, special petitions in our prayers at the throne of the heavenly grace.

34. "Jesus had compassion on them"—the sympathy and compassion of the Saviour were called forth by every form of human suffering. So deeply and so truly did he identify himself with the miseries of our common humanity, that he is called "the Man of Sorrows," and "the Acquainted with Grief."

CHAPTER XXI.

SYNOPSIS.—Matt. xxi 1–17; Mark xi 1–11, Luke xix 29–44; John xii 12–36 Matt. xxi 18–22, Mark xi 12–14, 20–26 Matt xxi 23–32; Mark xi 27–33, Luke xx 1–16.

This chapter is full of striking, stirring interest, and reveals to us almost every phase of the Saviour's unparalleled character. His ministry is now drawing to a close, and everything, both in his teaching and his action, gathers intensity and force. The cross, with all its mysterious suffering, was now coming into view; but instead of shrinking from the death which he knew to be before him, he urged his way forward to meet it; and this is "to be explained chiefly from the relation in which he stood to the will of the Father, who found an everlasting redemption in the equal balancing of justice and mercy, in such a way, that the Righteous One, placing himself, in his free love, on the same footing with the unrighteous, did, by thus going down to their level, bring all the recipients of his mercy up to his own." To this grand final act his whole life was but introductory and preparatory.

1. "They drew nigh unto Jerusalem."—it is a warmly contested question, whether our Lord made a twofold entry into Jerusalem; but without entering on the merits of the question, the probability is, that on his way to Jerusalem our Lord stayed at Bethany, went privately into the city, where he observed the abuses in the Temple, returned in the evening with the Twelve to Bethany, and on the morrow made his triumphal entry into the city, amid the greetings and the acclamations of the multitude.

Bethphage—which literally is, THE HOUSE OF FIGS—was a suburb of some size, nearer to Jerusalem than Bethany, but of which no trace now remains.

3 "The Lord hath need of them:"—from the words which follow, "and straightway he will send them," it has been inferred, and with great probability, that the owner of the ass was personally devoted to the Saviour.

"MY HOUSE SHALL BE CALLED THE HOUSE OF PRAYER; BUT YE HAVE MADE IT A DEN OF THIEVES."—MATTHEW XXI. 13.

13 And said unto them, It is written, My house shall be called the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves.[a]

14 And the blind and the lame came to him in the temple; and he healed them.

15 And when the chief priests and scribes saw the wonderful things that he did, and the children crying in the temple, and saying, Hosanna to the son of David; they were sore displeased,

18 Now in the morning as he returned into the city, he hungered.[d]

8. "Spread their garments . . . cut down branches:"—a very customary mode among the Jews and other Oriental nations of publicly expressing their joy. During the Feast of Tabernacles, the people were wont to carry in their hands branches of palm trees, olives, citrons, myrtles, and willows, singing, "HOSANNAH! SAVE, WE BESEECH THEE!"—which words were regarded as a prayer for the coming of the Messiah. The whole scene, as we may see from 2 Kings ix. 13, was an act of royal honour, and well became the occasion of our Lord's entry into the holy city.

12, 13. "Cast out all them that sold."—this cleansing of the Temple is not to be confounded with a similar act recorded in John ii. 13—18, which took place at the beginning of our Lord's ministry, while this occurred towards its close. These business transactions were carried on, not in the Temple came to it, and found nothing thereon, but leaves only, and said unto it, Let no fruit grow on thee henceforward for ever. And presently the fig tree withered away.[a]

20 And when the disciples saw it, they marvelled, saying, How soon is the fig tree withered away![b]

21 Jesus answered and said unto them, Verily I say unto you, If ye have faith, and doubt not, ye shall not only do this which is done to the fig tree, but also if ye shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; it shall be done.[c]

22 And all things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive.[d]

And when he was come into the temple, the chief priests and the elders of the people came unto him as he was teaching, and said, By what authority doest thou these things? and who gave thee this authority?[e]

24 And Jesus answered and said unto them, I also will ask you one thing, which if ye tell me, I in like wise will tell you by what authority I do these things.

25 The baptism of John, whence was it? from heaven, or of men? And they reasoned with themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven; he will say unto us, Why did ye not then believe him?

26 But if we shall say, Of men; we fear the people; for all hold John as a prophet.[f]

27 And they answered Jesus, and said, We cannot tell. And he said unto them, Neither tell I you by what authority I do these things.

28 ¶ But what think ye? A certain man had two sons; and he came to the first, and said, Son, go work to day in my vineyard.

29 He answered and said, I will not: but afterward he repented, and went.

30 And he came to the second, and said likewise. And he answered and said, I go, sir: and went not.

31 Whether of them twain did the will of his

They say unto him, The first. Jesus saith unto them, Verily I say unto you, That the publicans and the harlots go into the kingdom of God before you.[g]

32 For John came unto you in the way of righteousness, and ye believed him not: but the publicans and the harlots believed him: and ye, when ye had seen it, repented not afterward, that ye might believe him.[h]

33 ¶ Hear another parable: There was a certain householder, which planted a vineyard, and hedged it round about, and digged a winepress in it, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country:[i]

34 And when the time of the fruit drew near, he sent his servants to the husbandmen, that they might receive the fruits of it.[j]

35 And the husbandmen took his servants, and beat one, and killed another, and stoned another.[k]

36 Again, he sent other servants more than the first: and they did unto them likewise.

37 But last of all he sent unto them his son, saying, They will reverence my son.

38 But when the husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance.[l]

39 And they caught him, and cast him out of the vineyard, and slew him.[m]

40 When the lord therefore of the vineyard cometh, what will he do unto those husbandmen?

41 They say unto him, He will miserably destroy those wicked men, and will let out his vineyard unto other husbandmen, which shall render him the fruits in their seasons.[n]

42 Jesus saith unto them, Did ye never read in the scriptures, The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner: this is the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes?[o]

43 Therefore say I unto you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof.[p]

44 And whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken: but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder.[q]

45 And when the chief priests and Pharisees had heard his parables, they perceived that he spake of them.

46 But when they sought to lay hands on him, they feared the multitude, because they took him for a prophet.[r]

proper, but in the Court of the Gentiles, and not till a period subsequent to the Captivity, when many foreigners came to Jerusalem, and brought with them their own currency, which they expended in the purchase of victims for sacrifice

19 "Nothing thereon, but leaves only"—if there were leaves, there ought to have been fruit, since in the fig-tree the fruit precedes the foliage Both Alford and Olshausen make this transaction wholly typical.—"The fig-tree was the Jewish people, full of the leaves of a fruitless profession, for when the Saviour came seeking those fruits of true repentance which the law ought to have produced, he found them not, and hence the penal sentence which now took effect" When Christ exercised his power to bless, he selected men, when he exercised his judgment, it was to smite the barren tree.

25 "The baptism of John"—the baptism is to be taken as inclusive of the entire office, mission, and work of the Baptist.

28—32. "Publicans and harlots go into the kingdom of God before you"—the openly profane, by the convictions of their own conscience, and the admonitions of God's Spirit, are often brought to repentance and to life eternal, while the Scribes and the Pharisees, with all their professions of legal obedience, are denied the provisions of Heaven's mercy These latter feign to do the will of God, and do it not, while the former, who once lived in opposition to that will, are brought into spiritual subjection to God, and yield to him a willing and hearty obedience

"In the way of righteousness,"—preaching repentance, reformation, and a righteous and godly life as the evidence of an inward and a spiritual change.

33—46. The plain import of this parable is to set forth the opposition of the chosen people to the inspired messengers and prophets of God, till, in the spirit of a ripe and finished malignity, they rejected his own Son, and finally put him to death.

According to Bengel and others, the householder is God, who has his servants at command, the vineyard is the Jewish Church, the hedge is either the law or the separation of the people of Israel from all the nations of the earth, including the idea of the Divine protection afforded to the former against the latter, the winepress is either Jerusalem or the priesthood; the tower is either the Temple or the Theocratic kingdom, the going into a far country is meant to denote the Divine silence, during which men are disposed to act according to their own will and pleasure

"Digged a winepress"—that is, some cavity in the ground or rock, and which was so fitted up as to receive and preserve the juice as it flowed from the press above, in which the grapes were pressed by the foot.

Neander says justly:—"The lord of the vineyard had done everything necessary for its cultivation, so God had ordained all things wisely for the prosperity of his kingdom among the Jews,—all that was wanting was that they should rightly use the means instituted by him. The lord of the vineyard had a right to demand of his tenants a due proportion of fruit at the vintage; so God required of the Jews, to whom he had given his especial mercies as a nation, the fruits of a corresponding life;" but when they not only reject the earlier messengers, but kill his Son—the destined heir of the vineyard—to secure themselves entire independence, and turn the kingdom of God into anarchy, "the privileges were forfeited, and the blessings are transferred to other nations."

CHAPTER XXII.

1 The parable of the marriage of the king's son. 9 The vocation of the Gentiles. 12 The punishment of him that wanted the wedding garment. 15 Tribute ought to be paid to Cæsar. 23 Christ confuteth the Sadducees for the resurrection: 34 answereth the lawyer, which is the first and great commandment: 41 and poseth the Pharisees about the Messias.

AND Jesus answered and spake unto them again by parables, and said,[a]

2 The kingdom of heaven is like unto a certain king, which made a marriage for his son,

3 And sent forth his servants to call them that were bidden to the wedding: and they would not come.

4 Again, he sent forth other servants, saying, Tell them which are bidden, Behold, I have prepared my dinner: my oxen and my fatlings are killed, and all things are ready: come unto the marriage.[b]

5 But they made light of it, and went their ways, one to his farm, another to his merchandise:

6 And the remnant took his servants, and entreated them spitefully, and slew them.

7 But when the king heard thereof, he was wroth: and he sent forth his armies, and destroyed those murderers, and burned up their city.[c]

8 Then saith he to his servants, The wedding is ready, but they which were bidden were not worthy.[d]

9 Go ye therefore into the highways, and as many as ye shall find, bid to the marriage.

10 So those servants went out into the highways, and gathered together all as many as they found, both bad and good: and the wedding was furnished with guests.[e]

11 ¶ And when the king came in to see the guests, he saw there a man which had not on a wedding garment:[f]

12 And he saith unto him, Friend, how camest thou in hither not having a wedding garment? And he was speechless.

13 Then said the king to the servants, Bind him hand and foot, and take him away, and cast him into outer darkness; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.[g]

14 For many are called, but few are chosen.[h]

15 ¶ Then went the Pharisees, and took counsel how they might entangle him in his talk.[i]

16 And they sent out unto him their disciples with the Herodians, saying, Master, we know that thou art true, and teachest the way of God in truth, neither carest thou for any man: for thou regardest not the person of men.

17 Tell us therefore, What thinkest thou? Is it lawful to give tribute unto Cæsar, or not?

18 But Jesus perceived their wickedness, and said, Why tempt ye me, ye hypocrites?

19 Shew me the tribute money? And they brought unto him a [1]penny.

20 And he saith unto them, Whose is this image and [2]superscription?

21 They say unto him, Cæsar's. Then saith he unto them, Render therefore unto Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's; and unto God the things that are God's.[j]

22 When they had heard these words, they marvelled, and left him, and went their way.

23 ¶ The same day came to him the Sadducees, which say that there is no resurrection, and asked him,[k]

24 Saying, Master, Moses said, If a man die, having no children, his brother shall marry his wife, and raise up seed unto his brother.[l]

25 Now there were with us seven brethren: and the first, when he had married a wife, deceased, and, having no issue, left his wife unto his brother:

26 Likewise the second also, and the third, unto the [3]seventh.

27 And last of all the woman died also.

28 Therefore in the resurrection whose wife shall she be of the seven? for they all had her.

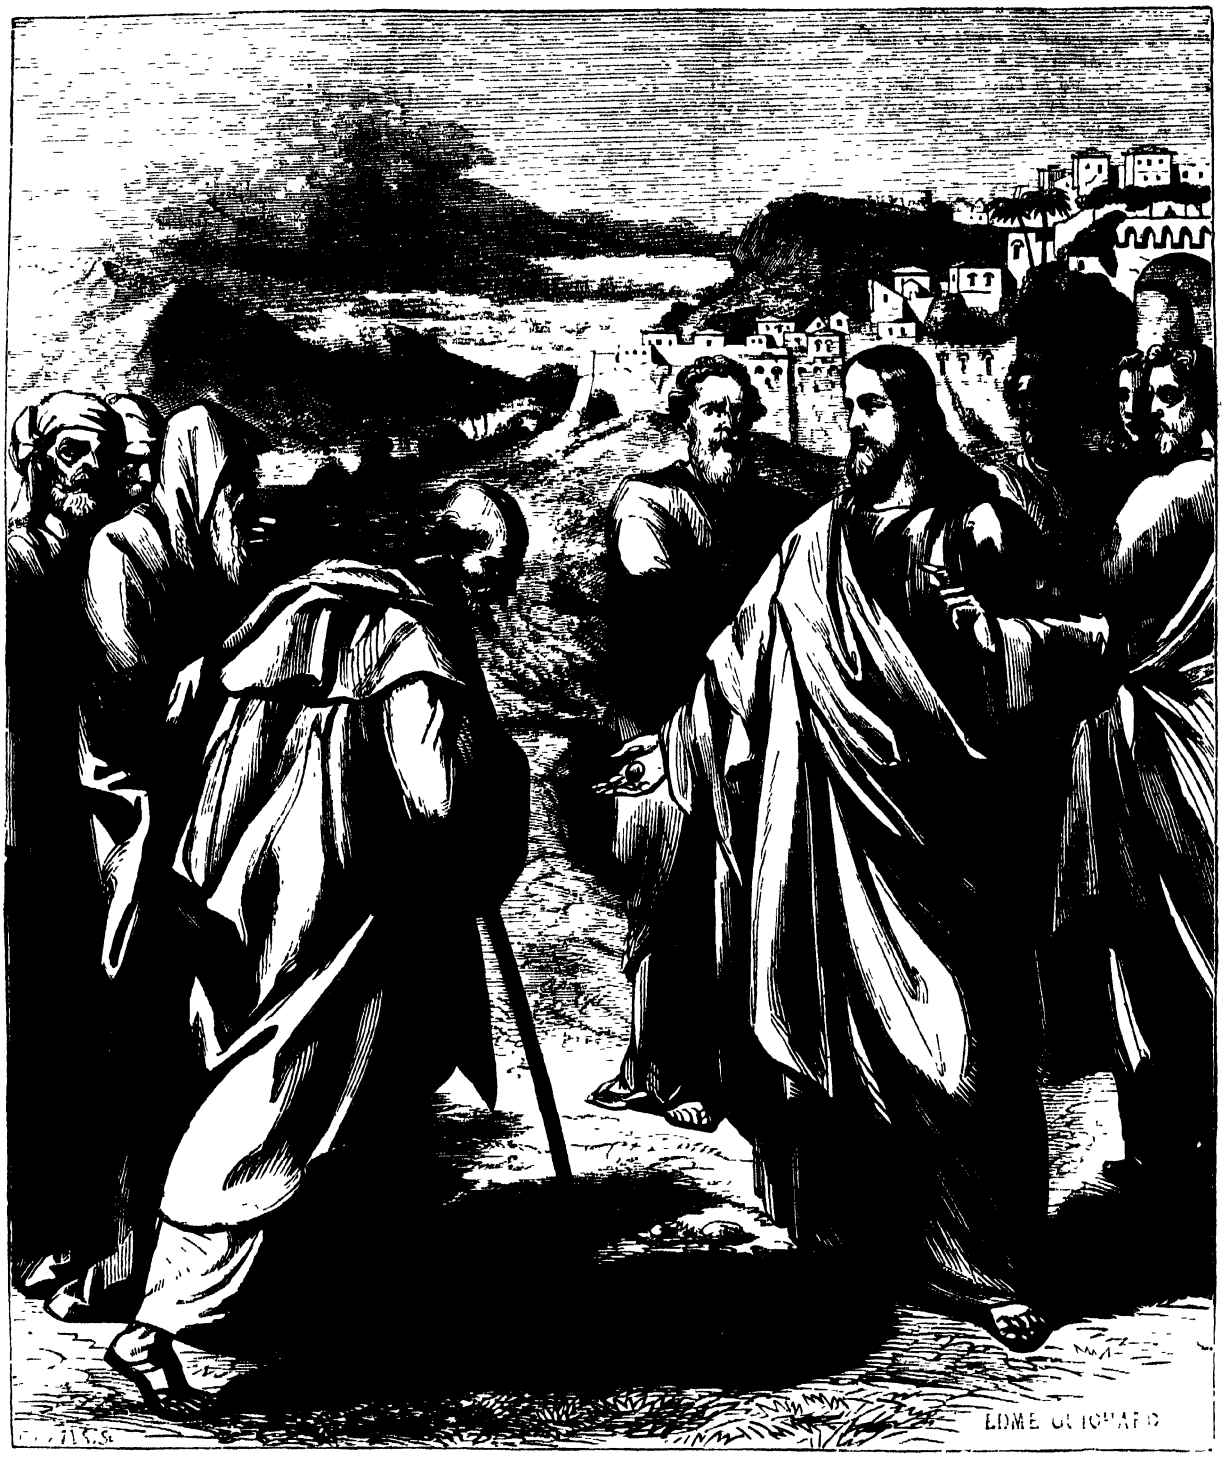
CHAPTER XXII.

SYNOPSIS.—Matt. xxii. 1–14. xii. 15–22; Mark xii. 13–17; Luke xx. 20–26. Matt. xxii. 23–40, Mark xii. 18–34, Luke xx. 27–40. Matt. xxii. 41–46; Mark xii. 35–37; Luke xx. 41–44.

The parable of the vineyard let out to husbandmen, which forms the conclusion of the preceding chapter, clearly points to the state of the Jewish nation, who, though in covenant with God as his people, turned a deaf ear to his anointed servants, trampled under foot the most vital truth, and now consummated their guilt in rejecting and putting to death his incarnate Son. Now, between this parable and the parable with which the present chapter opens, there is an immediate connection. Setting out from the Old Testament point of view, with the rejection of the Jews and the calling of the Gentiles, the Saviour here exhibits the blessings of his reign, in conformity with ancient prediction, under the figure of a rich and sumptuous feast, to which he invites his guests. Just as the accession of a prince to his throne is frequently described as a marriage with his people, so the accession of Christ to the throne of the kingdom of God is indicative of the fact that he came to ennoble our humanity, and take it into deathless union with himself.

1—10. There are two metaphors in this parable which seem to be closely allied—the metaphor of a king inviting his subjects, and that of a bridegroom taking home his bride. Those who are invited are, in one sense, the subjects of the prince who invites; and in another sense, they constitute the bride of the royal bridegroom.

The servants sent forth to invite the guests were the prophets and teachers of the Jewish Church; the murderers were the Jews; the city was Jerusalem, whose destruction—though forty years after the introduction of the Gospel to the other nations—was concurrent with the rejection of the Jews and the reception of the Gentiles.



12. "A wedding garment."—at these ancient and royal banquets robes were provided for all guests, and to appear in the royal presence without such garment was regarded as an offence to the giver of the feast.

16. "Their disciples with the Herodians"—these Herodians, as the dependents and supporters of the dynasty of Herod, were rather a political than a religious sect. Being for the most part Sadducees in their creed, they were thus directly opposed to the Pharisees, yet with the Pharisees they united in opposition to our Lord.

23–33. "Came to him the Sadducees"—from Acts xxiii 8, we learn that the creed of this sect consisted in negations and denials. They believed in neither angel, spirit, nor resurrection. Their object in the present instance was to maintain an argument with our Lord in opposition to his teaching. In their reasoning they set out with the false hypothesis, that "the customs and relationships of the present life would be transferred to the future spiritual state," but Christ strikes at once at the root of this hypothesis, by tracing it to their own ignorance of the Scriptures, and of the unconfined power of God, who has made death one of the conditions of higher life; and, therefore, though Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob had passed away from this earthly scene, they had not ceased to exist, that each of them, as an individual personal spirit, was in conscious being, and the same power which kept alive the soul in her separation from the body, would animate the body itself, and make it a fit receptacle for the glorified spirit. So that, had they known their own Scriptures—not in the letter, but in the spirit—they could not have failed to discover this necessary connection between the truth there revealed and the doctrine of a future state.

Lavater, who is followed by Stier and others, was quite justified in saying that this passage is "a weighty testimony against the so-called sleep of the soul in the intermediate state."

34—40. "Asked him a question, tempting him:"—not "tempting" in an

"..... THEREFORE UNTO CÆSAR THE THINGS WHICH ARE CÆSAR'S; AND UNTO GOD THE THINGS THAT ARE GOD'S."—MATTHEW XXII 21.

29 Jesus answered and said unto them, Ye do err, not knowing the scriptures, nor the power of God.[a]

30 For in the resurrection they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven.[b]

31 But as touching the resurrection of the dead, have ye not read that which was spoken unto you by God, saying,

32 I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? God is not the God of the dead, but of the living.[c]

33 And when the multitude heard this, they were astonished at his doctrine.[d]

34 ¶ But when the Pharisees had heard that he had put the Sadducees to silence, they were gathered together.[e]

35 Then one of them, which was a lawyer, asked him a question, tempting him, and saying,[f] evil sense, but in the sense of trying or testing him; and this not maliciously, but in the spirit of honest, earnest inquiry; and hence, as we learn from St. Mark, the Saviour, whose loving heart always welcomed the very first germs of truth and goodness, praised the spirit of the man's reply, and assured him that he was not far from the kingdom of God.

36 Master, which is the great commandment in the law?

37 Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind.[a]

38 This is the first and great commandment.

39 And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.[b]

40 On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets.[c]

41 ¶ While the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus asked them,[d]

43 He saith unto them, How then doth David in spirit call him Lord, saying,

"What think ye of Christ? whose son is he?"—the title "Son of David" was, in fact, one of the designations of the promised Messiah, but many of the Jews understood it in a mere worldly-political sense; and hence the point of the Saviour's question—"How then doth David in spirit call him Lord?"—give him; by the teaching of inspiration, a name and title which imply possession and supremacy? To this there was no answer. Either David was wrong, or Christ is the Son of God and the Saviour of man—combining in himself both Deity and humanity.

CHAPTER XXIII.

SYNOPSIS.—Matt. xxiii. 1—39, Mark xii. 38—40; Luke xx. 45—47.

The matter found in the Evangelists Mark and Luke is nothing more than a trace of the discourse here recorded by Matthew, and which is peculiar to him; though there are some Commentators who conceive that no small portion of the address is to be found in substance in Luke xi. and xiii.; nor can it be denied, that in many points it bears a close resemblance to the Sermon on the Mount. In the discourse now before us, which was delivered towards the close of his ministry, our Lord solemnly warns his followers against mere appearances—against everything in the form of show or semblance in the momentous business of religion. Viewed in this light, it constitutes a solemn protest against the hypocrisies of all ages, whose form and appearance may vary, but whose real nature—or rather, want of all reality—ever remains the same

2 "Moses' seat" is to be taken as the emblem of the Divine authority, of which Moses was the representative, as the judge and lawgiver of the people

3 "Do not ye after their works."—it was not the individuals of the Pharisees and Scribes against which our Lord here warns his disciples, but their character So far as they taught in harmony with Revealed Truth, they were to be obeyed, but their conduct, being in direct opposition to their teaching, was to be shunned and condemned.

4 "Bind heavy burdens"—by encumbering all the relations of life with a multitude of minute regulations, which neither reason nor piety could commend, and the very enforcing of which restrained all freer and more spontaneous action

5. "Make broad their phylacteries"—these phylacteries consisted of small strips of parchment, on which were written certain verses of Scripture, and which, being rolled up, were put into a box, and bound on the forehead, between the eyes, worn sometimes near the heart, and sometimes on the left arm. The "borders of their garments" were purple lappings attached to some part of their dress The Saviour dwells on these merely external things to set forth more vividly the utterly hypocritical vanity and ambition which were bound up in the character of the Pharisee, whose devotion consisted in external observances, while the heart was devoted to selfishness and pride.

7 "Called of men, Rabbi, Rabbi"—this was a title given to princes, as well as to distinguished teachers How oft is it that "the honour of men is the idol to which men pay their homage!"

9. "Call no man your father upon the earth,"—in other words, give no man any designation which would imply dominion over your faith or your conscience These are far above the sphere of human influence.

10 "Neither be ye called masters"—the word here rendered masters would be better expressed by guides, and again points to a title of spiritual pre-eminence

13. "Shut up the kingdom of heaven against men"—this kingdom is the new, holy, spiritual community which the Redeemer came to establish, and in which an inward and Divine life is the ruling element, but the Pharisees, by their endless external forms, deterred men from entering into any such community, they blocked up the way to the temple of truth, and thus prevented men from attaining the blessings of spiritual life.

14. "Devour widows' houses"—this was done, in all likelihood, by so insinuating themselves into the favour of those widows, as to induce them to devote their property to the support and use of the Pharisees and Scribes themselves, or to such objects as tended to give increased influence to the class to which they belonged The welfare of themselves, and not the benefit of the widow, was the object of their deceitful and ostentatious piety. They were men of extreme avarice, and their conduct in this instance, under the cloak of greater sanctity, was the more offensive.

24. "Strain at a gnat," or, as the older versions have it, "strain out a gnat"—if a gnat, which was held to be unclean, entered the wine, the Jews then carefully strained the wine, so as to remove the insect—Lev xi 20, 23, 41, 42; xvii 10—14. The Buddhists in Ceylon and Hindustan follow the same practice. The camel, as a large, and also an unclean beast, is put in striking and impressive contrast with the little insect.

27. "Like unto whited sepulchres"—on the fifteenth day of the month Adar in each year, the Jews were in the habit of whitewashing their tombs, or some spot near where there was a grave, that persons might not be liable to uncleanness by passing over it. This was so beautifully done, that no one ignorant of the fact would have supposed them to be tombs or graves, and yet that fair exterior concealed nothing but putrefaction. So their heart was not "a temple of the living God, but a grave of pestilent corruption."

29. "Ye build the tombs of the prophets:"—the Saviour here passes (says Olshausen) "from the graves with which he compared the Pharisees, to the monuments which they ostentatiously erected in memory of the ancient prophets, arrogantly persuading themselves that the evil principle which had borne such bitter fruits in their fathers, had no root in their hearts" What self-deception! what blindness of mind! While they were dreaming of thus performing a service of affection, they were in realty only carrying out and completing the work of their ancestors. They were nothing less than accomplices in the murders committed by their fathers the one killed, and the others prepared or embellished the tombs, thus imparting an appearance of reverence and piety to the guilty deeds committed by their forefathers They, indeed, endeavoured to justify themselves by accusing their ancestors, and yet, in acknowledging their descent from those who killed the prophets, they bore witness against themselves; and it is the fact that they were the last of such hypocrites and persecutors.

32. "Fill ye up then the measure of your fathers;"—or rather, "ye filling up, or completing their guilt, to your own final destruction"

34 "Behold, I send unto you prophets"—though wrath was impending over them, the Saviour assures them of conditions of mercy. To make known those conditions, he would send them prophets, who appeared in the persons of his Apostles—wise men, full of faith and of the Holy Ghost, represented by Stephen and James, and others of the same type; scribes, or such as were profoundly read in the Oracles of Truth, as Apollos, and men like him, "mighty in the Scriptures" But instead of listening to such messengers of life, and accepting the conditions of mercy, they would persecute them, and imbrue their hands in their blood

35. "From the blood of righteous Abel unto the blood of Zacharias son of Barachias"—Abel is here mentioned as the first of the human race whose blood was shed in the cause of truth and righteousness, and with him is joined Zacharias the son of Barachias, or Jehoiada, of whose prophecy and death we have an account in 2 Chron. xxiv. 20—22, and of whose blood the Jews have the saying, that "the stain never was destroyed till the Temple was destroyed at the captivity." The fact that these words were uttered by our Lord in the Temple, imparts to them an increased solemnity.

"Between the temple and the altar"—this was an open space in which the great altar of burnt-offerings stood, at the entrance of the buildings strictly belonging to the Temple.

38 "Behold, your house is left unto you desolate"—these words were in all likelihood uttered by the Saviour as he was going out of the Temple. Hitherto he had spoken of it as his Father's house, but he now calls it their house, for, from that moment, it ceased to be what it had been. When he withdrew, it ceased to be the scene of the Divine Presence; and Jesus himself discontinued his public ministry among the Jews.

CHAPTER XXIV.

SYNOPSIS—Matt. xxiv 1—51, xxv. 1—13, Mark xiii 1—37; Luke xxi 5—36

In this great prophetic discourse, our Lord throws back the veil from the future. The relation is much the same in all the three Evangelists, while their statements about the time, the local circumstances, and the general contents of the discourse, are a guarantee for the correctness of their narrative. The obvious design of the discourse is to describe the approaching overthrow of Jerusalem with the whole of the Jewish polity, connecting with this impending catastrophe the return of the Lord to establish his new kingdom in the world

1 "Shew him the buildings of the temple"—he had said, in the close of the previous discourse—"Behold, your house is left unto you desolate," and these words falling with startling effect on the ears of his disciples, they call his attention to the magnitude and the splendour of the sacred edifice; but it was only to have its overthrow predicted with deeper emphasis.

3. "Sat upon the mount of Olives."—from which the Temple could be seen, and where the coming siege was to commence.

"The end of the world."—this may refer either to the end of time, or only to the close of the age or dispensation. Our Lord does not answer the question of his disciples, for it could contribute nothing to their advannot since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever shall be.[a]

22 And except those days should be shortened, there should no flesh be saved: but for the elect's sake those days shall be shortened.[b]

23 Then if any man shall say unto you, Lo, here is Christ, or there; believe it not.[c]

24 For there shall arise false Christs, and false prophets, and shall shew great signs and wonders; insomuch that, if it were possible, they shall deceive the very elect.[d]

25 Behold, I have told you before.

26 Wherefore if they shall say unto you, Behold, he is in the desert; go not forth: behold, he is in the secret chambers; believe it not.

27 For as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be.[e]

28 For wheresoever the carcase is, there will the eagles be gathered together.[f]

29 ¶ Immediately after the tribulation of those days shall the sun be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken:[g]

30 And then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven: and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory.[h]

31 And he shall send his angels [1]with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other.[i]

32 Now learn a parable of the fig tree; When his branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, ye know that summer is nigh:[j]

33 So likewise ye, when ye shall see all these things, know that [2]it is near, even at the doors.[k]

34 Verily I say unto you, This generation shall not pass, till all these things be fulfilled.[l]

tage, but satisfies himself by giving them certain salutary admonitions to watchfulness and fidelity

Concerning the destruction of the Temple, and the city, and the signs of this event, he answers in verses 4, 5, 15, 16, concerning his coming, and the end of the world, and the signs of that event, he answers in verses 29–31, concerning the time when the Temple was to be destroyed, he answers in verses 32, 33, and concerning the time of the end of the world, he answers in verse 36

5. "Saying, I am Christ:"—Josephus tells us that Judea was overrun with impostors, who drew the multitudes into solitudes and deserts, under the expectation of seeing signs and miracles. In history, we meet with the names of twenty-four false Messiahs, who, at different periods, sought to lead the people astray Among them were Dositheus, the Samaritan, who asserted that he was Christ, and Simon Magus, who claimed to be the Son of God.

6—10 "The end is not yet,"—that is, the time for the completion of these predictions has not yet come, and their accomplishment will be introduced and preceded by wars and rumours of wars—by persecution and suffering—by death and martyrdom.

13. "He that shall endure unto the end:"—the primary meaning of this seems to be, that whosoever remained faithful till the destruction of Jerusalem, should be preserved from it, and we learn from history that no Christian perished in the siege, besides this, there is a reference to that "recompense of reward" which shall be the portion of those who are found faithful to the end.

14. "This gospel shall be preached in all the world:"—this was fulfilled in the life and labours of the Apostle Paul, whose mission embraced all nations, even before the destruction of Jerusalem

15. "The abomination of desolation"—a Hebrew mode of expression, meaning an abominable desolation; and by a reference to Luke xxi. 20, we find that the Roman army was thus designated. In this Pagan army the soldiers adored the eagles of their legions, and mingled with their standards the images of their gods, and of their emperors, whom they alike regarded as the objects of worship, and worthy of divine honours.

16—18 "Flee into the mountains."—the Christian Jews fled to Pella, a town in the northernmost boundary of Persea, in reaching which they had to cross the mountain heights.

20. "Neither on the Sabbath;"—because, though they were Christians, they were not yet free from the rigid custom of the Jews in preserving the sanctity of the Sabbath according to the law of Moses.

27. "So shall the coming of the Son of man be:"—just as the lightning, when it leaves the dark-bosomed cloud, fills the whole hemisphere from east to west with its flame, and makes itself seen, so the coming of the Son of man will be manifest to all men.

28. "Wheresoever the carcase is:"—Jerusalem was the centre of life, and wealth, and population, and the Romans, like so many vultures, would hurry thither to destroy and devour Hence the exhortation to take flight.

29—31. "In those days shall the sun be darkened:"—there can be no doubt that physical phenomena, ecclesiastical changes, and political convulsions, are all included in this description. The frame of Nature was disturbed, the fabric of society was rent asunder, and the Church itself was driven to the mountains. These verses also point to the final coming of our Lord at the close of all things.

34. "Verily I say unto you:"—a solemn announcement in the Old Testament is ushered in by—"Thus saith the Lord of Hosts;" in the New Testament it is—"Verily I say unto you."

"This generation shall not pass:"—the Jews were accustomed to regard time as divided into three periods which they called "generations." The first, from the creation until the time of Moses; the second, from the time of Moses until the coming of the Messiah; and the third, from the days of the Messiah until the end of all things.

THE TEN VIRGINS

MATTHEW XXV

THE WISE AND FOOLISH VIRGINS.—MATTHEW XXV. 1–13.

CHAPTER XXV.

1 The parable of the ten virgins, 14 and of the talents. 31 Also the description of the last judgment.

THEN shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom.[a]

2 And five of them were wise, and five were foolish.[b]

3 They that were foolish took their lamps, and took no oil with them:

4 But the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps.

5 While the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept.[c]

6 And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him.[d]

7 Then all those virgins arose, and trimmed their lamps.[e]

8 And the foolish said unto the wise, Give us of your oil; for our lamps are [1]gone out.

9 But the wise answered, saying, Not so; lest there be not enough for us and you: but go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves.

10 And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came; and they that were ready went in with him to the marriage: and the door was shut.[f]

11 Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, Lord, Lord, open to us.[g]

12 But he answered and said, Verily I say unto you, I know you not.[h]

13 Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh.[i]

41. "Women shall be grinding"—this was a species of employment confined almost exclusively to women, in their capacity of servants or slaves.

42—51 How much depends on fidelity to Christ and his service! How fearful—how unutterably tremendous the doom that will fall upon the impenitent!

CHAPTER XXV.

The first thirteen verses of this chapter, which are peculiar to Matthew, ought to have formed the conclusion of the preceding chapter, as being the application of the solemn predictions which the Saviour had just uttered. The point of transition, from the overthrow of the Jewish polity to the setting up of his own everlasting kingdom, is to be found in the fourteenth verse. The overlooking of this simple fact has led expositors into various kinds of misinterpretations of this impressive parable. We must regard these Divine similes as designed to convey a solemn monition to the Jewish people in the prospect of the desolation that was coming upon themselves and their country, and also as an admonition to the Christian Church.

1. "Then shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins,"—that is, the reign of grace, under the Messiah, from the day of his resurrection, and his subsequent ascension, extending not only to the overthrow of Jerusalem, but to the end of the Gospel dispensation.

ANCIENT LAMPS. FROM THE RUINS OF HERCULANEUM.

Ten is a favourite number with the Jews; and as ten men formed a congregation in a synagogue, the number is here taken for the whole nation

These lamps were not flambeaus, nor torches, as they are sometimes represented, but lamps such as were used in the East

2 "Five wise—five foolish"—our Lord represents the nation in the most favourable light, to conciliate prejudice, and insure attention to his teaching The word "foolish" is to be taken in the sense of thoughtless and indifferent, as indicated by their culpable negligence.

They were the virgin companions of the bride waiting for the bridegroom, according to the custom of the times

6 "At midnight there was a cry made"—it is at such a time that marriages in the East are celebrated, and that the bridegroom leads home his bride.

8. "Are gone out"—or rather, "are going out," and that through their own neglect.

14. "Called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods"—the design of this parable is to set forth the duties of the Christian life. The disciples of Christ are left in the world as his representatives and active agents, and on the part which they perform depend everlasting consequences to themselves and to others Hence the deep and thrilling earnestness with which our Lord here speaks to his professed followers.

25. "There thou hast that is thine:"—this was not true. Had he improved wicked and slothful servant, thou knewest that I reap where I sowed not, and gather where I have not strawed:

27 Thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchangers, and then at my coming I should have received mine own with usury.

28 Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him which hath ten talents.

29 For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath.[a]

30 And cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.[b]

31 ¶ When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory:[c]

32 And before him shall be gathered all nations: and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats:[d]

33 And he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left.

34 Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world:[e]

35 For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in:[f]

36 Naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me.[g]

37 Then shall the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, and fed thee? or thirsty, and gave thee drink?

38 When saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in? or naked, and clothed thee?

39 Or when saw we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee?

40 And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.[h]

41 Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels:[i]

CHAPTER XXVI.

1 The rulers conspire against Christ. 6 The woman anointeth his head. 14 Judas selleth him. 17 Christ eateth the passover 26 instituteth his holy supper. 36 prayeth in the garden 47 and being betrayed with a kiss, 57 is carried to Caiaphas, 69 and denied of Peter.

AND it came to pass, when Jesus had finished all these sayings, he said unto his disciples,

2 Ye know that after two days is the feast of the passover, and the Son of man is betrayed to be crucified.[l]

3 Then assembled together the chief priests, and the scribes, and the elders of the people, unto the palace of the high priest, who was called Caiaphas,[m]

4 And consulted that they might take Jesus by subtilty, and kill him.

5 But they said, Not on the feast day, lest there be an uproar among the people.

6 ¶ Now when Jesus was in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper,[n]

7 There came unto him a woman having an alabaster box of very precious ointment, and poured it on his head, as he sat at meat.

8 But when his disciples saw it, they had indignation, saying, To what purpose is this waste?[o] his talent, there would have been not only the talent, but the increase arising therefrom, and both these his lord claimed justly. The sin of the servant consisted, first, in sloth, and then in assuming false grounds of excuse.

26. "I reap where I sowed not,"—that is, let it be so that I am a hard master, reaping where I have not sowed, that does not affect your responsibility. I gave you a talent to employ, and I now demand the fruit of it. The man had no return to make, and hence his designation—"thou wicked and slothful servant," and hence his doom.

31—46. In the preceding parable we have the progress and development of Christ's kingdom in the world; here we are carried forward to the close of the great Evangelical economy, and are set down amid the scenes and the realities of the last judgment, in which there will take place a complete and endless separation between the righteous and the wicked.

Christ the King shall first address the righteous, in the hearing of the unrighteous; and then the unrighteous shall depart in the sight of the redeemed. Thus the condemned will see nothing of eternal life, though the righteous will see the vengeance inflicted on the men who, in the days of their probation, rejected Christ and his redemption, and died in their impenitence and unbelief.

Awakening thoughts, these! Oh! for grace so to live in this sinful, selfish world, as at last to be found of Christ in peace! To those who look for him is he to appear a second time unto salvation—a salvation commenced in time, and extending throughout the countless ages of eternity!

A life of teaching must now give place in Christ to scenes of suffering. Whatever more he had to say was to be comprised within the last few moments which preceded his death, and within the narrow circle of his own immediate followers. He was now entering on the last scene of his humiliation, which deepened into his agony in the garden, and his death upon the cross

2. "The feast of the passover:"—this great Jewish festival was celebrated on the fourteenth day of the first month (Nisan) between the evenings—that is, between the thirteenth and fourteenth, or between the fourteenth and fifteenth, and so including the two days The feast of unleavened bread began on the fifteenth, and continued for seven days. It follows, that though the term PASSOVER is strictly applicable only to the eating of the paschal lamb on the fourteenth day, it is yet used in reference to the whole period

4. "Consulted that they might take Jesus:"—while our Lord, by an act of solemn consecration, was now preparing himself entirely for suffering, his enemies, influenced by the worst of principles, were plotting his death!

7. "As he sat at meat:"—we learn from John xii. 2. that this Simon—who,

THE MOUNT OF OLIVES.

9 For this ointment might have been sold for much, and given to the poor.

10 When Jesus understood it, he said unto them, Why trouble ye the woman? for she hath wrought a good work upon me.

11 For ye have the poor always with you; but me ye have not always.[a]

12 For in that she hath poured this ointment on my body, she did it for my burial.

13 Verily I say unto you, Wheresoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, there shall also this, that this woman hath done, be told for a memorial of her.

14 ¶ Then one of the twelve, called Judas Iscariot, went unto the chief priests,[b]

15 And said unto them, What will ye give me, and I will deliver him unto you? And they covenanted with him for thirty pieces of silver.[c]

16 And from that time he sought opportunity to betray him.

17 ¶ Now the first day of the feast of unleavened bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the passover?[d]

18 And he said, Go into the city to such a man, and say unto him, The Master saith, My time is at hand; I will keep the passover at thy house with my disciples.

19 And the disciples did as Jesus had appointed them; and they made ready the passover.

20 Now when the even was come, he sat down with the twelve.[e]

21 And as they did eat, he said, Verily I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me.

22 And they were exceeding sorrowful, and began every one of them to say unto him, Lord, is it I?

23 And he answered and said, He that dippeth his hand with me in the dish, the same shall betray me.[f]

24 The Son of man goeth as it is written of him: but woe unto that man by whom the Son of man it is said, was a leper, that is, had been a leper, and, perhaps, had been healed by Christ, and was, in all probability, connected with the family of Lazarus—made a supper for Jesus, and as the ancients rather reclined than sat at table—lay on couches furnished with cushions, in such a position that their feet rested backwards—the woman could have no difficulty in pouring the ointment on the Saviour's head, or in wiping his feet with her hair.

8. "They had indignation"—it was Judas Iscariot, as we learn from John, who took objection to this act of affectionate piety on the part of Mary.

"To what purpose is this waste?"—it is somewhat remarkable that, in the original, the word here rendered WASTE means also PERDITION; and Judas is called "the son of perdition."

12. "She did it for my burial:"—others were anointed after death; but Christ was anointed while still living. It may be, as Olshausen says, that the Saviour "intended by these words not only to rebuke his disciples, but to give her an intimation of the unspeakable sorrow that awaited her; for what must she have felt when she saw Him expire on the cross who had power to rescue his friend Lazarus from the grave!" The Saviour's death was not only certain, but near at hand.

13. "Be told for a memorial of her:"—she thus erected to herself a monument as lasting as the Gospel; and the fulfilment of the Saviour's words is an enduring proof of the truth of Christianity. Beautifully says Bengel—"No earthly monarch can bestow immortality on any action, even though he employ all his wealth and power to do so. The memory of the godly may flourish, even though their names be unknown."

15. "Thirty pieces of silver."—this, which was about £3 15s. of our money, was the price of a slave.

17. "Now the first day of the feast of unleavened bread:"—the feast continued eight days, including the day on which the paschal lamb was slain, and during the whole of this period no leaven was allowed to be used in the bread; thus, by an outward and visible emblem, every partaker of the feast was taught that humiliation and contrition must be blended with their devotional acts, if they desired to participate in the blessings to be conferred by Him of whom the paschal lamb was a type.

"To eat the passover;"—that is, the lamb slain in remembrance of the Passover. By a well-known figure of speech, the object that represents is here used for the object represented.

25 Then Judas, which betrayed him, answered and said, Master, is it I? He said unto him, Thou hast said.

26 ¶ And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and [1]blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body.[b]

When the disciples besought Christ to teach them how to pray, our Lord was pleased to adopt pious sentences already in use. So, also, in the institution of the sacramental supper, the Saviour selected for the emblems not things new, but portions of an ordinance long in use, which had reference to himself under a prior dispensation, and employed them to commemorate the great event of which the paschal lamb was only a type. If we bear this practice of our Lord's in view, and then examine the mode in which the paschal feast was observed, we shall gain informa-

31 Then saith Jesus unto them, All ye shall be offended because of me this night: for it is written, I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock shall be scattered abroad.[b]

32 But after I am risen again, I will go before you into Galilee.[c]

33 Peter answered and said unto him, Though all men shall be offended because of thee, yet will I never be offended.

34 Jesus said unto him, Verily I say unto thee, That this night, before the cock crow, thou shalt deny me thrice.[d]

35 Peter said unto him, Though I should die with thee, yet will I not deny thee. Likewise also said all the disciples.

36 ¶ Then cometh Jesus with them unto a place called Gethsemane, and saith unto the disciples, Sit ye here, while I go and pray yonder.[e]

37 And he took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and began to be sorrowful and very heavy.[f]

38 Then saith he unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death: tarry ye here, and watch with me.[g]

40 And he cometh unto the disciples, and findeth them asleep, and saith unto Peter, What, could ye not watch with me one hour?

41 Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.[i]

42 He went away again the second time, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if this cup may not pass away from me, except I drink it, thy will be done.

43 And he came and found them asleep again: for their eyes were heavy.

44 And he left them, and went away again, and prayed the third time, saying the same words.

45 Then cometh he to his disciples, and saith unto them, Sleep on now, and take your rest: behold, the hour is at hand, and the Son of man is betrayed into the hands of sinners.

46 Rise, let us be going: behold, he is at hand that doth betray me.

47 ¶ And while he yet spake, lo, Judas, one of the twelve, came, and with him a great multitude with swords and staves, from the chief priests and elders of the people.[j]

48 Now he that betrayed him gave them a sign, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that same is he: hold him fast.

52 Then said Jesus unto him, Put up again thy sword into his place: for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword.[n]

tion that will aid us in the better comprehension of other portions of the Scriptures We quote the manner of celebrating the passover as given by Maimonides Pesach —

"1 They mingled a cup of wine with water, and then one gave thanks, saying, 'Blessed be God for the fruit of the vine.'

"2 They washed their hands.

"3 The table was furnished with—

"(1) Two cakes of unleavened bread.

"(2) With bitter herbs, and,

"(3) With the paschal lamb roasted whole.

These three articles were according to law.

"4 They removed all the dishes from the table, that the children might inquire the cause, and be informed of the nature of the feast. Then, replacing the supper, they explained the instruction designed to be conveyed by the bitter herbs and the paschal lamb.

"5 A second cup of wine is placed upon the table, and Psalms cxiii. and cxiv are said

"6 The hands are again washed, and they proceed to break and to bless a cake of the unleavened bread

"7 They eat the bread with the bitter herbs.

"8 Then they eat the flesh of the lamb, and again wash

"9. A third cup is then filled with wine, and this cup is called the cup of blessing, and over this cup they say grace after meat; then give thanks for the wine, and all partake of it, this is followed by the

"10 Singing of a hymn, and by prayer"

It will be seen that our Lord's first act in instituting the Sacrament coincides with the "cup of blessing," then he taketh some of the unleavened bread, blesseth and breaketh, and giveth it to be eaten for his body, from henceforth, in that sense in which the paschal lamb had been eaten, and in that sense in which the paschal lamb had hitherto represented his body. After which he finished the singing of the hymn, and went forth to the Mount of Olives To this adaptation of "the Jewish cup of blessing" to our Christian Sacrament, St. Paul refers, 1 Cor x 16.

"Where wilt thou that we prepare for thee?"—what a lesson is taught by the contrast here exhibited! Here light and darkness, life and death, are seen in the opposite characters of the faithful and the faithless The heart of the true disciple is in Christ, and in the ordinances divinely appointed—"Where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the passover?" The heart of the false disciple is centred in himself, and in his covetousness—"What will ye give me, and I will deliver him unto you?"

18 "Go to such a man, and say unto him, The Master saith."—the name of this individual is not given, and whether he was a disciple and believer, the authorities are not agreed. The words may imply the fact of his being a disciple, and such we believe was his relation to the Saviour, though it was customary for persons to receive strangers into their houses during this great national festival, as every pious Jew was expected to keep a room in his house for the convenience of strangers at the time of the feast, and no charge was to be made for the accommodation afforded.

25. "Judas said, Master, is it I?" we learn from John xiii. 26—30, that it was at this period of time that Satan so entered into Judas, that the unhappy man could no longer restrain himself, and, contrary to the law of the Passover, he went out He was hurried on by diabolical influence, and halted not till he had taken the fatal step

26—29 "Jesus took bread"—St Luke introduces the institution of the Lord's Supper, of which these verses give us the simple account, as something which took place before Judas went out (Luke xxii. 21—23), and therefore during the celebration of the Passover, and not at its close.

"Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it"- brake it after blessing it, which, says Bengel, "is inconsistent with the notion of transubstantiation"

"He took the cup, saying, Drink ye all of it."—from which it would follow that if one of the two elements were sufficient, it must have been the wine rather than the bread. In the distribution of both the bread and the wine, the words of our Lord preclude even the idea of any change in the matériel of either.

36. "Unto a place called Gethsemane:"—after the celebration of the Passover, the institution of his own Supper, the delivery of his farewell discourse, and the offering up of his intercessory prayer, our Saviour, with his disciples, hastened from the city. He passed the mountain stream, Kedron, to the staves for to take me? I sat daily with you teaching in the temple, and ye laid no hold on me.

56 But all this was done, that the scriptures of the prophets might be fulfilled. Then all the disciples forsook him, and fled.[a]

57 ¶ And they that had laid hold on Jesus led him away to Caiaphas the high priest, where the scribes and the elders were assembled.[b]

58 But Peter followed him afar off unto the high priest's palace, and went in, and sat with the servants, to see the end.

59 Now the chief priests, and elders, and all the council, sought false witness against Jesus, to put him to death;

60 But found none: yea, though many false witnesses came, yet found they none. At the last came two false witnesses,[c]

61 And said, This fellow said, I am able to destroy the temple of God, and to build it in three days.[d]

62 And the high priest arose, and said unto him, Answerest thou nothing? what is it which these witness against thee?[e]

63 But Jesus held his peace. And the high priest answered and said unto him, I adjure thee by the living God, that thou tell us whether thou be the Christ, the Son of God.[f]

64 Jesus saith unto him, Thou hast said: nevertheless I say unto you, Hereafter shall ye see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven.[g]

65 Then the high priest rent his clothes, saying, He hath spoken blasphemy; what further need have we of witnesses? behold, now ye have heard his blasphemy.[h]

66 What think ye? They answered and said, He is guilty of death.[i]

67 Then did they spit in his face, and buffeted him; and others smote him with the [1]palms of their hands,[j]

68 Saying, Prophesy unto us, thou Christ, Who is he that smote thee?[k]

69 ¶ Now Peter sat without in the palace: and a damsel came unto him, saying, Thou also wast with Jesus of Galilee.[l]

70 But he denied before them all, saying, I know not what thou sayest.

71 And when he was gone out into the porch, another maid saw him, and said unto them that were there, This fellow was also with Jesus of Nazareth.

72 And again he denied with an oath, I do not know the man.

73 And after a while came unto him they that stood by, and said to Peter, Surely thou also art one of them; for thy speech bewrayeth thee.[m]

74 Then began he to curse and to swear, saying, I know not the man. And immediately the cock crew.[n]

75 And Peter remembered the word of Jesus, which said unto him, Before the cock crow, thou shalt deny me thrice. And he went out, and wept bitterly.[o]

Mount of Olives, at whose base, on the western side, was this garden or grove of olives, with its walks, fountains, and shady retreats. It was a place of deep seclusion, peculiarly fitted to the feelings and the circumstances of the suffering Redeemer

38 "My soul is exceeding sorrowful"—this bespeaks the true and perfect manhood of our Lord, yet his will was truly one with the will of the Father, so that while his bodily frame was overpowered by fear and dread, and inward conflict, his calm resignation of will enabled him to acquiesce in all that was essential to the accomplishment of the Divine purpose If we inquire into the cause of these sufferings, there is but one answer to the question—Christ, as our substitute, was sustaining the weight, and subject to the punishment of our sins.

GETHSEMANE

39. "If it be possible, let this cup pass from me"—the cup is not to be referred to his final sufferings on the cross, but, as we imagine, to the agony—the unutterable agony to which he was then subject. This is proved by the words of the Apostle in his Epistle to the Hebrews (v. 7), where, speaking of the Saviour's mediatorial life and work, he says—"Who, in the days of his flesh, when he had offered up prayers and supplications, with strong crying and tears, unto Him that was able to save him from death, and was heard in that he feared" In the garden he feared lest his bodily powers might be unable to sustain the weight of suffering then pressing upon him, and from that he was saved, for there appeared an angel from heaven to strengthen him.

45. "Sleep on now, and take your rest"—Luther and others read this clause interrogatively—"Can ye sleep now, and take rest?"

47. "Lo, Judas came."—which words clearly prove that he had withdrawn from the society of Jesus and his disciples before they left the room in which they had celebrated the Passover and eaten of his own last supper.

"A great multitude."—this, no doubt, was composed of that detachment of the Roman cohort which was quartered in the tower of Antonia, during the Festival, as a prudent provision in the event of any disturbance or uproar

52 "Put up again thy sword into his place"—the disciple who smote the servant, and to whom these words are addressed, was Peter, and he is here reminded that the sword was an instrument wholly alien to the kingdom of Christ and the propagation of truth.

57. "Led him away to Caiaphas the high priest"—from John xviii. 13, we learn that Jesus was first taken before Annas, who was the father-in-law of Caiaphas, and was sent bound by him to Caiaphas, to meet his accusers face to face.

63 "Jesus held his peace"—in the evangelical prophet Isaiah we find the silence of the Messiah when before his judge clearly foretold, thus Prophecy fulfilled is a perpetual testimony to the truth of the Gospel—"He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth he is brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth" (Isa liii 7) But when solemnly adjured in the name of the living God, the Saviour that he might render obedience to the law—answered also by a solemn asseveration—"Thou hast said"

64 "The Son of man sitting on the right hand of power"—just as the Saviour, in his grand intercessory prayer, speaks of his work as finished, whereas the garden and the cross still lay between him and the close of his humiliation, so here he represents his reign of power and glory as already begun It is not unusual with the sacred writers to employ the present tense in place of the future, to denote the certain fulfilment of the event, so also when the Saviour speaks, the future is regarded as if present

74 "I know not the man."—in what intense light does this narrative of Peter's denial reveal the weakness of even sanctified humanity! His self-confidence was his ruin. But, oh! the infinite tenderness of redeeming love! The Saviour pities the weakness of his disciple, and from the depth of his fall raises him up. Repentance followed his fall, and life followed his repentance

CHAPTER XXVII.

1 Christ is delivered bound to Pilate. 3 Judas hangeth himself. 19 Pilate, admonished of his wife, 24 washeth his hands: 26 and looseth Barabbas. 29 Christ is crowned with thorns, 34 crucified, 40 reviled, 50 dieth, and is buried: 66 his sepulchre is sealed, and watched.

WHEN the morning was come, all the chief priests and elders of the people took counsel against Jesus to put him to death:[a]

2 And when they had bound him, they led him away, and delivered him to Pontius Pilate the governor.[b]

3 ¶ Then Judas, which had betrayed him, when he saw that he was condemned, repented himself, and brought again the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders,[c]

4 Saying, I have sinned in that I have betrayed the innocent blood. And they said, What is that to us? see thou to that.

5 And he cast down the pieces of silver in the temple, and departed, and went and hanged himself.[d]

6 And the chief priests took the silver pieces, and said, It is not lawful for to put them into the treasury, because it is the price of blood.

7 And they took counsel, and bought with them the potter's field, to bury strangers in.

8 Wherefore that field was called, The field of blood, unto this day.[e]

9 Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremy the prophet, saying, And they took the thirty pieces of silver, the price of him that was valued, [1]whom they of the children of Israel did value;[f]

10 And gave them for the potter's field, as the Lord appointed me.

11 And Jesus stood before the governor: and the governor asked him, saying, Art thou the King of the Jews? And Jesus said unto him, Thou sayest.[g]

12 And when he was accused of the chief priests and elders, he answered nothing.[h]

13 Then said Pilate unto him, Hearest thou not how many things they witness against thee?[i]

14 And he answered him to never a word; insomuch that the governor marvelled greatly.

15 Now at that feast the governor was wont to release unto the people a prisoner, whom they would.[j]

16 And they had then a notable prisoner, called Barabbas.

17 Therefore when they were gathered together, Pilate said unto them, Whom will ye that I release unto you? Barabbas, or Jesus which is called Christ?

18 For he knew that for envy they had delivered him.

19 ¶ When he was set down on the judgment seat, his wife sent unto him, saying, Have thou nothing to do with that just man: for I have suffered many things this day in a dream because of him.

20 But the chief priests and elders persuaded the multitude that they should ask Barabbas, and destroy Jesus.[k]

21 The governor answered and said unto them, Whether of the twain will ye that I release unto you? They said, Barabbas.

22 Pilate saith unto them, What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ? They all say unto him, Let him be crucified.

23 And the governor said, Why, what evil hath he done? But they cried out the more, saying, Let him be crucified.

24 ¶ When Pilate saw that he could prevail nothing, but that rather a tumult was made, he took water, and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this just person: see ye to it.[l]

25 Then answered all the people, and said, His blood be on us, and on our children.[m]

26 ¶ Then released he Barabbas unto them: and when he had scourged Jesus, he delivered him to be crucified.[n]

27 Then the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the [2]common hall, and gathered unto him the whole band of soldiers.[o]

28 And they stripped him, and put on him a scarlet robe.[p]

29 ¶ And when they had platted a crown of thorns, they put it upon his head, and a reed in his right

The Saviour was now approaching the inexpressible crisis when his sinless humanity should be exposed to "the whole aggressiveness of the power of darkness." Still he faltered not in his course. There is neither halt nor hesitation in his step. He goes to meet death with more than the heroism of the martyr. He is absorbed in the sublime end of his mission. Infinite results rise before his mind, involving the glory of his Father, and his own eternal glory in the salvation of a countless multitude of otherwise lost and ruined sinners.

1. "When the morning was come"—the object of this morning meeting of the Sanhedrim was, doubtless, to condemn the Saviour and to provide for the execution of the sentence.

2. "Delivered him to Pontius Pilate"—his residence was at Cesarea, but he was now in Jerusalem in connection with the feast.

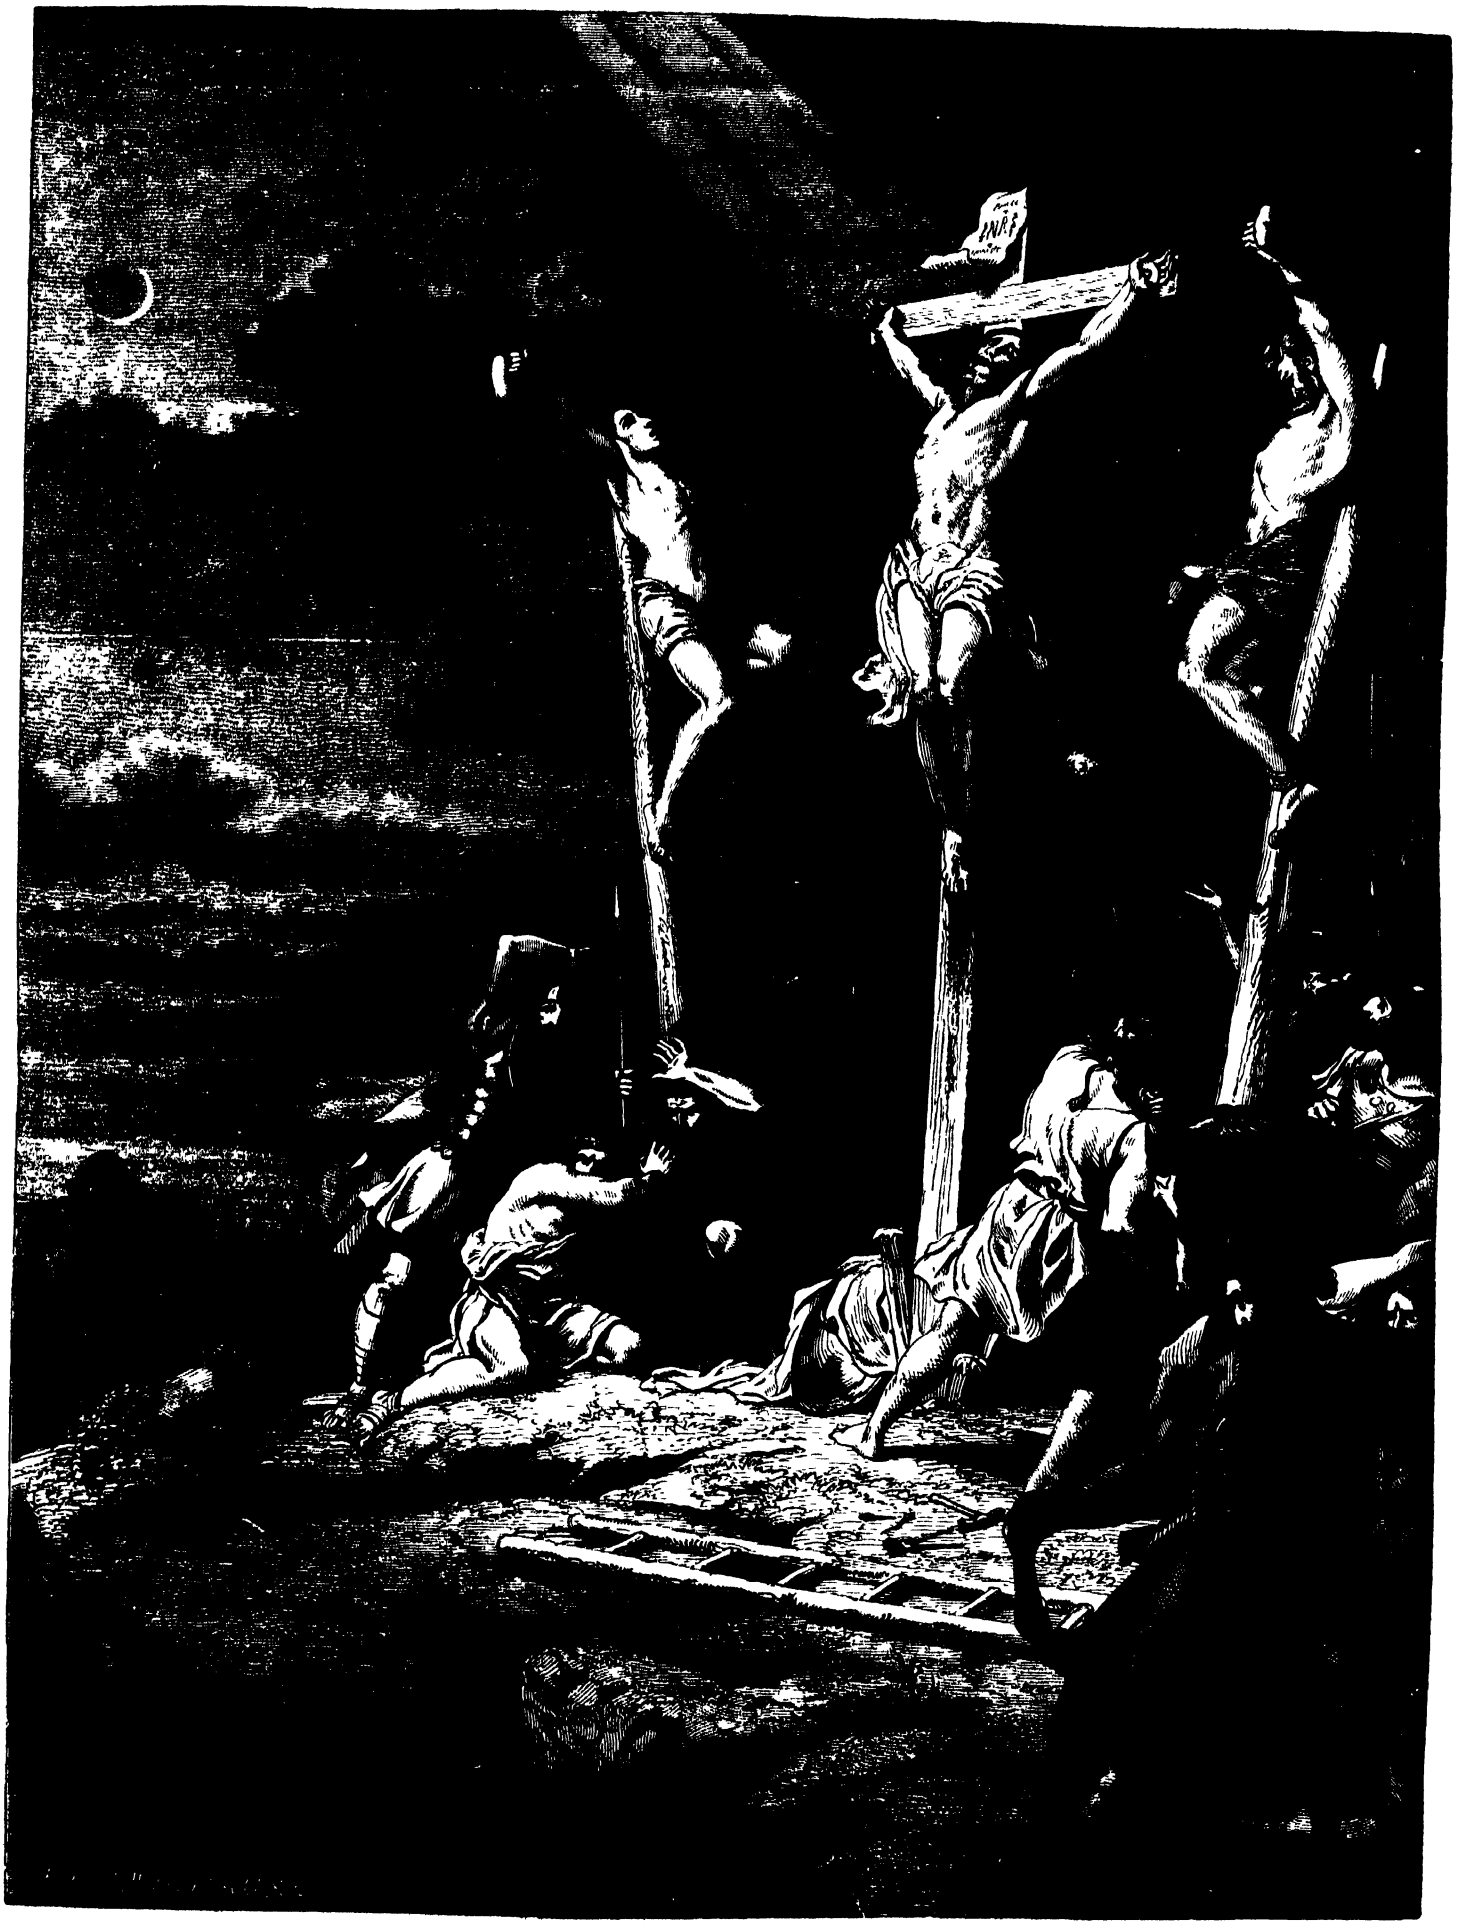
4. "What is that to us?"—pertinently says Bengel, "See how they dismiss, without remark, the question as to the innocence of their victim!" "See thou to that!" The ungodly, "though associating in the commission of a crime, desert their associates when it has been accomplished."

7. "The potter's field:"—some well-known spot, the property of some potter, who had so exhausted it that it was no longer of any use to him, and wholly unfit for tillage.

9. "Spoken by Jeremy the prophet:"—the words are found not in Jeremiah, but in Zechariah xi. 12, 13. Anciently the writings of the prophets were so arranged that the first was Jeremiah; consequently, the name might be used for any portion of the prophetical volume.

14. "Answered him to never a word:"—the charges refuted themselves; and, conscious of his innocence, the Just One made no reply.

15. "Wont to release unto the people a prisoner:"—how true is it that "even political customs subserve Divine Providence!"



16. "A notable prisoner:"—a well-known robber, notorious for his crimes. Yet he is preferred to the innocent Jesus! How does sin harden the heart and dry up every human feeling!

19. "His wife sent unto him:"—through this heathen woman, Heaven revealed to Pilate, and through him to the whole Jewish council, the innocence of Jesus.

25. "His blood be on us:"—they thus held themselves responsible for the death of Christ. If he were innocent, they were willing to bear the guilt. Unspeakable infatuation this!—unutterable wickedness!

27. "Into the common hall"—this was the Prætorium, which, among the Romans, was the name given to the court where the prætor administered justice. It was, in fact, part of his palace, and the former palace of Herod, in Upper Jerusalem, was now the residence of the Roman governor.

32. "A man of Cyrene, Simon by name:"—as the subject of a true humanity, the Saviour fainted and failed beneath the weight of the cross; and hence the fact of its being transferred to Simon. Whether this man was attached to Christ by profession, we have no means of determining; but hand: and they bowed the knee before him, and mocked him, saying, Hail, King of the Jews![a]

30 And they spit upon him, and took the reed, and smote him on the head.[b]

31 And after that they had mocked him, they took the robe off from him, and put his own raiment on him, and led him away to crucify him.[c]

32 And as they came out, they found a man of Cyrene, Simon by name: him they compelled to bear his cross.[d]

33 And when they were come unto a place called Golgotha, that is to say, a place of a skull,[e]

34 ¶ They gave him vinegar to drink mingled with gall: and when he had tasted thereof, he would not drink.[f]

35 And they crucified him, and parted his garments, casting lots: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, They parted my garments among them, and upon my vesture did they cast lots.[g]

36 And sitting down they watched him there;[h]

37 And set up over his head his accusation written, THIS IS JESUS THE KING OF THE JEWS.[i]

38 Then were there two thieves crucified with him, one on the right hand, and another on the left.[j]

39 ¶ And they that passed by reviled him, wagging their heads,[k]

40 And saying, Thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three days, save thyself. If thou be the Son of God, come down from the cross.[l]

41 Likewise also the chief priests mocking him, with the scribes and elders, said,

42 He saved others; himself he cannot save. If he be the King of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe him.

43 He trusted in God; let him deliver him now, if he will have him: for he said, I am the Son of God.[m]

44 The thieves also, which were crucified with him, cast the same in his teeth.[n]

45 Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land unto the ninth hour.[o]

46 And about the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani? that is to say, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?[p]

47 Some of them that stood there, when they heard that, said, This man calleth for Elias.

48 And straightway one of them ran, and took a spunge, and filled it with vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink.[q]

49 The rest said, Let be, let us see whether Elias will come to save him.

50 ¶ Jesus, when he had cried again with a loud voice, yielded up the ghost.[r]

51 And, behold, the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom; and the earth did quake, and the rocks rent;[s]

52 And the graves were opened; and many bodies of the saints which slept arose,

53 And came out of the graves after his resurrection, and went into the holy city, and appeared unto many.

54 Now when the centurion, and they that were with him, watching Jesus, saw the earthquake, and those things that were done, they feared greatly, saying, Truly this was the Son of God.[t]

55 And many women were there beholding afar off, which followed Jesus from Galilee, ministering unto him:[u]

56 Among which was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Joses, and the mother of Zebedee's children.[v]

57 When the even was come, there came a rich man of Arimathæa, named Joseph, who also himself was Jesus' disciple:[w]

58 He went to Pilate, and begged the body of Jesus. Then Pilate commanded the body to be delivered.

59 And when Joseph had taken the body, he wrapped it in a clean linen cloth,

60 And laid it in his own new tomb, which he had hewn out in the rock: and he rolled a great stone to the door of the sepulchre, and departed.[x] reasoning from Mark xv. 21, it is probable that both he and his family ranged themselves on the side of Christ and Truth.

Cyrene was a province and city of Libya, in which great numbers of Jews resided; and many of the Cyrenians were found among the earlier Christians.

33. "A place called Golgotha:"—this is the same spot which is elsewhere called Calvary. It was not, as some authorities tell us, "a slight elevation," but rather a kind of basin, north of the city, and about half a mile distant from the Temple. It was called the place of a skull, either from its shape, or from the fact that it was the place where criminals were executed. There is a very old tradition that here Adam was buried, and that the cross of Christ, the second Adam, was erected over the first Adam's grave.

34. "Vinegar to drink mingled with gall:"—this wine was nothing but the common sour wine; and the word rendered "gall" is used for bitters of every kind. Now, it is well known that just before crucifixion, the Romans used to present to the criminal a stupefying drink—wine mingled with myrrh—to deaden his physical sensibilities.

37. "This is Jesus the King of the Jews:"—this title was written by Pilate; and when asked by the Jews to alter its form and expression, his reply was, "What I have written, I have written;" as if he were under some restraining power—the Power which prompted him to write it at first. We read of titles being written and suspended from the neck of criminals, on their way to execution; but whether this was a usual practice, there is reason to doubt.

As it regards the title itself, it is not the same in all the Evangelists; nor should we look, in such instances, for verbal or literal exactness. Such minute correspondence of narrative is not the aim of the Evangelists, but simply to set forth the facts which were embodied in the active life and redeeming death of our Lord. These facts are not in the least degree affected by any little difference in the inspired accounts, any more than would be the recorded life of any illustrious man undertaken and published by four independent yet trustworthy writers.

45. "There was darkness over all the land:"—this phenomenon was, in the highest sense of the word, supernatural and divine. "With the sublimity of this moment, Nature herself appears to have been symbolically affected:—the light of the world seems to have been extinguished; and from the sixth to the ninth hour darkness was spread over the whole land—the land of Palestine."

46. "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"—our Lord uttered these mysterious words not in Hebrew, but in the dialect then in common use. As to the depth of their meaning, who can sound it! That this desertion was judicial, and formed the utmost limit of suffering to which even the sinless Redeemer could endure, we do most firmly believe. The final punishment of sin is separation from God, and to this the Saviour was subject during this awfully mysterious moment. Hence his never-to-be-interpreted exclamation—"My God! my God! why hast thou forsaken me?" These words are a quotation from the twenty-second Psalm.

52. "Many bodies of the saints arose:"—the graves opened as the rocks rent, and the earth quaked, and the veil of the Temple was rent; but, as is clear from the words of the next verse, the bodies did not come forth and visibly appear in the city, till the Lord himself had risen from the dead.

54. "Watching Jesus:"—this was, as in all other similar cases of execution, to prevent friends taking away the body.

60. "Laid it in his own new tomb:"—thus was fulfilled the prophecy uttered by Isaiah 745 years before—that the Messiah's death would be in the company of the wicked, but that his burial would be like unto the rich. To inter the bodies of persons crucified was rarely performed; yet our Lord's body found a temporary resting-place in the new and costly tomb of one of the wealthiest of the Jews.

St. Luke tells us that the new tomb was one "wherein never man before was 61 And there was Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary, sitting over against the sepulchre.

62 ¶ Now the next day, that followed the day of the preparation, the chief priests and Pharisees came together unto Pilate,

63 Saying, Sir, we remember that that deceiver said, while he was yet alive, After three days I will rise again.[a]

64 Command therefore that the sepulchre be made sure until the third day, lest his disciples come by night, and steal him away, and say unto the people, He is risen from the dead: so the last error shall be worse than the first.

65 Pilate said unto them, Ye have a watch: go your way, make it as sure as ye can.

66 So they went, and made the sepulchre sure, sealing the stone, and setting a watch.[b]

IN the end of the sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre.[c]

2 And, behold, there [1]was a great earthquake: for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.[d]

3 His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow:[e]

5 And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified.

6 He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay.[f]

7 And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead; and, behold, he goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him: lo, I have told you.

8 And they departed quickly from the sepulchre with fear and great joy; and did run to bring his disciples word.

9 ¶ And as they went to tell his disciples, behold, Jesus met them, saying, All hail. And they came and held him by the feet, and worshipped him.[g]

10 Then said Jesus unto them, Be not afraid: go tell my brethren that they go into Galilee, and there shall they see me.[h]

11 ¶ Now when they were going, behold, some of the watch came into the city, and shewed unto the chief priests all the things that were done.

12 And when they were assembled with the elders, and had taken counsel, they gave large money unto the soldiers, 13 Saying, Say ye, His disciples came by night, and stole him away while we slept.

14 And if this come to the governor's ears, we will persuade him, and secure you.

15 So they took the money, and did as they were taught: and this saying is commonly reported among the Jews until this day.

laid," and therefore when Christ rose it was impossible to deny his identity. His body could be confounded with no other.

"Jesus Christ, the Leader and Guide of life, was placed in the tomb of another!" And why? Clearly "implying that the tomb was something alien and strange for him, the Lord of Life, to be associated with. Therefore he had no tomb of his own"

66 "Sealing the stone"—This was done by carrying a cord across the stone which covered the mouth of the sepulchre, and fastening it at either end to the rock by sealing clay.

What a sublime spectacle does the death of Christ present! "Whilst a Socrates can conquer only so long as he remains in the full possession of his spirit's complete power, the Redeemer triumphed over the whole power of darkness, even when forsaken by God and by the fulness of his own Spirit;" and when he bowed his head in death, it was to redeem the bodies of all men from the grave, and the souls of all believers from eternal death.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

SYNOPSIS.—Matt xxviii 1—15, Mark xvi 1—8, Luke xxiv. 1—12, John xx. 1—10. Matt. xxviii 16—20.

The darkness connected with the cross, and the death of Christ, was followed by a light partaking of the brightness of heaven and immortality. It was not possible that the Saviour of the world could be holden of death. His resurrection was the proof that he was what he professed to be—the Son of God and the Redeemer of man. Now, the fact of his resurrection is beyond all dispute. The testimony of the Gospels is confirmed by the concurrent testimony of both friends and foes. The narratives of the Four Evangelists have in them an independence and a distinctness not to be mistaken. To reconcile every minute point in their several accounts is unnecessary, as the slight variations impart strength to their testimony.

1. "To see the sepulchre:"—in the sixty-first verse of the preceding chapter, we are told that these women followed the body of Jesus to the tomb, and then sat down to witness the final disposing of that body. They then returned home and prepared the materials for the embalming of the Saviour's body; and no sooner does the third day begin to dawn than they hasten to the sepulchre to perform their deed of affectionate love.

2. "Rolled back the stone:"—not that the Saviour might come forth, but that the disciples might enter. Olshausen says beautifully—"The creating energies operated in silence and unobservedly; and for the sublime person of the Lord wove as it were a raiment of celestial light—one worthy of investing the Monarch of the world of light. Hence, accordingly, no human eye beheld at that moment, when the energies of life were influencing it, how the body of the Holy One arose." No; and the writers of the Christian Testament merely make mention of what they themselves saw, when they tell us that the sepulchre was already empty.

4. "The keepers became as dead men:"—they were there when the women arrived, and the arrival of the women may have been the moment of these angelic appearances. The angel left these keepers thus overpowered and helpless, and addressed himself to the faithful, yet sorrowing women, in words replete with life and consolation. Even military daring is changed to awe in the presence of the inhabitants of heaven.

5. "Fear not:"—"an expression," says Bengel, "used at the commencement of visions, which tempers the fear arising from the glorious sight overpowering the hearts of mortals, which promises security, and conciliates attention." One of the most striking examples of this truth is in the case of St. John, when caught up in sublime vision, and favoured with a sight of the glorified Redeemer, at whose feet he fell as dead, and did not recover till the Saviour laid his right hand upon him, and said, "FEAR NOT" There is a power in these words, when thus spoken, which exceeds expression

7. "Tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead:"—it was indeed a pre-eminent honour conferred on these women, that our Lord appeared to them the first after his resurrection, and that through them the fact of his return to life was first announced to his apostles, who were bound, from the frequent and distinct intimations which the Saviour had given them during his intercourse with them, to have believed, without waiting for the evidence of sense. His appearance in Galilee could have been no less interesting than solemn. We may well conceive that "the disciples were glad when they saw the Lord."

8 "They departed quickly:"—the words of the angel fell like sweetest music on their ear, and, full of joyous confidence, they hasten back to assure their fellow-disciples that their Lord and Saviour was risen from the dead.

9. "Jesus met them:"—it would seem that this appearance of the risen Christ to these believing women preceded that to the two disciples on their way to Emmaus. These women were the last at his cross, and the first at his grave, and now, before all others, they were honoured and blessed. They were first permitted to see and know the Saviour who loved him with the greatest ardour, and sought him with the greatest zeal.

"HE IS NOT HERE: FOR HE IS RISEN, AS HE SAID. COME, SEE THE PLACE WHERE THE LORD LAY."—MATTHEW XXVIII. 6.

17 And when they saw him, they worshipped him: but some doubted.

18 And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.[a]

19 ¶ Go ye therefore, and [1]teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost:[b]

20 Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen.[c]

11—15. These verses supply one of the very strongest proofs in support of Christ's resurrection If he had not risen, why should the soldiers leave their post and thus hazard their lives? Why should the Sanhedrim be in such haste to assemble? Why should they bribe the Roman soldiers, and suggest an untruth for their defence? Why should the soldiers accept the bribe, and tell the falsehood, on the assurance that the Sanhedrim would protect them from all consequences?

16 "Where Jesus had appointed them:"—which mountain in Galilee this was we are not told; but this appearance of the risen Saviour is supposed to be the same as that alluded to by St. Paul in 1 Cor. xv. 6, when five hundred of the brethren were present.

18 "All power is given unto me:"—his resurrection was the pledge of his exaltation and universal empire.

19 "In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost:"—in this formula we have a distinct revelation of the glorious doctrine of the Trinity. It is the Triune God who is the God of salvation.

SYNOPSIS.—Mark i. 1—11, Matt. iii. 1—17; Luke i. 22. Mark i. 12, 13. Matt. iv. 1—11. Luke iv. 1—13. Mark i. 14—28, Matt. iv. 12—22, Luke iv. 14, 15, 31—37. Mark i. 29—38, Matt. viii. 14—17, Luke iv. 38—43. Mark i. 39—45, Matt. viii. 2—4, Luke v. 12—14.

For any knowledge which we have of the Evangelist Mark, we are indebted wholly to the Christian Volume. His mother, who resided in Jerusalem, was the sister of Barnabas, the companion and fellow-labourer of St. Paul, while, from the language employed by Peter, in his First Epistle (v. 13), it has been inferred that he himself was a convert of that Apostle.

Judæa, and they of Jerusalem, and were all baptized of him in the river of Jordan, confessing their sins.[a]

6 And John was clothed with camel's hair, and with a girdle of a skin about his loins; and he did eat locusts and wild honey;[b]

7 And preached, saying, There cometh one mightier than I after me, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to stoop down and unloose.[c]

8 I indeed have baptized you with water: but he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost.[d]

9 And it came to pass in those days, that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized of John in Jordan.[e]

10 And straightway coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens [1]opened, and the Spirit like a dove descending upon him:[f]

11 And there came a voice from heaven, saying, Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.[g]

12 And immediately the spirit driveth him into the wilderness.[h]

13 And he was there in the wilderness forty days, tempted of Satan; and was with the wild beasts; and the angels ministered unto him.[i]

14 Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God,[j]

15 And saying, The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye, and believe the gospel.[k]

16 Now as he walked by the sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and Andrew his brother casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers.[l]

17 And Jesus said unto them, Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men.

18 And straightway they forsook their nets, and followed him.[m]

19 And when he had gone a little farther thence, he saw James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, who also were in the ship mending their nets.[n]

20 And straightway he called them: and they left their father Zebedee in the ship with the hired servants, and went after him.

21 And they went into Capernaum; and straightway on the sabbath day he entered into the synagogue, and taught.[o]

22 And they were astonished at his doctrine: for he taught them as one that had authority, and not as the scribes.[p]

23 And there was in their synagogue a man with an unclean spirit; and he cried out,[q]

24 Saying, Let us alone; what have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth? art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art, the Holy One of God.[r]

25 And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him.[s]

26 And when the unclean spirit had torn him, and cried with a loud voice, he came out of him.[t]

27 And they were all amazed, insomuch that they questioned among themselves, saying, What thing is this? what new doctrine is this? for with authority commandeth he even the unclean spirits, and they do obey him.

28 And immediately his fame spread abroad throughout all the region round about Galilee.

29 And forthwith, when they were come out of the synagogue, they entered into the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John.[u]

30 But Simon's wife's mother lay sick of a fever, and anon they tell him of her.

31 And he came and took her by the hand, and lifted her up; and immediately the fever left her, and she ministered unto them.

32 And at even, when the sun did set, they brought unto him all that were diseased, and them that were possessed with devils.[v]

33 And all the city was gathered together at the door.

34 And he healed many that were sick of divers diseases, and cast out many devils; and suffered not the devils [2]to speak, because they knew him.[w]

35 And in the morning, rising up a great while before day, he went out, and departed into a solitary place, and there prayed.[x]

36 And Simon and they that were with him followed after him.

He had the double name of John Mark (Acts xii 12), and sometimes he is called by the one, and sometimes by the other He was chosen as the companion of Paul and Barnabas in their first missionary journey, during which journey his conduct led to a difference between these two holy and devoted men, and to their separation as co-workers in the propagation of Christian Truth For a time Mark travelled with Barnabas, but afterwards he was re-united to Paul, and was of great service to the Apostle in the prosecution of his sublime work He then allied himself with Peter, and co-operated with him in more than one sphere of his labour —see Acts xii. 12, 25; xiii. 5, 13, xv 37–40, Col. iv 10, 2 Tim iv. 11, Philemon 24, 1 Peter v. 13

That Mark wrote his narrative in Greek, there can be no doubt The date of the composition has been fixed A D 63, but not, as some authorities assert, subsequent to the death of Paul and Peter, though before the destruction of Jerusalem.

A portion of Mark's narrative is, no doubt, to be ascribed to his own vivid recollection of the events and of the sayings here recorded, a portion, also, was probably derived from the Apostles during Mark's intercourse and fellowship with them. One thing is certain, that from whatever source he derived his materials, he was, in the act of arranging and recording, under supernatural, infallible influence.

That the internal evidence favours the idea of this Gospel having been written for Gentile Christians, is beyond dispute; but no less clear is it, from the whole structure of the narrative, that it was designed especially for the busy, enterprising, warlike Romans; and hence it is that Mark leaves out the genealogy and early history of the Saviour, and enters at once into the active scenes of his unequalled life—a fact which accounts for those peculiarly graphic touches to be found in this Gospel.

1. "The beginning of the gospel."—that is, the commencement of the Evangelical History or Era It began or opened with the entrance of Christ on his public life and ministry, and is, in fact, the narrative of the development and progress of Christ's spiritual kingdom

2, 3 "Written in the prophets"—these words incontrovertibly prove that many of the Old Testament prophecies have an ultimate reference and a final accomplishment, as well as that which is nearer and more immediate.

4. "The baptism of repentance"—why did John connect baptism with the doctrine of repentance? Repentance is a change in our mental and moral convictions, leading to reformation and purity of life, of which the water in baptism was the significant symbol.

5—11. On these verses, see Matt. iii. 1—12, with the Notes and the Commentary thereon.

13. "With the wild beasts:"—this was something more than the mere solitude of the desert. Altogether removed from the interposition and the help of men, and exposed to the attacks of these wild beasts, how beautifully striking is the fact that, in the very depth of his humiliation, he exercised over the lower creation that very dominion which Adam lost by his fall!

15. "The time is fulfilled:"—the predicted and ordained time had now come for the proclamation of mercy to man, through faith in the Redeemer, and for the offer of all the blessings of redemption.

In verses 16—28 we have strikingly brought out the career of our Lord

37 And when they had found him, they said unto him, All men seek for thee.

38 And he said unto them, Let us go into the next towns, that I may preach there also: for therefore came I forth.[a]

39 And he preached in their synagogues throughout all Galilee, and cast out devils.[b]

40 And there came a leper to him, beseeching him, and kneeling down to him, and saying unto him, If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.[c]

41 And Jesus, moved with compassion, put forth his hand, and touched him, and saith unto him, I will; be thou clean.

42 And as soon as he had spoken, immediately the leprosy departed from him, and he was cleansed.

43 And he straitly charged him, and forthwith sent him away;

44 And saith unto him, See thou say nothing to any man: but go thy way, shew thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing those things which Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them.[d]

45 But he went out, and began to publish it much, and to blaze abroad the matter, insomuch that Jesus could no more openly enter into the city, but was without in desert places: and they came to him from every quarter.[e]

CHAPTER II.

1 Christ healeth one sick of the palsy, 14 calleth Matthew from the receipt of custom, 15 eateth with publicans and sinners, 18 excuseth his disciples for not fasting, 23 and for plucking the ears of corn on the sabbath day.

AND again he entered into Capernaum after some days; and it was noised that he was in the house.[f]

2 And straightway many were gathered together, insomuch that there was no room to receive them, no, not so much as about the door: and he preached the word unto them.

3 And they come unto him, bringing one sick of the palsy, which was borne of four.

4 And when they could not come nigh unto him for the press, they uncovered the roof where he was: and when they had broken it up, they let down the bed wherein the sick of the palsy lay.

5 When Jesus saw their faith, he said unto the sick of the palsy, Son, thy sins be forgiven thee.

6 But there were certain of the scribes sitting there, and reasoning in their hearts,

7 Why doth this man thus speak blasphemies? who can forgive sins but God only?[g]

8 And immediately when Jesus perceived in his spirit that they so reasoned within themselves, he said unto them, Why reason ye these things in your hearts?[h]

9 Whether is it easier to say to the sick of the palsy, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and take up thy bed, and walk?[i]

10 But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (he saith to the sick of the palsy,)

11 I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy bed, and go thy way into thine house.

12 And immediately he arose, took up the bed, and went forth before them all; insomuch that they were all amazed, and glorified God, saying, We never saw it on this fashion.

13 And he went forth again by the sea side; and all the multitude resorted unto him, and he taught them.[j]

14 And as he passed by, he saw Levi the son of Alphæus sitting [1]at the receipt of custom, and said unto him, Follow me. And he arose and followed him.[k]

15 And it came to pass, that, as Jesus sat at meat in his house, many publicans and sinners sat also together with Jesus and his disciples: for there were many, and they followed him.[l]

16 And when the scribes and Pharisees saw him eat with publicans and sinners, they said unto his disciples, How is it that he eateth and drinketh with publicans and sinners?

17 When Jesus heard it, he saith unto them, They that are whole have no need of the physician, but they that are sick: I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.[m] who, in pressing towards the one grand goal of his mission, passed from scene to scene with such swift and sanctified step as most delightfully to impress us with the sinless freedom of his nature.

29–34. Unlimited power had he over disease and every form of human woe. The most striking feature in the Saviour's life is his unceasing beneficent activity. How true is it that "he went about doing good!" And what a sublime embodiment of his own words—"It is more blessed to give than to receive!

35. "There prayed:"—notwithstanding his unparalleled activity, and the brief space in which he must accomplish his mysterious work, he yet found time for retirement and prayer. And so must we. All life is exhaustive; and life can only be replenished at its own uncreated, eternal Source.

45. "Began to publish it much:"—the man had become conscious of the power of new affections—his heart had been drawn to Christ, and out of the abundance of the heart he could not but speak.

Bengel says that Mark exercises especial assiduity in observing the holy movements of feeling, and so the acts and operations of Jesus; and that "whoever will pay marked attention to this characteristic, in reading his Gospel, will derive from it no little delight."

CHAPTER II.

Synopsis:—Mark ii. 1–12; Matt. ix. 2–8; Luke v. 17–26. Mark ii. 13–22; Matt. ix. 9–17; Luke v. 27–39. Mark ii. 23–28; Matt. xii. 1–8; Luke vi. 1–5.

1. "Again he entered into Capernaum:"—in Capernaum, which was a city of renown on the western shore of the Sea of Tiberias, and the metropolis of all Galilee, our Lord had already taught and done some of his wonderful works, and now, no sooner does he reappear in the city, than the people crowd to hear his words and see his deeds

3. "Sick of the palsy:"—this disease has its type with us in paralysis, or the loss of nervous energy.

4. "Uncovered the roof:"—the roof was flat, the house was perhaps low and easy of ascent, and only so much of the roof or canvas was removed as to admit of the descent of the couch.

5. "Their faith."—not only the faith of the sick man, but of those who, at his request, had borne or carried him into the presence of Christ. The higher the faith, the greater and more signal the miracle.

8. "Perceived in his spirit."—that is, in his human mind, immediately and infallibly informed through the omniscience of that Spirit which was given to him without measure, and which was present with him in every act of his life and ministry. From the fact that the Holy Ghost is never called the Spirit of Christ till after the great Pentecostal effusion, there are those who understand "the Spirit of Jesus" as applying to his Divine nature; but we prefer the sense which we have ventured to put upon the words

12. "We never saw it on this fashion:"—the voice of the people was decidedly in his favour; but notwithstanding the irresistible force of the evidence which he gave, by his ministry and miracles, in support of his claims, the Sanhedrim and the higher classes of society were fiercely opposed to the truths taught, and to the Saviour's claims to the Messiahship.

13. "By the sea side:"—that is, on the banks of the Lake of Tiberias, on whose western shore the city of Capernaum stood.

18 And the disciples of John and of the Pharisees used to fast: and they come and say unto him, Why do the disciples of John and of the Pharisees fast, but thy disciples fast not?[a]

19 And Jesus said unto them, Can the children of the bridechamber fast, while the bridegroom is with them? as long as they have the bridegroom with them, they cannot fast.

20 But the days will come, when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them, and then shall they fast in those days.

21 No man also seweth a piece of [1]new cloth on an old garment: else the new piece that filled it up taketh away from the old, and the rent is made worse.

22 And no man putteth new wine into old bottles: else the new wine doth burst the bottles, and the wine is spilled, and the bottles will be marred: but new wine must be put into new bottles.

23 And it came to pass, that he went through the corn fields on the sabbath day; and his disciples began, as they went, to pluck the ears of corn.[b]

24 And the Pharisees said unto him, Behold, why do they on the sabbath day that which is not lawful?

25 And he said unto them, Have ye never read what David did, when he had need, and was an hungred, he, and they that were with him?[c]

26 How he went into the house of God in the days of Abiathar the high priest, and did eat the shewbread, which is not lawful to eat but for the priests, and gave also to them which were with him?[d]

27 And he said unto them, The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath:

28 Therefore the Son of man is Lord also of the sabbath.[e]

14 "He saw Levi,"—that this was the same individual as Matthew the Evangelist, we have shown in the Notes on Matt ix 9–17. His father, Alphæus, is not to be confounded with Alphæus, the father of James (Matt x 3), between whom there is no proof that any relationship existed.

From the fact that Jesus found Levi at the sea-side, in the prosecution of his daily calling, it has been fairly inferred that the dues which he collected were derivable from traffic on the water.

"He arose and followed him"—the outward act was but indicative of the inward and spiritual state of the man's heart.

15 "Sat at meat in his house"—that is, in the house of Levi, and not, as Meyer and others would have us believe, in the house of Jesus. The Saviour had no fixed abode, but was everywhere entertained by his disciples and friends.

16 "How is it that he eateth and drinketh with publicans and sinners?"—what ignorance does this display of the character of the Messiah, and the object of his mission!

20 "Then shall they fast in those days"—from the reading of the eighteenth verse, it might be inferred not only that fasting was a custom with the disciples of John and of the Pharisees, but that they were at this very time in the act of keeping a fast. Hence the question, "Why do the disciples of John and of the Pharisees fast, but thy disciples fast not?" They were ignorant of the nature of the Christian faith. It was directly opposed to the sour and unyielding severities of other systems, and was designed to introduce man into a freer and nobler life. How, then, could Christ's disciples be sad and sorrowful in his own society? It was not his presence, but his absence, that was to make heavy their hearts.

26 "In the days of Abiathar the high priest"—these words have been shown to be consistent with the historical facts of the case. Bengel says—"Ahimelech was the priest who gave loaves of bread to David, but, on his being put to death for that very act, his son Abiathar presently after succeeded to him, and afterwards the priesthood of Abiathar and the reign of David were contemporary. The series of the priests was very well known among the Hebrews, and so the denomination of the age of David is taken from the priest of that day; and, indeed, the Evangelist mentions Abiathar, in whose time the actions of David seem to have been entered in the Sacred Records, in preference to that of Ahimelech. Not unlike is the phraseology in Genesis ii. 2, 'On the seventh day God ended his work,' in which case we should have said, 'At the close of the sixth day.'" no reasonable objection, with those against which they were not slow to reveal their hatred, even up to the point of plotting his death, here alludes, in more general terms, to their malicious intentions. Meek and lowly, gentle and loving, as was the Redeemer of man, he had to enter into conflict with the most determined antagonism, and to urge his way through the most fiery persecution.

1. "He entered again"—this was, as we learn from the next verse, on the Sabbath, and therefore a week after his former appearance in the same synagogue—the Sabbath preceding the Passover.

"A withered hand:"—the man was, doubtless, a paralytic, whose hand had lost all nervous power.

2 "They watched him"—on the preceding Sabbath they had listened to his exposition of the doctrine of the Sabbath, and now they secretly watch him, to see whether he would violate what they deemed the law of the Sabbath.

Grieved for the hardness of their hearts"—how true is it, that "the habitual disposition of the heart renders the perception of the truth, and of its conclusions, either difficult or easy! . . It is blindness not to see, hardness not to perceive." Hence it was that the Saviour's grief was combined with corresponding anger.

6. "Counsel with the Herodians"—the Herodians were of the sect of the Sadducees, attached to the government of Herod, but the reason of these two opposite sects—the Pharisees and the Herodians—now uniting against our Lord, does not appear.—See Matt. xvi. 6; xxii. 16.

7 "Withdrew himself."—he would not unnecessarily expose himself to their malignant deadly plots.

8. "From Jerusalem;"—"Tyre and Sidon·"—these were Israelites living in or near these various localities. The mention of the places indicates to us the composition of the multitudes who now flocked around the Saviour to hear his words, or feel his power, or see his deeds.

11. "Unclean spirits fell down:"—that is, the persons possessed of such unclean spirits.

13. "Goeth up into a mountain:"—for communion with his Father ere he proceeded to give the Twelve their solemn commission.

14. "Ordained twelve."—"the characteristics of these twelve Apostles were, an immediate and direct call, a continuous intercourse with Christ, the being eye-witnesses, the right of preaching universally, and the gift of miracles;" but this definition of an apostle does not apply to St. Paul, so far as relates to the intercourse with the Saviour, and being an eye-witness.

17. "Surnamed them Boanerges:"—in this our Saviour asserts his supreme authority, since it is declared to be "a mark of lordship to give a surname."

18. "James the son of Alphæus:"—we have two men of the same name, but not related by the ties of nature. James the son of Alphæus resided at Jerusalem, was known as James the Less, and died as a martyr in the year 62, and is often mentioned with distinction.

21. "He is beside himself:"—just as Festus said to Paul while defending himself, "Thou art beside thyself; too much learning doth make thee mad," so here those messengers who reported the Saviour's procedure to his relatives and friends attribute his holy earnestness and sinless activity to mental aberration. Men will justify enthusiasm in everything, except in religion.

22—30. On these verses see the Notes on Matthew xii. 22–32. Blasphemy against the Holy Spirit is, of all offences, the most dishonouring to God and the most pernicious to man; therefore it is the master-snare of Satan, and the climax of sin.

31. "Came his brethren and his mother:"—in consequence, no doubt, of the report which had reached them (verse 21) that he was beside himself.

35. "The same is my brother, and my sister and mother:"—there are ties and relations more intimate than those of kindred—more blessed and more enduring. The union between Christ and the soul is formed for eternity.

CHAPTER IV.

SYNOPSIS:—Mark iv 1—20; Matt. xiii. 1—23; Luke viii. 4—15. Mark iv. 21—29, 30—34; Matt. xiii. 31—35; Luke xiii. 18—21. Mark iv. 35—41; Matt. viii 23—27; Luke viii. 22—25.

The Saviour being the subject of a true humanity, his physical nature was under the same laws of limitation as our own. He needed his seasons of rest, refreshment, and repose; and from the narrative of St. Matthew, it would appear that he had withdrawn for a short time from the public duties which were pressing upon him, and in retirement he sought that invigoration and holy refreshment which were needed in the prosecution of his unparalleled work.

1. "Began again to teach:"—came forth from his retirement. He had perhaps taken up his dwelling in Capernaum; and in order to avoid the pressure of the throng, he went down to the lake, entered a boat which lay there ready in the water, and from which, having thrust a little way from the bank, he taught the people as they crowded the shore.

2. "Taught them by parables:"—a great deal of time has been spent in trying to distinguish between the parable and the proverb. In every instance, as employed by our Lord, the parable is the introduction of some apt and well-chosen illustration, under which to exhibit some higher spiritual truth.

10. "When he was alone, they asked him of the parable:"—from this it appears that the parables were not all delivered at once or in continuous succession, but that intervals of time elapsed between some of them, in one of

5 And some fell on stony ground, where it had not much earth; and immediately it sprang up, because it had no depth of earth:

6 But when the sun was up, it was scorched; and because it had no root, it withered away.

7 And some fell among thorns, and the thorns grew up, and choked it, and it yielded no fruit.

8 And other fell on good ground, and did yield fruit that sprang up and increased; and brought forth, some thirty, and some sixty, and some an hundred.[a]

9 And he said unto them, He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

10 And when he was alone, they that were about him with the twelve asked of him the parable.[b]

11 And he said unto them, Unto you it is given to know the mystery of the kingdom of God: but unto them that are without, all these things are done in parables:[c]

12 That seeing they may see, and not perceive; and hearing they may hear, and not understand; lest at any time they should be converted, and their sins should be forgiven them.[d]

13 And he said unto them, Know ye not this parable? and how then will ye know all parables?

14 ¶ The sower soweth the word.[e]

15 And these are they by the way side, where the word is sown; but when they have heard, Satan cometh immediately, and taketh away the word that was sown in their hearts.

16 And these are they likewise which are sown on stony ground; who, when they have heard the word, immediately receive it with gladness;

17 And have no root in themselves, and so endure but for a time: afterward, when affliction or persecution ariseth for the word's sake, immediately they are offended.

18 And these are they which are sown among thorns; such as hear the word,

19 And the cares of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things entering in, choke the word, and it becometh unfruitful.[f]

20 And these are they which are sown on good ground; such as hear the word, and receive it, and bring forth fruit, some thirtyfold, some sixty, and some an hundred.

21 ¶ And he said unto them, Is a candle brought to be put under [1]a bushel, or under a bed? and not to be set on a candlestick?[g]

22 For there is nothing hid, which shall not be manifested; neither was any thing kept secret, but that it should come abroad.[h]

23 If any man have ears to hear, let him hear.[i]

24 And he said unto them, Take heed what ye hear: with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you: and unto you that hear shall more be given.[j]

25 For he that hath, to him shall be given: and he that hath not, from him shall be taken even that which he hath.[k]

26 ¶ And he said, So is the kingdom of God, as if a man should cast seed into the ground;[l]

27 And should sleep, and rise night and day, and the seed should spring and grow up, he knoweth not how.

28 For the earth bringeth forth fruit of herself; first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear.

29 But when the fruit is [2]brought forth, immediately he putteth in the sickle, because the harvest is come.[m]

30 ¶ And he said, Whereunto shall we liken the kingdom of God? or with what comparison shall we compare it?[n]

31 It is like a grain of mustard seed, which, when it is sown in the earth, is less than all the seeds that be in the earth:

32 But when it is sown, it groweth up, and becometh greater than all herbs, and shooteth out great branches; so that the fowls of the air may lodge under the shadow of it.

33 And with many such parables spake he the word unto them, as they were able to hear it.[o]

34 But without a parable spake he not unto them: and when they were alone, he expounded all things to his disciples.

35 And the same day, when the even was come, he saith unto them, Let us pass over unto the other side.[p]

36 And when they had sent away the multitude, they took him even as he was in the ship. And there were also with him other little ships.

37 And there arose a great storm of wind, and the waves beat into the ship, so that it was now full.

38 And he was in the hinder part of the ship, asleep on a pillow: and they awake him, and say unto him, Master, carest thou not that we perish?

39 And he arose, and rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, Peace, be still. And the wind ceased, and there was a great calm.

40 And he said unto them, Why are ye so fearful? how is it that ye have no faith?

41 And they feared exceedingly, and said one to another, What manner of man is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?

which intervals the disciples requested the Saviour to give them an exposition of the parable of the sower. It is one of the few parables of which we have an authentic explanation by our Lord himself, and this renders every other exposition needless.

12. "That seeing they may see:"—they affected not to perceive the meaning and the force of our Lord's teaching. It was a voluntary, wilful blindness; and to this was now to be added judicial blindness. They were to be left in their wilful ignorance—left, therefore, to the perils that follow final impenitence.

13. "Know ye not this parable?"—this parable seems to combine the entire doctrines of Christ; and hence, if they understood not this one, how could they understand any other?

21—25. The connection of these words with what precedes and follows is at first not so clear. We think it to be this: Wherever there is life, as in the seed, there will be development; so wherever there is light—as in the lamp which is put, not under a bushel, nor under a couch, but on a lampbearer—there will be a diffusion of that light. If, therefore, we receive the truth, its power will sooner or later reveal itself in the life and character. But we must take heed what we hear, since in proportion to our reception of the truth, and our diligence in the duties inculcated by the truth, will more be given to us. The misimprovement of our privileges is fatal to our temporal benefit, as well as to our eternal interests.

26—34. These two parables set forth the successive stages of the Divine life in the soul of the individual believer, or the progressive growth and development of the Church or kingdom of Christ in the world.

35—41. On these verses, see Matt. viii. 23—27. In this stupendous miracle of our Lord, we know not whether more to admire his majesty or his benignity—his greatness or his goodness.

AND they came over unto the other side of the sea, into the country of the Gadarenes.[a]

2 And when he was come out of the ship, immediately there met him out of the tombs a man with an unclean spirit,

3 Who had his dwelling among the tombs; and no man could bind him, no, not with chains:

4 Because that he had been often bound with fetters and chains, and the chains had been plucked asunder by him, and the fetters broken in pieces: neither could any man tame him.

5 And always, night and day, he was in the mountains, and in the tombs, crying, and cutting himself with stones.

6 But when he saw Jesus afar off, he ran and worshipped him,

7 And cried with a loud voice, and said, What have I to do with thee, Jesus, thou Son of the most high God? I adjure thee by God, that thou torment me not.

8 For he said unto him, Come out of the man, thou unclean spirit.

9 And he asked him, What is thy name? And he answered, saying, My name is Legion: for we are many.

10 And he besought him much that he would not send them away out of the country.

11 Now there was there nigh unto the mountains a great herd of swine feeding.

12 And all the devils besought him, saying, Send us into the swine, that we may enter into them.

13 And forthwith Jesus gave them leave. And the unclean spirits went out, and entered into the swine: and the herd ran violently down a steep place into the sea, (they were about two thousand;) and were choked in the sea.

14 And they that fed the swine fled, and told it in the city, and in the country. And they went out to see what it was that was done.

15 And they come to Jesus, and see him that was possessed with the devil, and had the legion, sitting, and clothed, and in his right mind: and they were afraid.

16 And they that saw it told them how it befell to him that was possessed with the devil, and also concerning the swine.

17 And they began to pray him to depart out of their coasts.[b]

18 And when he was come into the ship, he that had been possessed with the devil prayed him that he might be with him.[c]

SYNOPSIS.—Mark v 1–20, Matt. viii. 28–34; Luke viii 26–39. Mark v 21–43; Matt ix. 18–26; Luke viii. 40–56.

The introduction of evil is one of those mysteries which the human mind is incompetent to deal with. The fact that evil exists is inscribed in the history of man in indelible characters; and it is this fact which furnishes the key to the sublime doctrine of redemption through the mediation of Christ. Sin is in the world, and for sin Christ died. Nor can we fail to be impressed with his power over evil during his life and ministry. Having himself entered into conflict with evil and overcome it, one object of his mission was to set free humanity from its thraldom. Hence his merciful treatment of those possessed ones who came to him imploring his interposition and help. He was manifested that he might destroy the works of the devil, and the benefits conferred are designed to shadow forth the spiritual mercies which Christ is willing to bestow upon those that come to him.

RUINS OF GADARA.

1. "Country of the Gadarenes."—Gadara was one of the cities of Decapolis, in which many Jews dwelt.

3. "No man could bind him:"—that maniacs often put forth a kind of supernatural strength is beyond all question.

"Cutting himself with stones."—the fact of his being possessed is proved by the absence of that love of self-preservation which the Creator has planted within us, and which is so natural and proper to man for his protection.

6. "Ran and worshipped him:"—in spite of the demons who possessed him. Does not this indicate that our Lord was already exerting his power over the unclean spirit?

7. "Torment me not:"—this is the language not of the man, but of the demon, who feared lest he should be cast out. He regarded expulsion as a second torment.

9. "My name is legion:"—of this legion there was one principal leader. Pertinently says Bengel, "If in this unhappy sufferer there were so many, how many must there be throughout the world?"

Jairus was thus the superintendent, or president, of the synagogue at Capernaum.

24 And Jesus went with him; and much people followed him, and thronged him.

25 And a certain woman, which had an issue of blood twelve years,[a]

26 And had suffered many things of many physicians, and had spent all that she had, and was nothing bettered, but rather grew worse,

27 When she had heard of Jesus, came in the press behind, and touched his garment.

28 For she said, If I may touch but his clothes, I shall be whole.

29 And straightway the fountain of her blood was dried up; and she felt in her body that she was healed of that plague.

30 And Jesus, immediately knowing in himself that virtue had gone out of him, turned him about in the press, and said, Who touched my clothes?[b]

31 And his disciples said unto him, Thou seest the multitude thronging thee, and sayest thou, Who touched me?

32 And he looked round about to see her that had done this thing.

33 But the woman fearing and trembling, knowing what was done in her, came and fell down before him, and told him all the truth.

34 And he said unto her, Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace, and be whole of thy plague.[c]

35 While he yet spake, there came from the ruler of the synagogue's house certain which said, Thy daughter is dead: why troublest thou the Master any further?[d]

36 As soon as Jesus heard the word that was spoken, he saith unto the ruler of the synagogue, Be not afraid, only believe.

37 And he suffered no man to follow him, save Peter, and James, and John the brother of James.

38 And he cometh to the house of the ruler of the synagogue, and seeth the tumult, and them that wept and wailed greatly.

39 And when he was come in, he saith unto them, Why make ye this ado, and weep? the damsel is not dead, but sleepeth.[e]

40 And they laughed him to scorn. But when he had put them all out, he taketh the father and the mother of the damsel, and them that were with him, and entereth in where the damsel was lying.[f]

41 And he took the damsel by the hand, and said unto her, Talitha cumi; which is, being interpreted, Damsel, I say unto thee, arise.

42 And straightway the damsel arose, and walked; for she was of the age of twelve years. And they were astonished with a great astonishment.

43 And he charged them straitly that no man should know it; and commanded that something should be given her to eat.[g] intensity of his faith! The father leaves his beloved child, who is at the point of death, and hastens to the Saviour. The depth of his parental feeling gave force to his words. Our Lord at once followed the agonised father; and the people accompanied him in such multitudes that they pressed upon him. Eagerness, curiosity, and sympathy were mingled together in the medley crowd; still, Jesus bore with them, and chides none for eagerness, but rebukes many for thoughtlessness and indifference.

25. "A certain woman:"—this afflicted woman, after expending her property, even to the point of impoverishment, on every conceivable expedient to ensure a cure, here appears as "the picture of one despairing of human aid." Not only was her general health greatly impaired, and her life endangered, but according to the Levitical law, she was unclean, which rendered it necessary for her to avoid every public assembly. To elude observation, she came behind Jesus, and hopeless as her condition was pronounced to be, her faith animated her with courage, for she believed that if she could but touch the hem or fringe of Christ's raiment, her recovery would be certain.

29. "She was healed"—the effect was perfect. She was, in one single moment of time, conscious of soundness and health. What an evidence of the Saviour's Divinity!

30. "Knowing in himself that virtue had gone out of him:"—the question of our Lord—"Who touched my clothes?"—does not imply want of knowledge on Christ's part; but is so put as to extort from the woman a fuller confession both of her malady, and of her recovery; and to afford to his disciples, and to those around him, a proof of his knowledge; and also to impress the multitude with the fact that humanity, with its wants and its woes, has but to put itself into contact with him, to be conscious of his healing, saving power. Tradition says, that this woman erected a monument to her deliverer in the front of her own house at Paneas, near the source of the Jordan.

35. "Thy daughter is dead"—some time was occupied with the cure and the confession of the woman whom the Saviour had restored to health, and during this interval a message reached Jairus that his daughter was now dead. This will reconcile the statement of St. Matthew, who introduces the ruler as saying at once that his child was dead, with the assertion of St. Mark, who represents Jairus as having left home before his daughter died.

40. "Had put them all out:"—the reference here is to the hired mourners and minstrels, whose very appearance there indicated that preparations for the funeral had already commenced.

42. "Straightway the damsel arose:"—of her death there was not the shadow of a doubt, and yet, in one single instant, she regained life and consciousness. If all were so satisfied of her death as to laugh the Saviour to scorn, all must have been equally convinced of her restoration to life; for she rose, she walked, she ate, and became visible to the multitude. How powerful, and yet how gracious, does the Saviour appear in all his works and ways!

43. "Commanded that something should be given her to eat:"—no miracle is wrought to produce a result which can be obtained by ordinary means. The Saviour restores the damsel to life, but commands her friends to nourish her with bread. In the resurrection of Lazarus, our Lord recalls to the earth the tenant of the tomb, but he does not remove the stone from the grave; thus exhibiting to mankind that economy of power which distinguishes the Divine acts—displaying also the sovereignty of Almighty God in union with the agency of man, and at the same time teaching men that benefits received must lead to the discharge of the duties belonging to their station, and that which man cannot accomplish God will effect, but that which man can render God commands.

5 And he could there do no mighty work, save that he laid his hands upon a few sick folk, and healed them.[c]

6 And he marvelled because of their unbelief. And he went round about the villages, teaching.[d]

7 ¶ And he called unto him the twelve, and began to send them forth by two and two; and gave them power over unclean spirits;[e]

8 And commanded them that they should take nothing for their journey, save a staff only; no scrip, no bread, no [1]money in their purse:

9 But be shod with sandals; and not put on two coats.[f]

10 And he said unto them, In what place soever ye enter into an house, there abide till ye depart from that place.[g]

11 And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear you, when ye depart thence, shake off the dust under your feet for a testimony against them. Verily I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for Sodom [2]and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, than for that city.[h]

12 And they went out, and preached that men should repent.

13 And they cast out many devils, and anointed with oil many that were sick, and healed them.[i]

14 And king Herod heard of him; (for his name was spread abroad:) and he said, That John the Baptist was risen from the dead, and therefore mighty works do shew forth themselves in him.[j]

16 But when Herod heard thereof, he said, It is John, whom I beheaded: he is risen from the dead.[l]

17 For Herod himself had sent forth and laid hold upon John, and bound him in prison for Herodias' sake, his brother Philip's wife: for he had married her.

18 For John had said unto Herod, It is not lawful for thee to have thy brother's wife.[m]

19 Therefore Herodias had [3]a quarrel against him, and would have killed him; but she could not:

20 For Herod feared John, knowing that he was a just man and an holy, and [4]observed him; and when he heard him, he did many things, and heard him gladly.[n]

21 And when a convenient day was come, that Herod on his birthday made a supper to his lords, high captains, and chief estates of Galilee;[o]

22 And when the daughter of the said Herodias came in, and danced, and pleased Herod and them that sat with him, the king said unto the damsel, Ask of me whatsoever thou wilt, and I will give it thee.

23 And he sware unto her, Whatsoever thou shalt ask of me, I will give it thee, unto the half of my kingdom.[p]

24 And she went forth, and said unto her mother, What shall I ask? And she said, The head of John the Baptist.

25 And she came in straightway with haste unto the king, and asked, saying, I will that thou give me by and by in a charger the head of John the Baptist.

26 And the king was exceeding sorry; yet for his oath's sake, and for their sakes which sat with him, he would not reject her.[q]

27 And immediately the king sent [5]an executioner, and commanded his head to be brought: and he went and beheaded him in the prison,

28 And brought his head in a charger, and gave it to the damsel: and the damsel gave it to her mother.

29 And when his disciples heard of it, they came and took up his corpse, and laid it in a tomb.

30 And the apostles gathered themselves together unto Jesus, and told him all things, both what they had done, and what they had taught.[r] to be referred to the same occurrences. Here we have the great outlines of the Saviour's conflict with his fellow-citizens. Such was his mission that he could not but come into contact with the antagonisms and the persecutions of an ungodly world.

1. "He went out from thence:"—Jairus dwelt in Capernaum, and it was, therefore, from Capernaum and its surrounding district, in which our Lord had been so actively and beneficially employed, that he now withdrew into his own country, or city of Nazareth, in which the Saviour spent much of his time. Hence it is called "his city."

2. "To teach in the synagogue:"—for his appearance and conduct in the synagogue of Nazareth, see Luke iv. 16—19.

"What wisdom is this which is given unto him?"—his wisdom revealed itself in his teaching, as his power revealed itself in his miracles. The question was put, it may be, in the spirit of contempt; as if they had said, Which of the schools has he attended? At whose feet has he been brought up?

3. "Is not this the carpenter?"—implying that he was not only the son of a carpenter, but himself a carpenter. Amid his earthly connections, and before entering on his public ministry, he undoubtedly followed the calling of Joseph. Our Evangelist makes no mention here of Joseph, which has led to the probable conjecture that Joseph was already dead.

"They were offended at him:"—the inhabitants of Nazareth took offence at him on account of his family connections; they recount the names of his family, and try to work themselves into the belief that he was nothing more than one of them. Those who are denominated the brothers and sisters of Jesus, are supposed to have been his cousins.

5. "Could there do no mighty work:"—the people were not in a state of mind to appreciate his works of mercy, and therefore he would not act. His miraculous power and his benefits were restricted through their own unbelief.

7—12. On these verses, see Matt. x. 1—12, with the Notes and the Commentary.

13. "Anointed with oil"—this anointing differed entirely from the extreme unction of the Romanist. This latter is only administered when there is no hope of recovery. The Apostolic anointing was invariably connected with recovery. From verse 8, it may be inferred that the disciples did not carry this oil with them, but obtained it in the locality in which they happened to be, and used it, not medicinally, but as symbolical of that healing power which had been bestowed upon them.—See James v. 14.

14. "Herod heard of him:"—some conceive that Herod was absent in Rome during the previous part of our Lord's stay in Nazareth, and had just returned from the imperial city; others, that he had been engaged in wars; and others state, with more probability, that he had been wholly absorbed in the gaieties and the pleasures of his court, and therefore not likely to turn his thoughts to Christ and his teaching.

15. "Others said"—human opinion was strangely divided as to the character and the claims of Jesus. And is not human opinion divided still?

16—29. On the conduct of Herod towards the Baptist, see Matt. xiv. 1—12, with the Notes and the Commentary. The only point in our Evangelist's narrative to be noted is, that it was Herodias who persecuted the Baptist, rather than Herod; that Herod held John in reverential awe, acknowledged his character and claims, and, to a certain extent, admired his teaching and complied with his precepts; that it was not of Herod, but of

34 And Jesus, when he came out, saw much people, and was moved with compassion toward them, because they were as sheep not having a shepherd: and he began to teach them many things.[a]

35 And when the day was now far spent, his disciples came unto him, and said, This is a desert place, and now the time is far passed:[b]

36 Send them away, that they may go into the country round about, and into the villages, and buy themselves bread: for they have nothing to eat.

37 He answered and said unto them, Give ye them to eat. And they say unto him, Shall we go and buy two hundred [1]pennyworth of bread, and give them to eat?[c] her mother, that the damsel asked counsel as to the form of her request; and that it was with no little reluctance that he complied with the demand of the damsel, and sent to have the Baptist beheaded. Notwithstanding, all were guilty—the mother in advising, Herodias in asking, and Herod in granting.

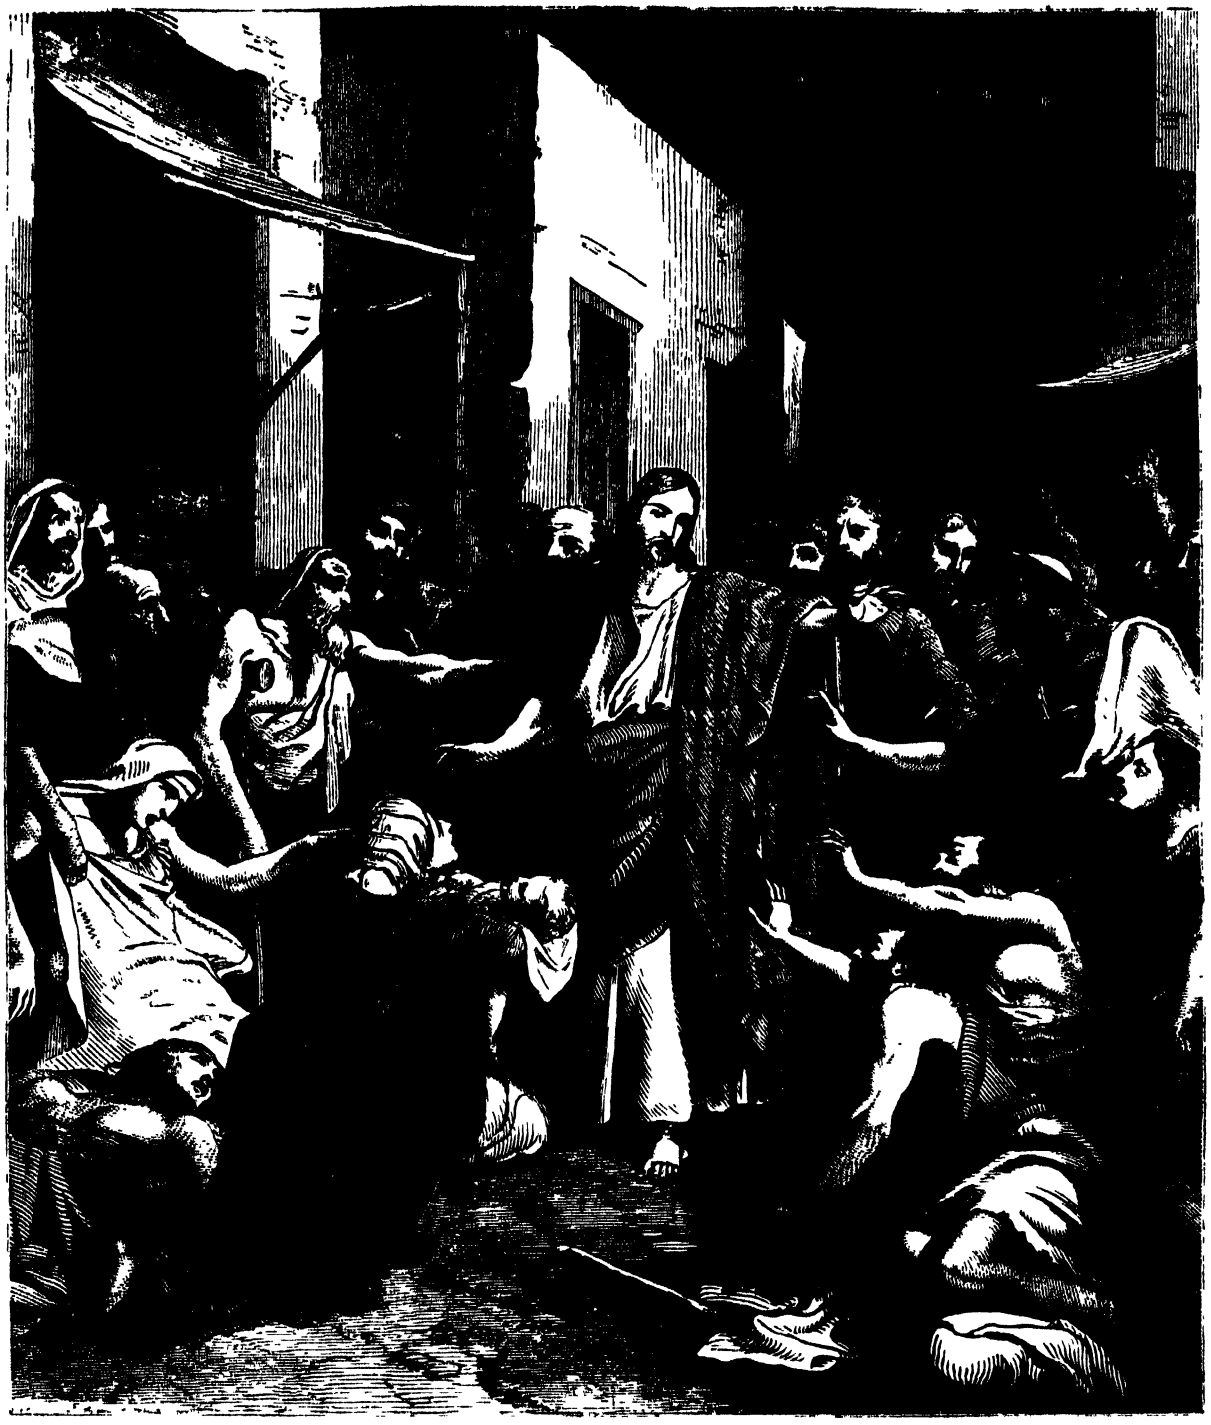
26 "Yet for his oath's sake"—sin does not consist in the non-performance of a wicked and unlawful oath, but in the making of that oath. Herod, when making the oath, was under a prior obligation to God, which obligation he was not at liberty to set aside, either to gratify others, or to please himself. No man is allowed to bind himself by an oath to commit an act of wickedness.

31. "Come ye yourselves apart"—the Saviour was a true partaker of our humanity, with its feelings and its sympathies.



32. "Into a desert place:"—from Luke ix. 10 we learn that this desert spot was in the neighbourhood of Bethsaida—not the Bethsaida of the Apostles, which lay on the western shore of the lake, but the city which was situated on its eastern bank, not far from where the Jordan flows into the lake, and near to which was this desert or wilderness.

33. "Ran afoot thither:"—that is, instead of availing themselves of the lake, they went by land.

34. "When he came out, saw much people:"—that is, according to some interpreters, when he came forth from his solitude; but as there is no decisive proof that he had even reached his place of retirement before the multitudes came up, it is supposed by others that, on his leaving the boat, he ascended a hill facing the lake, and that, on his ascent, he saw the people approaching in gathering numbers. To account for these multitudes, it must be borne in mind that the Feast of the Passover was at hand.

38. "How many loaves have ye?"—as Nature, out of the seed-corn, evolves no new creation, so Christ turns water into wine, and increases the already existing bread; but without a substratum to begin with, he makes neither wine nor bread. A profound truth this, and never to be lost sight of. As in the production of the wine power went forth from the Incarnate Logos, by which the water was converted into real wine, so, in the present case, power went out from him which increased the actual and visible quantity of the bread. Still, no one can deny that He who could thus indefinitely enlarge the qualities inherent in bread, must have been possessed of creative power.

is something so peculiar, that it impresses, beyond all mistake, a heavenly character on the narrative. Never would such a thing have been invented. Nature places before our eyes the same combination of boundless munificence and of truest frugality in imparting her benefits."

44. "And they that did eat were about five thousand men:"—as the women and children in this multitude were probably equal to the men in number, there would be on this occasion ten thousand persons to be fed by five loaves and two fishes—the food provided, no doubt, for the disciples and their Master. Persons, for the most part, form very imperfect conceptions of large numbers; and perhaps few of us consider the fact, that had these guests of a Divine Master seated themselves opposite to one another, after the manner of a feast, the banquet table must have extended beyond two miles.

45. "Go to the other side before unto Bethsaida:"—we are not to under-

49 But when they saw him walking upon the sea, they supposed it had been a spirit, and cried out:

50 For they all saw him, and were troubled. And immediately he talked with them, and saith unto them, Be of good cheer: it is I; be not afraid.

51 And he went up unto them into the ship; and the wind ceased: and they were sore amazed in themselves beyond measure, and wondered.

52 For they considered not the miracle of the loaves: for their heart was hardened.[a]

53 And when they had passed over, they came into the land of Gennesaret, and drew to the shore.

CHAPTER VII.

1 The Pharisees find fault at the disciples for eating with unwashen hands. 8 They break the commandment of God by the traditions of men. 14 Meat defileth not the man. 24 He healeth the Syrophenician woman's daughter of an unclean spirit, 31 and one that was deaf, and stammered in his speech.

THEN came together unto him the Pharisees, and certain of the scribes, which came from Jerusalem.[c]

2 And when they saw some of his disciples eat bread with [2]defiled, that is to say, with unwashen, hands, they found fault.

3 For the Pharisees, and all the Jews, except they wash their hands [3]oft, eat not, holding the tradition of the elders.

4 And when they come from the market, except they wash, they eat not. And many other things there be, which they have received to hold, as the washing of cups, and [4]pots, brasen vessels, and of [5]tables.

5 Then the Pharisees and scribes asked him, Why walk not thy disciples according to the tradition of the elders, but eat bread with unwashen hands?[d]

6 He answered and said unto them, Well hath Esaias prophesied of you hypocrites, as it is written, This people honoureth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me.[e]

7 Howbeit in vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.

8 For laying aside the commandment of God, ye hold the tradition of men, as the washing of pots and cups: and many other such like things ye do.

9 And he said unto them, Full well ye [6]reject the commandment of God, that ye may keep your own tradition.

10 For Moses said, Honour thy father and thy mother; and, Whoso curseth father or mother, let him die the death:[f]

11 But ye say, If a man shall say to his father or mother, It is Corban, that is[1] to say, a gift, by whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me; he shall be free.[g]

12 And ye suffer him no more to do ought for his father or his mother;

13 Making the word of God of none effect through your tradition, which ye have delivered: and many such like things do ye.

14 ¶ And when he had called all the people unto him, he said unto them, Hearken unto me every one of you, and understand:[h]

15 There is nothing from without a man, that entering into him can defile him: but the things which come out of him, those are they that [2]defile the man.

16 If any man have ears to hear, let him hear.[i] stand this as if the disciples were to cross over immediately and directly to the other side of the lake, but, as is clear from Matthew, only to go before him along the coast, and take him up at some appointed spot; or, as Mark has it, over against Bethsaida, and then they were to cross to the other side—see Note on verse 32.

48. "He cometh unto them, walking upon the sea:"—and yet such was the state of their hearts, that they failed to perceive his glory, and to trust in its Possessor.

49. "When they saw him walking upon the sea:"—an ancient mode of denoting an impossibility was by the emblem of two feet standing upon water.

CHAPTER VII.

SYNOPSIS:—Mark vii. 1—23; Matt. xv. 1—20. Mark vii. 24—30; Matt. xv. 21—30. Mark vii. 31—37.

Having left the eastern bank of the lake, the Saviour and his disciples came into the land of Gennesaret—a spot of great beauty and fertility, which stood on the north-west shore. It is not improbable that they landed on some retired part of the coast, as may be inferred from the fact that Jesus passed through several villages and towns before he appeared in the synagogue at Capernaum, and also from the circumstance that, as soon as the people knew he was in their neighbourhood, they brought the sick and the diseased from the scattered houses of the surrounding district, to receive the benefit of his healing and recovering power.

2. "Unwashen hands:"—the Pharisees were the Separatists of the Jewish Church, and attached unspeakably more importance to outward purity than to inward rectitude. Some members of this self-righteous sect, with a certain number of the Scribes, seem to have been sent as a deputation from the Jewish Sanhedrim in Jerusalem, first to challenge, and then to contradict, both the words and the works of Jesus. A conflict was now opening between him and the supreme ecclesiastical authorities.

They take objection to certain of Christ's followers, because they had sat down to eat with unwashen hands. There is no part of the human body which is not endowed with the power of sensation; but the hand is more frequently brought into immediate contact with things external to itself, and lest these things should have anything like ceremonial defilement upon them—which would defile the hand, and then, through the hand, the food which was eaten—the Jew was in the habit of always washing the hands before eating, and this diligently, or with care. He understood not the words of our Lord, that it is not that which entereth into a man that defiles him, but that which cometh out of him. It was not the hand which needed to be washed and made clean, but the heart. The Saviour did not reject the tradition viewed merely as a custom; he only refused to recognise it as a religious ordinance.

4. "Washing of tables:"—the word rendered table, is in the margin, BED. The reference is, perhaps, to the couch, or rising sofa, on which they reclined at meals, or on which they lounged, and sometimes slept. These were covered with a material which could be removed and washed.

8. "The commandment of God:"—it is spoken of as a unity, and therefore includes the whole revealed will of God. Above this they placed their cumbersome and unr eaning traditions.

9. "Full well ye eject [frustrate] the commandment of God:"—this is not the language of "irony," but of solemn accusation. As if he had said, Ye do this not ignorantly, but wittingly. With a fearful obstinacy ye do this, and yet ye know it to be wrong.

11. "It is Corban:"—if a person merely pronounced the word CORBAN soever thing from without entereth into the man, it cannot defile him;

19 Because it entereth not into his heart, but into the belly, and goeth out into the draught, purging all meats?

20 And he said, That which cometh out of the man, that defileth the man.

21 For from within, out of the heart of men, proceed evil thoughts, adulteries, fornications, murders,[a]

22 Thefts, [1]covetousness, wickedness, deceit, lasciviousness, an evil eye, blasphemy, pride, foolishness:

23 All these evil things come from within, and defile the man.

24 ¶ And from thence he arose, and went into the borders of Tyre and Sidon, and entered into an house, and would have no man know it: but he could not be hid.[b]

25 For a certain woman, whose young daughter had an unclean spirit, heard of him, and came and fell at his feet:

26 The woman was a [2]Greek, a Syrophenician by nation; and she besought him that he would cast forth the devil out of her daughter.

27 But Jesus said unto her, Let the children first be filled: for it is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it unto the dogs.

28 And she answered and said unto him, Yes, Lord: yet the dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs.

29 And he said unto her, For this saying go thy way; the devil is gone out of thy daughter.

30 And when she was come to her house, she found the devil gone out, and her daughter laid upon the bed.

31 ¶ And again, departing from the coasts of Tyre and Sidon, he came unto the sea of Galilee, through the midst of the coasts of Decapolis.[c]

32 And they bring unto him one that was deaf, and had an impediment in his speech; and they beseech him to put his hand upon him.[d]

33 And he took him aside from the multitude, and put his fingers into his ears, and he spit, and touched his tongue;[e]

CHAPTER VIII.

1 Christ feedeth the people miraculously: 10 refuseth to give a sign to the Pharisees: 14 admonisheth his disciples to beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, and of the leaven of Herod: 22 giveth a blind man his sight: 27 acknowledgeth that he is the Christ, who should suffer and rise again: 34 and exhorteth to patience in persecution for the profession of the gospel.

6 And he commanded the people to sit down on the ground: and he took the seven loaves, and gave thanks, and brake, and gave to his disciples to set before them; and they did set them before the people.

over any possession or property, it was irrevocably dedicated to the Temple, and in this way those hypocrites tried to free themselves from the duties of filial affection. The CORBAN was an offering without a sacrifice—a gift to the Temple.

13. "Making the word of God of none effect:"—not only rejecting, but setting aside entirely the authority of the Written Word, with all its unchange-

15. "Those are they that defile the man:"—our Lord, turning away from the hypocritical Pharisees and Scribes to the multitudes by whom he was surrounded, presents the Levitical idea of impurity in such a light, as to show that the question of cleanness or of uncleanness was to be determined not by the physical state, but by the moral state.

17. "His disciples asked him concerning the parable:"—this shows how slowly the minds of Christ's followers opened to the perception and grasp of spiritual truth.

19. "Entereth not into his heart:"—how true is it, that that which constitutes the true nature of man can only be cleansed in the heart, which is the fountain of thought and feeling, and from which words and actions do proceed! And how needful the prayer—"Create in me a clean heart!"

22. "An evil eye"—is indicative either of envy, or of lust, or both may be included. The human heart is the same in all; and that which ought to be the temple of the Holy Ghost, is naturally the dwelling-place of iniquity.

"Went into the borders of Tyre and Sidon;"—he thus withdrew to escape the fierce opposition and murderous designs of the Pharisees. ——— passed in a north-westerly direction through the mountainous region of Upper Galilee, he came into the border land of Phœnicia, as if "driven into the boundary lands of heathenism by his horror of Jewish hypocrisy." As Langé well says:—"The Jewish world was closed against him, nor had the hour yet come when the heathen world would be open to his word. . . . For a season he seems hemmed up in the narrow border land between Canaan and Phœnicia, there to meditate in deep solitude upon his further movements. But he could not remain unknown."

25—30. "A certain woman—a Greek, a Syrophenician by nation:"—she was therefore a Gentile, and hence our Lord's mode of treatment, for he had not been sent but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. Yet light was breaking on the Gentile mind, and this woman's faith was such that nothing could overcome it.—See Matt. xv. 21—31.

31. "Through the midst of the coasts of Decapolis:"—that is, he proceeded northward through Sidon, then crossed the Jordan, and so approached the lake on its eastern side. The cities of Decapolis were inhabited principally by Greeks in the days of our Lord.

32—37. The many outward acts employed by our Lord in this miracle were simply to awaken attention, and prepare the mind for the grand result. The miracle was complete. The Saviour magnified at once his power and his grace, and the people were filled with wonder and admiration.

CHAPTER VIII.

SYNOPSIS:—Mark viii. 1—10; Matt. xv. 32—39. Mark viii 11—21; Matt. xvi. 1—12. Mark viii. 22—26, 27—38, ix. 1; Matt. xvi. 13—28; Luke ix. 18—27.

The Saviour having passed round the sources of the Jordan, and having arrived at the eastern shore of the lake, and entered the region of Decapolis, great multitudes followed him. His power was not more conspicuous than his love, and it was by the revelations of his love that he sought to draw hearts to himself.

7 And they had a few small fishes: and he blessed, and commanded to set them also before them.[a]

8 So they did eat, and were filled: and they took up of the broken meat that was left seven baskets.

9 And they that had eaten were about four thousand: and he sent them away.

10 ¶ And straightway he entered into a ship with his disciples, and came into the parts of Dalmanutha.[b]

11 And the Pharisees came forth, and began to question with him, seeking of him a sign from heaven, tempting him.[c]

12 And he sighed deeply in his spirit, and saith, Why doth this generation seek after a sign? verily I say unto you, There shall no sign be given unto this generation.

13 And he left them, and entering into the ship again departed to the other side.

14 ¶ Now the disciples had forgotten to take bread, neither had they in the ship with them more than one loaf.[d]

15 And he charged them, saying, Take heed, beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, and of the leaven of Herod.[e]

16 And they reasoned among themselves, saying, It is because we have no bread.[f]

17 And when Jesus knew it, he saith unto them, Why reason ye, because ye have no bread? perceive ye not yet, neither understand? have ye your heart yet hardened?[g]

18 Having eyes, see ye not? and having ears, hear ye not? and do ye not remember?

19 When I brake the five loaves among five thousand, how many baskets full of fragments took ye up? They say unto him, Twelve.[h]

31 And he began to teach them, that the Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected of the elders, and of the chief priests, and scribes, and be killed, and after three days rise again.[q]

2 "Have nothing to eat"—their provision was exhausted; and as there was no possibility of going into neighbouring towns, or of re-crossing the lake, they had no alternative but to return to their mountain-homes through the passes by which they had followed him, but as they might, after three days' continuance with him, readily faint by the way, the Saviour puts forth his power on their behalf. —See chapter vi 34—44, and Matt. xv. 32—39

10 "Into the parts of Dalmanutha"—there were villages and small towns in the vicinity of the Lake of Tiberias, all of which, with the district lying around, seem included in this phrase.

12. "Sighed deeply in his spirit."—he knew how unsusceptible they were to moral impression, and it grieved his sinless heart. Hence his denying them any sign, and hence his speedy departure from them.

15 "The leaven of the Pharisees, and the leaven of Herod:"—for Herod we have the Sadducees in Matthew. The explanation is, that the Sadducees, as a body, were attached to the government of Herod.

22. "Cometh to Bethsaida,"—that is, the Bethsaida on the north-east shore of the lake. This miracle is as instructive to us as it was beneficial to the sufferer. It encourages us to apply to Christ for others as well as for ourselves, and teaches us that intercession is pleasing to God, as well as beneficial to those for whom we plead. Observe the Saviour's ready acquiescence—he grants the boon the moment it is rightly sought. Mark also his condescension—he took the sufferer by the hand; and then notice the adaptation which accompanies the benefit conferred. As the sight could not receive the evidence of the Saviour's presence, the faculties of hearing and of feeling were employed.

23. "Led him out of the town:"—this was done, in all probability, to avoid publicity.

37 Or what shall a man give in exchange for his oul?

AND he said unto them, Verily I say unto you, That there be some of them that stand here, which shall not taste of death, till they have seen the kingdom of God come with power.[d]

2 ¶ And after six days Jesus taketh with him Peter, and James, and John, and leadeth them up into an high mountain part by themselves: and he was transfigured before hem.[e]

3 And his raiment became shining, exceeding white as snow; so as no fuller on earth can white them.[f]

4 And there appeared unto them Elias with Moses: and they were talking with Jesus.

5 And Peter answered and said to Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here: and let us make three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias.

6 For he wist not what to say; for they were sore afraid.

7 And there was a cloud that overshadowed them: and a voice came out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son: hear him.

8 And suddenly, when they had looked round about, they saw no man any more, save Jesus only with themselves.

9 And as they came down from the mountain, he charged them that they should tell no man what things they had seen, till the Son of man were risen from the dead.[g]

10 And they kept that saying with themselves, questioning one with another what the rising from the dead should mean.

11 ¶ And they asked him, saying, Why say the scribes that Elias must first come?[h]

31. "The Son of man must suffer:"—it is under this humble designation that he speaks of himself, previous to the sublime fact of his resurrection, in which he was declared to be the Son of God with power, and after which, accordingly, he spoke of himself as the Christ—the Anointed Son of God.

32. "Peter took him, and began to rebuke him:"—the impetuous Apostle had just confessed that he was the Christ, and yet he could not brook the idea of his Master being subjected to suffering and death. The Jewish Sanhedrim did not believe that Jesus was the Christ; and now Peter himself stumbles and errs concerning the end of Christ's mission. If he were the Christ, as Peter had just confessed, then suffer and die he must, to effect the object of his incarnation. Hence the rebuke which the Saviour administered to the Apostle. Peter was under some unholy influence, which influence could be traced to Satan as its source Hence the personal address—"Get thee behind me, Satan." Whatever tends to oppose the spiritual prosperity of man, may be traced to some device of Satan

34. "Take up his cross;"—in reference to the Roman custom by which the persons condemned to be crucified were obliged to carry the very cross on which they were to suffer. Possibly these words were used as a figurative expression, containing a prophetic reference to the death of Christ, and purposely chosen to prepare his disciples for such an event. Certain it is that every Christian must bear his cross. To deny what is earthly forms a great part in the Divine life;—we cannot love Christ if we cherish the love of the world. Our dearest relationships often lead aside from the highest good. It behoves us to be watchful, lest the relationships which were designed for our benefit should become a snare, by leading us to the omission or the defective discharge of some Christian duty.

35—37. "Will save his life . . . . in exchange for his soul:"—in these verses the same Greek word is rendered both LIFE and SOUL. If it had been rendered life throughout, it would have given greater force and significance to our Lord's words. The contrast is between the loss of earthly life and the gain of life eternal. He that finds or gains his earthly life, preserving it by unfaithfulness, shall lose this eternal life; but he that, by faithfulness and persevering constancy, loses the life of the body, shall gain the higher life—the eternal salvation of his soul.

CHAPTER IX.

SYNOPSIS:—Mark ix. 2–13; Matt. xvii 1–13; Luke ix 28–36. Mark ix. 14–29; Matt. xvii. 14–21; Luke ix. 37–43. Mark ix. 30–50; Matt. xvii. 22, 23; xviii. 1–9; Luke ix. 44–50.

The first verse of this chapter is inseparably connected with the concluding verses of the preceding chapter, and in that connection it should stand. At the time when our Lord is represented as speaking, he was surrounded not only by his own immediate followers, but also by a promiscuous multitude of the people, and he says that there are some standing there—some of those who were actually present at the moment—who should not taste death till they had seen the kingdom of God come with power—who should live to see him after his resurrection, to witness the scene on the day of Pentecost, the conversion of thousands to the New Faith, the overthrow of the Jewish polity in the destruction of Jerusalem, the establishment of the Christian Economy, and him: and he foameth, and gnasheth with his teeth, and pineth away: and I spake to thy disciples that they should cast him out; and they could not.

19 He answereth him, and saith, O faithless generation, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I suffer you? bring him unto me.

20 And they brought him unto him: and when he saw him, straightway the spirit tare him; and he fell on the ground, and wallowed foaming.[a]

21 And he asked his father, How long is it ago since this came unto him? And he said, Of a child.

22 And ofttimes it hath cast him into the fire, and into the waters, to destroy him: but if thou canst do any thing, have compassion on us, and help us.

23 Jesus said unto him, If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth.[b]

24 And straightway the father of the child cried out, and said with tears, Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief.

25 When Jesus saw that the people came running together, he rebuked the foul spirit, saying unto him, Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I charge thee, come out of him, and enter no more into him.

26 And the spirit cried, and rent him sore, and came out of him: and he was as one dead; insomuch that many said, He is dead.

27 But Jesus took him by the hand, and lifted him up; and he arose.

28 And when he was come into the house, his disciples asked him privately, Why could not we cast him out?[c]

29 And he said unto them, This kind can come forth by nothing, but by prayer and fasting.

30 ¶ And they departed thence, and passed through Galilee; and he would not that any man should know it.

31 For he taught his disciples, and said unto them, The Son of man is delivered into the hands of men, and they shall kill him; and after that he is killed, he shall rise the third day.[d]

32 But they understood not that saying, and were afraid to ask him.

33 ¶ And he came to Capernaum: and being in the house he asked them, What was it that ye disputed among yourselves by the way?[e]

34 But they held their peace: for by the way they had disputed among themselves, who should be the greatest.

35 And he sat down, and called the twelve, and saith unto them, If any man desire to be first, the same shall be last of all, and servant of all.[f]

36 And he took a child, and set him in the midst of them: and when he had taken him in his arms, he said unto them,[g]

37 Whosoever shall receive one of such children in my name, receiveth me: and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth not me, but him that sent me.[h]

38 ¶ And John answered him, saying, Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name, and he followeth not us: and we forbad him, because he followeth not us.[i]

39 But Jesus said, Forbid him not: for there is no man which shall do a miracle in my name, that can lightly speak evil of me.[j]

40 For he that is not against us is on our part.[k]

41 For whosoever shall give you a cup of water to drink in my name, because ye belong to Christ, verily I say unto you, he shall not lose his reward.[l]

42 And whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in me, it is better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he were cast into the sea.[m]

43 And if thy hand [1]offend thee, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having two hands to go into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched:[n]

in all, the incontrovertible proof that he was what he professed himself to be—the Son of God and the Saviour of man. And possibly to these evidences of regal power there may be added the glories of the Transfiguration, which occurred a few days later, on which occasion the Redeemer was again invested with the glory which he had before time begun. To those privileged to be present, the Saviour appeared arrayed in the Divine Shechinah; to confirm their faith in Christ, these disciples were permitted to behold their Heavenly Master in the indescribable effulgence of celestial splendour, thus beholding the commencement of his glorious kingdom.

2. "Leadeth them up into an high mountain"—the tradition which fixed the scene of the Transfiguration on Tabor's lovely height is now given up and yet there are those who would take it away from the nearer vicinity of Cæsarea Philippi, in which our Lord had been prosecuting his ministry, to some undefined mountain bordering on the lake. We prefer to place it on Hermon, which is a grand, lofty mountain-range between Damascus and the Sea of Tiberias, and forms the northern boundary of the country beyond the Jordan.

"Apart by themselves:"—to the exclusion not only of the multitude, but of the other nine disciples. The three disciples selected to behold the Redeemer's glory on the mount were the same who afterwards were appointed to witness the Saviour's sufferings in the garden. The number three was in compliance with the law, which required that number of persons as witnesses to any statement that was to be confirmed, or of any fact that was to be established. The three apostles were Peter, James, and John; and in these honoured disciples of our Lord we discern the representatives of all that is important to man on earth "to fit him for the skies"—Peter, an emblem of FAITH, James of WORKS, and John of LOVE. In this our day of probation let us ever remember that the faith which benefits the soul of man is that which benefits his fellow-men; it is a faith that works by love.

3. "White as snow; so as no fuller on earth can white them:"—the pure production of Nature is thus put in contrast with the utmost effect of Art.

4. "Appeared unto them Elias with Moses:"—these two illustrious men are always regarded as the representatives of the Law and the Prophets; and of these Alford says. "Both had been removed from this world in a mysterious manner—the one without death; the other by death, indeed, but so that his body followed not the lot of the bodies of all, both, like the Greater One with whom they spoke, had endured that supernatural fast of forty days and nights, both had been in the holy mount in the visions of God. And now they came endowed with bodies before the rest of the dead, to hold converse with the Lord on that sublime event which had been the great central subject of all their teaching, and solemnly to consign into his hands, once and for all, in a symbolical and glorious representation, their delegated and expiring power"

10. "What the rising from the dead should mean:"—the theme on the mount had been "the decease which Christ was about to accomplish," and his death implied his resurrection; but whether the disciples identified Christ's resurrection with the resurrection of all the dead, and thus were perplexed and embarrassed in their conceptions, is a point we are unable to determine For further remarks on this unparalleled scene, see Matthew xvii. 1—13, with the Notes

13 "Elias is indeed come."—from the narrative of Matthew, we learn that our Lord's observations at once led the disciples to fix on John the Baptist as the Elias who was to appear, and introduce the Restorer of all things. At first sight, the expectation of Elias as a restorer of all things, and the Scripture concerning the death of the Messiah, might seem irreconcilable, and yet it was through the death of the Incarnate One that the restoration was to come. The latter clause of the twelfth verse should be read thus—"And yet ye should know how that it is written of the Son of man, that he must suffer;" or, "how is it also written of the Son of man that he must suffer"

14. "The Scribes questioning with them."—hoping, no doubt, in the absence of their Master, to defeat them in argument

15. "Were greatly amazed:"—it is not unlikely that the countenance of the Redeemer still retained some traces of the splendour in which his whole humanity was enshrined on the mount. So glorious was the countenance of Moses after his converse with God on the mount, that he was constrained, we are told, to wear a veil, that those to whom he was speaking might

47 And if thine eye [1]offend thee, pluck it out: it is better for thee to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye, than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire:

49 For every one shall be salted with fire, and every sacrifice shall be salted with salt.[b]

CHAPTER X.

2 Christ disputeth with the Pharisees touching divorcement: 13 blesseth the children that are brought unto him: 17 resolveth a rich man how he may inherit life everlasting 23 telleth his disciples of the danger of riches: 28 promiseth rewards to them that forsake any thing for the gospel: 32 foretelleth his death and resurrection. 35 biddeth the two suitors to think rather of suffering with him: 46 and restoreth to Bartimæus his sight.

AND he arose from thence, and cometh into the coasts of Judæa by the farther side of Jordan: and the people resort unto him again; and, as he was wont, he taught them again.[d]

2 ¶ And the Pharisees came to him, and asked him, Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife? tempting him.[e]

And he answered and said unto them, What did Moses command you?

4 And they said, Moses suffered to write a bill of divorcement, and to put her away.[f]

5 And Jesus answered and said unto them, For the hardness of your heart he wrote you this precept.

6 But from the beginning of the creation God made them male and female.[g]

7 For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife;[h]

8 And they twain shall be one flesh: so then they are no more twain, but one flesh.

9 What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder

10 And in the house his disciples asked him again of the same matter.

11 And he saith unto them, Whosoever shall put away his wife, and marry another, committeth adultery against her.[i]

12 And if a woman shall put away her husband, and be married to another, she committeth adultery.

13 ¶ And they brought young children to him, that he should touch them: and his disciples rebuked those that brought them.[j]

14 But when Jesus saw it, he was much displeased, and said unto them, Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God.[k]

15 Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein.

16 And he took them up in his arms, put his hands upon them, and blessed them.

17 ¶ And when he was gone forth into the way, there came one running, and kneeled to him, and asked him, Good Master, what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?[l]

18 And Jesus said unto him, Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, that is, God.

19 Thou knowest the commandments, Do not commit adultery, Do not kill, Do not steal, Do not bear false witness, Defraud not, Honour thy father and mother.[m]

20 And he answered and said unto him, Master, all these have I observed from my youth.

21 Then Jesus beholding him loved him, and said unto him, One thing thou lackest: go thy way, sell not be overpowered by the brilliancy of his countenance; but this veil was removed when holding communion with God.

17 "I have brought unto thee my son;"—no Scribe having ventured to reply to his question in the previous verse, one of the multitude invoked the aid of his power. This was the day following the transfiguration. This man, therefore, could not have been aware of his absence, and this confirms our opinion, that the mount of transfiguration was not far from Cæsarea Philippi, in which he had been carrying on his ministry

"Hath a dumb spirit"—on the subject of demoniacal possession, consult Matt. viii 28—34, with the Notes.

23. "If thou canst believe"—this is given back in reply to the words of the applicant—"If thou canst do anything" Faith, on the part of man, adapts itself as an instrument to the Divine omnipotence. Where there exists faith in Christ's word, his willingness, and his power, all things are possible. The inability to receive, which existed through unbelief, being by faith removed, and God being willing to impart, blessings must follow. Thus all things can be accomplished in favour of him that believes.

24. "Help thou mine unbelief;"—that is, either by removing his unbelief, or, in the absence of higher faith, by healing his son.

49. "Salted with fire:"—a confessedly difficult phrase; but, after consulting all the first and best authorities in the science of Biblical Interpretation, we conceive the true meaning to be, that just as every sacrifice under the Law was salted with salt, so under the Christian Dispensation every one who allies himself with Christ must be salted with fire. Salt is symbolical of purity and incorruption, and so is fire. It not only has the power to purify, but also the power to preserve, and often preserves by purifying. So were his disciples to be separated, by an internal process of purification, from mere earthly attachments and sensuous delights, if these in any way interfered with the higher claims of God and Truth. Their love of these must be so burnt out as to make them willingly part with a right hand or a right eye, rather than lose their place in the kingdom of God. They could be saved only, as it were, by fire—only by going through the most fiery ordeal, and thus be prepared for any sacrifice and any surrender.

50. "Have salt in yourselves;"—that is, the conservative element of purity; for in the degree of moral purity is the peace to be enjoyed. Perfect purity involves perfect quietude.

CHAPTER X.

SYNOPSIS:—Mark x 1—16; Matt. xix. 1—15; Luke xviii. 16, 17. Mark x. 17—31; Matt. xix. 16—30; xx 1—16; Luke xviii. 18—30. Mark x. 32—45; Matt. xx. 17—28. Mark x. 46—52; Matt. xx. 29—34; Luke xviii. 35—43.

There are certain grand requisites which belong to those who are the followers of Christ. These requisites are not, indeed, set forth in an abstract form, but are rather embodied in the facts which we find in the descriptive discourses of our Lord. Here we have the relation in which Christ's disciples stand to the temptations of the world—the duty of resisting every seductive influence—the humility which rejoices in being able to do service to others—with the rewards which are consequent upon fidelity and perseverance.

1. "Cometh into the coasts of Judæa:"—this was our Lord's last journey from Galilee to Jerusalem. He had retired, as we learn from John x. 40, to the other side of the Jordan, and, on the death of Lazarus, he went to Bethany, and thence proceeded to Jerusalem; so that, in the strictest sense of whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come, take up the cross, and follow me.[a]

22 And he was sad at that saying, and went away grieved: for he had great possessions.

23 ¶ And Jesus looked round about, and saith unto his disciples, How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God![b]

24 And the disciples were astonished at his words. But Jesus answereth again, and saith unto them, Children, how hard is it for them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God![c]

25 It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

26 And they were astonished out of measure, saying among themselves, Who then can be saved?

27 And Jesus looking upon them saith, With men it is impossible, but not with God: for with God all things are possible.[d]

28 ¶ Then Peter began to say unto him, Lo, we have left all, and have followed thee.[e]

29 And Jesus answered and said, Verily I say unto you, There is no man that hath left house, or brethren, the words, he did come into the coasts or borders of Judea on the other side of the Jordan. Here his activity reveals itself in the form of teaching the multitude that had gathered round him.

12. "A woman shall put away her husband:"—this was allowed by Greek and Roman law, although no such provision existed in the Jewish code.

15. "Receive the kingdom of God as a little child·"—the Saviour sets the children before the disciples as symbols of simplicity and docility, and thus impresses them with the fact, that the child-like feeling is the grand prerequisite for a place in the kingdom of God.

18. "Why callest thou me good?"—the simple and obvious meaning of these words is, according to Stier, "that Christ, without denying his own goodness or his own divinity, seriously corrects the youth, and thus, in the first place, shames his pride by his own humility;" and, instead of favouring the Socinian, who would rob the Saviour of his supreme Deity, the same commentator finds one of the strongest proofs in support of Christ's Godhead—thus·—"None is good but the one God: Christ is good, therefore, Christ is the one God" or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake, and the gospel's,

30 But he shall receive an hundredfold now in this time, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands, with persecutions; and in the world to come eternal life.[a]

31 But many that are first shall be last; and the last first.[b]

32 ¶ And they were in the way going up to Jerusalem; and Jesus went before them: and they were amazed; and as they followed, they were afraid. And he took again the twelve, and began to tell them what things should happen unto him,[c]

33 Saying, Behold, we go up to Jerusalem; and the Son of man shall be delivered unto the chief priests, and unto the scribes; and they shall condemn him to death, and shall deliver him to the Gentiles:

34 And they shall mock him, and shall scourge him, and shall spit upon him, and shall kill him: and the third day he shall rise again.

35 ¶ And James and John, the sons of Zebedee, come unto him, saying, Master, we would that thou shouldest do for us whatsoever we shall desire.[d]

36 And he said unto them, What would ye that I should do for you?

37 They said unto him, Grant unto us that we may sit, one on thy right hand, and the other on thy left hand, in thy glory.

38 But Jesus said unto them, Ye know not what ye ask: can ye drink of the cup that I drink of? and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with?

39 And they said unto him, We can. And Jesus said unto them, Ye shall indeed drink of the cup that I drink of; and with the baptism that I am baptized withal shall ye be baptized:

40 But to sit on my right hand and on my left hand is not mine to give; but it shall be given to them for whom it is prepared.

41 And when the ten heard it, they began to be much displeased with James and John.[e]

42 But Jesus called them to him, and saith unto them, Ye know that they which [1]are accounted to rule over the Gentiles exercise lordship over them; and their great ones exercise authority upon them.[f]

43 But so shall it not be among you: but whosoever will be great among you, shall be your minister:[g]

44 And whosoever of you will be the chiefest, shall be servant of all.

4 And they went their way, and found the colt tied by the door without in a place where two ways met; and they loose him.

23—31 On these verses, see Matt xix 23—30, with the Notes

32 "They were amazed"—this verse is peculiar to our Evangelist, and embodies the third intimation which our Lord had given to his followers of his approaching sufferings and death He set his face steadfastly to go up to Jerusalem, and it was this undaunted courage which filled them with amazement

34 "Shall kill him"—in Matthew it is, "shall crucify him," which pointed to the mode of his death

35—45 "We would that thou shouldest do for us"—according to Matthew, the request was made by the mother of these two disciples; but it might have been that she was prompted and even urged by her sons to prefer it. On the whole passage, see Matt. xx. 20—28

46. "They came to Jericho"—this was one of the oldest cities in the Holy Land, situated in the tribe of Benjamin, about twenty miles from Jerusalem, and two miles from the Jordan Under the Romans, it was a royal residence, and there Herod the Great died.

Matthew says there were two blind men, while our Evangelist mentions only Bartimæus, in whose case there may have been something more striking or peculiar, which led Mark to fix on it to the omission of the other. It is not with the number of the healed we have to do, but with the fact of the miracle, which is irrespective of numbers.

52. "Go thy way"—such was the height of his faith, and such, therefore, was his capability of receiving the blessing, that Christ had but to speak, and his recovery was perfect. Who can tell the power of faith!

CHAPTER XI.

SYNOPSIS.—Mark xi 1—11, Matt. xxi 1—11; Luke xix 29—44; John xii. 12—36. Mark xi 12—14; 15—18, Matt xxi 12 16, Luke xix 45—48. Mark xi. 19—26; Matt. xxi. 17—22 Mark xi 27—33; Matt xxi. 23—32; Luke xx 1—8.

To the question, Why did our Lord not refrain on this occasion from going up to the feast? it is sufficient to say that, according to the Mosaic law, it was incumbent on the whole of the male adult population to appear in the Temple on such high and solemn occasions. Our Saviour, therefore, was in

5 And certain of them that stood there said unto them, What do ye, loosing the colt?

6 And they said unto them even as Jesus had commanded: and they let them go.

7 And they brought the colt to Jesus, and cast their garments on him; and he sat upon him.

8 And many spread their garments in the way: and others cut down branches off the trees, and strawed them in the way.[a]

9 And they that went before, and they that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna; Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord:[b]

10 Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, that cometh in the name of the Lord: Hosanna in the highest.[c]

11 And Jesus entered into Jerusalem, and into the temple: and when he had looked round about upon all things, and now the eventide was come, he went out unto Bethany with the twelve.[d]

12 ¶ And on the morrow, when they were come from Bethany, he was hungry:[e]

13 And seeing a fig tree afar off having leaves, he came, if haply he might find any thing thereon: and when he came to it, he found nothing but leaves; for the time of figs was not yet.[f]

14 And Jesus answered and said unto it, No man eat fruit of thee hereafter for ever. And his disciples heard it.

15 ¶ And they come to Jerusalem: and Jesus went into the temple, and began to cast out them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the moneychangers, and the seats of them that sold doves;[g]

16 And would not suffer that any man should carry any vessel through the temple.

17 And he taught, saying unto them, Is it not written, My house shall be called [1]of all nations the house of prayer? but ye have made it a den of thieves.[h]

18 And the scribes and chief priests heard it, and sought how they might destroy him: for they feared him, because all the people was astonished at his doctrine.[i]

19 And when even was come, he went out of the city.

20 ¶ And in the morning, as they passed by, they saw the fig tree dried up from the roots.[j]

21 And Peter calling to remembrance saith unto him, Master, behold, the fig tree which thou cursedst is withered away.

22 And Jesus answering saith unto them, [2]Have faith in God.

23 For verily I say unto you, That whosoever shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; and shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe that those things which he saith shall come to pass; he shall have whatsoever he saith.[k]

24 Therefore I say unto you, What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them.[l]

25 And when ye stand praying, forgive, if ye have ought against any: that your Father also which is in heaven may forgive you your trespasses.[m]

26 But if ye do not forgive, neither will your Father which is in heaven forgive your trespasses.[n]

27 ¶ And they come again to Jerusalem: and as he was walking in the temple, there come to him the chief priests, and the scribes, and the elders,[o]

28 And say unto him, By what authority doest thou these things? and who gave thee this authority to do these things?

29 And Jesus answered and said unto them, I will also ask of you one [3]question, and answer me, and I will tell you by what authority I do these things.

30 The baptism of John, was it from heaven, or of men? answer me.

31 And they reasoned with themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven; he will say, Why then did ye not believe him?

32 But if we shall say, Of men; they feared the people: for all men counted John, that he was a prophet indeed.[p]

33 And they answered and said unto Jesus, We cannot tell. And Jesus answering saith unto them, Neither do I tell you by what authority I do these things.

CHAPTER XII.

1 In a parable of the vineyard let out to unthankful husbandmen, Christ foretelleth the reprobation of the Jews, and the calling of the Gentiles. 13 He avoideth the snare of the Pharisees and Herodians about paying tribute to Cæsar. 18 convinceth the error of the Sadducees, who denied the resurrection. 28 resolveth the scribe, who questioned of the first commandment. 35 refuteth the opinion that the scribes held of Christ: 38 bidding the people to beware of their ambition and hypocrisy. 41 and commendeth the poor widow for her two mites, above all.

AND he began to speak unto them by parables. A certain man planted a vineyard, and set an hedge about it, and digged a place for the winefat, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country.[q]

2 And at the season he sent to the husbandmen a servant, that he might receive from the husbandmen of the fruit of the vineyard.

the path of duty He had also a purpose to fulfil, and in fulfilling it, he must face all opposition, all danger.

1. "Came nigh to Jerusalem."—whether our Lord made a double entry into Jerusalem, see Matt xxi. 1—11, with the Notes.

10 "The kingdom of our father David."—this not only expresses the fact, that David, in his regal character, was the father of their nation, but that, in setting up the Messiah's kingdom, there was virtually a restoration of the throne or empire of David

13. "The time of figs was not yet"—it is a peculiarity in the fig-tree, that the fruit appears before the leaf. If there were leaves, there ought to have been fruit, for the time of figs—that is, the time for gathering the fruit—had not yet come. See the parallel passage in Matthew, with the Notes

15 "Sold and bought in the temple"—this traffic was so far connected with the service of the Temple, that the animals bought and sold were to be used in the approaching Passover and its subsequent festivals For such transactions there was a place fitted up and allotted in the spacious outer court, called the Court of the Gentiles, these business transactions were considered justifiable by the Jews; but our Lord looked farther down than man, and he saw, in such dealings, that which was degrading and unjust, and hence his apparently severe mode of procedure.

3 And they caught him, and beat him, and sent him away empty.

4 And again he sent unto them another servant; and at him they cast stones, and wounded him in the head, and sent him away shamefully handled.

5 And again he sent another; and him they killed, and many others; beating some, and killing some.

6 Having yet therefore one son, his wellbeloved, he sent him also last unto them, saying, They will reverence my son.

9 What shall therefore the lord of the vineyard do? he will come and destroy the husbandmen, and will give the vineyard unto others.

10 And have ye not read this scripture; The stone which the builders rejected is become the head of the corner:[a]

[a] Ps cxviii 22

"The money-changers" were those who sat in the Temple to supply the worshippers with half-shekels in exchange for larger money, with which to pay their annual tribute to the House of the Lord, according to the law

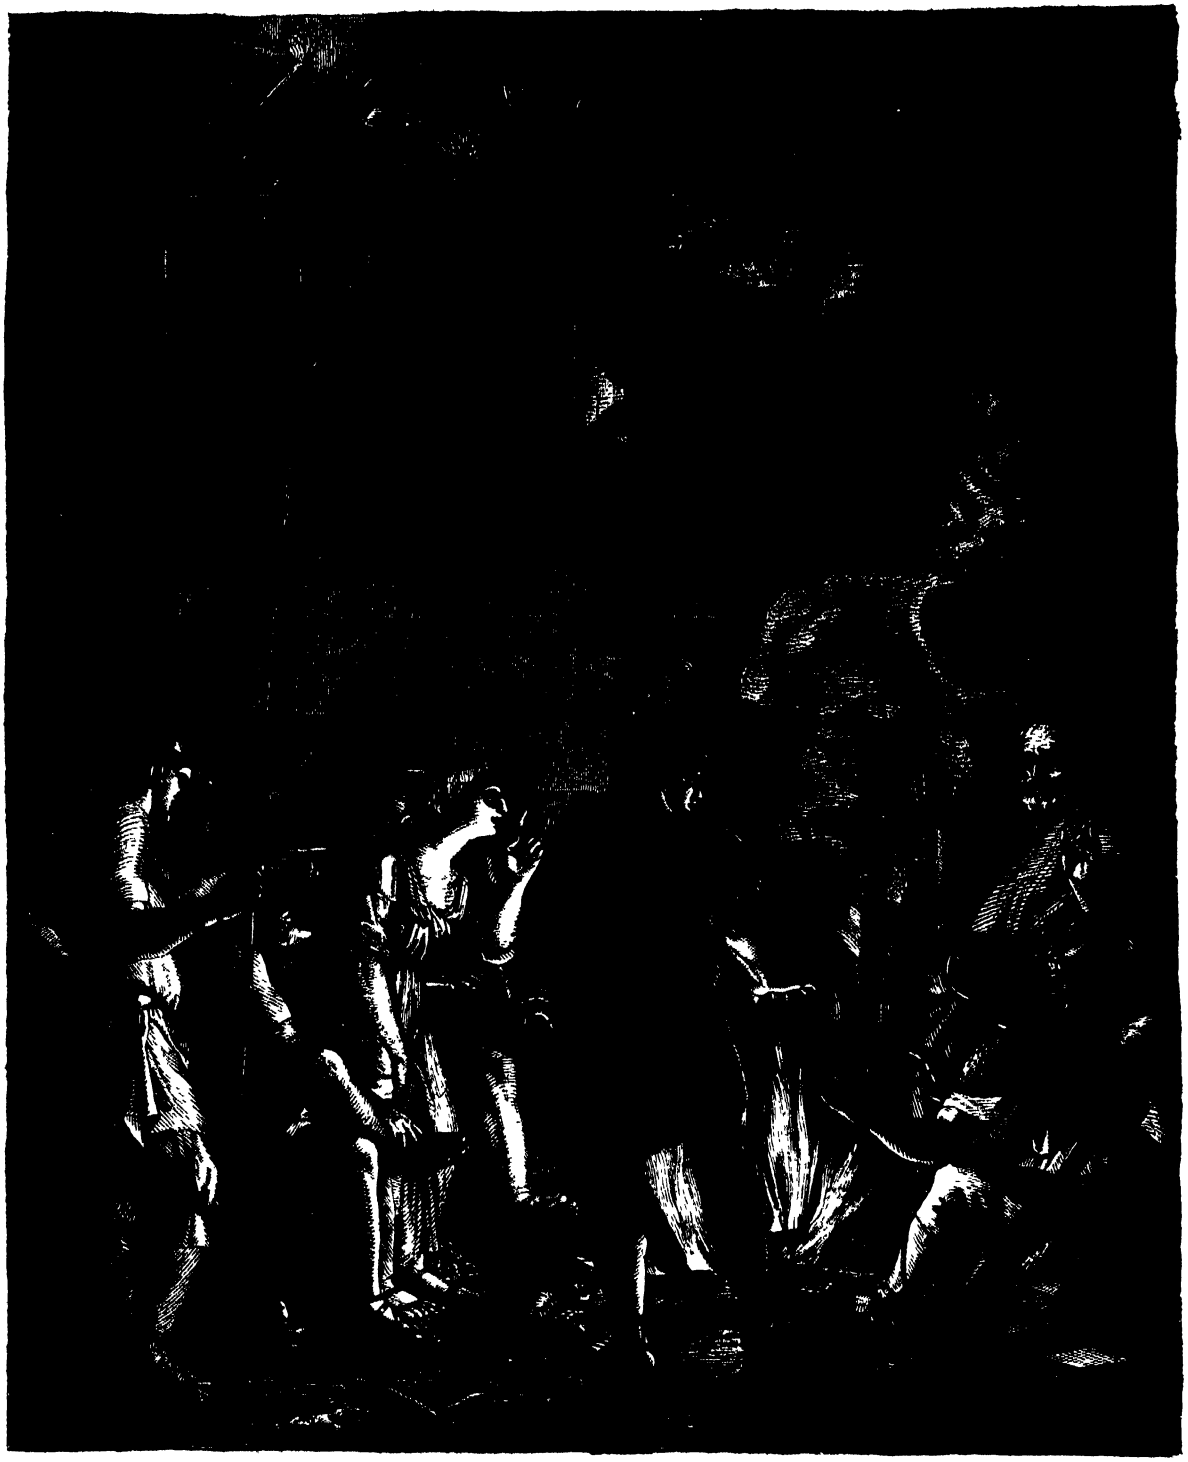
Here we have a solemn truth presented to our minds—the sum demanded by the law was the same for the poor as for the rich, no one could do less, no one could do more—to teach us that the services of the Temple are divinely appointed, that the approach to Almighty God, and to the reception of his blessings, can only be in the way which he himself has enjoined; and that the rich man may be humbled, and the poor not depressed, both are taught by the tribute money that their souls are of equal value in the sight of God

16 "Any vessel through the temple,"—any coffer or chest, or any article used in their secular and unjust transactions.

22 "Have faith in God,"—in God, not only as the foundation of all things in the natural world, but as the one only basis of all that exists, or can exist, in the higher domain of the spiritual world.

25. "And when ye stand praying, forgive:"—"to revenge is human, to forgive divine." The duties of forbearance and of forgiveness are too often neglected, even by persons whose conduct in other respects demands our praise. The forgiveness of injuries is one of the essentials of Christianity. To withhold forgiveness, while it shuts out the offending one from our kindness, also shuts us out from the kindness which we desire at the hands of our Heavenly Father, for it stands recorded by an ordinance that can never be repealed—unless we forgive those who trespass against us, neither will our Father which is in heaven forgive us our trespasses. With an unforgiving spirit prayer ceases to prevail; therefore, ere ye approach God in prayer, "forgive." This attitude of standing indicates that the suppliant is prepared for earnest, resolute, unwearied intercession. To lie prostrate bespeaks distress or grief, or is the attitude of one engaged in deprecating evil.

CHAPTER XII.



SYNOPSIS.—Mark xii 1—12; Matt. xxi. 33—46. Luke xx 9—19. Mark xii. 13—27; Matt xxii. 15—33. Luke xx 20—44 Mark xii. 28—40; Matt xxii. 34—46; Luke xx. 45—47. Mark xii. 41—44; Luke xxi 1—4.

The hatred of the sacerdotal orders had now risen well nigh to its highest point towards the person of the Saviour, and being by fear restrained from laying violent hands upon him, they sought to catch him by their craft and malice In reporting our Lord's intercourse with these priestly orders, there is a wonderful agreement in the narrative of all the three Synoptical Evangelists. To borrow the words of Olshausen. "Even the verbal agreement is often so great, that we are tempted to suppose one and the same account as lying at the foundation of all the three. But compared with John, the other Evangelists appear to present to our view, as it were, the external life of the Redeemer as exhibited in his public ministrations. That spiritual disciple is the only one who permits us, in these latter seasons of the Lord's earthly life, to look into the quiet circle of his followers, and into the loving heart which now disclosed itself to his own without restraint. It may have been too difficult to comprehend the external and internal parts of the Saviour's life in one representation, especially in the last deeply-agitated circumstances, for this reason each was given separately; but, on that very account, certainly stamped with so much the more genuineness and truth."

1. "Speak unto them by parables;"—that is, by such comparisons as might illustrate truth, and render it more easy of comprehension. Thus any narrative of events, either real or supposed, is made the medium by which the attention is arrested, offence is avoided, conviction is secured, and important truth is brought home with greater power to the conscience and the heart. Our Lord's parables are remarkable for their clearness, simplicity, force, and appropriateness; and in every instance they are employed to convey truths of the first and highest moment; but if to us the parables, either in the Old or in the New Testament, appear obscure, we must remember that in early times, and in Eastern countries, it was universally the mode to convey sacred truths under some mysterious figures and representations. For the exposition and application of this parable of the vineyard let out to husbandmen, see Matt. xxi. 33—46.

2 "At the season,"—at the time of the fruit, which, in certain proportions, was allowed to the husbandmen, and of which the servant was sent to bring a specimen.

9. "He will come and destroy the husbandmen:"—this, it is hardly necessary to say, is not an answer returned to our Lord's question by the Pharisees, but his own solemn warning to those Pharisees; and, to give it greater sharpness, it might be read interrogatively—"Will he not come and destroy the husbandmen?"

10, 11. "The stone which the builders rejected:"—our Lord applies these verses to himself as the Chosen and Sent of God. The Jews rejected him, but still he was the Head and Lord of humanity.

After these verses comes in Matt. xxi. 43—45.

12. "They knew that he had spoken the parable against them:"—their consciences bore witness to the fact, that the words of Christ had a special reference and application to them, as the rulers of the people.

17. "Render to Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's:"—in dealing with the members of this hypocritical deputation, who had been sent by the equally hypocritical Sanhedrim to entangle and catch the Saviour in his words, our Lord draws the clearest line between legal rights and moral claims. As citizens of this world, men sustain certain relations, out of which spring certain inalienable duties. With these relations and duties the moral claims must not interfere. Such interference would itself be immoral, since such relations and duties are founded on the nature of things, and are according to the will of God. So, on the other hand, legal rights must not intrench on the moral claim. This would be unjust. Justice consists in giving to every

14 And when they were come, they say unto him, Master, we know that thou art true, and carest for no man: for thou regardest not the person of men, but teachest the way of God in truth: Is it lawful to give tribute to Cæsar, or not?

15 Shall we give, or shall we not give? But he, knowing their hypocrisy, said unto them, Why tempt ye me? bring me a [1]penny, that I may see it.

16 And they brought it. And he saith unto them, Whose is this image and superscription? And they said unto him, Cæsar's.

21 And the second took her, and died, neither left he any seed: and the third likewise.

22 And the seven had her, and left no seed: last of all the woman died also.

23 In the resurrection therefore, when they shall rise, whose wife shall she be of them? for the seven had her to wife.

28 ¶ And one of the scribes came, and having heard them reasoning together, and perceiving that he had answered them well, asked him, Which is the first commandment of all?[e]

29 And Jesus answered him, The first of all the commandments is, Hear, O Israel; The Lord our God is one Lord:[f]

30 And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength: this is the first commandment.

31 And the second is like, namely this, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. There is none other commandment greater than these.[g]

32 And the scribe said unto him, Well, Master, thou hast said the truth: for there is one God; and there is none other but he:[h]

33 And to love him with all the heart, and with all the understanding, and with all the soul, and with all the strength, and to love his neighbour as himself, is more than all whole burnt offerings and sacrifices.[i]

34 And when Jesus saw that he answered discreetly, he said unto him, Thou art not far from the kingdom of God. And no man after that durst ask him any question.[j]

35 ¶ And Jesus answered and said, while he taught in the temple, How say the scribes that Christ is the son of David?[k]

36 For David himself said by the Holy Ghost, The LORD said to my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool.[l]

37 David therefore himself calleth him Lord; and whence is he then his son? And the common people heard him gladly.

38 ¶ And he said unto them in his doctrine, Beware of the scribes, which love to go in long clothing, and love salutations in the marketplaces,[m]

39 And the chief seats in the synagogues, and the uppermost rooms at feasts:

one his due. It is founded on right; and while it is right to give the civil ruler all that he can justly claim, it is equally imperative to give unto God that to which he alone is entitled.

19—27. "Neither marry, nor are given in marriage:"—while the religion of the Pharisees was made up of the merest formalism, the creed of the Sadducees led them to the denial of everything. They believed neither in the immortality of the soul, nor in the resurrection of the dead, consequently, as error leads to error, they rejected, as unworthy of belief, the doctrine of a future life. Carrying their ideas of the present state into the future, they here came to the Saviour with a question touching the subject of marriage subsequent to the resurrection, in the hope that they might embarrass and perplex him. He might have treated their question with silence or with contempt, but he so disposes of it as to cause them to refute themselves. He shows them that had they known the Scriptures either in their spirit or in their letter, there was sufficient to convince them of the doctrine of a future state, and of an eternal, individual life in man. They pretended to proceed on the assumption that the forms and the relations of the present life would have existence in the life to come; that the life of sense on earth would be renewed and perpetuated in the life of the spirit in heaven. Whereas, in the future, the conditions of our being will be wholly changed. We shall be "as the angels" in mental power and moral existence. If angels partake of the life of God, so shall we as his redeemed children, and perhaps in still fuller measure. Does their spiritual nature link them to the one infinite and ever-perfect Spirit? Our spiritual nature brings us into closer connection with Christ, and in virtue of our joint union we are in deathless relationship to the Son of God. It is this relationship—this union with the absolute and the immutable life—which completes our idea of the moral excellence of the redeemed. The relations and the happiness of the future life will be found to spring not from sex, nor from kindred, nor from earthly associations and friendships, but simply and alone from the oneness of our moral and spiritual nature. Such is the fact in the history and the development of angels, and such will be the fact in our glorified humanity for ever.—See Matt. xxii. 23—33, and the Notes.

28. "Which is the first commandment of all?"—though the Jews had a great many frivolous classifications of the commandments or precepts included in the Law, there is nothing to indicate that this inquirer was speaking in a light or trifling mood, or that he put the question out of enmity; but, charmed and amazed with the answer which Christ had given to the Sadducees on the subject of the resurrection, he is encouraged to prefer this important question. The reply of our Lord favours this conclusion. He makes love to God the very essence of religion, and the proof of this supreme love of God lies in the love of our neighbours, for if we love not our brother whom we have seen, how can we love God whom we have not seen?

34. "Thou art not far from the kingdom of God."—not only was the inquirer satisfied with the answer of our Lord, but he had obtained such clear and sound views of the principle involved in the very existence of Christ's kingdom, that he had but to press forward to the attainment of everlasting life. "Then shall ye know if ye follow on to know the Lord," is the language of Holy Writ.

35—37. For the exposition of these important verses, see Matt. xxii. 41—46.

41. "Sat over against the treasury:"—our Lord had taken his leave of the Temple, and in going out of it seated himself in some part of the court of the women, and watched them as they entered the Temple and deposited their offerings in the treasury. What a commendation does he pronounce on the poor widow! This is her monument through all time, and to have done what she could will be to her joy throughout eternity.

40 Which devour widows' houses, and for a pretence make long prayers: these shall receive greater damnation.[e]

41 ¶ And Jesus sat over against the treasury, and beheld how the people cast [1]money into the treasury: and many that were rich cast in much.[b]

42 And there came a certain poor widow, and she threw in two [2]mites, which make a farthing.

43 And he called unto him his disciples, and saith unto them, Verily I say unto you, That this poor widow hath cast more in, than all they which have cast into the treasury:[c]

44 For all they did cast in of their abundance; but she of her want did cast in all that she had, even all her living.[d]

CHAPTER XIII.

SYNOPSIS.—Mark xiii. 1—37; Matt. xxiv. 1—xxv. 13; Luke xxi. 5—38.

We have now to deal with the great prophetic discourse which our Lord delivered in Jerusalem prior to his sufferings and death. The Redeemer had but a short time longer to remain on the earth, and he seems eager to express, in his teaching and his conduct, all that lay in his loving heart. What a solemnity attaches to these, his last sayings! What an abiding impression should they leave on our spirits!

1. "Went out of the temple:"—he left it never again to enter it; and the moment he withdrew, the presence of God ceased to linger, and the Temple, with all its service, as well as the state with all its institutions—the whole constitution—was given over to destruction.

2. "There shall not be left one stone upon another:"—magnificent as the Temple was as a whole—splendid as was its architecture, and beautiful its symmetry—it was doomed to desolation certain and final. The words are addressed to his own immediate followers, who, as "the appointed leaders of the Church, needed an insight into things that would happen in the future; in order that on the one hand they might not suffer shipwreck in their own faith, and on the other might be enabled to conduct the Church through the rocking sea." For the literal fulfilment of the prophecy, we have the testimony of Josephus and other historians.

3. "He sat upon the mount of Olives:"—the wall of the Temple was rather depressed on the side facing this Mount, and hence the whole of the sacred edifice could be seen from the position now occupied by Christ and his disciples.

4. "Tell us, when shall these things be?"—not merely the overthrow of the Temple, but that series of events, of which this was only one, which were matter of prediction, on which their minds had been more deeply fixed by the Saviour's teaching and conversation, and the near accomplishment of which was indicated by the signs of the times.

"What shall be the sign:"—our Lord answers this question in such a way as to repress their curiosity, by reminding them that the aspect and character of the coming events were such as should not only restrain them from prying into the future, but lead them to turn their thoughts upon themselves, and on their own spiritual and moral fitness for the issue of such events.

7. "The end shall not be yet;" or, "the end is not yet;"—that is, the time for completing these calamities is not imminent, still it is not the less certain.

9. "In the synagogues ye shall be beaten;"—that is, ye shall be condemned to be beaten. Here, by a figure of speech, the result is put for the cause; for it is not likely that the stripes were really inflicted in the synagogues—that is, in the buildings appropriated to worship; but before the synagogues—that is, before or in the presence of the rulers by whom the punishment was decreed, and in the presence of the people.

10. "The gospel must first be published among all nations:"—a Christian Church already existed in Jerusalem. The fire of persecution which broke out against that Church, and scattered its members far and wide, contributed to the diffusion of the truth; and before the destruction of the city and the Temple, St. Paul had visited almost every isle and continent of the then known world.

In thus speaking, both in this place and in our Note upon Matt. xxiv. 14, of the wonderful spread of the Gospel, we must not forget that, in addition to the thirty years' labours of Paul in Asia and in Europe, there are to be added the effects arising from various other causes—namely, that before the destruction of Jerusalem, the four Gospels, the Acts, and sixteen of the Epistles were written, circulated, and read publicly in various parts of the world; also, the soldiers in the Roman army who had embraced Christianity were stationed in divers places; and to these must be added the missionary 18 And pray ye that your flight be not in the winter.

19 For in those days shall be affliction, such as was not from the beginning of the creation which God created unto this time, neither shall be.[a]

20 And except that the Lord had shortened those days, no flesh should be saved: but for the elect's sake, whom he hath chosen, he hath shortened the days.

21 And then if any man shall say to you, Lo, here is Christ; or, lo, he is there; believe him not:[b]

22 For false Christs and false prophets shall rise, and shall shew signs and wonders, to seduce, if it were possible, even the elect.

23 But take ye heed: behold, I have foretold you all things.[c]

24 ¶ But in those days, after that tribulation, the sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light,[d]

25 And the stars of heaven shall fall, and the powers that are in heaven shall be shaken.

26 And then shall they see the Son of man coming in the clouds with great power and glory.[e]

27 And then shall he send his angels, and shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from the uttermost part of the earth to the uttermost part of heaven.

28 Now learn a parable of the fig tree; When her branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, ye know that summer is near:[f]

29 So ye in like manner, when ye shall see these things come to pass, know that it is nigh, even at the doors.

30 Verily I say unto you, that this generation shall not pass, till all these things be done.

31 Heaven and earth shall pass away: but my words shall not pass away.[g]

32 ¶ But of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father.

33 Take ye heed, watch and pray: for ye know not when the time is.[h]

34 For the Son of man is as a man taking a far journey, who left his house, and gave authority to his servants, and to every man his work, and commanded the porter to watch.[i]

35 Watch ye therefore: for ye know not when the master of the house cometh, at even, or at midnight, or at the cockcrowing, or in the morning:[j]

36 Lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping.

37 And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch.

CHAPTER XIV.

1 A conspiracy against Christ. 3 Precious ointment is poured on his head by a woman, 10 Judas selleth his Master for money. 12 Christ himself foretelleth how he shall be betrayed of one of his disciples: 22 after the passover prepared, and eaten, instituteth his supper: 26 declareth aforehand the flight of all his disciples, and Peter's denial. 43 Judas betrayeth him with a kiss. 46 He is apprehended in the garden, 53 falsely accused, and impiously condemned of the Jews' council 65 shamefully abused by them. 66 and thrice denied of Peter.

AFTER two days was the feast of the passover, and of unleavened bread: and the chief priests and the scribes sought how they might take him by craft, and put him to death.[k]

2 But they said, Not on the feast day, lest there be an uproar of the people.

3 ¶ And being in Bethany in the house of Simon the leper, as he sat at meat, there came a woman having an alabaster box of ointment of [1]spikenard very precious; and she brake the box, and poured it on his head.[l]

4 And there were some that had indignation within themselves, and said, Why was this waste of the ointment made?

5 For it might have been sold for more than three hundred pence, and have been given to the poor. And they murmured against her.[m]

6 And Jesus said, Let her alone; why trouble ye her? she hath wrought a good work on me.

labours of the other apostles, for we are told that after these holy men had exercised their ministry for twelve years in Palestine, they resolved to disperse themselves in different parts of the world. Peter, therefore, went into Pontus, Galatia, and other provinces of the Lesser Asia, Andrew to Scythia and to Sogdiana; John to Asia; Philip to Upper Asia and Colchis; Bartholomew to Arabia; Matthew to Chaldea, Persia, and Parthia, Thomas to the Hircanians, Bactrians, and Indians, James continued at Jerusalem; Simon proceeded to —t, Cyrene, Libya, and Mauritania; Jude to Syria and Mesopotamia, and Matthias to Cappadocia. These men, with the love of God in their hearts, and their lives in their hands—working miracles, preaching powerfully, and qualified by the gift of many languages—accomplished wonders in the overthrow of heathenism, and the diffusion of the Gospel; and by these combined causes the message of life was made known to men of all nations.

11—31. On these solemn and significant events, see Matt. xxiv, with the Notes and Commentary.

The words in verse 27, "from the uttermost part of the earth to the uttermost part of heaven," are a Jewish mode of expressing "from the west even to the east," and "from one end of the world even to the other."

32. "Neither the Son, but the Father;"—a confessedly difficult phrase. Alford asserts that the interpretation which some critics have put upon the words, "he does not know it, so as to reveal it to us," is a mere evasion; and yet he himself says that "this is one of those things which the Father hath put in his power, and with which the Son, in his mediatorial office, is not acquainted!" What is this but to acknowledge that, as Mediator, he had nothing to do with the revelation of the day or the hour? Olshausen is of opinion that "the ignorance of the day and hour here predicted of him cannot be absolute, because the consubstantiality of the Father and the Son does not permit a specific separation between the knowledge of the Father and that of the Son: on the contrary, it must be understood as designating the absence of such knowledge on the part of our Lord in his position of humiliation" More definite is Bengel, who says —"Both the human nature and the state of humiliation in respect to the office of Christ being supposed, his words may be understood to mean, without mental reservation, that he knew not, because he had it not among his instructions to declare that day; as also in order to deter his disciples from requiring to know it." It was no part of his commission as the Son and Sent of God to make it known, and it did not become his followers to seek to know what the Father had thus kept secret.

The events connected with our Lord's approaching death are here crowded together, and presented in the most condensed form. The Evangelist passes from scene to scene with amazing rapidity, as if eager to reach the last act in the mysterious life of the Incarnate Saviour. It is this which gives such vividness to his picture—a picture before which we stand with fixed amazement, and with adoring wonder. Never was such a scene enacted. Never were heaven and earth challenged to profounder thoughts.

1. "The feast of the passover, and of unleavened bread:"—we learn from Exod. xii. 1—20 that the feast of unleavened bread is to be dated from the institution of the Passover, and hence the fact of their being combined in the verse before us.

3. "An alabaster box of ointment:"—the vessel in which the ointment was contained was made of alabaster, as the most appropriate vehicle in which to keep it. But what is meant by "ointment of spikenard," the authorities are not agreed. Some derive the designation, "spikenard," from a Greek word sig-

CHRIST BEFORE PILATE.—MARK XV. 1—5.

Anno Domini 33.

7 For ye have the poor with you always, and whensoever ye will ye may do them good: but me ye have not always.[a]

8 She hath done what she could: she is come aforehand to anoint my body to the burying.

9 Verily I say unto you, Wheresoever this gospel shall be preached throughout the whole world, this also that she hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her.

10 ¶ And Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve, went unto the chief priests, to betray him unto them.[b]

11 And when they heard it, they were glad, and promised to give him money. And he sought how he might conveniently betray him.

12 ¶ And the first day of unleavened bread, when they [1]killed the passover, his disciples said unto him, Where wilt thou that we go and prepare that thou mayest eat the passover?[c]

13 And he sendeth forth two of his disciples, and saith unto them, Go ye into the city, and there shall meet you a man bearing a pitcher of water: follow him.

14 And wheresoever he shall go in, say ye to the goodman of the house, The Master saith, Where is the guestchamber, where I shall eat the passover with my disciples?

15 And he will shew you a large upper room furnished and prepared: there make ready for us.

16 And his disciples went forth, and came into the city, and found as he had said unto them: and they made ready the passover.

17 And in the evening he cometh with the twelve.[d]

18 And as they sat and did eat, Jesus said, Verily I say unto you, One of you which eateth with me shall betray me.

19 And they began to be sorrowful, and to say unto him one by one, Is it I? and another said, Is it I?

20 And he answered and said unto them, It is one of the twelve, that dippeth with me in the dish.

21 The Son of man indeed goeth, as it is written of him: but woe to that man by whom the Son of man is betrayed! good were it for that man if he had never been born.[e]

22 ¶ And as they did eat, Jesus took bread, and blessed, and brake it, and gave to them, and said, Take, eat: this is my body.[f]

23 And he took the cup, and when he had given thanks, he gave it to them: and they all drank of it.

24 And he said unto them, This is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many.

25 Verily I say unto you, I will drink no more of the fruit of the vine, until that day that I drink it new in the kingdom of God.

26 ¶ And when they had sung an [2]hymn, they went out into the mount of Olives.[g]

27 And Jesus saith unto them, All ye shall be offended because of me this night: for it is written, I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered.[h]

28 But after that I am risen, I will go before you into Galilee.[i]

29 But Peter said unto him, Although all shall be offended, yet will not I.[j]

30 And Jesus saith unto him, Verily I say unto thee, That this day, even in this night, before the cock crow twice, thou shalt deny me thrice.

31 But he spake the more vehemently, If I should die with thee, I will not deny thee in any wise. Likewise also said they all.

32 And they came to a place which was named Gethsemane: and he saith to his disciples, Sit ye here, while I shall pray.[k]

33 And he taketh with him Peter and James and John, and began to be sore amazed, and to be very heavy;

34 And saith unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful unto death: tarry ye here, and watch.[l]

35 And he went forward a little, and fell on the ground, and prayed that, if it were possible, the hour might pass from him.

36 And he said, Abba, Father, all things are possible unto thee; take away this cup from me: nevertheless not what I will, but what thou wilt.[m]

37 And he cometh, and findeth them sleeping, and saith unto Peter, Simon, sleepest thou? couldest not thou watch one hour?

38 Watch ye and pray, lest ye enter into temptation. The spirit truly is ready, but the flesh is weak.[n] nifying what is liquid or drinkable, and tell us that there was a certain kind of odoriferous preparation used as a beverage. Others derive it from a word which means what is genuine or pure, because the nard oil was often adulterated. Others conceive that it can hardly signify any particular kind of ointment technically so called. But Augustine supposes it to have reference to some place from which the nard was obtained. The place he does not give; but others have ventured to say that the Greek word "PISTIKES" is put by aphæresis (or the dropping of the first letter) for OPISTIKAS, the town of Opis, not far from Babylon, from which the spikenard or perfume came.

13. "Go ye into the city:"—the knowledge here indicated by our Lord is an incontrovertible proof of his omniscience, and, therefore, of his supreme Godhead. "It was in deep humiliation, even like as an ordinary Israelite, that Christ ate the Passover lamb; wherefore he put forth his glory into exercise in the preparation for it."

15. "Furnished and prepared:" it was the duty of every Jewish householder, at the time of the Passover, to have a room in readiness for the observance of the feast, and this room, thus "furnished and prepared," was granted gratuitously. By this plan the vast multitude who came to Jerusalem were accommodated.

17. After this verse comes in John xiii. 1—20, which relates to us the washing of the disciples' feet—a symbolical act, by which our Lord wished to make manifest to his disciples the all-important truth, that self-abasing love is the only true way to elevation in the kingdom of God.

20. "Dippeth with me in the dish:"—in the East, in partaking of anything liquid at table, except what is used for drinking, it is customary to dip the bread in the liquid. Hence the act of Judas, in dipping his morsel in the same dish with Jesus.

22—25. "Jesus took bread:"—this was in the institution of his own sacramental supper—a service in which the traitor had no participation. The words of Olshausen are: "From the intent of the holy supper itself, which should be a meal of the most intimate love and union, it is most probable that so estranged a member as Judas was could not have part in this meal; not to mention that it would have been even contrary to the love and mercy of the Lord to permit the traitor, in his unworthy intent, and to the further augmenting of his guilt, to partake of that holy repast."

26. "When they had sung an hymn:"—this was the usual custom at the close of the Passover meal.

32. "A place which was named Gethsemane:"—this was a retired spot, about a stone's throw from the brook Kidron, containing about half an acre of land, on the western side of the Mount of Olives, and commanding a full view of the city of Jerusalem. It was, in fact, a grove, beautifully laid out, yet well adapted for shade and seclusion.

33—42. On these verses, in which is described that unutterable suffering which without measure now burst upon the Holy One of God, see Matt. xxvi. 36—56, with Heb. v. 7, 8.

44. "Lead him away safely:"—that is, with such precaution as to prevent

Anno Domini 33.

39 And again he went away, and prayed, and spake the same words.

40 And when he returned, he found them asleep again, (for their eyes were heavy,) neither wist they what to answer him.

41 And he cometh the third time, and saith unto them, Sleep on now, and take your rest: it is enough, the hour is come; behold, the Son of man is betrayed into the hands of sinners.[a]

42 Rise up, let us go; lo, he that betrayeth me is at hand.[b]

43 ¶ And immediately, while he yet spake, cometh Judas, one of the twelve, and with him a great multitude with swords and staves, from the chief priests and the scribes and the elders.[c]

44 And he that betrayed him had given them a token, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that same is he; take him, and lead him away safely.

45 And as soon as he was come, he goeth straightway to him, and saith, Master, master; and kissed him.

46 ¶ And they laid their hands on him, and took him.

47 And one of them that stood by drew a sword, and smote a servant of the high priest, and cut off his ear.

48 And Jesus answered and said unto them, Are ye come out, as against a thief, with swords and with staves to take me?[d]

49 I was daily with you in the temple teaching, and ye took me not: but the scriptures must be fulfilled.[e]

50 And they all forsook him, and fled.[f]

51 And there followed him a certain young man, having a linen cloth cast about his naked body; and the young men laid hold on him:

52 And he left the linen cloth, and fled from them naked.

53 ¶ And they led Jesus away to the high priest: and with him were assembled all the chief priests and the elders and the scribes.[g]

54 And Peter followed him afar off, even into the palace of the high priest: and he sat with the servants, and warmed himself at the fire.

55 And the chief priests and all the council sought for witness against Jesus to put him to death; and found none.[h]

56 For many bare false witness against him, but their witness agreed not together.

57 And there arose certain, and bare false witness against him, saying,

58 We heard him say, I will destroy this temple that is made with hands, and within three days I will build another made without hands.[i]

59 But neither so did their witness agree together.

60 And the high priest stood up in the midst, and asked Jesus, saying, Answerest thou nothing? what is it which these witness against thee?[j]

61 But he held his peace, and answered nothing. Again the high priest asked him, and said unto him, Art thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?[k]

62 And Jesus said, I am: and ye shall see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven.[l]

63 Then the high priest rent his clothes, and saith, What need we any further witnesses?

64 Ye have heard the blasphemy: what think ye? And they all condemned him to be guilty of death.

65 And some began to spit on him, and to cover his face, and to buffet him, and to say unto him, Prophesy: and the servants did strike him with the palms of their hands.

66 ¶ And as Peter was beneath in the palace, there cometh one of the maids of the high priest:[m]

67 And when she saw Peter warming himself, she looked upon him, and said, And thou also wast with Jesus of Nazareth.

68 But he denied, saying, I know not, neither understand I what thou sayest. And he went out into the porch; and the cock crew.

69 And a maid saw him again, and began to say to them that stood by, This is one of them.[n]

70 And he denied it again. And a little after, they that stood by said again to Peter, Surely thou art one of them: for thou art a Galilæan, and thy speech agreeth thereto.[o]

71 But he began to curse and to swear, saying, I know not this man of whom ye speak.

72 And the second time the cock crew. And Peter called to mind the word that Jesus said unto him, Before the cock crow twice, thou shalt deny me thrice. And [1]when he thought thereon, he wept.[p]

the possibility of his escape. "The wretched man was now no longer anxious merely about gaining the thirty pieces of silver, but was hurried along by a deadly hatred against Jesus."

51. "A certain young man:"—but to the question, "Who was he?" we can give no answer. He may have retired to rest, and been aroused by the din of what was taking place without. He was, in all likelihood, an attached disciple of Christ, who having rushed from his couch to the street, was interposing to prevent the taking away of Jesus, and was therefore laid hold of by the men of the crowd, but effected his escape. The disciples who forsook the Saviour and fled, found no impediments to their flight. The world will oppose our following Christ, but not our forsaking him.

53. "Led Jesus away to the high priest:"—he was taken first before Annas, who was (by right) the priest, and then he appeared before Caiaphas, who was (in fact) the priest.

55. "All the council;"—that is, the great Sanhedrim, which had its origin, as we learn from Numb. xi. 16, in the appointment of the seventy elders. Some are of opinion that the Sanhedrim, as a tribunal, was founded by Ezra, though its name belongs to the time of the Græco-Syrian dynasty. The president was the officiating high priest.

"Found none:"—by the law, it was indispensable that at least two of the witnesses should agree in their testimony. They could find no such agreement as the law required, although there were many to bear witness.

58—65. For the exposition of these verses, see the Notes on Matt. xxvi. 61—68.

66—72. "And Peter was beneath in the palace:"—the most energetic and the most zealous of the disciples now stands before us in all the acknowledged weakness of our common humanity. How affecting is the simplicity with which the Evangelists relate this deep fall of a chief one amongst them! They do not soften down its harshness. They plainly state that a damsel asked him. But as they do not excuse Peter, neither do they criminate him, nor express wonder at him. Without any comment whatever, they state the simple fact. Now when we reflect on this occurrence, we are compelled to propose to ourselves the question, "How was it possible that Peter—this resolute disciple, to whom Christ had expressly foretold his fall—could, even when danger threatened him, deny his Lord so distinctly?" For the answer, we shall be forced to admit the weakness and the sinfulness of our fallen nature, and the unceasing watchfulness of man's bitter foe. "It was the hour of the prince of darkness, which had in so inconceivable a way impaired and obscured the spiritual energy of the disciple, that he could not only deny Christ, but also remained exposed to the danger of repeating his crime, after he had once denied him." On this occasion the Apostle Peter was subjected to more than an ordinary test of his fidelity to his Master; and this trial of his faith was necessary, to free him from his self-confidence and his self-approving delusion. By Christian humility we stand, and by grace we conquer.

CHAPTER XV.

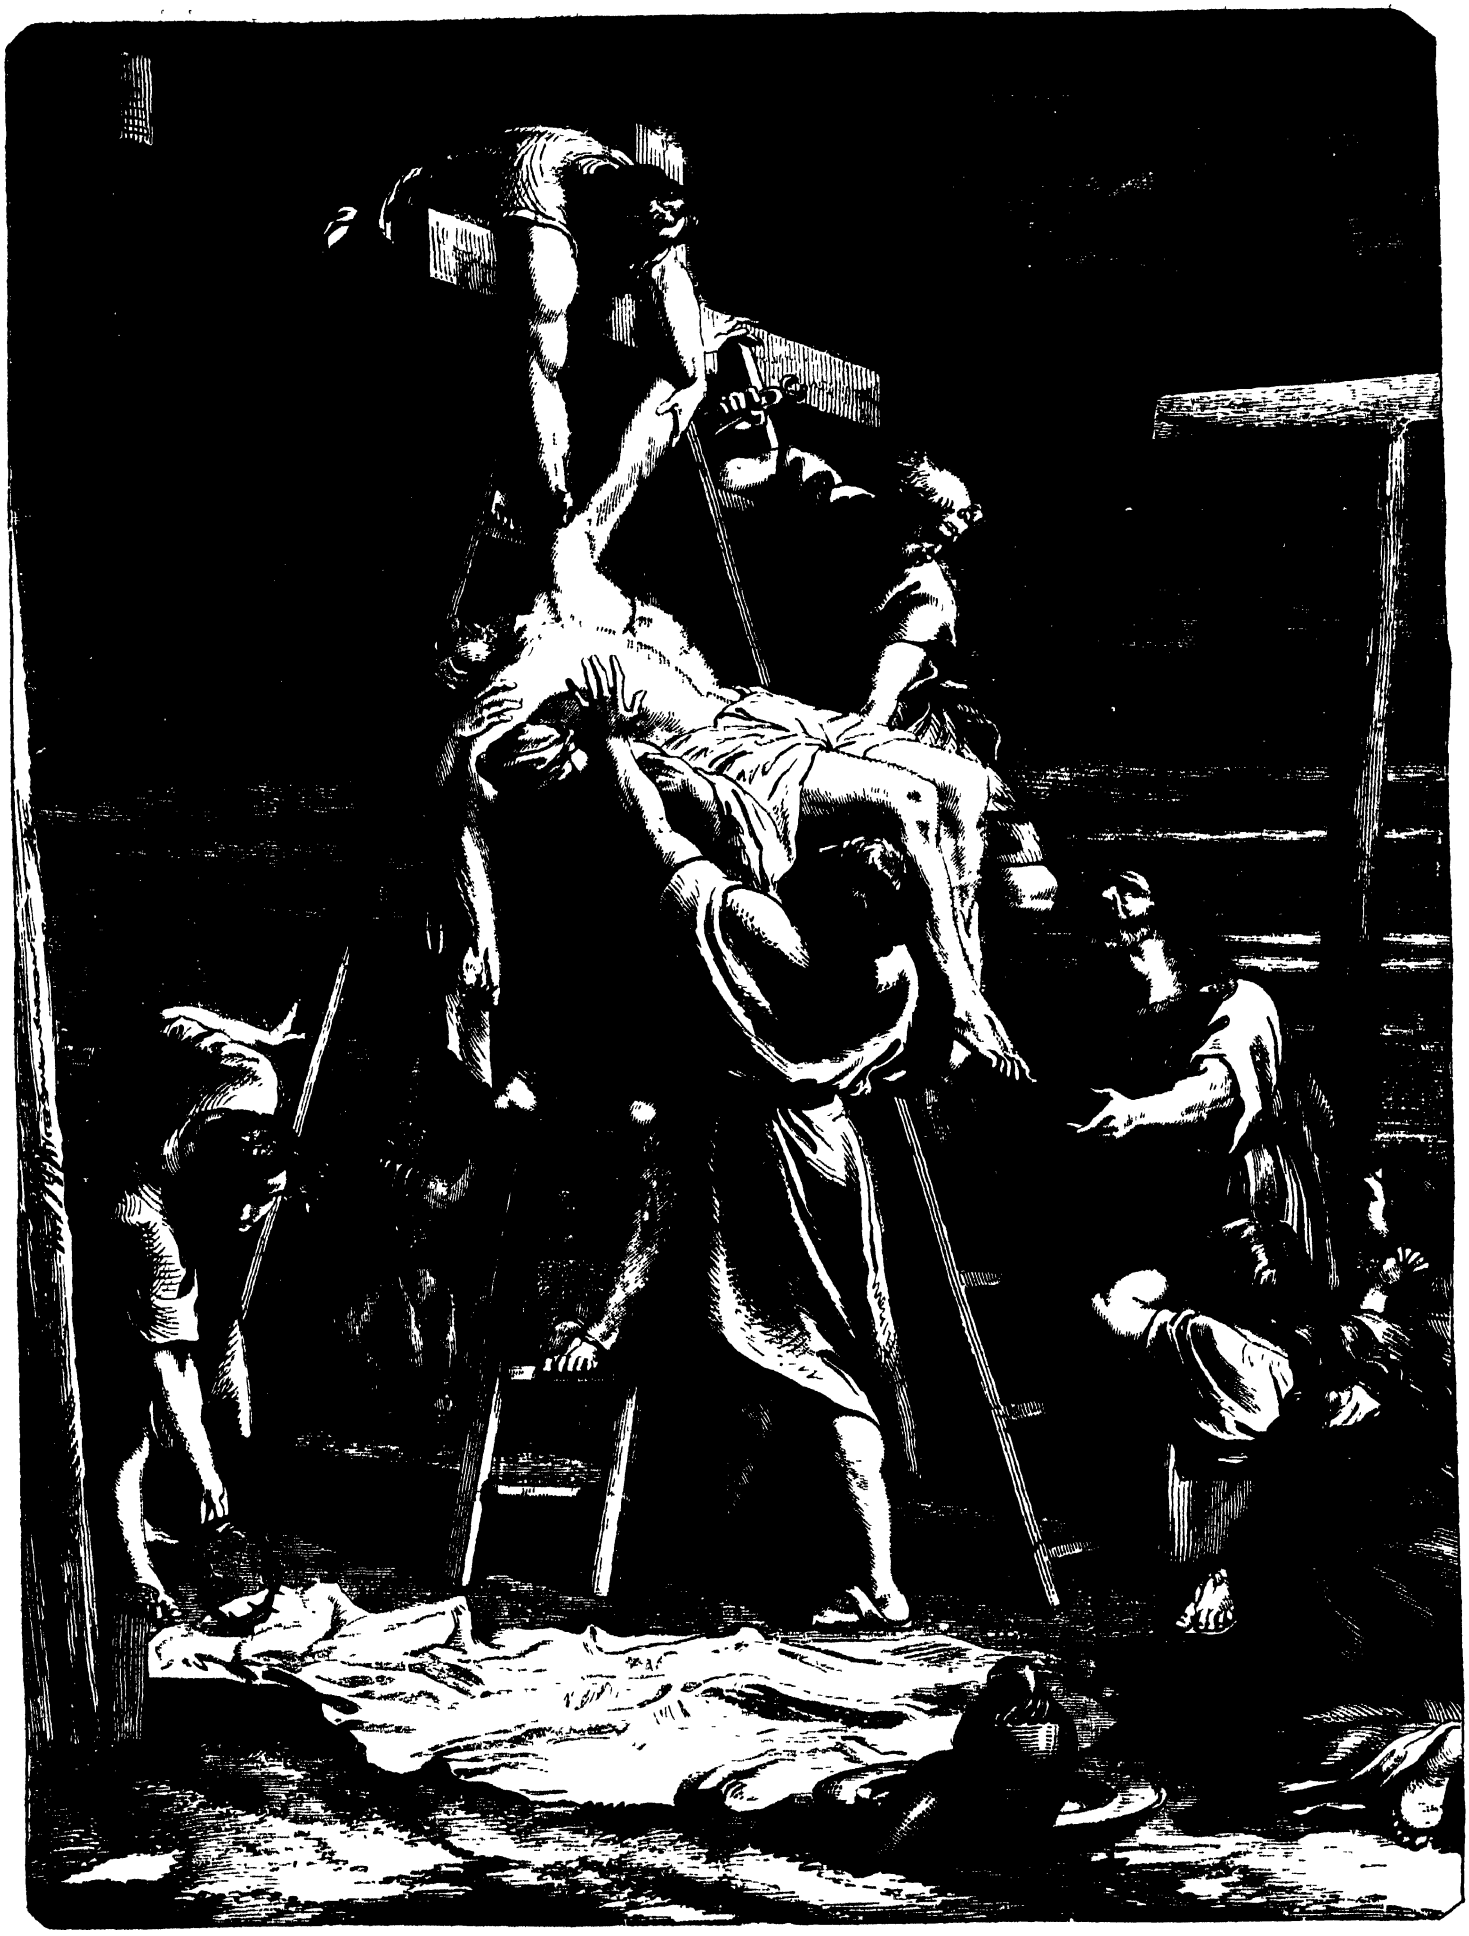
SYNOPSIS.—Mark xv 1—15, Matt. xxvii. 1—26, Luke xxiii 1—5, 17—25; John xviii 28—40 Mark xv 16—20; Matt xxvii. 27—30, John xix. 1—3. Mark xv 21—41; Matt xxvii. 31—56; Luke xxiii 26—49, John xix 17—30 Mark xv 42—47, Matt xxvii 57—66; Luke xxiii 50—56, John xix. 31—42

The cross, with all its mysterious sufferings, is now engaging the thoughts of the Incarnate One. Just as he had set his face steadfastly to go up to Jerusalem, so now he goes to meet death with a fortitude and a heroism never equalled The weight of a world's redemption now lay upon his heart, and for the spiritual life of man he was now travailing as one whose throes were to give birth to souls in countless multitudes.

1 "Delivered him to Pilate"—the Sanhedrim, it would seem, had sat in judgment on the preceding night, and scarcely had the day began, when they sentenced him to death, and led him away to Pilate.

6, 7 "He released unto them one prisoner"—this was the custom, and the people insisted that there should be no departure from it. Pilate would have released Jesus, but they impiously demanded Barabbas. Now it appears from the narrative of our Evangelist that this man was one of a set of insurrectionists and of murderers. Yet they preferred this blood-stained criminal to the innocent and holy Jesus. What a mystery is the human heart! What an enigma is human conduct! From this mournful view of man by nature let us turn, and, with reverential ear, listen to the Saviour's injunction to the first preachers of his Gospel—"BEGIN AT JERUSALEM."

15. "Willing to content the people:"—here is a man who knew that the chief priests had delivered up Jesus from a spirit of envy and hatred, and yet yields to the clamour of a multitude—a man who is so "bound by worldly regards of every kind, that he sacrifices his conscience to circumstances, for circumstances was his god"



A ROMAN HALL OF JUSTICE.—MARK XV. 16.

16 "The hall, called Prætorium:"—this prætorium was an open hall, or court, in which the Roman prætor administered justice

"The whole band" points to the entire company or cohort of Roman soldiers. A whole cohort to secure one prisoner! Jesus, even in the estimation of his enemies, could have been no common man. Thus the Jews insulted the Messiah as a priest, they mocked him as a prophet, and they derided him as a king, and what followed? Their high priest was put to death, their Temple was burnt, their city destroyed, their priesthood confounded, and their kingdom was overturned. May the day be at hand when the erring sons of Abraham shall look on him whom they pierced, and mourn; and may their sorrow be turned into penitential joy.

17-19. This clothing with purple, this crowning with thorns, this saluting and bowing of the knee, and affected worship, were so many acts of solemn mockery. There is no reason to believe, however, that this mockery was enacted in the presence of Pilate. Though he hoped to repress the wild and tumultuous hatred of the Jews by commanding Jesus to be scourged, it is more than probable that he had retired into the interior of his palace before the soldiers began to 19 And they smote him on the head with a reed, and did spit upon him, and bowing their knees worshipped him.

25 And it was the third hour, and they crucified him.[e]

26 And the superscription of his accusation was written over, THE KING OF THE JEWS.[f]

27 And with him they crucify two thieves; the one on his right hand, and the other on his left.[g]

28 And the scripture was fulfilled, which saith, And he was numbered with the transgressors.[h]

29 And they that passed by railed on him, wagging their heads, and saying, Ah, thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three days,[i]

30 Save thyself, and come down from the cross.

31 Likewise also the chief priests mocking said among themselves with the scribes, He saved others; himself he cannot save.

32 Let Christ the King of Israel descend now from the cross, that we may see and believe. And they that were crucified with him reviled him.[j]

33 And when the sixth hour was come, there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth hour.[k]

34 And at the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eloi, Eloi, lama sabachthani? which is, being interpreted, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?[l]

35 And some of them that stood by, when they heard it, said, Behold, he calleth Elias.

36 And one ran and filled a spunge full of vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink, saying, Let alone; let us see whether Elias will come to take him down.[m]

37 And Jesus cried with a loud voice, and gave up the ghost.[n]

38 And the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom.[o]

39 ¶ And when the centurion, which stood over against him, saw that he so cried out, and gave up the ghost, he said, Truly this man was the Son of God.[p]

40 There were also women looking on afar off: among whom was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James the less and of Joses, and Salome;[q]

41 (Who also, when he was in Galilee, followed him, and ministered unto him;) and many other women which came up with him unto Jerusalem.[r]

42 ¶ And now when the even was come, because it was the preparation, that is, the day before the sabbath,[s]

43 Joseph of Arimathæa, an honourable counsellor, which also waited for the kingdom of God, came, and went in boldly unto Pilate, and craved the body of Jesus.[t]

44 And Pilate marvelled if he were already dead: and calling unto him the centurion, he asked him whether he had been any while dead.

45 And when he knew it of the centurion, he gave the body to Joseph.

46 And he bought fine linen, and took him down, and wrapped him in the linen, and laid him in a sepulchre which was hewn out of a rock, and rolled a stone unto the door of the sepulchre.[u]

47 And Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Joses beheld where he was laid.

inflict such a punishment on the Sinless One. He seems to have been impressed with the majesty of the Saviour's character, and hence he was the more culpable for the line of conduct which he now pursued.

21. "Compel one Simon . . . to bear his cross"—whether Simon was a disciple of Christ at the time he is here introduced to us is uncertain; but that he and his family afterwards attached themselves to the Saviour is placed beyond all controversy by the fact that he is called the father of Alexander and Rufus. This Alexander was in all likelihood the same individual whom we find mentioned in Acts xix. 33, as taking a conspicuous part in the controversy between Paul and the populace of Ephesus; while Rufus and his mother are referred to by St. Paul in Rom. xvi. 13, in terms of affectionate regard.

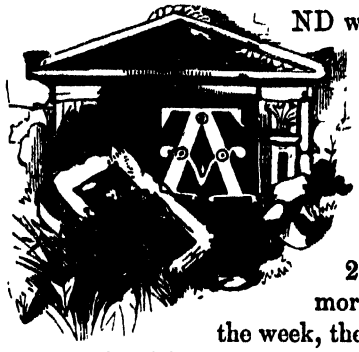
23. "Wine mingled with myrrh:"—Matthew describes it as vinegar mixed with gall This difference is easily reconciled, and both are correct. The ordinary drink of the Roman soldiers was vinegar produced from acid wine; this was offered twice to the Saviour—the first time just before the crucifixion; the second time just before the Saviour's death. On the first occasion the wine was medicated by the addition of myrrh, or gall, and other bitter ingredients, and was designed to render the sufferer less conscious of the agony he was about to endure. This customary act of mercy the Saviour would not receive, but the vinegar or sour wine afterwards presented to him for the purpose of alleviating thirst, he tasted and drank.

25. "It was the third hour:"—the day was divided into four sections of three hours each; and the third hour would correspond to our nine o'clock in the morning; but though the work of crucifixion began at so early an hour, it is clear from verses 33—37 that the Saviour did not part with life till the ninth hour, or three in the afternoon, so that he must have been six hours on the cross in the agonies of death. But what he went through during those six hours is a mystery, as we suppose, never to be revealed, the matter being beyond the power of finite minds to comprehend.

28. "He was numbered with the transgressors;"—that is, in the discharge of his sacrificial work, he suffered himself to be numbered with transgressors, although holy, harmless, and undefiled.

32 "Christ the King of Israel:"—the Saviour had claimed to be the Christ—the Anointed of God and the King of Israel, and now the chief priests and the scribes use his high and sacred titles in the way of scorn and contempt. It was in the presence of Caiaphas that he asserted his Messiahship; it was in the audience of Pilate that he avowed his sovereignty.

"They that were crucified with him reviled him."—Luke more precisely tells us that only one of them so acted. The penitent thief, in the words of Olshausen, "must abide perpetually as an undeniable proof that Jesus Christ came to save sinners, and while time endures this penitent must be regarded as a hero of faith; for he believed when faith failed even in those who professed to confide in Christ, the Son of the living God."



34. "Eloi! Eloi!"—the Saviour, in the intensity of his sufferings as the representative of fallen man, exclaimed not, "Jehovah! Jehovah!" but "Eloi! Eloi!" which being interpreted is, "My God! my God!" May not these words be regarded as the language of one acquiescing in the dispensations of Divine Justice? as if this Sacred One would not presume at that dread moment, and in his representative capacity, to call God by his paternal title of Father, but speaks as if naming the Judge of the world, who was rightfully permitting accumulated sorrows to fall on his own Son. At the same time the language of appropriation implied in the words, "My God! my God!" seems to intimate that the indwelling presence of Jehovah was not withdrawn, while the word "forsaken" denotes the loss of its comforting influence. The words are not the language of complaint, but the language of suffering; and when these sufferings were finished, the Saviour addresses Jehovah in his paternal character: "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit."

37. "Gave up the ghost:"—every act in the Saviour's death, as in his life, was unconstrained and voluntary. He gave himself for us; he gave up the ghost. What profound mystery! what matchless love! what almighty power!

38—41. On these verses, see Matt. xxvii. 51—56, with the Notes and Commentary; only observe that the Saviour is here represented as receiving

CHAPTER XVI.

1 An angel declareth the resurrection of Christ to three women. 9 Christ himself appeareth to Mary Magdalene: 12 to two going into the country: 14 then to the apostles, 15 whom he sendeth forth to preach the gospel: 19 and ascendeth into heaven.

AND when the sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, had bought sweet spices, that they might come and anoint him.[a]

2 And very early in the morning the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre at the rising of the sun.[b]

3 And they said among themselves, Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre?

4 And when they looked, they saw that the stone was rolled away: for it was very great.

5 And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment; and they were affrighted.[c]

6 And he saith unto them, Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him.[d]

7 But go your way, tell his disciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see him, as he said unto you.[e]

8 And they went out quickly, and fled from the sepulchre; for they trembled and were amazed: neither said they any thing to any man; for they were afraid.[f]

9 ¶ Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils.[g]

10 And she went and told them that had been with him, as they mourned and wept.[h]

11 And they, when they had heard that he was alive, and had been seen of her, believed not.[i]

12 ¶ After that he appeared in another form unto two of them, as they walked, and went into the country.[j]

13 And they went and told it unto the residue: neither believed they them.

14 ¶ Afterward he appeared unto the eleven as they sat [1]at meat, and upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not them which had seen him after he was risen.[k]

15 And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.[l]

16 He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned.[m]

17 And these signs shall follow them that believe; In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues;[n]

18 They shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover.[o]

19 ¶ So then after the Lord had spoken unto them, he was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God.[p]

20 And they went forth, and preached every where, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with signs following. Amen.[q]

the ministrations of the pious women chiefly in Galilee. The reason of this is, that it was in Galilee he spent so large a portion of his time.

43. "An honourable counsellor"—as a member of the Jewish Sanhedrim, he was a distinguished senator—a man of dignity and honour; and the part which he now performed to obtain the body of the Saviour, being attended with great personal risk, bespeaks at once a faith and love which overcame fear.

"Waited for the kingdom of God,"—that is, for some fuller development of God's plan and purpose in behalf of our fallen race.

45. "Gave the body to Joseph:"—from this it appears that the bodies of those who were executed were at the disposal of the judge. Having received from Pilate the precious boon, Joseph "enfolded the body of Jesus in a roll of linen, with a mixture of sweet spices, placed it in a new sepulchre in his garden, and rolled a stone to its front. The fact of the sepulchre having been new and unused previously is rendered prominent as being a mark of honour, and consequently no confusion respecting the identity of the body could arise. Probably it was the vault intended for the interment of his own family that Joseph devoted to the body of Christ. . . . . A few women who had faithfully accompanied their beloved Master from Galilee followed him still, even to his grave, where they sat down, sunk in dejected sorrow, in order to be near at hand, to see how his body would be placed."

CHAPTER XVI.

SYNOPSIS.—Mark xvi. 1—8; Matt xxviii 1—10; Luke xxiv 1—12; John xx. 1—10 Mark xvi 9—14, Luke xxiv. 13—43; John xx. 11—25 16—20, Luke xxiv 44—53, John xx 30, 31.

The death of Christ was necessary to the completion of the great redemptive work. But it was not possible that he could be holden of death, and hence the fact of his resurrection and return to the power of an endless life. This was the grand ultimate proof of his being the Son of God, and the Saviour of man; and on this rests the whole superstructure of Christian truth. Hence, again, the prominence which is given to the fact of the resurrection in the ministry of the Apostles, and by the earlier preachers of the Gospel.

1. "When the sabbath was past;"—that is, the seventh day, or Jewish Sabbath. The day itself was spent by the friends and followers of Jesus in holy quiet and communion, but under the depressing influence of the thought that they had lost him whom their souls loved. Hence they hastened to the tomb with their spices to embalm the body of their Lord.

4. "For it was very great"—these words should form the conclusion of the third verse. The difficulty that suggested itself to the minds of these pious women arose from their knowledge of the largeness of the stone, or fragment of the rock, which had been placed at the mouth of the sepulchre: "for it was very great"

5 "A young man"—a human form, but, as we learn from Matthew, an angelic nature. Christ was the Lord of angels as well as of men, and hence their constant attendance upon him, and the ministrations which they performed.

7. "Tell his disciples and Peter:"—the message was probably sent to Peter after his denial of Christ, as an evidence of forgiveness and of restoration to the Divine favour.

8 "For they were afraid"—this was not terror, but holy amazement. So startling was the announcement that their Lord was alive, that their feelings overpowered them (see Matt. xxviii. 8). They "fled in terror," but only hastened back from the sepulchre to their fellow-disciples; and such were their emotions of joy and fear, that they spake to no one till they came and told to the eleven what they had seen and heard.

12, 13. "In another form:"—it is worthy of remark that each appearance of our Lord after his resurrection was just such as to correspond with the position and circumstances, the faith and susceptibility of those to whom he showed himself alive. See Luke xxiv. 13—35, of which the two verses now before us are an epitome.

14 "Upbraided them with their unbelief:"—this proves that the evidence was not only sufficient, but incontrovertible, in favour of his resurrection.

15—20. In these verses the Evangelist crowds together all that took place from the resurrection to the ascension: the frequent intercourse of the risen Saviour with his chosen followers; the commission which he gave them, accompanied with miraculous powers of the highest order; the conditions on which men were to be partakers of his salvation; the separation of our Lord from his disciples; his ascension to glory; the disciples waiting for the promise of the Father; their going forth on their sublime mission as ambassadors for Christ, with the Divine power working with them and working for them, and rendering their message effectual to the salvation of men.

CHAPTER I.

We have seen that Matthew wrote his narrative more immediately for the Jew, who was always asking for a sign, or something which spoke to his senses, and hence he gives us the purely human side of Christ; that Mark wrote for the Romans—a busy, enterprising, warlike people, and hence he represents Christ as at once entering upon the most active scenes of his life; but Luke's narrative is addressed to the Gentile nations, and, though addressed to the Gentiles, breathes the purest love and the most unconfined benevolence. To him belongs the admonitory parable of the good Samaritan, and the instructive parable of the prodigal son. The description of the prodigal's return to his home and his father's reception of the penitent son may be regarded as a little gospel in itself.

From the Epistle to the Colossians we learn that Luke was by profession a physician, and a man greatly beloved by the apostles and the early Church; while from the book of the Acts we find that, not very long after entering on his apostolic work, St. Paul chose Luke for his companion and fellow-labourer; and if Luke became the associate of Paul in his travels and labours, nothing could have been more natural than for Paul to take the first and earliest opportunity of introducing his friend and fellow-worker to the apostles and other leading members of the Jerusalem church, from whom, no doubt, as the immediate followers of Christ, and as eye-witnesses of the Saviour's life, the evangelist obtained a large portion of the materials out of which he composed his narrative, the influence of the Spirit of God guiding him into all truth.

his lot was to burn incense when he went into the temple of the Lord.[a]

10 And the whole multitude of the people were praying without at the time of incense.[b]

11 And there appeared unto him an angel of the Lord standing on the right side of the altar of incense.[c]

12 And when Zacharias saw him, he was troubled, and fear fell upon him.[d]

13 But the angel said unto him, Fear not, Zacharias: for thy prayer is heard; and thy wife Elisabeth shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name John.[e]

14 And thou shalt have joy and gladness; and many shall rejoice at his birth.[f]

15 For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink; and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost, even from his mother's womb.[g]

16 And many of the children of Israel shall he turn to the Lord their God.[h]

17 And he shall go before him in the spirit and power of Elias, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient [1]to the wisdom of the just; to make ready a people prepared for the Lord.[i]

18 And Zacharias said unto the angel, Whereby shall I know this? for I am an old man, and my wife well stricken in years.[j]

19 And the angel answering said unto him, I am Gabriel, that stand in the presence of God; and am sent to speak unto thee, and to shew thee these glad tidings.[k]

20 And, behold, thou shalt be dumb, and not able to speak, until the day that these things shall be performed, because thou believest not my words, which shall be fulfilled in their season.[l]

21 And the people waited for Zacharias, and marvelled that he tarried so long in the temple.

22 And when he came out, he could not speak unto them: and they perceived that he had seen a vision in the temple: for he beckoned unto them, and remained speechless.

23 And it came to pass, that, as soon as the days of his ministration were accomplished, he departed to his own house.[m]

24 And after those days his wife Elisabeth conceived, and hid herself five months, saying,

25 Thus hath the Lord dealt with me in the days wherein he looked on me, to take away my reproach among men.[n]

26 And in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth,

27 To a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary.[o]

28 And the angel came in unto her, and said, Hail, thou that art [2]highly favoured, the Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women.[p]

29 And when she saw him, she was troubled at his saying, and cast in her mind what manner of salutation this should be.[q]

30 And the angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favour with God.

31 And, behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name JESUS.[r]

32 He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David:[s]

33 And he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end.[t]

34 Then said Mary unto the angel, How shall this be, seeing I know not a man?

35 And the angel answered and said unto her, The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God.[u]

36 And, behold, thy cousin Elisabeth, she hath also conceived a son in her old age: and this is the sixth month with her, who was called barren.

37 For with God nothing shall be impossible.[v]

38 And Mary said, Behold the handmaid of the Lord; be it unto me according to thy word. And the angel departed from her.

1. "Many have taken in hand to set forth."—various parties in the early Church had, for their own pleasure and for the use of others, drawn up imperfect narratives of our Lord's life, some of which had got subsequently into circulation; but however truthful they might be, they were all defective, and therefore could not be regarded as representing the life of Christ.

3. "Having had perfect understanding;"—that is, of the things which were most surely believed by himself and others then living—the things which went to make up the life, the character, and the ministry of Christ—of which others had heard, but which he had received immediately from those who from the beginning had been eye-witnesses of the Saviour's life, and ministers of his word. His knowledge was not only full, but correct, and therefore to be relied on. This knowledge reached back to "the very first," or earliest period in the history of the Great Incarnate.

"Most excellent Theophilus:"—who this person was is unknown. It is clear from the designation here given him that he was a man of distinction, and filled some important public office. He was in all likelihood a Greek by birth, and therefore a Gentile by nature, but a convert to Christianity. Nor is it improbable that he and the Evangelist may have been fellow-students; and thus may have formed that early acquaintance which afterwards ripened into the closest and most endeared friendship. Theophilus may have requested from Luke a narrative of our Lord's life; and this request, under the influence of God's Providence, may have been the origin of Luke's Gospel.

4. "Wherein thou hast been instructed:"—whether Theophilus ever saw Christ, or heard his words of wisdom or beheld his miracles, we do not know; but there can be no doubt that so often as he came into contact with this his beloved friend, he made many inquiries into the life and character of that Mysterious One whose fame had spread far and wide, and in meeting those inquiries the Evangelist took the opportunity of fully informing Theophilus, so that he might be said to be so far instructed

5. "Of the course of Abia"—the courses of the priesthood were twenty-four in number, of one week's duration each, and of these courses this was the eighth, which fell to the family of Abia, or Abijah, to which Zacharias belonged

6. "In all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord;"—that is, in a faithful observance of all which the law enjoined and required

8. "In the order of his course:"—it is supposed that was in the month Tisri, which was the first in the civil year, and, according to some, corresponded with our date of from September 2nd to the 9th; but according to others from September 30th to October 6th. It was a week's service.

9 "To burn incense"—Alford says, that "this was the most honourable office which was allotted among the priests each day, and the same person could not serve it more than once"

11. "Standing on the right side of the altar of incense:"—this was not the great altar of burnt-offering which stood in the court of the priests, and from which one of the officiating priests brought fire to the altar of incense, with which, on a certain signal being given, he set fire to the incense, but it was the altar of incense itself, which stood close by the veil which divided the Holy place from the most Holy. On the north stood the table of shew-bread; on the south was placed the golden lamp-bearer; and therefore, as Zacharias entered with his face towards the west, the angel would stand on the north, to his right, and not far from the table of shew-bread.

39 And Mary arose in those days, and went into the hill country with haste, into a city of Juda;[a]

40 And entered into the house of Zacharias, and saluted Elisabeth.

41 And it came to pass, that, when Elisabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the babe leaped in her womb; and Elisabeth was filled with the Holy Ghost:

42 And she spake out with a loud voice, and said, Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb.[b]

43 And whence is this to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me?

44 For, lo, as soon as the voice of thy salutation sounded in mine ears, the babe leaped in my womb for joy.

45 And blessed is she [1]that believed: for there shall be a performance of those things which were told her from the Lord.

46 And Mary said, My soul doth magnify the Lord,[c]

47 And my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour.

48 For he hath regarded the low estate of his handmaiden: for, behold, from henceforth all generations shall call me blessed.[d]

49 For he that is mighty hath done to me great things; and holy is his name.[e]

50 And his mercy is on them that fear him from generation to generation.[f]

51 He hath shewed strength with his arm; he hath scattered the proud in the imagination of their hearts.[g]

52 He hath put down the mighty from their seats, and exalted them of low degree.[h]

53 He hath filled the hungry with good things; and the rich he hath sent empty away.[i]

54 He hath holpen his servant Israel, in remembrance of his mercy;[j]

55 As he spake to our fathers, to Abraham, and to his seed for ever.[k]

56 And Mary abode with her about three months, and returned to her own house.

57 Now Elisabeth's full time came that she should be delivered; and she brought forth a son.

58 And her neighbours and her cousins heard how the Lord had shewed great mercy upon her; and they rejoiced with her.[l]

59 And it came to pass, that on the eighth day they came to circumcise the child; and they called him Zacharias, after the name of his father.[m]

60 And his mother answered and said, Not so; but he shall be called John.[n]

61 And they said unto her, There is none of thy kindred that is called by this name.

62 And they made signs to his father, how he would have him called.

63 And he asked for a writing table, and wrote, saying, His name is John. And they marvelled all.[o]

64 And his mouth was opened immediately, and his tongue loosed, and he spake, and praised God.[p]

65 And fear came on all that dwelt round about them: and all these [2]sayings were noised abroad throughout all the hill country of Judæa.[q]

66 And all they that heard them laid them up in their hearts, saying, What manner of child shall this be! And the hand of the Lord was with him.[r]

67 And his father Zacharias was filled with the Holy Ghost, and prophesied, saying,[s]

68 Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for he hath visited and redeemed his people,[t]

69 And hath raised up an horn of salvation for us in the house of his servant David:[u]

70 As he spake by the mouth of his holy prophets, which have been since the world began:[v]

71 That we should be saved from our enemies, and from the hand of all that hate us;

72 To perform the mercy promised to our fathers, and to remember his holy covenant;[w]

73 The oath which he sware to our father Abraham,[x]

74 That he would grant unto us, that we being delivered out of the hand of our enemies might serve him without fear,[y]

75 In holiness and righteousness before him, all the days of our life.[z]

76 And thou, child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest: for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways;[a]

13. "Thy prayer is heard;"—for the coming of God's kingdom, and the personal appearance of the promised Messiah.

17. "He shall go before him;"—before whom? The immediate antecedent is, "the Lord their God," and therefore the conclusion is inevitable that He before whom John was to go was no other than the Lord God of Israel.

"Turn the hearts of the fathers to the children:"—these verses are thought to point to that reconciliation of discordant sects, and political feuds, and even domestic divisions, by a common repentance and reformation, and general cultivation of good-will and brotherly love, which it is the purpose of Christianity to teach and enforce.

22. "He could not speak unto them:"—his being unable to speak not only stirred up the people to serious thought, but was designed as the prelude to the termination of the whole Levitical system, now that the Saviour's advent was at hand.

32. "The throne of his father David:"—the empire of David could find its completion and consummation only in the wider reign of the Messiah. The promises made to the fathers ran through all time, and embraced all nations; and it is in Christ only that all the nations of the earth are to be blessed. As to Christ's descent from David, see Matt. i. 1—17.

39. "Went into the hill country:"—this is supposed to be Hebron, or some other locality not far from it.

41. "Was filled with the Holy Ghost;"—that is, supernaturally; and hence the beautiful and prophetic utterances which follow.

45. "Blessed is she that believed:"—by referring back to verse 38, we see that Mary's faith arose to the highest confidence and to the holiest expectation.

46. "And Mary said:"—the spirit of inspiration now came upon Mary, and hence the lofty train of thought and sentiment which follows.

51. "He hath scattered the proud:"—to borrow the words of another, the Almighty perplexes the schemes of the proud, disturbs their politics, frustrates their measures, sets those things far asunder which they had united in one system, and so disperses the broken pieces of it that they can never be again united. And by this he turns their wisdom into folly, their imaginary greatness into contempt, and their glory into shame.

63. "Asked for a writing table:"—this was either the small square writing board, whitened over, and on which they still write in the East, or the tablet of wax on which they wrote with the style.

69. "An horn of salvation:"—we are told that this is a metaphor taken from horned cattle, which are weak and defenceless without, but formidable with, their horns. The fact is, that in many languages the horn is used as the symbol of authority or dominion; and is here applied to the Saviour as possessing all power in heaven and earth.

78. "The dayspring from on high:"—the long-predicted light had now begun to dawn—the morning rays were fringing the horizon, and announcing the approach of a bright and blessed day.

80. "The child grew;"—that is, physically fulfilling the laws of a gradual

78 Through the [1]tender mercy of our God; whereby the [2]dayspring from on high hath visited us,

79 To give light to them that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet into the way of peace.[a]

80 And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, and was in the deserts till the day of his shewing unto Israel.[b]

CHAPTER II.

1 Augustus taxeth all the Roman empire. 6 The nativity of Christ. 8 One angel relateth it to the shepherds: 13 many sing praises to God for it. 21 Christ is circumcised. 22 Mary purified. 28 Simeon and Anna prophesy of Christ: 40 who increaseth in wisdom, 46 questioneth in the temple with the doctors, 51 and is obedient to his parents.

AND it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Cæsar Augustus, that all the world should be [3]taxed.

2 (And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.)[c]

3 And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

4 And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judæa, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem; (because he was of the house and lineage of David:)[d]

5 To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child.[e]

6 And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

7 And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.[f]

8 And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping [4]watch over their flock by night.

9 And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.[g]

10 And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.[h]

11 For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.[i]

12 And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

13 And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying,[j]

14 Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.[k]

15 And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, [5]the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us.

16 And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.

17 And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.

18 And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

19 But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart.[l]

20 And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them.

21 And when eight days were accomplished for the circumcising of the child, his name was called JESUS, which was so named of the angel before he was conceived in the womb.[m]

22 And when the days of her purification according to the law of Moses were accomplished, they brought him to Jerusalem, to present him to the Lord;[n]

23 (As it is written in the law of the Lord, Every male that openeth the womb shall be called holy to the Lord;)[o]

24 And to offer a sacrifice according to that which is said in the law of the Lord, A pair of turtledoves, or two young pigeons.[p]

25 And, behold, there was a man in Jerusalem, whose name was Simeon; and the same man was just and devout, waiting for the consolation of Israel: and the Holy Ghost was upon him.[q]

26 And it was revealed unto him by the Holy Ghost, that he should not see death, before he had seen the Lord's Christ.[r] development, he also "waxed strong in spirit," or became intellectually and morally powerful; and "was in the deserts;" thus, by solitude and separation from the world, privacy was secured until the Saviour entered upon his public ministry.

CHAPTER II.

One of the most interesting and impressive scenes ever witnessed on earth here opens before us. The WORD has become flesh,—God has clothed himself with human nature, "not by the conversion of the Godhead into flesh, but by taking of the manhood into God," and has come into the world to redeem our fallen race. In poverty is the Saviour born, and yet over the manger in which he is laid all heaven bends with heightened interest and unutterable joy. To the shepherds, watching their flocks on the plains of Bethlehem, there appear a multitude of the heavenly host, and all-enraptured is their song of praise. The shepherds hasten into the town to behold the infant Christ, and do him homage. The child, at the appointed time, is taken to the Temple to be circumcised; there the devout Simeon sees in the child the expected Redeemer, and, realising his final salvation, prays that he may be allowed now to depart in peace. A new series of events are seen on earth; and a new song is heard in heaven.

1. "That all the world should be taxed:"—the word "world" here points to the Roman empire, and the enrolment or taking of the census was with a view to taxation.

2. "When Cyrenius was governor of Syria:"—it was long objected to this passage that Quirinus was not appointed governor of Syria till A.D. 6, which was some six or seven years subsequent to the time here indicated, but it is now known that Quirinus was twice governor of Syria, and that he first filled that office from four years to one year before the advent of Christ. Then it was that the enrolment was first commenced, or that the census began to be taken.

3—5. In the Roman census it was imperative that men, women, and children should all be enrolled, but this portion of the Roman territories being under Herod, the Jewish monarch, each person was enrolled according to Jewish genealogical custom, not at his own place of abode, but at his place of extraction.

35. "A sword shall pierce through thine own soul:"—these words are supposed by the best commentators to refer to the deep mental distress of Mary in connection with the sufferings of her Son.

36. "One Anna, a prophetess:"—of this excellent woman we know nothing more than that she was pre-eminent for her piety, and was in possession of some higher supernatural endowments. Having heard the

27 And he came by the Spirit into the temple: and when the parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him after the custom of the law,[a]

28 Then took he him up in his arms, and blessed God, and said,

29 Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word:[b]

30 For mine eyes have seen thy salvation,[c]

31 Which thou hast prepared before the face of all people;

32 A light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel.[d]

33 And Joseph and his mother marvelled at those things which were spoken of him.

34 And Simeon blessed them, and said unto Mary his mother, Behold, this child is set for the fall and rising again of many in Israel; and for a sign which shall be spoken against;[e]

35 (Yea, a sword shall pierce through thy own soul also,) that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed.[f]

36 And there was one Anna, a prophetess, the daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Aser: she was of a great age, and had lived with an husband seven years from her virginity;

37 And she was a widow of about fourscore and four years, which departed not from the temple, but served God with fastings and prayers night and day.[g]

38 And she coming in that instant gave thanks likewise unto the Lord, and spake of him to all them that looked for redemption in [1]Jerusalem.[h]

39 And when they had performed all things according to the law of the Lord, they returned into Galilee, to their own city Nazareth.

40 And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom: and the grace of God was upon him.[i]

41 Now his parents went to Jerusalem every year at the feast of the passover.[j]

42 And when he was twelve years old, they went up to Jerusalem after the custom of the feast.

43 And when they had fulfilled the days, as they returned, the child Jesus tarried behind in Jerusalem; and Joseph and his mother knew not of it.

3 And he came into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins;[a]

49. "Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?"—and if so, where could they expect to find him but in the Temple, as his Father's house?

There is a striking contrast between Mary's "thy father" and the "my Father" of her incarnate Son. What a depth of self-consciousness is expressed in the words of the Holy Child! What a realisation of his future mission! What a full union with God in nature, purpose, and design!

50. "Understood not the saying:"—they could not comprehend its import, or reach to the depth of its meaning. The mystery was too profound for Mary—too profound for any one.

CHAPTER III.

SYNOPSIS:—Luke iii. 1—22; Matt. iii. 1—17; Mark i. 4—11; John i. 32—34. Luke iii. 23—38.

In his whole ministry, the forerunner of our Lord appears in the spirit and power of Elias. He represents THE LAW—that law which demands holiness and righteousness, but which offers or affords no power. The external form of his appearance corresponds with the external character of his person: he presents himself in an aspect rough and severe, separated from the world, and and hill shall be brought low; and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough ways shall be made smooth;

6 And all flesh shall see the salvation of God.[a]

7 Then said he to the multitude that came forth to be baptized of him, O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?[b]

8 Bring forth therefore fruits[1] worthy of repentance, and begin not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father: for I say unto you, That God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.

9 And now also the axe is laid unto the root of the trees: every tree therefore which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire.[c]

10 And the people asked him, saying, What shall we do then?[d]

11 He answereth and saith unto them, He that hath two coats, let him impart to him that hath none; and he that hath meat, let him do likewise.[e]

12 Then came also publicans to be baptized, and said unto him, Master, what shall we do?[f]

13 And he said unto them, Exact no more than that which is appointed you.[g]

14 And the soldiers likewise demanded of him, saying, And what shall we do? And he said unto them, [2]Do violence to no man, neither accuse any falsely; and be content with your [3]wages.[h]

15 And as the people were [4]in expectation, and all men [5]mused in their hearts of John, whether he were the Christ, or not;

16 John answered, saying unto them all, I indeed baptize you with water; but one mightier than I cometh, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to unloose: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire:[i]

17 Whose fan is in his hand, and he will throughly purge his floor, and will gather the wheat into his garner; but the chaff he will burn with fire unquenchable.[j]

revealing to it the sternness of the Divine Judge. It was his mission to awaken slumbering minds, to call forth the feeling of the necessity for redemption, in order that the Saviour might find hearts that were capable of receiving that fulness of blessing which he came to bestow; wherefore also it is that Jesus begins his invitations by immediately addressing himself to the poor and the afflicted.

1. "In the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius:"—there are those who would place the birth of our Lord as early as U.C. 747; others place it in 749; others in 750, others in 751; others in 754. But as Herod the Great died in the beginning of the year U.C. 750, the Saviour's birth must have taken place at least some months before that event.

"Pilate being governor of Judæa;"—that is, he was procurator, and was the sixth who had been raised to that dignity since the deposition of Archelaus. He held the office for ten years.

Herod became tetrarch of Galilee after the death of his father, which, we have just seen, took place in the 750th year from the building of the city of Rome. Philip was a son of Herod the Great by Cleopatra; was brought up at Rome; and after his father's death was made tetrarch of Batanea, Trachonitis, and other places. He built Cæsarea Philippi, and, we are told, "was by far the best of Herod's sons" He is not to be confounded with his half-brother Philip, whose wife Herod Antipas seduced.

Lysanias, whose origin is very uncertain, ruled over the district lying around Ahila, some eighteen miles distant from Damascus. There was one Lysanias who ruled over this region some thirty years before, and the probability, therefore, is that Augustus had conferred upon one of his descendants, having the same name, the office of tetrarch.

2. "Annas and Caiaphas being the high priests:"—it appears that Caiaphas, the high priest, was advanced by Valerius Gratus, the governor who preceded Pilate, and was divested of his office by Vitellius after Pilate had been deposed from the procuratorship. Caiaphas married a daughter of Annas, who is here called the high priest, because he had long enjoyed that dignity, and the Jews looked upon him as invested with all the functions of that high office; and such was the power which he possessed and exercised, that even after his deposition he obtained the high priesthood for five of his sons. But while he retained the influence, Caiaphas no doubt discharged the duties of the sacred office. Hence the combination of the two in the passage now before us.

"The word of God . . . in the wilderness:"—in his solitude and separation in the desert the forerunner of our Lord doubtless had frequent and intimate communion with a higher world, but ultimately there came a distinct revelation or message from God; and when he received that Divine message he withdrew from his solitude, and began among his countrymen his ministry of repentance and reformation.

4. "Prepare ye the way of the Lord:"—just as an Eastern monarch was in his progress preceded by a herald who announced his approach, so John appears as the forerunner of our Lord. He visibly and externally prepared the way of the Lord, but the grand preparation that influenced the hearts of men was not until the descent of the Spirit on the day of Pentecost. In order to account for the baptism of John, we are told by Olshausen that "no particular historical record is required; that as lustrations were common in the Jewish form of worship, hence it was necessary to represent through or express by a symbolic rite the 'repentance' which he preached; that this he did not perform according to his own will, but as led by the Spirit of God. We are told he was sent to baptise with water." Again, speaking of the object of John's ministry, he says:—"The expression repentance here describes the result of the law in its operation upon the mind. Owing to its

AND Jesus being full of the Holy Ghost returned from Jordan, and was led by the Spirit into the wilderness,[d]

2 Being forty days tempted of the devil. And in those days he did eat nothing: and when they were ended, he afterward hungered.[e]

3 And the devil said unto him, If thou be the Son of God, command this stone that it be made bread.

4 And Jesus answered him, saying, It is written, That man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God.[f]

5 And the devil, taking him up into an high mountain, shewed unto him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time.

6 And the devil said unto him, All this power will I give thee, and the glory of them: for that is delivered unto me; and to whomsoever I will I give it.[g]

7 If thou therefore wilt [1]worship me, all shall be thine.

8 And Jesus answered and said unto him, Get thee behind me, Satan: for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.[h]

9 And he brought him to Jerusalem, and set him on a pinnacle of the temple, and said unto him, If thou be the Son of God, cast thyself down from hence:[i]

10 For it is written, He shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee:[j]

11 And in their hands they shall bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone.

12 And Jesus answering said unto him, It is said, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.[k]

13 And when the devil had ended all the temptation, he departed from him for a season.[l]

14 ¶ And Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee: and there went out a fame of him through all the region round about.[m]

15 And he taught in their synagogues, being glorified of all.

16 ¶ And he came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up: and, as his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the sabbath day, and stood up for to read.[n]

17 And there was delivered unto him the book of the prophet Esaias. And when he had opened the book, he found the place where it was written, unrelenting and exacting power, it awakens in man the knowledge of his inferiority, and the longing for a power that is capable of satisfying it: hence it is, in fact, a change of mind taking place in the deepest recesses of human life; but considered in itself, of course, it is something purely negative, which stands in need of something positive in order to complete it—namely, the Spirit which came by Christ, and which man receives through faith"

5. "Every valley shall be filled."—in reference to the coming of Christ, these words are to be understood not literally, but metaphorically, and point to the removal of every obstacle, whether physical or moral, geographical or political, to the progress and final triumph of his kingdom.

7. "O generation of vipers."—this faithful representation of a sinful and depraved generation was addressed by the Baptist to the multitude after their reception of his baptism and their public confession of sin; and the words must be regarded not as the language o. prohibition, but as the language of amazement that men so devoted to their own sinful pursuits had been influenced by any motive to present themselves as persons desirous of preparing for the presence of that Holy One whose approaching advent the Baptist was appointed to proclaim. To the words expressive of astonishment, this teacher in the wilderness adds his admonition that his hearers confide not for safety to their descent from a pious progenitor; and he also cautions them not to bring to this religious ordinance that spirit of insincerity which they manifested in their ordinary duties, but, on the contrary, that they evince the reality of their profession by actions befitting men who professed themselves to be waiting for the appearance of the Messiah.

10, 14. "What shall we do then?"—to this question, John exhorts the various classes by whom he was surrounded to do whatever lay within the province of an external righteousness, as evidence of an internal repentance and change. Into the sphere of faith and love he did not penetrate, but pointed to the Redeemer as the only object of trust.

23. "Began to be about thirty years of age:"— rather, "Jesus was about thirty years of age when he began his ministry." The priests were to be of this age before commencing to discharge the duties of their office.

CHAPTER IV.

SYNOPSIS.—Luke iv 1—13; Matt. iv. 1—11; Mark i. 12, 13 Luke iv 14, 15; Matt. iv 12—17, Mark i 14, 15 Luke iv 16—32 Luke iv 33—37, Mark i 21—28 Luke iv. 38—41, Matt viii 14—17; Mark i. 29—34 Luke iv. 42—44; Mark i. 35—39

That the temptation of our Lord cannot be resolved into a mere inward struggle with his own human will, but must be referred to his personal conflict with the very personification and embodiment of all evil, is placed beyond dispute by the very style and structure of the narrative. Olshausen says that "the mode of viewing the Gospel narrative of the temptation of Christ depends upon the position of the expounder relative to the doctrine of the devil, and of evil angels in general. Exposition can divest itself of the doctrine of the existence of evil spiritual beings only through the highest degree of arbitrariness, inasmuch as we are taught even by the Old Testament —although for wise reasons in a mystical manner—that man did not produce evil from within himself (in which case the idea of a redemption, which presupposes a subjection to a foreign—that is an external—power, would be utterly destroyed), but that he was beguiled by an evil power, whereby he became exposed to its influence. In the New Testament this doctrine is confirmed by Christ, partly by the pre-supposition which is manifest in innumerable discourses of his, that the kingdom of the good is opposed by a kingdom of the evil; and partly by express declarations concerning this doctrine which admit to an unbiassed commentator no other mode of explanation whatever." So Neander conceives that while the individual features of the account furnished by the Evangelist are not to be taken literally, yet "the principles which triumph so plainly in its course bear the evident stamp of that wisdom which everywhere shines forth from the life of Christ—its veracity is undeniably confirmed by the period which it occupies between the baptism of Christ and his entrance on his public ministry—the silent, solitary preparation was a natural transition from the one to the other."

1—13. After these introductory remarks, it is only needful to refer for the exposition of these verses to Matt. iv. 1—11, with the Notes.

14. "In the power of the Spirit;"—that is, by the influence or direction

18 The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the brokenhearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised,[a]

19 To preach the acceptable year of the Lord.

20 And he closed the book, and he gave it again to the minister, and sat down. And the eyes of all them that were in the synagogue were fastened on him.

21 And he began to say unto them, This day is this scripture fulfilled in your ears.

22 And all bare him witness, and wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth. And they said, Is not this Joseph's son?[b]

23 And he said unto them, Ye will surely say unto me this proverb, Physician, heal thyself: whatsoever we have heard done in Capernaum, do also here in thy country.[c]

24 And he said, Verily I say unto you, No prophet is accepted in his own country.[d]

25 But I tell you of a truth, many widows were in Israel in the days of Elias, when the heaven was shut up three years and six months, when great famine was throughout all the land;[e]

26 But unto none of them was Elias sent, save unto Sarepta, a city of Sidon, unto a woman that was a widow.

27 And many lepers were in Israel in the time of Eliseus the prophet; and none of them was cleansed, saving Naaman the Syrian.[f]

28 And all they in the synagogue, when they heard these things, were filled with wrath,

29 And rose up, and thrust him out of the city, and led him unto the [1]brow of the hill whereon their city was built, that they might cast him down headlong.

30 But he passing through the midst of them went his way,[g]

31 And came down to Capernaum, a city of Galilee, and taught them on the sabbath days.[h]

32 And they were astonished at his doctrine: for his word was with power.[i]

33 ¶ And in the synagogue there was a man, which had a spirit of an unclean devil, and cried out with a loud voice,[j]

34 Saying, [2]Let us alone; what have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth? art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art; the Holy One of God.[k]

35 And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him. And when the devil had thrown him in the midst, he came out of him, and hurt him not.

36 And they were all amazed, and spake among themselves, saying, What a word is this! for with authority and power he commandeth the unclean spirits, and they come out.

37 And the fame of him went out into every place of the country round about.

38 ¶ And he arose out of the synagogue, and entered into Simon's house. And Simon's wife's mother was taken with a great fever; and they besought him for her.[l]

39 And he stood over her, and rebuked the fever; and it left her: and immediately she arose and ministered unto them.

40 ¶ Now when the sun was setting, all they that had any sick with divers diseases brought them unto him; and he laid his hands on every one of them, and healed them.[m]

41 And devils also came out of many, crying out, and saying, Thou art Christ the Son of God. And he rebuking them suffered them not [3]to speak: for they knew that he was Christ.[n]

42 And when it was day, he departed and went into a desert place: and the people sought him, and came unto him, and stayed him, that he should not depart from them.[o]

43 And he said unto them, I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also: for therefore am I sent.

44 And he preached in the synagogues of Galilee.[p]

CHAPTER V.

1 Christ teacheth the people out of Peter's ship: 4 in a miraculous taking of fishes, sheweth how he will make him and his partners fishers of men: 12 cleanseth the leper: 16 prayeth in the wilderness: 18 healeth one sick of the palsy: 27 calleth Matthew the publican: 29 eateth with sinners, as being the physician of souls: 34 foretelleth the fastings and afflictions of the apostles after his ascension: 36 and likeneth faint-hearted and weak disciples to old bottles and worn garments.

of the Spirit, in order to commence his course of miracles and his mighty works.

16. "Went into the synagogue . . . . stood up for to read:"—this was, in all likelihood, his first appearance in Nazareth as a public teacher. The fact that the ruler of the synagogue had it in his power to call on any one present to read and explain, will at once account for our Lord's procedure.

20. "And sat down:"—it was the custom in the synagogue to stand while reading the law, and to sit in expounding it.

28. "Were filled with wrath:"—they had demanded of Christ that he should exert the same power in their midst as he had done in Capernaum; to which Christ replies—"No prophet is accepted in his own country," and justifies his refusal by a reference to Old Testament facts, where Elijah and Elisha were sent neither to the widows nor the lepers of Israel, but to strangers. The idea of others being preferred to them now enraged these Nazarenes.

31. "Came down to Capernaum:"—as Nazareth stood on high ground, it was literally a descent to Capernaum, which lay on the sea-coast of Galilee.

33. "A spirit of an unclean devil:"—the demon led the party possessed to deeds of uncleanness.

In the close of the preceding chapter we are told our Lord "departed and went into a desert place;" and who can doubt that he sought this retirement in order to pour out his soul in prayer, and hold communion with his Father in heaven? Such seasons were to him not only periods of devotion and Simon's, and prayed him that he would thrust out a little from the land. And he sat down, and taught the people out of the ship.

4 Now when he had left speaking, he said unto Simon, Launch out into the deep, and let down your nets for a draught.[a]

5 And Simon answering said unto him, Master, we have toiled all the night, and have taken nothing: nevertheless at thy word I will let down the net.

6 And when they had this done, they inclosed a great multitude of fishes: and their net brake.

7 And they beckoned unto their partners, which were in the other ship, that they should come and help them. And they came, and filled both the ships, so that they began to sink.

1—11. "The lake of Gennesaret:"—Matthew calls it the sea of Galilee; John speaks of it as the sea of Tiberias; and sometimes it is spoken of as "the lake," and at other times as "the sea." This lake was the scene of some of the Redeemer's sacred works, both before and after his resurrection. Its waters were renowned for their fish, and consequently there were many persons employed as fishermen; and from these the Saviour selected his disciples. There was a ferry across the lake which united the roads from the

14 And he charged him to tell no man: but go, and shew thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing, according as Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them.[b]

15 But so much the more went there a fame abroad of him: and great multitudes came together to hear, and to be healed by him of their infirmities.[c]

16 ¶ And he withdrew himself into the wilderness, and prayed.[d]

17 And it came to pass on a certain day, as he was teaching, that there were Pharisees and doctors of the law sitting by, which were come out of every town of Galilee, and Judæa, and Jerusalem: and the power of the Lord was present to heal them.

20 And when he saw their faith, he said unto him, Man, thy sins are forgiven thee.

21 And the scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying, Who is this which speaketh blasphemies? Who can forgive sins, but God alone?[f]

22 But when Jesus perceived their thoughts, he answering said unto them, What reason ye in your hearts?

23 Whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Rise up and walk?

24 But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power upon earth to forgive sins, (he said unto the sick of the palsy,) I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy couch, and go into thine house.

25 And immediately he rose up before them, and took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his own house, glorifying God.

26 And they were all amazed, and they glorified God, and were filled with fear, saying, We have seen strange things to day.

27 ¶ And after these things he went forth, and saw a publican, named Levi, sitting at the receipt of custom: and he said unto him, Follow me.[g]

28 And he left all, rose up, and followed him.

29 And Levi made him a great feast in his own house: and there was a great company of publicans and of others that sat down with them.[h]

30 But their scribes and Pharisees murmured against his disciples, saying, Why do ye eat and drink with publicans and sinners?

31 And Jesus answering said unto them, They that are whole need not a physician; but they that are sick.

32 I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.[i]

33 ¶ And they said unto him, Why do the disciples of John fast often, and make prayers, and likewise the disciples of the Pharisees; but thine eat and drink?[j]

34 And he said unto them, Can ye make the children of the bridechamber fast, while the bridegroom is with them?

35 But the days will come, when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them, and then shall they fast in those days.

36 ¶ And he spake also a parable unto them; No man putteth a piece of a new garment upon an old; if otherwise, then both the new maketh a rent, and the piece that was taken out of the new agreeth not with the old.[k]

37 And no man putteth new wine into old bottles; else the new wine will burst the bottles, and be spilled, and the bottles shall perish.

17 "The power of the Lord was present to heal them"—the Saviour perceived their faith, and his Divine power moved in the direction of miraculous healing.

18—26. For the miracle here recorded, see the Notes on Matt. ix. 1—8, and Mark ii 1—12. How gloriously does the Divine power reveal itself in the miracles which our Lord performed! and yet in most of them the mercy equalled the power. The faith of these men was such that they suffered no obstacles to keep them away from the Saviour; and when Jesus saw their faith, he at once gave the blessing.

29. "Made him a great feast in his own house."—the record of this fact is peculiar to Luke, though it might be inferred from the other two Evangelists. On the call of Levi, and its accompanying incidents, see Matt. ix. 9—17, and Mark ii. 13—22, with the Notes and Commentary.

36—39. "He spake a parable unto them:"—the design of the parable is to show that any attempt to engraft the new dispensation upon the old legal economy would not only be a failure, but would tend to mar and destroy both. The new would suffer in its completeness, and the old would lose in consistency and character.

BOTTLES FORMED OF THE SKINS OF ANIMALS.

As travellers in the East are compelled to carry water with them, and as the bottles containing the water are constantly exposed to injury, it is necessary that the bottles should be made of yielding materials, and therefore the skins of animals are employed, as being soft, pliable, and easily extended, and when empty very portable. These bottles vary greatly in size; some being as small as a kid, and others the size of an ox. Bruce, the African traveller, describes bottles made of the skins of animals which were so large as to be capable of containing sixty gallons each; and when filled, two of them, he tells us, were considered a sufficient load for a camel.

CHAPTER VI.

1 Christ reproveth the Pharisees' blindness about the observation of the sabbath, by scripture, reason, and miracle: 13 chooseth twelve apostles: 17 healeth the diseased: 20 preacheth to his disciples before the people of blessings and curses: 27 how we must love our enemies: 46 and join the obedience of good works to the hearing of the word: lest in the evil day of temptation we fall like an house built upon the face of the earth, without any foundation.

AND it came to pass on the second sabbath after the first, that he went through the corn fields; and his disciples plucked the ears of corn, and did eat, rubbing them in their hands.[a]

2 And certain of the Pharisees said unto them, Why do ye that which is not lawful to do on the sabbath days?[b]

3 And Jesus answering them said, Have ye not read so much as this, what David did, when himself was an hungred, and they which were with him;[c]

4 How he went into the house of God, and did take and eat the shewbread, and gave also to them that were with him; which it is not lawful to eat but for the priests alone?[d]

5 And he said unto them, That the Son of man is Lord also of the sabbath.

6 And it came to pass also on another sabbath, that he entered into the synagogue and taught: and there was a man whose right hand was withered.[e]

7 And the scribes and Pharisees watched him, whether he would heal on the sabbath day; that they might find an accusation against him.

8 But he knew their thoughts, and said to the man which had the withered hand, Rise up, and stand forth in the midst. And he arose and stood forth.

9 Then said Jesus unto them, I will ask you one thing; Is it lawful on the sabbath days to do good, or to do evil? to save life, or to destroy it?

10 And looking round about upon them all, he said unto the man, Stretch forth thy hand. And he did so: and his hand was restored whole as the other.

11 And they were filled with madness; and communed one with another what they might do to Jesus.

12 And it came to pass in those days, that he went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God.[f]

13 ¶ And when it was day, he called unto him his disciples: and of them he chose twelve, whom also he named apostles;[g]

14 Simon, (whom he also named Peter,) and Andrew his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew,[h]

15 Matthew and Thomas, James the son of Alphæus, and Simon called Zelotes,

16 And Judas the brother of James, and Judas Iscariot, which also was the traitor.[i]

17 ¶ And he came down with them, and stood in the plain, and the company of his disciples, and a great multitude of people out of all Judæa and Jerusalem, and from the sea coast of Tyre and Sidon, which came to hear him, and to be healed of their diseases;[j]

18 And they that were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed.

19 And the whole multitude sought to touch him: for there went virtue out of him, and healed them all.[k]

20 ¶ And he lifted up his eyes on his disciples, and said, Blessed be ye poor: for your's is the kingdom of God.[l]

21 Blessed are ye that hunger now: for ye shall be filled. Blessed are ye that weep now: for ye shall laugh.[m]

22 Blessed are ye, when men shall hate you, and when they shall separate you from their company, and shall reproach you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of man's sake.[n]

23 Rejoice ye in that day, and leap for joy: for, behold, your reward is great in heaven: for in the like manner did their fathers unto the prophets.[o]

24 But woe unto you that are rich! for ye have received your consolation.[p]

CHAPTER VI.

SYNOPSIS:—Luke vi. 1—5; Matt xii 1—8, Mark ii 23—28 Luke vi 6—11 Matt xii 9—14; Mark iii 1—6. Luke vi 12—19, Matt. xii. 15—21, Mark iii. 7—19. Luke vi. 20—40, Matt. v.—vii.

Between the discourse embodied in the preceding chapter and the incident with which the present chapter begins, St. Matthew records several occurrences which our Evangelist omits—the raising of Jairus' daughter; the restoring of sight to two blind men, and of speech to one who was dumb, the mission of the twelve, and the message of John to Jesus The object of the Evangelists is not so much to adhere to any exact order of the individual occurrences, as to give the life of the Saviour in its various aspects and developments. Blessed are they who read and understand.

1. "The second sabbath after the first:"—that is, say some, the first Sabbath after the second day from the Passover; but others are of opinion that it denotes the first Sabbath in the second cycle of seven years. Seven years completed the Sabbatical cycle or period: these seven years were reckoned as the first, second, third, and so on; so that this would be the first Sabbath in the second Sabbatical period.

9. "Is it lawful on the sabbath days to do good?"—to this question, Mark tells us, they gave no reply. Their answer must have condemned themselves; and hence the same Evangelist tells us that the Saviour looked round about on them with anger, being grieved for the hardness of their hearts. We may say, with St. Austin, "Thou," at one and the same moment, "bendest Thy awful brow in reproof of their perverseness, and grievest with hearty sorrow in pity of their miseries: every way Thou takest to convert us to thy truth, every means Thou usest to guide us unto wisdom."

11. "They were filled with madness"—this madness denotes rather their folly and wickedness as the consequence of their moral insensibility

13. "Of them he chose twelve."—of the fact of this election, Matthew says nothing, but satisfies himself with the giving of the names of the parties so chosen. According to Mark and Luke, the election took place immediately after the cure which Christ had effected on the Sabbath-day in behalf of the man with the withered hand Still the precise time is not given.

17 "He came down with them;"—that is, down from the mountain on which he had been engaged in contemplation and prayer, and now occupied the plain or level country at the base of the mount

"The sea coast of Tyre and Sidon:"—the famous city of Tyre, which stood about ninety miles north-west of Jerusalem, and about eighteen miles south-west of Sidon, once had the entire control of the trade with Judea, and into her lap were poured the treasures of the known world Sidon, from its position on the shore of the Mediterranean, the superior character of its timber, the skill of its workmen, and its higher knowledge of many of the useful arts, has a conspicuous page in ancient history. From these places, as well as from Judea and Jerusalem, did the people crowd to hear the Saviour's words, and to feel the healing virtue which was ever going forth from him as the Healer and the Restorer of our sin-stricken humanity.

gelist St. Luke. Its subject, we are told, "is the state and duties of a disciple of Christ." This in a certain sense is true, but the idea comes far short of the reality. The Sermon on the Mount is the old law of Sinai transfigured and glorified in the hand of Christ. He shows how far it reaches and what it involves. Having done this, he then, by the very interpretation which he puts on the law, causes us to discover how utterly insufficient we are to keep it, and how totally unable we are to claim life on the ground of our own personal obedience. What, then, is to be done? The law cannot be set aside—its claims are immutable—its penalties are irrevocable. The Saviour himself meets the difficulty. He tells us that he came not to destroy or set aside the law, but to fulfil it. What we could not do, he did; and in his perfect obedience we must for ever rest; and to HIM, in his moral excellence, we are to be conformed, and to manifest this conformity in the uprightness of our conduct and in the purity of our lives.

47 Whosoever cometh to me, and heareth my sayings, and doeth them, I will shew you to whom he is like:[e]

48 He is like a man which built an house, and digged deep, and laid the foundation on a rock: and when the flood arose, the stream beat vehemently upon that house, and could not shake it: for it was founded upon a rock.

49 But he that heareth, and doeth not, is like a man that without a foundation built an house upon the earth; against which the stream did beat vehemently, and immediately it fell; and the ruin of that house was great.

24. "Woe unto you:"—these four woes, it is true, are not to be found in the larger discourse, as given by Matthew; but it does not follow that they were never uttered by our Lord. Matthew may have had sufficient reason for their omission, and Luke may have had equally sufficient reason for their insertion; and they seem to come in very naturally in contrast with the preceding beatitudes.

29. "Unto him that smiteth thee on the one cheek:"—our Saviour is treating here of what the law prescribed. There is to be no slavish adherence to the mere letter of the injunction; but we are to observe it in its spirit, just like the Saviour himself, who, "when he was reviled, reviled not again."

40. "Every one that is perfect:"—the word "perfect" here, as in numerous other instances in the Christian volume, denotes one who is well-instructed; and hence, one who makes a right use of his knowledge in fulfilling the duties of life. Here the disciples are cautioned against any hasty judgment in reference to the conduct of others.

49. "Built an house upon the earth:"—in the East, many of the houses are built with mud walls, reeds, and rushes, and sometimes with only stakes plastered with clay. Hence, they were so frail, that the only security for them was the unyielding foundation which a rock would afford. Such houses, unless built on a rock, and consequently above the reach of the periodical torrents of rain, were strikingly emblematical of weakness, fragility, and decay.

CHAPTER VII.

1 Christ findeth greater faith in the centurion a Gentile, than in any of the Jews: 10 healeth his servant being absent: 11 raiseth from death the widow's son at Nain: 19 answereth John's messengers with the declaration of his miracles: 24 testifieth to the people what opinion he held of John: 30 inveigheth against the Jews, who with neither the manner of John nor of Jesus could be won: 36 and sheweth by occasion of Mary Magdalene, how he is a friend to sinners, not to maintain them in sins, but to forgive them their sins, upon their faith and repentance.

NOW when he had ended all his sayings in the audience of the people, he entered into Capernaum.[a]

2 And a certain centurion's servant, who was dear unto him, was sick, and ready to die.

3 And when he heard of Jesus, he sent unto him the elders of the Jews, beseeching him that he would come and heal his servant.

4 And when they came to Jesus, they besought him instantly, saying, That he was worthy for whom he should do this:

5 For he loveth our nation, and he hath built us a synagogue.

6 Then Jesus went with them. And when he was now not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to him, saying unto him, Lord, trouble not thyself: for I am not worthy that thou shouldest enter under my roof:

7 Wherefore neither thought I myself worthy to come unto thee: but say in a word, and my servant shall be healed.

8 For I also am a man set under authority, having under me soldiers, and I say unto [1]one, Go, and he goeth, and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it.

10 And they that were sent, returning to the house, found the servant whole that had been sick.

11 ¶ And it came to pass the day after, that he went into a city called Nain; and many of his disciples went with him, and much people.

12 Now when he came nigh to the gate of the city, behold, there was a dead man carried out, the only son of his mother, and she was a widow: and much people of the city was with her.

13 And when the Lord saw her, he had compassion on her, and said unto her, Weep not.

CHAPTER VII.

SYNOPSIS.—Luke vii. 1—10. Matt. viii. 5—13. Luke vii. 11—17. Luke vii. 18—35, Matt. xi. 1—30. Luke vii. 36—50.

Both Matthew and Luke record the healing of the centurion's servant, but our Evangelist gives us a more enlarged exhibition of outward events and attendant circumstances. We agree with Olshausen: "This narrative is one of the many little gems which form in themselves a united whole, and which adorn the Gospel history. It presents to us a religious soul in the most lively—the most childlike form, which reveals freely its life of faith without any dogmatical colouring whatever. The centurion—probably one of the Roman garrison of Capernaum, brought up in the elements of Pagan life, but living among the Jews—had become inclined to the Old Testament way of life. . . . But fervent as was his faith, equally profound and pure was his humility. He considered himself unworthy of the honour that the Wielder of heavenly powers should enter his house. As such, he acknowledged Jesus." And though his views of Christ were defective, yet his belief in the activity and efficiency of Divine power was not only strengthened, but perfected.

1. "He entered into Capernaum."—in this city, which stood on the western shore of the Lake of Tiberias, our Lord not only performed some of his most stupendous deeds, but delivered some of his most pointed discourses, and yet it was the subject of the most fearful denunciations. The prediction of its downfall has long since been fulfilled, and in the ruins of this once exalted and peculiarly favoured city there is to be seen nothing but a few Arab huts, and these untenanted.

2. "Dear unto him;"—that is, not dear to Christ, but to the centurion, his master. He was, no doubt, a devoted and faithful servant.

3. "The elders of the Jews"—not members of the Sanhedrim, but rather the heads of the synagogue; though some are of opinion that neither of these are intended, but the elders or rulers of the people.

6. "Sent friends to him"—but St. Matthew represents the centurion as having come to Christ in his own proper person. The probability is, that he both sent and came. How immediate and how rich was the reward of his faith!

11—16. The record of raising the widow's son to life is peculiar to St. Luke; but it is one of the most touching and impressive scenes in the life of that mysterious and ever-loving One who went about doing good.

"Into a city called Nain."—this little city, which is nowhere else mentioned in Scripture, was in Galilee, a few miles south of Mount Tabor, and not far from Capernaum; it stood on the northern slope of the rugged and barren ridge of Little Hermon. It is now a poor Turkish village, inhabited chiefly by Jews and Mohammedans.

"Nigh to the gate of the city."—the Jews had their places of sepulture outside the gates of their towns and cities. The members of the royal house of David were buried in Jerusalem itself, but this was an exception in favour of royalty only.

"Touched the bier;"—which was, in fact, a kind of trestle on which the body was placed, open to the view and borne on the shoulders of the friends. Christ's whole manner and demeanour so struck those who were bearing it, that they could not do otherwise than stand still. He wrought no miracle on them.

"Young man, I say unto thee, Arise"—whether this resuscitation of physical life was connected with the communication of spiritual life to the soul of the youth himself, as a still higher ingredient in the joy of the widowed mother, we are not in a position to say.

18—23. "The disciples of John showed him of all these things:"—in Matthew this incident of the Baptist sending certain messengers to Jesus comes in after the giving to the twelve their high commission; but still we are left in uncertainty as to the exact date. For the reasons which induced John to send and make the inquiry here recorded, see Matt. xi. 1—30, with the Notes.

29. "Justified God."—this verse and the following form no part of our Lord's address to the people respecting the character and mission of his distinguished forerunner, but are introduced parenthetically by the Evangelist lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached.[a]

23 And blessed is he, whosoever shall not be offended in me.

24 ¶ And when the messengers of John were departed, he began to speak unto the people concerning John, What went ye out into the wilderness for to see? A reed shaken with the wind?[b]

25 But what went ye out for to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? Behold, they which are gorgeously apparelled, and live delicately, are in kings' courts.

26 But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? Yea, I say unto you, and much more than a prophet.

27 This is he, of whom it is written, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee.[c]

28 For I say unto you, Among those that are born of women there is not a greater prophet than John the Baptist: but he that is least in the kingdom of God is greater than he.

29 And all the people that heard him, and the publicans, justified God, being baptized with the baptism of John.[d]

30 But the Pharisees and lawyers [1]rejected the counsel of God [2]against themselves, being not baptized of him.[e]

31 ¶ And the Lord said, Whereunto then shall I liken the men of this generation? and to what are they like?

32 They are like unto children sitting in the marketplace, and calling one to another, and saying, We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced; we have mourned to you, and ye have not wept.

33 For John the Baptist came neither eating bread nor drinking wine; and ye say, He hath a devil.[f]

34 The Son of man is come eating and drinking; and ye say, Behold a gluttonous man, and a wine-bibber, a friend of publicans and sinners!

35 But wisdom is justified of all her children.[g] himself, to express the effect of our Lord's testimony on the then assembled multitude. They justified God—that is, vindicated his character in the mission and work of his servant John, who spoke and acted in his name.

31–35. On these verses, see Matt. xi. 16–19, with the Notes.

36. "One of the Pharisees desired him that he would eat with him:"—this incident is recorded only by our Evangelist, and is not to be confounded with the anointing mentioned in Matt. xxvi. 7; Mark xiv. 3; John xii. 3. This woman was not Mary Magdalene, but a woman who was known in the city to live a life of sin. It may be that this now distressed and penitent spirit had formerly come into contact with the Saviour, and received some divine, self-subduing impression. And how ineffably loving is the conduct of the Redeemer towards her! "With what power must he have attracted the burdened soul, when a woman, goaded by conscience, could come to him with so sure a hope of obtaining balm for her wounded heart!"

39. "This man, if he were a prophet, would have known who and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him:"—the Pharisee, who was incapable of appreciating the Saviour's character, and had no idea of the sublime end of his mission, was perfectly astonished that Christ should have anything to do with such a woman, and seems to call in question the knowledge and discernment of his illustrious guest. But, "looking at the disposition of the heart, Jesus prefers the woman—guilty, indeed, but for that reason now longing earnestly for salvation, and penetrated with holy love—to the cold, haughty, self-righteous Pharisee, who, with all his outside show of observing the law, was destitute of that love which is the essential principle of a genuine divine life. It is love, according to Jesus, which gives to religion and its duties their true import. The faith of the woman proved itself genuine, because it produced love—love springing from faith, and faith invigorated by love. . . . Her desire for salvation led her to Jesus; her trust guided her in finding a Saviour in HIM. With ardent gratitude she embraced him as such, even before he pronounced the pardon of her sins;" her experience of the Saviour's mercy preceded the declaration of forgiveness.

44. "Seest thou this woman?"—it pleased the Searcher of all hearts to honour this woman, and to make her a teacher of the Gospel to the Church. We know not who was thus favoured—her name is little to us, her actions everything. She is "unknown and yet well known." The actions recorded of her become an example, teaching us to sympathise with the Redeemer, and to own him before men. From the behaviour of this woman, we are taught that the penitent will deem no sacrifice too great to be made for the honour of God; and, as Bishop Hall pithily expresses it, "Everything we have is too good for us, if we think anything we have too good for him." We are told she wept: at the remembrance of sin the penitent may mourn, but it will be at the Saviour's feet; and sorrow like this is ever blended with joy. The penitent oft weeps, not that he may be forgiven, but because he has been forgiven, and although in mercy forgiven, the penitent, in his love to God, does never forgive himself. This grateful woman kissed the Saviour's feet. The kiss was a mode by which the Jews testified reverence for a superior; it was also with them a token of affection—a profession of obedience—and was employed to denote allegiance to their king. The contrite, from the fulness of his love, will be ready in his homage to Christ, to combine these acts, and joyfully will tender to his liege Lord reverence, affection, obedience, and allegiance, as becomes one who has vowed to be Christ's faithful soldier and servant unto his life's end.

CHAPTER VIII.

3 Women minister unto Christ of their substance. 4 Christ, after he had preached from place to place, attended with his apostles, propoundeth the parable of the sower, 16 and of the candle: 21 declareth who are his mother, and brethren: 22 rebuketh the winds: 26 casteth the legion of devils out of the man unto the herd of swine: 37 is rejected of the Gadarenes 43 healeth the woman of her bloody issue, 49 and raiseth from death Jairus' daughter.

AND it came to pass afterward, that he went throughout every city and village, preaching and shewing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God: and the twelve were with him,

2 And certain women, which had been healed of evil spirits and infirmities, Mary called Magdalene, out of whom went seven devils,[a]

3 And Joanna the wife of Chuza Herod's steward, and Susanna, and many others, which ministered unto him of their substance.

4 ¶ And when much people were gathered together, and were come to him out of every city, he spake by a parable:[b]

5 A sower went out to sow his seed: and as he sowed, some fell by the way side; and it was trodden down, and the fowls of the air devoured it.

6 And some fell upon a rock; and as soon as it was sprung up, it withered away, because it lacked moisture.

7 And some fell among thorns; and the thorns sprang up with it, and choked it.

CHAPTER VIII.

Synopsis.—Luke viii 1–15, Matt xiii 1–8, 18–23, Mark iv 1–21. Luke viii 16–18, Mark iv. 21–25 Luke viii 19–21, Matt. xii 46–50, Mark iii 31–35 Luke viii 22–39; Matt. viii. 18–34; Mark iv. 35—v. 20. Luke viii. 40–56, Matt. ix 18–26, Mark v. 21–43.

The first three verses of this chapter ought to have formed the conclusion of the preceding chapter. The record of this circuit of the Saviour with his twelve disciples is peculiar to our Evangelist; nor can we fail to notice his introduction of those women who attended on the Redeemer, and ministered to him, as the partaker of a true humanity, with all its necessities and all its weaknesses. Beautifully says Olshausen. "He who was the support of the spiritual life of his people disdained not to be supported by them in the body. In the Saviour's earthly life he was not ashamed to penetrate the depths of poverty, nor did he decline to receive the ministrations of his loving followers. He fed others in a miraculous manner; for himself, he lived upon the love of his people Hence he loved with a pure and perfect love, and so permitted himself to be loved He gave all things to men, his brethren, and received all things from them, and enjoyed thereby the pure blessings of love, which is perfect only when it is at the same time both giving and receiving What a feature in this picture of the Messiah! Who would invent things such as these? He who feeds thousands by one word of his mouth lives himself upon the bread of the poor! It was necessary to live in this manner, in order that it might be so recorded."

1. "Went throughout every city and village:" — these labours of our Lord were being prosecuted in Galilee.

2, 3. "Certain women . . . . ministered unto him of their substance:"—it is very noticeable that women only are here named; and with great truth and force has it been said, that "the weaker half of the human race were the first to arrive at the knowledge of the strength that they possessed in Christ." Hence their close and abiding devotion to him.

4. "When much people were come

15. "Keep it, and bring forth fruit with patience;"—that is, hold fast the truth, perseveringly and consistently, in the midst of life's duties, temptations, and conflicts; and, in maintaining that truth, have the power to endure.

The different effects here described, in connection with the hearing of the truth, are to be resolved into the various subjective conditions of those to whom that truth is addressed.

For the exposition and application of the parable itself, see Matt. xiii. 1—8, 18—23; Mark iv. 1—20.

unto them, Let us go over unto the other side of the lake. And they launched forth.[a]

23 But as they sailed he fell asleep: and there came down a storm of wind on the lake; and they were filled with water, and were in jeopardy.

24 And they came to him, and awoke him, saying, Master, master, we perish. Then he arose, and rebuked the wind and the raging of the water: and they ceased, and there was a calm.

25 And he said unto them, Where is your faith? And they being afraid wondered, saying one to another, What manner of man is this! for he commandeth even the winds and water, and they obey him.

26 ¶ And they arrived at the country of the Gadarenes, which is over against Galilee.[b]

27 And when he went forth to land, there met him out of the city a certain man, which had devils long time, and ware no clothes, neither abode in any house, but in the tombs.

28 When he saw Jesus, he cried out, and fell down before him, and with a loud voice said, What have I to do with thee, Jesus, thou Son of God most high? I beseech thee, torment me not.

29 (For he had commanded the unclean spirit to come out of the man. For oftentimes it had caught him: and he was kept bound with chains and in fetters; and he brake the bands, and was driven of the devil into the wilderness.)

30 And Jesus asked him, saying, What is thy name? And he said, Legion: because many devils were entered into him.

31 And they besought him that he would not command them to go out into the deep.[c]

32 And there was there an herd of many swine feeding on the mountain: and they besought him that he would suffer them to enter into them. And he suffered them.

33 Then went the devils out of the man, and entered into the swine: and the herd ran violently down a steep place into the lake, and were choked.

34 When they that fed them saw what was done, they fled, and went and told it in the city and in the country.

35 Then they went out to see what was done; and came to Jesus, and found the man, out of whom the devils were departed, sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mind: and they were afraid.

36 They also which saw it told them by what means he that was possessed of the devils was healed.

37 ¶ Then the whole multitude of the country of the Gadarenes round about besought him to depart from them; for they were taken with great fear: and he went up into the ship, and returned back again.[d]

38 Now the man out of whom the devils were departed besought him that he might be with him: but Jesus sent him away, saying,[e]

39 Return to thine own house, and shew how great things God hath done unto thee. And he went his way, and published throughout the whole city how great things Jesus had done unto him.

40 And it came to pass, that, when Jesus was returned, the people gladly received him: for they were all waiting for him.

41 ¶ And, behold, there came a man named Jairus, and he was a ruler of the synagogue: and he fell down at Jesus' feet, and besought him that he would come into his house:[f]

42 For he had one only daughter, about twelve years of age, and she lay a dying. But as he went the people thronged him.

43 ¶ And a woman having an issue of blood twelve years, which had spent all her living upon physicians, neither could be healed of any,

44 Came behind him, and touched the border of his garment: and immediately her issue of blood stanched.

45 And Jesus said, Who touched me? When all denied, Peter and they that were with him said, Master, the multitude throng thee and press thee, and sayest thou, Who touched me?

46 And Jesus said, Somebody hath touched me: for I perceive that virtue is gone out of me.[g]

47 And when the woman saw that she was not hid, she came trembling, and falling down before him, she declared unto him before all the people for what cause she had touched him, and how she was healed immediately.

48 And he said unto her, Daughter, be of good comfort: thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace.

49 ¶ While he yet spake, there cometh one from the ruler of the synagogue's house, saying to him, Thy daughter is dead; trouble not the Master.[h]

50 But when Jesus heard it, he answered him, saying, Fear not: believe only, and she shall be made whole.

51 And when he came into the house, he suffered no man to go in, save Peter, and James, and John, and the father and the mother of the maiden.

52 And all wept, and bewailed her: but he said, Weep not; she is not dead, but sleepeth.[i] free determination of the will, between God and the world, before the susceptibility for divine things can arise in the human heart. The heart, divinely enlightened, tends to the point from whence it seeks its highest good. . . . The divine light streams forth in vain, if the light-perceiving eye of the soul is darkened." Or, as Pascal has it, "It is necessary to love divine things to know them." Hence the exhortation embodied in these verses. (See Matt. vi. 22, 23.)

22—25. "It came to pass on a certain day:"—this "certain day" is determined by St. Mark, who says, "And the same day when the even was come"—that is, in the evening of the same day that the parables were delivered. The miracle of stilling the storm is one of the most sublime and impressive in the whole life of Christ. It is for us that Jesus sleeps—it is for us that Jesus awakes. Mark the nature of true prayer. "It is," says an eminent writer, "the application of want to Him who alone can relieve it; the voice of sin to Him who alone can pardon it. It is not eloquence, but earnestness. It is the cry of faith to the ear of mercy."

26—39. "There met him out of the city a certain man, which had devils long time:"—Matthew says there were two men. The fact here involved is not whether one or two experienced the delivering power of Christ, or whether they came out from the city or from among the tombs, but did the Saviour perform such a miracle? Did the miracle here recorded form one of the 40—56. In these two miracles, for remarks on which consult Matt. ix. 18—26; Mark v. 21—43, the Redeemer comes before us in the very character of all others most adapted to meet the longings and the yearnings of suffering and sorrowing humanity. "With the most holy and most pure will of God, he combines a fulness of divine, life-bestowing power. Raised far above the miseries and sinfulness of this earthly life, he does not withdraw his blessed presence therefrom; but, on the contrary, he mercifully descends into the lowest regions of misery, that he may, in the fulness of time, exalt his followers to a participation in his felicity."

There can be no doubt that the lengthened period which the Saviour passed in Galilee was partly employed in the education and training of his disciples for their future work as ministers of his word, and missionaries to the benighted nations around. At first they accompanied him in the prosecution of his matchless work; "but, in order to accustom them to independent labours, and to test their qualifications for the work, he sent them forth on a trial mission. . . . He by no means sent them to proclaim the whole truth of salvation—they were as yet incapable of this; and it was at a later period only that he promised the gift of the Spirit to qualify them for it. So long as he remained upon the earth, HE was the sole Teacher. They were only to proclaim everywhere that the kingdom of God—the object of all men's desire—had come. . . . Their present work was to be a type of their future labours when the great work within them should be accomplished. As they were to become bearers of the word, the Spirit, and the powers of Christ, so preparation was already to be made for this, though as yet incompletely."

1. "Gave them power and authority over all devils:"—it is never to be forgotten that the Saviour, in communicating these supernatural powers to his disciples, designed that they should be employed by them, as those who professed to be devoted to his service, as organs to fulfil his will. "As these powers emanated from the source of divine life in him, may we not conclude that the degree in which they were imparted to others depended upon the degree in which they had imbibed that life from him?"

7—9. "Herod was perplexed:"—he no doubt conceived that the man who could wield such powers over matter and mind must have in him something supernatural and divine. His conscience was roused from its slumber, his guilt stared him in the face, and he was afraid. It was not that he apprehended the loss of his temporal power; but he could not endure himself. His conscience became his accuser, and the guilty man stood self-condemned.

10. "Went aside privately into a desert place."—the other three Evangelists inform us that he went not by land, as we might suppose from the words of Luke, but in a ship by water The Bethsaida in whose vicinity was this desert place is not to be confounded with the well-known Bethsaida, on the western bank of the lake, not far from Capernaum: this stood at the head of the lake, on the Jordan. Thither the multitudes followed him, and arrived there before him; and he, coming forth from his solitude, not only gave them renewed instruction, but exerted his healing power in behalf of those who were afflicted and diseased.

18. "It came to pass, as he was alone:"—from the Evangelists Matthew and Mark, we learn that the Saviour had gone into the neighbourhood of Cæsarea Philippi. The question which he proposes for solution to the twelve was designed to bring into view the faith of his professed followers.

21. "Commanded them to tell no man:"—it may be, as Neander says, that this prohibition was given with a view to prevent his disciples, whose minds were still tinctured with the ordinary ideas and expectations of a visible kingdom to be founded by the Messiah, from diffusing the ideas which they thus entertained, and thus leading the people to political undertakings, in opposition to the one sublime design of the Saviour himself.

23—27. There is almost a verbal agreement among all the three Evangelists respecting these solemn and awakening words. (See Matt. xvi. 24—28, and Mark viii. 34—ix. 1.)

his disciples were with him: and he asked them, saying, Whom say the people that I am?[a]

19 They answering said, John the Baptist; but some say, Elias; and others say, that one of the old prophets is risen again.[b]

20 He said unto them, But whom say ye that I am? Peter answering said, The Christ of God.[c]

21 And he straitly charged them, and commanded them to tell no man that thing;[d]

22 Saying, The Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be slain, and be raised the third day.[e]

23 ¶ And he said to them all, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me.[f]

24 For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: but whosoever will lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it.

25 For what is a man advantaged, if he gain the whole world, and lose himself, or be cast away?[g]

26 For whosoever shall be ashamed of me and of my words, of him shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he shall come in his own glory, and in his Father's, and of the holy angels.[h]

27 But I tell you of a truth, there be some standing here, which shall not taste of death, till they see the kingdom of God.[i]

28 ¶ And it came to pass about an eight days after these [1]sayings, he took Peter and John and James, and went up into a mountain to pray.[j]

29 And as he prayed, the fashion of his countenance was altered, and his raiment was white and glistering.

30 And, behold, there talked with him two men, which were Moses and Elias:

31 Who appeared in glory, and spake of his decease which he should accomplish at Jerusalem.

32 But Peter and they that were with him were heavy with sleep: and when they were awake, they saw his glory, and the two men that stood with him.[k]

33 And it came to pass, as they departed from him, Peter said unto Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here: and let us make three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias: not knowing what he said.

44 Let these sayings sink down into your ears: for the Son of man shall be delivered into the hands of men.[o]

45 But they understood not this saying, and it was hid from them, that they perceived it not: and they feared to ask him of that saying.[p]

46 ¶ Then there arose a reasoning among them, which of them should be greatest.[q]

47 And Jesus, perceiving the thought of their heart, took a child, and set him by him,

48 And said unto them, Whosoever shall receive this child in my name receiveth me: and whosoever shall receive me receiveth him that sent me: for he that is least among you all, the same shall be great.[r]

49 ¶ And John answered and said, Master, we

28—36. In St. Luke's account of the Transfiguration, there is one feature which has been omitted by the other two Evangelists, and that is, the theme which occupied this select and favoured circle in the glory-crowned height—"they spake of his decease:" not the simple fact of his dying, but the nature of his death as an atonement for sin, with all its bearings, immediate and remote, in the redemption of his people, the establishment of his kingdom, and the manifestation of his own and of his Father's glory.

36. "They kept it close:"—both Matthew and Mark state, as the reason for this silence, that the Saviour had forbidden them to speak of the scene which they had just witnessed. Nor is it at all improbable that "Christ's conversations with them, and the pressure of duties, withdrew their attention from this event until after the resurrection, when, as the several incidents of their later intercourse with Christ were brought to mind, this transfiguration was vividly recalled, and then was assigned to it its proper place in the epoch which preceded and prepared the way for the sufferings of the Redeemer. That the scene, and all connected with it, left a deep impression on the minds of the three disciples, may be inferred from the fact, that it was fresh in the memory of Peter even in the later years of his life, and that he has given it a place in one of his apostolic letters. (See 2 Pet. i. 17, 18.)

37. "Much people met him:"—this was the multitude who gathered round the other disciples at the foot of the mount, while Christ with Peter, James, and John were on its height; and among the throng was a loving and anxious father interceding with these disciples on behalf of an afflicted child. Of the peculiar malady of the child we are not informed, but through that malady some evil spirit so acted as to lead the sufferer to inflict injuries upon himself. The failure of the disciples in effecting the cure of the child is to be traced to the fact, that they lacked an implicit reliance on the Saviour, as the source of their power; and that in proportion as they attempted anything in their own strength, were they disqualified for the exercise of their wonder-working but delegated power.

42. "The devil threw him down, and tare him:"—this new and yet intenser paroxysm to which the child became subject through the opposition of the indwelling demoniac, and which took place in the presence of the whole multitude, rendered the recovery all the more striking, and all the more incontrovertible. It was at the height of the malady the Saviour interposed; and while the child lay before him exhausted, and more resembling a corpse than a living creature, Jesus takes him by the hand, and immediately he is made whole. It is the sublime prerogative of God to speak, and it is done.

44. "Let these sayings sink down into your ears:"—these sayings are not to be referred to the foregoing discourses, which were uttered to the multitudes in connection with the wondrous deeds performed by our Lord, nor to anything which he was about to utter to the throng by which he was surrounded on the present occasion; but to the clear and repeated intimations which he had given to his own immediate followers as to his approaching sufferings and death.

THE SAMARITAN AND THE WOUNDED MAN AT THE WAYSIDE.—LUKE X. 30–35.

saw one casting out devils in thy name; and we forbad him, because he followeth not with us.[a]

50 And Jesus said unto him, Forbid him not: for he that is not against us is for us.[b]

51 ¶ And it came to pass, when the time was come that he should be received up, he stedfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem,[c]

52 And sent messengers before his face: and they went, and entered into a village of the Samaritans, to make ready for him.

53 And they did not receive him, because his face was as though he would go to Jerusalem.[d]

54 And when his disciples James and John saw this, they said, Lord, wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven, and consume them, even as Elias did?[e]

55 But he turned, and rebuked them, and said, Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of.

56 For the Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them. And they went to another village.[f]

57 ¶ And it came to pass, that, as they went in the way, a certain man said unto him, Lord, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest.[g]

58 And Jesus said unto him, Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head.

59 And he said unto another, Follow me. But he said, Lord, suffer me first to go and bury my father.[h]

60 Jesus said unto him, Let the dead bury their dead: but go thou and preach the kingdom of God.

61 And another also said, Lord, I will follow thee; but let me first go bid them farewell, which are at home at my house.[i]

62 And Jesus said unto him, No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God.

CHAPTER X.

1 Christ sendeth out at once seventy disciples to work miracles, and to preach: 17 admonisheth them to be humble, and wherein to rejoice: 21 thanketh his Father for his grace: 23 magnifieth the happy estate of his church: 25 teacheth the lawyer how to attain eternal life, and to take every one for his neighbour that needeth his mercy: 41 reprehendeth Martha, and commendeth Mary her sister.

AFTER these things the Lord appointed other seventy also, and sent them two and two before his face into every city and place, whither he himself would come.[j]

2 Therefore said he unto them, The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth labourers into his harvest.[k]

3 Go your ways: behold, I send you forth as lambs among wolves.[l]

4 Carry neither purse, nor scrip, nor shoes: and salute no man by the way.[m]

5 And into whatsoever house ye enter, first say, Peace be to this house.[n]

6 And if the son of peace be there, your peace shall rest upon it: if not, it shall turn to you again.

7 And in the same house remain, eating and drinking such things as they give: for the labourer is worthy of his hire. Go not from house to house.[o]

8 And into whatsoever city ye enter, and they receive you, eat such things as are set before you:

9 And heal the sick that are therein, and say unto them, The kingdom of God is come nigh unto you.[p]

10 But into whatsoever city ye enter, and they receive you not, go your ways out into the streets of the same, and say,

45. "It was hid from them:"—not only was it "the Divine purpose that they should not at present be aware of the full significancy of these words," but what they involved was hid from their mental and moral perception; otherwise, in their imperfect state of faith and fortitude, they would have been dispirited and wholly unfit for the work which lay before them anterior to the death of their Master.

48. "Whosoever shall receive this child in my name:"—either as a follower of mine, or for my sake shall show kindness to this child, it shall be as though it were rendered unto me; and those who resemble that child most in humility and self-forgetfulness, will most nearly approach to the spirit of the Gospel.

51. "Set his face to go to Jerusalem:"—he went, internally strong, and full of sublime resolution, to meet death; and "in this expression death, resurrection, and ascension are included all in one."

52. "Entered into a village of the Samaritans:"—the road taken by our Lord through Samaria was generally avoided by travellers to the feasts. He sent messengers before him, to insure his being received and entertained by some family. The Samaritans were but ill-affected towards him and his followers, and hence the language of James and John which follows. There can be no doubt that the intention of these two disciples was good, and their faith, doubtless, was strong, but their conduct was in violation of that love which beareth all things, and whose office it is not to destroy, but to save and bless.

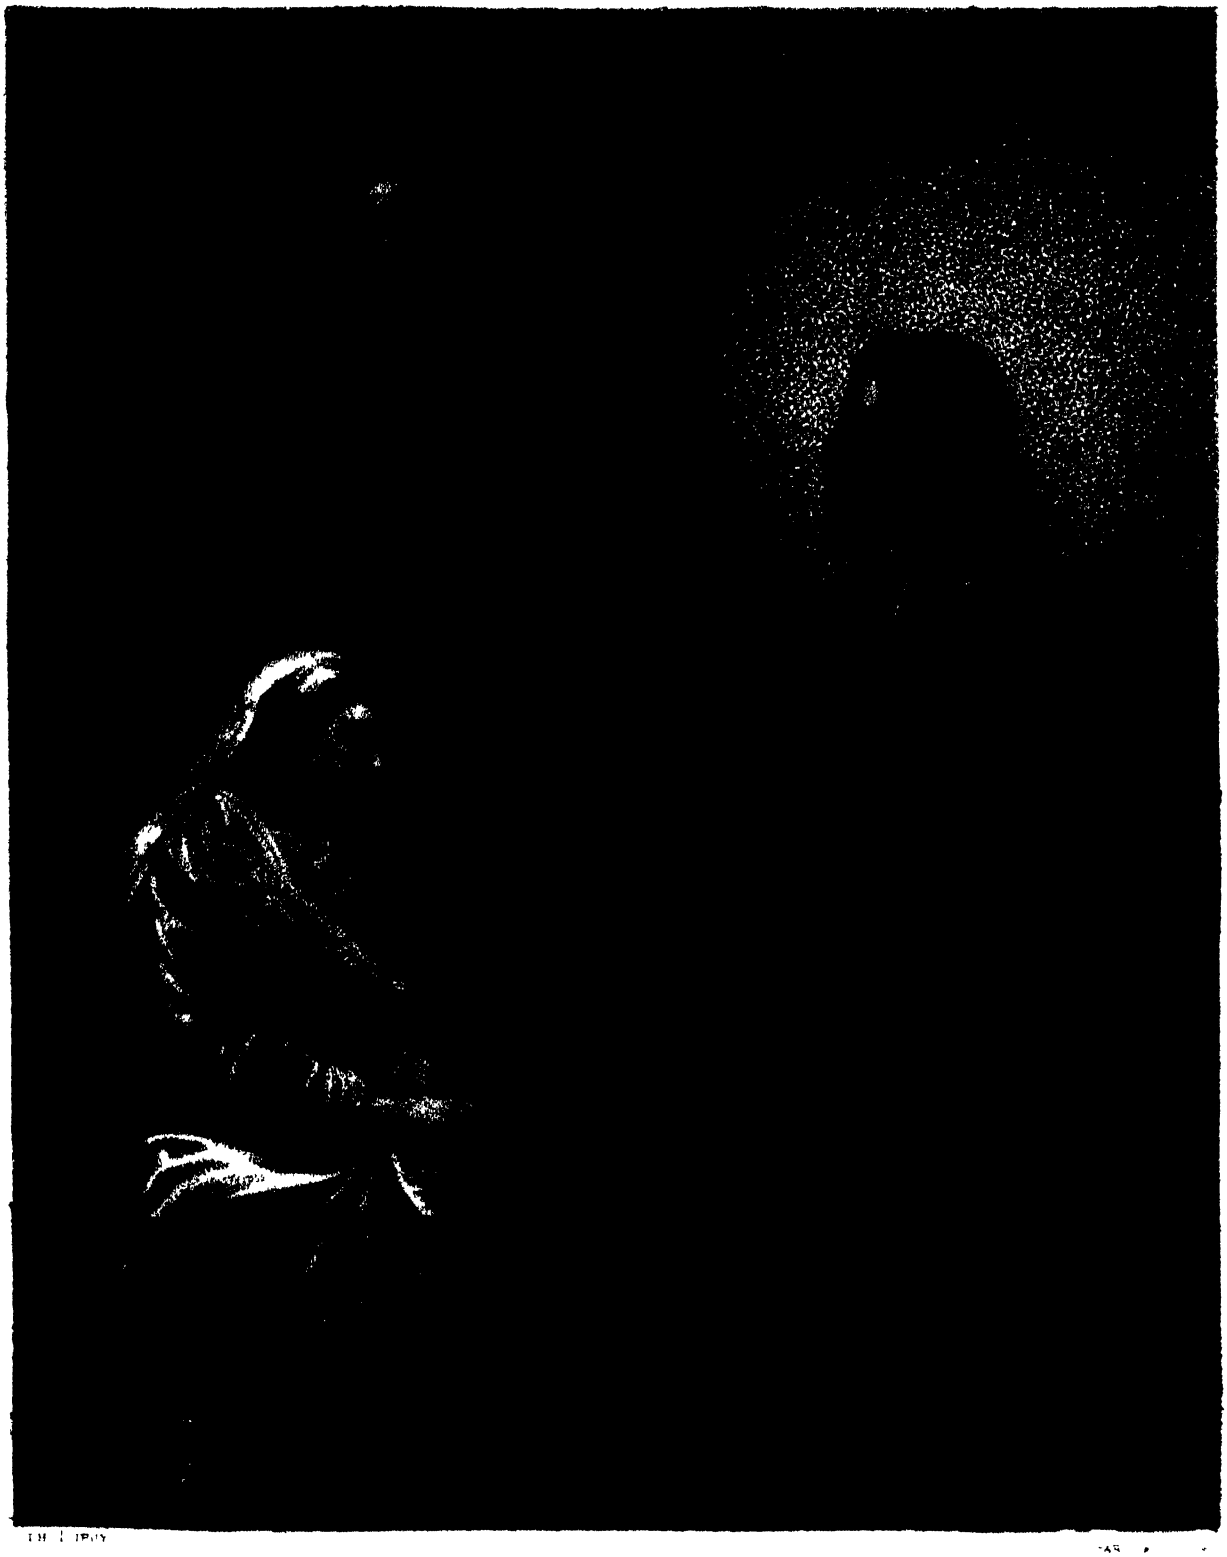
62. "Having put his hand to the plough:"—this figure is borrowed from agricultural pursuits, and points to labour, perseverance, and fidelity. No man can plough without effort and exertion; and no man, in ploughing, can make straight furrows who does not keep his eye on the plough. Solemn lesson this to the ministers of Christ, and to every private believer, in doing the work of their Lord.

CHAPTER X.

SYNOPSIS:—This and the eight following chapters are peculiar to the Evangelist St. Luke, and peculiar, also, in the form in which he gives them.

This mission of the seventy is not to be confounded with the sending out the twelve. The discourse in both instances is much the same in substance, but still the occasions and the circumstances are different. Stier is right in saying that "the discourse in Matt. x., in its three great divisions, speaks plainly of an office founded, and a ministry ordained, which involved a work and embraced consequences co-extensive both in space and duration with the world;" but "here we have no such prospective view unfolded." Between the two missions—the mission of the twelve, as recorded in chap. ix. 1—6, and the mission of the seventy, as narrated in the present chapter—there may have been an interval of a year, and that year the final one, in which the opposition to Christ and his kingdom had gathered strength.

1. "Sent them two and two:"—the social principle belongs to humanity as an inherent element. No creature can live and act in a state of isolation, and therefore our Lord here lays hold of this principle, and sanctifies it to the highest uses in connection with the progress of his kingdom in the world.



2. "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest:"—prayer would fix their thoughts on the extent and the destitution of the field to be occupied, and with such impressions they would feel their own insufficiency to overtake the work to be done; and hence their zeal would increase, and their consecration be all the more devoted.

3. "Lambs among wolves:"—this points to "the simplicity of the disciples, along with their defencelessness; the simplicity of faith in the call, and their abiding faithfulness to the work assigned to them of proclaiming the message of peace."

4. "Neither purse, nor scrip:"—the obvious design of this injunction is, to keep the disciples from taking anything on their journey which was not really necessary—anything which would interfere with promptitude and dispatch in the discharge of duty.

9. "Heal the sick that are therein:"—it is a question whether their miraculous power was to be confined within this narrower limit. If so, it must have arisen from the fact that they had no time to spare to this department of labour. Their immediate work was to proclaim the advent of the New Dispensation, and to press home its claims upon the hearts of men; and for this every moment was infinitely precious.

11. "We do wipe off against you:"—this symbolical act of wiping off the dust of the city from the feet of the disciples denoted that Divine judgments were impending over the place; and the servants of Christ would not so much as carry away a single particle of the dust of a city exposed to the anger of God.

CHRIST IN THE HOUSE OF MARTHA AND MARY.

LUKE X

on us, we do wipe off against you: notwithstanding be ye sure of this, that the kingdom of God is come nigh unto you.[a]

12 But I say unto you, that it shall be more tolerable in that day for Sodom, than for that city.[b]

13 Woe unto thee, Chorazin! woe unto thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works had been done in Tyre and Sidon, which have been done in you, they had a great while ago repented, sitting in sackcloth and ashes.[c]

14 But it shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the judgment, than for you.

15 And thou, Capernaum, which art exalted to heaven, shalt be thrust down to hell.[d]

16 He that heareth you heareth me; and he that despiseth you despiseth me; and he that despiseth me despiseth him that sent me.[e]

17 ¶ And the seventy returned again with joy, saying, Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name.[f]

18 And he said unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven.[g]

19 Behold, I give unto you power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy: and nothing shall by any means hurt you.[h]

20 Notwithstanding in this rejoice not, that the spirits are subject unto you; but rather rejoice, because your names are written in heaven.[i]

21 ¶ In that hour Jesus rejoiced in spirit, and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes: even so, Father; for so it seemed good in thy sight.[j]

22 [1]All things are delivered to me of my Father: and no man knoweth who the Son is, but the Father; and who the Father is, but the Son, and he to whom the Son will reveal him.[k]

23 ¶ And he turned him unto his disciples, and said privately, Blessed are the eyes which see the things that ye see:[l]

24 For I tell you, that many prophets and kings have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them.[m]

25 ¶ And, behold, a certain lawyer stood up, and tempted him, saying, Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?[n]

26 He said unto him, What is written in the law? how readest thou?

27 And he answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbour as thyself.[o]

28 And he said unto him, Thou hast answered right: this do, and thou shalt live.

29 But he, willing to justify himself, said unto Jesus, And who is my neighbour?[p]

30 And Jesus answering said, A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell among thieves, which stripped him of his raiment, and wounded him, and departed, leaving him half dead.

31 And by chance there came down a certain priest that way: and when he saw him, he passed by on the other side.[q]

32 And likewise a Levite, when he was at the place, came and looked on him, and passed by on the other side.

33 But a certain Samaritan, as he journeyed, came where he was: and when he saw him, he had compassion on him,[r]

34 And went to him, and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine, and set him on his own beast, and brought him to an inn, and took care of him.

35 And on the morrow when he departed, he took out two pence, and gave them to the host, and said

17. "The devils are subject unto us:"—of the effects of their ministry they say nothing, but only of their miraculous powers. These effects filled them with wonder, elation, and pride. Yet how limited were the results which they had witnessed. Hence says our Lord, "I beheld Satan fall," in which saying Satan must be taken as the personification of all evil; and the Son of God having been manifested to destroy the works of the devil, his first appearance in the flesh was virtually and in effect the overthrow of all the powers of darkness. What wonder, then, that these his disciples should have so far succeeded in their mission! It is possible, however, that our Lord here refers to the future, and informs these his servants that these results were but the precursors of the triumphs which the Gospel would achieve in its contests against sin and Satan.

20. "Rejoice not, that the spirits are subject unto you:"—the idea is, that personal religion, or the life of God in the soul, is something to be preferred to the most distinguished supernatural gifts and endowments. "What is necessary above all other things is that humility and simple-mindedness which, notwithstanding the performance of great things, remains humble and undisturbed by earthly scenes and earthly influences, and constantly looks to heaven."

22. "No man knoweth who the Son is, but the Father"—if it be true that we cannot know and see the Father, except in the revelation of the Son, it is just as true that it is only in the knowledge of the Father that we can have the knowledge of the Son; and "to see the Son with the open eye of faith, this, and this alone, is, and remains, the true cause and object of joy."

24. "Many prophets and kings:"—to prophets and to princes had God revealed his will of old, and in proportion as these men of rank and office perceived the truth and made it their own, did they become conscious of enlarged desire and expectation. They were eager and earnest to obtain still further disclosures; but they died without this enlarged knowledge—the privileges desired were not vouchsafed to them; and therefore how much more favoured were these his followers, who could lay no claim to prophetic office or real dignity, to whom he vouchsafes that greater revelation of which he himself was the embodiment and the perfection.

25. "Behold, a certain lawyer"—this narrative is not to be confounded with that of Matt. xix. 16, which Luke also introduces. This lawyer was a sort of scribe, whose office it was to interpret and teach the law. There is no evidence that he was actuated by any hostile or unfriendly feeling; but having heard some of the profounder sayings of our Lord, and being impressed with his unwonted method of teaching, he puts the Saviour to the test by the question, "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" It is true that he was an unbeliever, but it is not true that he speaks of Christ in the language of envy. There is an element of earnestness in his question, and hence the patience and the love with which the Saviour proceeds to teach him.

28. "This do, and thou shalt live"—obedience to the revealed and perfect law of God is the one condition of life. This the lawyer admitted by his answer to the question, "How readest thou?"—which embodied far more than he intended, and touched his conscience. He begins to add sophistical questions relating to the commandments, in order to escape the condemnation which he vaguely sees must follow as the consequence of not doing. In this question Christ adds a special explanation of the commandment of love to our neighbour, by which our love to God is to be tried and to become manifest; but this principle of love, this motive power to action, fallen man can only attain by grace from on high.

29. "Who is my neighbour?"—a certain man. There is no mention made of nation, tribe, rank, character, or the like: it is a man in distress requiring help—that is enough. True love, which always manifests itself in corresponding activity, will hasten to his relief, whoever and whatever he may be unto him, Take care of him; and whatsoever thou spendest more, when I come again, I will repay thee.[a]

30. "A certain man:"—the design of our Lord in this beautiful and touching parable is to give an exposition of the law of love. It is "a parable of convincing force, which strikes down every self-justification of the disputer who has not experienced this love." The parable itself, to which is added a practical application, portrays, in a most touching manner, that ACTIVE LOVE which benefits our neighbour. The picture held up to view would prove to the lawyer how destitute he was of such love, and would show, in the distant background, the merciful love of God, that causes men to be blessed through the instrumentality of men.

36 Which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbour unto him that fell among the thieves?

37 And he said, He that shewed mercy on him. Then said Jesus unto him, Go, and do thou likewise.

38 ¶ Now it came to pass, as they went, that he entered into a certain village: and a certain woman named Martha received him into her house.[b]

39 And she had a sister called Mary, which also sat at Jesus' feet, and heard his word.[c]

40 But Martha was cumbered about much serving, and came to him, and said, Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? bid her therefore that she help me.

41 And Jesus answered and said unto her, Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things:

42 But one thing is needful: and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her.[d]

AND it came to pass, that, as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples.

2 And he said unto them, When ye pray, say, Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth.[e]

3 Give us [1]day by day our daily bread.

4 And forgive us our sins; for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil.[e]

5 And he said unto them, Which of you shall have a friend, and shall go unto him at midnight, and say unto him, Friend, lend me three loaves;

6 For a friend of mine [2]in his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him?

7 And he from within shall answer and say, Trouble me not: the door is now shut, and my children are with me in bed; I cannot rise and give thee.

8 I say unto you, Though he will not rise and give him, because he is his friend, yet because of his importunity he will rise and give him as many as he needeth.[f]

9 And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.[g]

10 For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

11 If a son shall ask bread of any of you that is a father, will he give him a stone? or if he ask a fish, will he for a fish give him a serpent?[h]

12 Or if he shall ask an egg, will he [3]offer him a scorpion?

13 If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children: how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?

14 ¶ And he was casting out a devil, and it was dumb. And it came to pass, when the devil was gone out, the dumb spake; and the people wondered.[i]

15 But some of them said, He casteth out devils through [4]Beelzebub the chief of the devils.[j]

16 And others, tempting him, sought of him a sign from heaven.[k]

17 But he, knowing their thoughts, said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and a house divided against a house falleth.[l]

"Went down from Jerusalem."—Jerusalem, the capital, stood on higher ground than Jericho, and the road from Jerusalem to Jericho was notorious for the robberies committed there, and so infamous for murders as to be named the RED, or BLOODY WAY, and which, in the time of Jerome, required a fort garrisoned by Roman soldiers to protect travellers.

31. "There came down a priest:"—Jericho was one of the cities which pertained to the priesthood, and if this man were returning from fulfilling his appointed course of service in the Temple, then all the more imperative was it on him to act towards this injured traveller as the law enjoined. See Exod. xxiii. 4, 5, Deut. xxii. 1—4.

33. "A certain Samaritan"—if love to our neighbour be the rule of action, then a Gentile, by his act of pure and active love, places himself far, very far, above both the priest and the Levite.

34. "Pouring in oil and wine"—these remedial agencies are in general use in the East, and were often prescribed for wounds and other external injuries.

35. "Two pence:"—that is, about fifteen pence of our English money; a liberal gift, if the difference in the value of money at that time be taken into account.

37. "Go, and do thou likewise:"—truly "it is not place, but love, which makes neighbourhood;" and "love is the fulfilling of the law."

38. "Entered into a certain village"—notwithstanding what certain critics and harmonists say to the contrary, we believe this village to have been Bethany, and these two women to have been no other than the sisters of Lazarus. The place which our Evangelist has here given to this quiet visit to Bethany may not be in the chronological order of events, but he has inserted it here as suiting best his own immediate purpose. Langé supposes that the visit was paid by our Lord about the time of the second Passover feast.

42. "One thing is needful:"—the one inward and spiritual good is here put in contrast with the many outward, temporal, perishing things with which Martha, out of pure love to Christ, was now so busy. By his reiterated call of "Martha! Martha!" our blessed Lord seeks to arouse her out of "her busy confusion;" and then addresses such incomparably deep and clear words to her, that they have become inexhaustible and effective up to our day for all Martha-like souls, by directing them to that truth which is able to make them diligent and discreet in duty, but at the same time fervent in spirit, seeking and serving the Lord.

CHAPTER XI.

1. "In a certain place:"—the Evangelist gives no date, and always prefers the places, scenes, and facts connected with our Lord's life to any dates. Still he does not, in this present instance, specify even the place.

"As John taught his disciples"—the disciples of John stood on much lower ground than those of Jesus, and needed information and guidance on every point. The followers of Christ had been the disciples of John, and now the Spirit of Life, which they had received in and through Christ, ought to have set them free from their former limitations of light and knowledge, and lifted them up into higher devotion.

2—4. The prayer is given in its perfection in Matt. vi. 9—13. Many efforts have been made to account for the omissions in the form as given by Luke, but in vain. Meyer says that our Evangelist's abridgment "is a proof that the Apostolic Church did not use the Lord's Prayer as a form;" to whom Alford puts the question, "If the Apostolic Church did not use the Lord's Prayer as a form, when did its use begin, which we find in every known liturgy?"

5. "Go unto him at midnight:"—in the East it is customary to choose

"MARY HATH CHOSEN THAT GOOD PART, WHICH SHALL NOT BE TAKEN AWAY FROM HER."—LUKE X. 42.

18 If Satan also be divided against himself, how shall his kingdom stand? because ye say that I cast out devils through Beelzebub.

19 And if I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your sons cast them out? therefore shall they be your judges.

20 But if I with the finger of God cast out devils, no doubt the kingdom of God is come upon you.[a]

21 When a strong man armed keepeth his palace, his goods are in peace:[b]

22 But when a stronger than he shall come upon him, and overcome him, he taketh from him all his armour wherein he trusted, and divideth his spoils.[c]

23 He that is not with me is against me: and he that gathereth not with me scattereth.[d]

the coolness of the night for travelling. Hence the arrival of the friend at this late hour.

13. "Give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him:"—a father is more than a friend; and yet an earthly father, with all his tenderness and love, is infinitely less willing to bless his children than the ever-blessed God is to benefit those who seek him. "If selfish man can be won, by prayer and importunity, to give, and unjust man to do right, much more certainly shall the bountiful Lord bestow, and the righteous Lord do justice." The Spirit is here as the sum and perfection of all gifts.

27, 28. "Blessed is the womb that bare thee"—there are those who regard this exclamation as something coming in very affectionately between the malicious blasphemy and the less malicious demand of a sign, while others regard it as nothing better than a "most artlessly unintelligent exclamation of mere womanly feeling." Some regard it as expressive of the woman's devout attention to our Lord's solemn discourse, and her appreciation of his doctrine; while others look upon it as mere unenlightened, empty praise bestowed on the mother who had given birth to such a son and such a teacher. But the Saviour, in his reply, clearly intimates that the blessedness of Mary consisted not in the fact of being his mother, but in the higher reality of her having personally received the truth of God, and embodied its holy requirements in her life and character. Peculiar honour belonged to her as his mother; but far higher honour belonged to her as one of his followers.

spirits more wicked than himself; and they enter in, and dwell there: and the last state of that man is worse than the first.[a]

27 ¶ And it came to pass, as he spake these things, a certain woman of the company lifted up her voice, and said unto him, Blessed is the womb that bare thee, and the paps which thou hast sucked.[b]

28 But he said, Yea rather, blessed are they that hear the word of God, and keep it.[c]

29 ¶ And when the people were gathered thick together, he began to say, This is an evil generation: they seek a sign; and there shall no sign be given it, but the sign of Jonas the prophet.[d]

30 For as Jonas was a sign unto the Ninevites, so shall also the Son of man be to this generation.[e]

31 The queen of the south shall rise up in the judgment with the men of this generation, and condemn them: for she came from the utmost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and, behold, a greater than Solomon is here.[f]

32 The men of Nineve shall rise up in the judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it: for they repented at the preaching of Jonas; and, behold, a greater than Jonas is here.[g]

38 And when the Pharisee saw it, he marvelled that he had not first washed before dinner.[j]

40 Ye fools, did not he that made that which is without make that which is within also?

41 But rather give alms [2]of such things as ye have; and, behold, all things are clean unto you.[l]

42 But woe unto you, Pharisees! for ye tithe mint and rue and all manner of herbs, and pass over judgment and the love of God: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone.[m]

43 Woe unto you, Pharisees! for ye love the uppermost seats in the synagogues, and greetings in the markets.[n]

44 Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye are as graves which appear not, and the men that walk over them are not aware of them.[o]

45 ¶ Then answered one of the lawyers, and said unto him, Master, thus saying thou reproachest us also.

46 And he said, Woe unto you also, ye lawyers! for ye lade men with burdens grievous to be borne, and ye yourselves touch not the burdens with one of your fingers.[p]

47 Woe unto you! for ye build the sepulchres of the prophets, and your fathers killed them.[q]

48 Truly ye bear witness that ye allow the deeds of your fathers: for they indeed killed them, and ye build their sepulchres.

49 Therefore also said the wisdom of God, I will send them prophets and apostles, and some of them they shall slay and persecute:[r]

50 That the blood of all the prophets, which was shed from the foundation of the world, may be required of this generation;

51 From the blood of Abel unto the blood of Zacharias, which perished between the altar and the temple: verily I say unto you, It shall be required of this generation.[s]

52 Woe unto you, lawyers! for ye have taken away the key of knowledge: ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in ye [3]hindered.[t]

53 And as he said these things unto them, the scribes and the Pharisees began to urge him vehemently, and to provoke him to speak of many things:

54 Laying wait for him, and seeking to catch something out of his mouth, that they might accuse him.[u]

29—32 "As Jonas was a sign unto the Ninevites:"—his miraculous preservation and his subsequent preaching was a sign to the people of Nineveh.—See Matt. xii. 38—42.

33—36 These verses are very similar to what we find in the Sermon on the Mount.—See Matt. v. 15, vi. 22, 23.

37—39 "Make clean the outside"—nothing was more offensive to the holy Saviour than the conceit and hypocrisy of the Pharisees; and if this Pharisee ventured to call in question the propriety of our Lord's conduct in sitting down to eat with unwashen hands, then the Saviour was fully justified in pointing out to him—host as he was, and Jesus only a guest at his table—the deeper defilement of his heart and life.

41. "Rather give alms"—there are those who take this to be the language of irony, as if our Lord had said, "Ye give alms, and, lo! all things are clean unto you!" But others are unwilling to attribute irony to Christ, and we think they are right. These persons take it as a solemn reproof of the selfish, covetous spirit of the Pharisee. "Ye give alms out of that which you get by injustice and extortion, and you then imagine that your charity will atone for your guilt." Hence the woes which follow, and which ring like the knell of death in the ear.

45. "One of the lawyers:"—that is, a scribe, or teacher of the law.

47—51. As the basis of this passage, see 2 Chron. xxiv. 18—22; and for the exposition, see Matt. xxiii. 23—36.

52. "The key of knowledge:"—that is, they kept back the true interpretation of the law and the prophets.

53. "To urge him vehemently:"—pressed him with questions on every hand, in the hope of finding in his answers some weak and assailable point. How disappointed! how mortified! His speech and his silence were alike their condemnation.

CHAPTER XII.

The sayings embodied in the first twelve verses of this chapter were uttered by our Lord on various occasions, and in earlier periods of his ministry; and in Matthew they stand in different connection. Some of them are separated by our own Evangelist. They are all of the most weighty and momentous character.

1. "In the mean time"—that is, while Our Lord was engaged in the house of the Pharisee, the people without gathered in such throngs as to press upon him up to the point of their own danger and hurt. It is in the hearing of this immense and eager multitude that he utters this discourse, which seems more immediately directed to his own disciples, and is designed to warn them against every form of hypocrisy.

2, 3. "Nothing covered, that shall not be revealed:"—hypocrisy may be practised for a time; but eventually the mask will be torn off by an irresistible hand, and the true character of every man stand revealed in the light of day. Speak as honest men, true in heart and faithful in word, and if it be

CHAPTER XII.

1 Christ preacheth to his disciples to avoid hypocrisy, and fearfulness in publishing his doctrine: 13 warneth the people to beware of covetousness, by the parable of the rich man who set up greater barns. 22 We must not be over careful of earthly things, 31 but seek the kingdom of God, 33 give alms, 36 be ready at a knock to open to our Lord whensoever he cometh. 41 Christ's ministers are to see to their charge, 49 and look for persecution. 54 The people must take this time of grace, 58 because it is a fearful thing to die without reconciliation.

IN the mean time, when there were gathered together an innumerable multitude of people, insomuch that they trode one upon another, he began to say unto his disciples first of all, Beware ye of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy.[a]

2 For there is nothing covered, that shall not be revealed; neither hid, that shall not be known.[b]

3 Therefore whatsoever ye have spoken in darkness shall be heard in the light; and that which ye have spoken in the ear in closets shall be proclaimed upon the housetops.

4 And I say unto you my friends, Be not afraid of them that kill the body, and after that have no more that they can do.[c]

5 But I will forewarn you whom ye shall fear: Fear him, which after he hath killed hath power to cast into hell; yea, I say unto you, Fear him.

6 Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings, and not one of them is forgotten before God?[d]

7 But even the very hairs of your head are all numbered. Fear not therefore: ye are of more value than many sparrows.

8 Also I say unto you, Whosoever shall confess me before men, him shall the Son of man also confess before the angels of God:[e]

9 But he that denieth me before men shall be denied before the angels of God.

10 And whosoever shall speak a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him: but unto him that blasphemeth against the Holy Ghost it shall not be forgiven.[f]

11 And when they bring you unto the synagogues, and unto magistrates, and powers, take ye no thought how or what thing ye shall answer, or what ye shall say:[g]

12 For the Holy Ghost shall teach you in the same hour what ye ought to say.

13 ¶ And one of the company said unto him, Master, speak to my brother, that he divide the inheritance with me.

14 And he said unto him, Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you?[h]

15 And he said unto them, Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth.[i]

16 And he spake a parable unto them, saying, The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully:

17 And he thought within himself, saying, What shall I do, because I have no room where to bestow my fruits?

18 And he said, This will I do: I will pull down my barns, and build greater; and there will I bestow all my fruits and my goods.

19 And I will say to my soul, Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry.[j]

20 But God said unto him, Thou fool, this night [1]thy soul shall be required of thee: then whose shall those things be, which thou hast provided?[k]

21 So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God.[l]

22 ¶ And he said unto his disciples, Therefore I say unto you, Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat; neither for the body, what ye shall put on.[m]

23 The life is more than meat, and the body is more than raiment.

24 Consider the ravens: for they neither sow nor reap; which neither have storehouse nor barn; and God feedeth them: how much more are ye better than the fowls?[n]

25 And which of you with taking thought can add to his stature one cubit?

26 If ye then be not able to do that thing which is least, why take ye thought for the rest?

27 Consider the lilies how they grow: they toil not, they spin not; and yet I say unto you, that Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.

13—22. "Master, speak to my brother."—here is a man who professedly is listening to our Lord, while he discourses solemnly and with infinite solicitude for the salvation of men, but whose every thought is absorbed in the things of time, and how he may aggrandise himself for this world. He interrupts our Lord, and calls upon him to interfere and settle some strife which had arisen between himself and his brother relative to some property to which each laid equal claim. The man had no doubt been impressed with the mode of the Saviour's treatment of the Pharisees, and therefore asks him to become arbiter in this dispute. The Saviour, to show the unreasonableness and the folly of such attachment to present, earthly things, employs a parable whose application was immediate and manifest.

EGYPTIAN STOREHOUSE—THEBES.

"Much goods laid up for many years"—the produce of his fields, which had yielded abundantly, perhaps for a series of years. This he laid up, and for this purpose pulled down his barns, and replaced them by greater and larger. These barns were, in fact, storehouses, corresponding in some degree to those which Joseph erected in the various cities of Egypt, and in which he laid up the seven years' corn which the land yielded in the time of plenty. These granaries were good, substantial buildings, admirably adapted both for the reception and the preservation of grain. Our engraving, representing one of these storehouses, is taken from a painting discovered at Thebes. That the idea of safety was present to the rich man in the parable when he proposed these new erections, there can be little doubt. He flattered himself not only that he had abundance, but that it was secure. The character of the building and the strength of the structure would indicate this.

22—31. Another section of the Sermon on the Mount, in which our Lord seeks to inspire his own disciples with a simple, loving, child-like trust in God, who is in himself the sum of all conceivable good. Nature reveals his unwearied care and ex-

28 If then God so clothe the grass, which is to day in the field, and to morrow is cast into the oven; how much more will he clothe you, O ye of little faith?

29 And seek not ye what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, [1]neither be ye of doubtful mind.

30 For all these things do the nations of the world seek after: and your Father knoweth that ye have need of these things.

31 ¶ But rather seek ye the kingdom of God; and all these things shall be added unto you.[a]

32 Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom.[b]

33 Sell that ye have, and give alms; provide yourselves bags which wax not old, a treasure in the heavens that faileth not, where no thief approacheth, neither moth corrupteth.[c]

34 For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.

35 Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning;[d]

36 And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding; that when he cometh and knocketh, they may open unto him immediately.

37 Blessed are those servants, whom the lord when he cometh shall find watching: verily I say unto you, that he shall gird himself, and make them to sit down to meat, and will come forth and serve them.[e]

38 And if he shall come in the second watch, or come in the third watch, and find them so, blessed are those servants.

39 And this know, that if the goodman of the house had known what hour the thief would come, he would have watched, and not have suffered his house to be broken through.[f]

40 Be ye therefore ready also: for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not.[g]

41 ¶ Then Peter said unto him, Lord, speakest thou this parable unto us, or even to all?

44 Of a truth I say unto you, that he will make him a ruler over all that he hath.[i] haustless bounty, and if he can lavish so much on Nature, what will he not do for the children of his grace and the heirs of his kingdom? The man who finds God in all things cannot fail to find all things in God; and with God as his portion, he may let this world of shadows pass unheeded.

57. "Why even of yourselves judge ye not what is right?"—does this mean, "that which they might know of themselves from within, in contrast to the signs of the times from without?" So says Schleiermacher; but the idea seems rather to be that from the signs of the times they could be at no loss to determine the design of Christ's mission, and therefore to decide for themselves what line of conduct they ought to pursue so as to escape the impending judgments of God.

58. "When thou goest with thine adversary"—it is not the design of the Saviour to represent himself in these words as the enemy of the Jewish people They stood in opposition to him and his truth; but what would be suitable for them to do were they in the hands of a righteous creditor, it now became them to do in reference to the Messiah—that is, to agree with him while he was still with them on the earth, "since he would otherwise become their accuser before God, and make it impossible for them to escape the penalty they so justly deserved." He knew the terrible doom which befell the Jewish nation on the ground of their rejection of Jesus as the Son of God and the Saviour of man—a doom drawn down by their own sins.

CHAPTER XIII.

Olshausen looks upon this chapter as "a sermon on repentance, addressed to the people; and an admonition calling for entire decision on the part of the disciples: only this sermon on repentance bears a character of peculiar strength, it being his last, inasmuch as the period of Jesus' public ministry was now drawing to a close" Nor let the fact be overlooked, that our Lord is not here treating so much of sin in the individual man, as of sin in the race to which he as an individual belongs. And hence, to adopt the words of the same commentator, "The Saviour is at pains to awaken equally in all the consciousness of guilt, so as to prevent them from regarding those on whom some special suffering was inflicted as more guilty than themselves, or than the rest of the community. By this mode of explanation the feeling of sympathy for all kinds of sufferers was awakened, and true repentance called forth for sin, not only in our own individual case, but that of the human race, with which the Saviour specially had to do. For that feeling is nothing more than the consciousness of our need of an atonement; and forms, consequently, an indispensable requisite to our receiving those

6 ¶ He spake also this parable; A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard; and he came and sought fruit thereon, and found none.[a]

a Isa. v 2, Matt. xxi. 19

7 Then said he unto the dresser of his vineyard, Behold, these three years I come seeking fruit on this fig tree, and find none: cut it down; why cumbereth it the ground?

8 And he answering said unto him, Lord, let it alone this year also, till I shall dig about it, and dung it:

16 And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo, these eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the sabbath day?[d]

17 And when he had said these things, all his adversaries were ashamed: and all the people rejoiced for all the glorious things that were done by him.

18 ¶ Then said he, Unto what is the kingdom of God like? and whereunto shall I resemble it?[e]

19 It is like a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and cast into his garden; and it grew, and waxed a great tree; and the fowls of the air lodged in the branches of it.

21 It is like leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened.[f]

communications of spiritual strength which Jesus came into the world to procure by his death, and to impart through the instrumentality of the Spirit

1. "Whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices."—to what event our Lord here refers it is impossible to say, because of the fact there is no historical record. On the authority of Josephus, we learn that the Galilœans were known as a turbulent and most seditious people, being ready on all occasions to disturb the Roman authority. If they were, as is supposed, the followers of Judas Gaulonitis, who opposed paying tribute to Cæsar, and submitting to the Roman government, then it is not at all unlikely that a party of them having come to Jerusalem during one of the great national festivals, and whilst engaged in the outer court of the Temple in presenting their oblations, Pilate may have sent a company of soldiers, who slew them, and thus mingled their blood with their sacrifices. Such slaughters, we are told, were not unfrequent, and hence we are not to be surprised that the fact is not recorded.

3. "Ye shall all likewise perish,"—a solemn prediction, which was literally fulfilled. It was the Roman power that overthrew Jerusalem, and it was the sword of the Roman which was bathed in the blood of her children.

4. "Upon whom the tower in Siloam fell;"—another example of sudden destruction which had overtaken a certain number of Jews on some occasion, but of which history gives us no further information. But as the building here is described as situated near to the rivulet Siloah, and to the lovely spot irrigated by its waters, it may have been the garden-house of some distinguished man.

6—9. The one grand design of this parable was to impress upon the people to whom our Lord was now speaking the delightful fact that the season of grace was still prolonged to them, in which they might repent and be saved; but that this being the third and closing year of his ministry among them, their continued impenitence and unbelief might be fatal to them, and plunge them into all the sorrows of eternal death. The various points of the parable must not be too closely pressed, such as who is meant by the fig-tree, the proprietor, the dresser, the intercessor, and such like minutiæ.

15. "Thou hypocrite,"—another example of Pharisaic hypocrisy. Here is a man who takes objection to the loving conduct of Jesus in healing an afflicted child of humanity, who would yet justify an inferior act in favour of a dumb animal. The example chosen by our Lord is most apt and fitting. A beast tied to the manger is bound, as was this poor woman; and if they were justified in loosing the animal and leading him to the water, surely he was justified in setting free this poor sufferer. The ruler does not venture to address Jesus, nor yet the woman, but turns as if to admonish the whole innocent multitude, though they had nothing at all to do with the woman's sufferings, nor with her miraculous healing on the Sabbath day.

16 "A daughter of Abraham;"—an appellation highly esteemed among the Jews. As her infirmity did not keep her from attending the synagogue, we must regard this attendance under suffering as an evidence of her piety; and the honourable term used by our Lord when speaking of her, leads us to imagine that this "daughter of Abraham" was a person of a devotional spirit. It is not easy, therefore, to perceive on what ground some writers venture to question her faith

18—21. The design of these two little yet significant parables is to show the silent yet certain progress of the reign of grace in the world and in the heart—a reign here denominated "the kingdom of God," because in the New Economy we have all the principles and all the elements of a heavenly life.

24. "Shall not be able"—by putting a full stop after these words, the sense of the passage is rendered obscure. This and the following verse should run into one, thus: "and shall not be able, when once the master of the house is risen up, and hath shut to the door." They cannot enter because the door is shut; and the door is shut when the period granted for the dispensation of mercy is at an end.

26. "We have eaten and drunk in thy presence:"—there might have been present some of those whom he had miraculously fed, or who had sat with him at the table of a common hospitality.—See Matt. vii. 13, 14, 21—23; viii. 11, 12; xx. 16.

CHAPTER XIV.

2 Christ healeth the dropsy on the sabbath: 7 teacheth humility: 12 to feast the poor: 15 under the parable of the great supper, sheweth how worldly minded men, who contemn the word of God, shall be shut out of heaven. 25 Those who will be his disciples, to bear their cross must make their accounts aforehand, lest with shame they revolt from him afterward, 34 and become altogether unprofitable, like salt that hath lost his savour.

AND it came to pass, as he went into the house of one of the chief Pharisees to eat bread on the sabbath day, that they watched him.

2 And, behold, there was a certain man before him which had the dropsy.

3 And Jesus answering spake unto the lawyers and Pharisees, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath day?[a]

4 And they held their peace. And he took him, and healed him, and let him go;

5 And answered them, saying, Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fallen into a pit, and will not straightway pull him out on the sabbath day?[b]

6 And they could not answer him again to these things.

7 ¶ And he put forth a parable to those which were bidden, when he marked how they chose out the chief rooms; saying unto them,

8 When thou art bidden of any man to a wedding, sit not down in the highest room; lest a more honourable man than thou be bidden of him;

9 And he that bade thee and him come and say to thee, Give this man place; and thou begin with shame to take the lowest room.

11 For whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.[d]

12 ¶ Then said he also to him that bade him, When thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, neither thy kinsmen, nor thy rich neighbours; lest they also bid thee again, and a recompence be made thee.

13 But when thou makest a feast, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind:[e]

20 And another said, I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come.

21 So that servant came, and shewed his lord these things. Then the master of the house being angry said to his servant, Go out quickly into the streets and

31. "Herod will kill thee:"—at chapter ix 9, we read that "Herod desired to see Jesus;" and, therefore, some change must have come over the man to lead him to adopt this or any other scheme for the putting of Christ to death. "It must be remembered," says Wordsworth, "that Herod was ruler of Perœa as well as of Galilee, and that John the Baptist had been put to death at Machærus, where Herod had a palace, about ten miles east of Jericho, and thirty east of Jerusalem." St. Matthew (xix 1) and St. Mark (x 1, 46) speak of our Lord being in Perœa, whence he passed over the river Jordan, and so came to Jericho, and thence to Bethany and Jerusalem for his passion. Herod had put John to death, not in Galilee, but in Perœa; and if our Lord was now, as seems probable, in Perœa, or near it, it was very likely that the Pharisees should endeavour to intimidate him with a threat of Herod's anger.

34, 35 "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem!"—the Son of God weeping over the impenitent city! What a spectacle this for heaven and earth—for men and angels! Here we see "the tenderness of his lamenting love preserved down to the very end of his toiling, long-suffering life."

CHAPTER XIV.

"Whether this second conflict of our Lord with the Pharisees on occasion of his healing on the Sabbath—a conflict which exhibits a deportment on his part very similar to that maintained on other occasions, but which bears essential marks of being a distinct occurrence—is to be placed in chronological sequence after the denunciatory discourses in chapters xi, xii, is a question still open to discussion. . . . Even after such rigorous denunciations—so rigorous that they might have seemed to be an anticipation of his final renunciation of them all—the Lord is seen to be still ready to accept the invitation of these worse than publicans to their tables; and when they exhibit their malignity he can all the more unrestrainedly confront and correct them with the simplicity of truth and love"

1. "One of the chief Pharisees."—though the Pharisees had, as a body, no heads or leaders, yet there were among them men of pre-eminence; to which class this man no doubt belonged.

2. "A certain man before him which had the dropsy"—we imagine that at the approach to the house, perhaps in the fore-court, the man had presented himself as a petitioner, and had thus engaged the attention and the sympathy of Jesus before he sat down to eat.

3. "The lawyers;"—or scribes, who interpreted the Law, and should, therefore, have been able to answer the Saviour's question.

6 "They could not answer him;"—on which Stier says very pointedly—"No man among them was shameless or irrational enough to reply."

7. "He marked how they chose out the chief rooms."—nothing could more emphatically express the proud and selfish spirit of these Pharisees than their present deportment in taking their places as guests at the wedding-table. "Thus unworthily to be seeking their own honour on the Sabbath day, and that, too, in the presence of the Holy One of God, whom it had been their design to entrap and abase, at once lays these crafty assailants open to his censure, exhibits their character precisely as he denounced it, and gives him a vantage-point for beginning the attack in a manner which would be likely to disconcert their plans." A consummate pride lay at the foundation of their external behaviour; and against this pride our Lord directs his discourse.

10 "Then shalt thou have worship."—the word worship here is to be taken in the sense of honour or reverence. The very fact of his being removed by the host to a higher and more conspicuous seat, would fix every eye upon him, and lead to the inference that there was a reason for this marked distinction.

14. "Recompensed at the resurrection of the just"—it is by no means unlikely that this Pharisee, inflated with pride, had given his entertainment to parties moving in the same rank and station with himself, with the view of building up a name and reputation for a grander hospitality, and this the Saviour condemns The very soul and essence of true piety is the principle of self-sacrificing love—a love which had its first and sublimest embodiment in the Incarnate One; and whatever is done from this principle, down to the giving of a cup of cold water only to one of the Saviour's followers for the Saviour's sake, will be acknowledged and rewarded amid the solemnities and the distributions of the last great day.

It has been said that the first resurrection (1 Thess. iv. 16) is here distinctly asserted by our Lord; otherwise, the phrase, "resurrection of the just," would be unmeaning. Doubtless the resurrection of the just is the first resurrection, but as our Lord had been inculcating the lesson of a self-denying 22 And the servant said, Lord, it is done as thou hast commanded, and yet there is room.

23 And the lord said unto the servant, Go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled.

24 For I say unto you, That none of those men which were bidden shall taste of my supper.[a]

25 ¶ And there went great multitudes with him: and he turned, and said unto them,

26 If any man come to me, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple.[b]

27 And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple.[c]

28 For which of you, intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first, and counteth the cost, whether he have sufficient to finish it?[d]

33 So likewise, whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple.

THEN drew near unto him all the publicans and sinners for to hear him.[f]

2 And the Pharisees and scribes murmured, saying, This man receiveth sinners, and eateth with them.[g]

3 ¶ And he spake this parable unto them, saying,

4 What man of you, having an hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness, and go after that which is lost, until he find it?[h]

5 And when he hath found it, he layeth it on his shoulders, rejoicing.

6 And when he cometh home, he calleth together his friends and neighbours, saying unto them, Rejoice with me; for I have found my sheep which was lost.[i] love, which is to find its full reward in a future life, he could in such a connection only speak of the resurrection of the just

15—20 "Blessed is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God:"—the man who uttered these words was a Jew, and a guest at the same table with our Lord He therefore connected the words of Jesus with the introduction and establishment of Messiah's kingdom, for which, in common with his countrymen, he was looking The parable that follows assumes that that kingdom was already set up, with all its rich and everlasting immunities, but that those who were invited to enter in and partake its provisions were so sunk in worldly-mindedness, and so devoted to earthly enjoyments, that they formed every possible excuse for their conduct in neglecting its claims and refusing its blessings

21—24 The invitation which had been first addressed to the higher classes is now addressed to the lower. Nor this only—"from the poor dwellers in the city the parable passes over even to the despised Gentile inhabitants of the country. This inviting of new guests, that the house might be filled, sets forth the grace of God, which embraces all, even the most distant and lowly."

25—33. "Hate not his father and mother:"—the pure love of THE DIVINE necessarily involves the pure hatred of the sinful. It follows, therefore, that every disciple of Jesus must be prepared so to free himself from all the attachment and dependence of feeling, which is implied in the tender and endearing ties of this present life, as to be capable, through the enlightening, discriminating power of God's Spirit, of purely hating what is sinful in them; and so to count the cost as to be prepared to sacrifice these ties rather than endanger the soul and lose eternal life. Such is the import of all the similitudes here employed by our Lord.

34, 35. "Salt is good:"—salt is, in Scripture symbolism, "the whole life-retaining, purifying influence of the Spirit of God," which, working in and through the disciples of Jesus, penetrates the mind of the godly, and conserves the world.—See Matt. v. 13; Mark ix. 50, with the Notes.

CHAPTER XV.

How the Evangelist became possessed of this inimitable parable does not appear: whether from the memory of any of the immediate followers of Christ, or from existing documents in the possession of the early Church, or by immediate revelation, we are not in a position to affirm. Neither can we determine when or where the parable was uttered. It was, no doubt, during this the Saviour's last journey, and must, from its very genius and character, have produced the most powerful impression.

The parable is a gospel within the Gospel, bringing into the strongest light the redeeming love of God in seeking and saving those who have strayed far from their Father's house, and who, in far-off distance, are exposed to endless ruin.

2. "This man receiveth sinners:"—this testimony from the mouth of his enemies is of more value than volumes of elaborate argument in favour of the character and claims of the Saviour. Nor less true is it of him now than then, that he receiveth sinners. His name is love, and he proffers pardon and love to all who desire to partake of that love, and to share in that pardon, and who seek after these blessings in Christ's appointed way.

3—10. "What man of you, having an hundred sheep; . . . either what woman having ten pieces of silver:"—the question has been put once and again, Whom do the hundred sheep really represent? and so the ten pieces of silver? Because, till we determine this, we can determine nothing about the one sheep which went astray, or the one piece of silver which was lost. If the former be representative of the saved and sanctified, then the latter must point to some backslider or apostate from the faith. There are those, however, who take the ninety and nine that did not err to denote the worlds that have not fallen, and the one that strayed to indicate our race in its lost estate. The error in both these cases is, that our attention is made to rest on the ninety and nine sheep instead of the one; and on the ten pieces of silver rather than on the one lost piece, which mode of viewing the subject defeats the very design of the parable. If the shepherd could leave the 11 ¶ And he said, A certain man had two sons:

12 And the younger of them said to his father, Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me. And he divided unto them his living.[a]

13 And not many days after the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living.

14 And when he had spent all, there arose a mighty famine in that land; and he began to be in want.

15 And he went and joined himself to a citizen of that country; and he sent him into his fields to feed swine.

16 And he would fain have filled his belly with the husks that the swine did eat: and no man gave unto him.

17 And when he came to himself, he said, How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger!

18 I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee,

19 And am no more worthy to be called thy son: make me as one of thy hired servants.

[a] Matt. xii. 44.

ninety and nine sheep for the sake of one, or the woman forget for the moment the ten pieces of silver in her solicitude to find the one lost piece, is it not in the very nature of God, whose nature is love, to leave the small Jewish nation gathered into a chosen people, and go in search of the myriads of the Gentile world who are perishing in their sins, and make known to them also the way of life, that the two classes may form one fold under one shepherd, Jesus Christ, the Saviour of Jew and Gentile? Thus, these two little parables prepare us for that of the Prodigal Son, which describes inimitably the conduct of God towards both Jew and Gentile.

"More than over ninety and nine . . . who need no repentance:"—just as the astronomer would rejoice more over one newly discovered star than over whole firmaments of suns and systems revealing their glory to his eye.

12. "Divided unto them his living:"—according to Deut. xxi. 17, two-thirds of the property were given to the first-born, over which, as we learn from this parable, the father reserved to himself the power during his life. See verse 31.

16. "He would fain have filled his belly with the husks."—he has spent his all; his companions have abandoned him; he is reduced to actual want; he would fain eat the food of swine! Where is his manhood now? What has the world done for him? He has put it to the test; and where is he

20 And he arose, and came to his father. But when he was yet a great way off, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ran, and fell on his neck, and kissed him.[a]

21 And the son said unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son.[b]

22 But the father said to his servants, Bring forth the best robe, and put it on him; and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feet:

23 And bring hither the fatted calf, and kill it; and let us eat, and be merry:

24 For this my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found. And they began to be merry.[c]

25 Now his elder son was in the field: and as he came and drew nigh to the house, he heard musick and dancing.

26 And he called one of the servants, and asked what these things meant.

27 And he said unto him, Thy brother is come; and thy father hath killed the fatted calf, because he hath received him safe and sound.

28 And he was angry, and would not go in: therefore came his father out, and intreated him.

29 And he answering said to his father, Lo, these many years do I serve thee, neither transgressed I at any time thy commandment: and yet thou never gavest me a kid, that I might make merry with my friends:

30 But as soon as this thy son was come, which hath devoured thy living with harlots, thou hast killed for him the fatted calf.

31 And he said unto him, Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine.

32 It was meet that we should make merry, and be glad: for this thy brother was dead, and is alive again; and was lost, and is found.[d]

AND he said also unto his disciples, There was a certain rich man, which had a steward; and the same was accused unto him that he had wasted his goods.

2 And he called him, and said unto him, How is it that I hear this of thee? give an account of thy stewardship; for thou mayest be no longer steward.

3 Then the steward said within himself, What shall I do? for my lord taketh away from me the stewardship: I cannot dig; to beg I am ashamed.

4 I am resolved what to do, that, when I am put out of the stewardship, they may receive me into their houses.

5 So he called every one of his lord's debtors unto him, and said unto the first, How much owest thou unto my lord?

6 And he said, An hundred [1]measures of oil. And he said unto him, Take thy bill, and sit down quickly, and write fifty.

7 Then said he to another, And how much owest thou? And he said, An hundred [2]measures of wheat. And he said unto him, Take thy bill, and write fourscore.

8 And the lord commended the unjust steward, because he had done wisely: for the children of this now, and what is he? He is an outcast—no man gave unto him: his very manhood is trampled in the dust. How true is it that "the wages of sin is death!"

The husk was the fruit of the carob tree, in shape resembling a bean pod, though larger and more curved, with a hard, dark outside, and a dull sweet taste. The pod only was eaten.

22. "Bring forth the best robe"—the robe was the attire of a child in contrast with that of a servant, the ring was the token of freedom and distinction, so the shoe or sandal, for slaves went barefoot; the fatted calf the symbol of festivity and rejoicing.

25—31. "The elder son . . . asked what these things meant:"—what a type this of the proud, selfish, exclusive Jew, who looked upon the Gentile as a dog, and as worthy of no better treatment! How striking the contrast in the father's conduct! Oh! the transcendent love of God in Christ in thus shadowing forth his willingness to forgive the penitent, and to restore lost sinners to his friendship!

CHAPTER XVI.

Here we have a series of parables affecting our intercourse and procedure with our follow-man.

1. "A certain rich man:"—this has been deemed the most difficult of all our Lord's parables, from the effort to apply it to God as the Sovereign Proprietor of all things, and to man as holding a trust from him. The simple object of our Lord is to teach us how to use our position and our property here, so as to insure the favour of God and the benediction of man. Both the rich man and his steward were men of this world, and in this light the conduct of both must be viewed and interpreted.

2. "Give an account of thy stewardship:"—the servant had been accused of wasting his master's property; his master, therefore, calls upon him to produce an account of how or in what manner he had used the property intrusted to his care.

4. "I am resolved what to do:"—the steward was conscious that he could give no satisfactory account of his master's property; and seeing nothing before him but poverty and ruin, he resolves to rectify his former acts of injustice and of oppression by a more equitable stipulation with his lord's tenants, as to their future payments. The tenants were therefore instructed to erase from their leases, or bills of agreement, the oppressive terms, and to insert terms so modified as to be not only just towards the owner of the estate, but also merciful to the cultivators of the land.

6. "An hundred measures of oil:"—the articles here specified, we may presume, were the produce of the farms belonging to the lord of the steward, and of which these men were the tenants. The rent appears to have been paid in kind, and it is reasonable to suppose that the amount of produce to be yearly rendered had been fixed by the steward; and from the appellation of "unjust" which is assigned to him, we may easily believe that the man would be as oppressive to the tenants as he had been unfaithful to his master. By rectifying his previous injustice, the tenants would become his friends, and be willing to provide a home and support when his present advantages and power were withdrawn.

8. "The lord commended the unjust steward:"—is it not allowable to assume that his lord commended the unjust steward from his own love of equity, and that he applauded conduct which removed unjust burdens from those who were unable to protect themselves, and which displayed a prudent preparation for the future?

9. "Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness:"—if such be the procedure of men of this world, then let the children of God so use their property, as when that property fails them (not as in the English Bible, "when ye fail"), they whom you have benefited and blessed by an enlightened and sanctified appropriation of that property, may receive or welcome you into everlasting habitations for, says good Richard Baxter, "Is there joy in heaven at thy conversion, and will there be none at thy glorification?"

12. "Who shall give you that which is your own?"—if they were unfaithful in the use of mere material property, how could they expect to fill those higher positions in the Church of God, or be] intrusted with its spiritual interests? And yet to these they were entitled as his professed followers.

14—18. See Matt. xi. 12, v. 17, 18, 32.

19. "There was a certain rich man:"—the object of this parable is to set forth the selfishness and the wretchedness of the man who applies all his wealth or possessions to his own personal aggrandisement or pleasure.

world are in their generation wiser than the children of light.[a]

9 And I say unto you, Make to yourselves friends of the [1]mammon of unrighteousness; that, when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations.[b]

10 He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much: and he that is unjust in the least is unjust also in much.[c]

11 If therefore ye have not been faithful in the unrighteous [2]mammon, who will commit to your trust the true riches?

12 And if ye have not been faithful in that which is another man's, who shall give you that which is your own?

13 ¶ No servant can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.[d]

14 And the Pharisees also, who were covetous, heard all these things: and they derided him.[e]

15 And he said unto them, Ye are they which justify yourselves before men; but God knoweth your hearts: for that which is highly esteemed among men is abomination in the sight of God.[f]

16 The law and the prophets were until John: since that time the kingdom of God is preached, and every man presseth into it.[g]

17 And it is easier for heaven and earth to pass, than one tittle of the law to fail.[h]

18 Whosoever putteth away his wife, and marrieth another, committeth adultery: and whosoever marrieth her that is put away from her husband committeth adultery.[i]

19 ¶ There was a certain rich man, which was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day:

20 And there was a certain beggar named Lazarus, which was laid at his gate, full of sores,

21 And desiring to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table: moreover the dogs came and licked his sores.

22 And it came to pass, that the beggar died, and was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom: the rich man also died, and was buried,

23 And in hell he lift up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom.

24 And he cried and said, Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am tormented in this flame.[j]

25 But Abraham said, Son, remember that thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things: but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented.[k]

26 And beside all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed: so that they which would pass from hence to you cannot; neither can they pass to us, that would come from thence.

27 Then he said, I pray thee therefore, father, that thou wouldest send him to my father's house:

28 For I have five brethren; that he may testify unto them, lest they also come into this place of torment.

29 Abraham saith unto him, They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them.[l]

30 And he said, Nay, father Abraham: but if one went unto them from the dead, they will repent.

31 And he said unto him, If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead.[m]

CHAPTER XVII.

The opening sentences of this chapter form a sequel to the reproof which had been addressed to the Pharisees in chapter xvi. 14. It is they who are represented as giving offence, from the fact of their preventing many from entering the kingdom of God: against them is the woe denounced, and against their spirit and conduct Jesus warns all his followers.

1. "Offences will come:"—it is impossible for any man to range himself on the side of truth and God, and meet nothing to offend him. The servant is not above his Master. We must drink of his cup. Still, a heavy woe rests on those who give the offence.

2. "A millstone were hanged about his neck:"—this was one of the modes of inflicting capital punishment among the Greeks, Syrians, Romans, and some other nations. Better die than incur the anger of God by offending even the least and the humblest of Christ's disciples.

5, 6. "Increase our faith:"—having to live and act in a world in which offences must come, and in which they were called to walk worthily of their high calling, the disciples required in no common degree that principle of the inner and Divine life by which alone they could withstand the force of evil, rise above many species of offence, and fulfil their high destiny in the kingdom of Christ. Hence their prayer, "Increase our faith." It implies that they already possessed the living principle, but not in perfection. There is all the difference between a grain of mustard seed and a grain of sand. In the latter there is no vital element, and therefore no development. In the former life reveals itself in growth and strength, till it becomes a perfect plant. The Greek word translated "mustard" occurs in Matt xiii. 31; xvii. 20; Mark iv. 31; Luke xiii. 19; xvii. 6. It has often troubled many to understand how the common mustard plant could be called a tree, and one in whose branches the birds of the air come to lodge. We now know that there is a mustard tree as well as a mustard plant. This tree or shrub is the one of which a portion is shown in the engraving. It is called by botanists the Salvadora Persica, and by the Arabs Khardal, or mustard. We are told that it will reach the height of twenty or twenty-five feet, that its leaves taste like cresses, that its seed is bruised and used for mustard, and that an application of the bark day, and seven times in a day turn again to thee, saying, I repent; thou shalt forgive him.

5 And the apostles said unto the Lord, Increase our faith.

6 And the Lord said, If ye had faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye might say unto this sycamine tree, Be thou plucked up by the root, and be thou planted in the sea; and it should obey you.[a]

7 But which of you, having a servant plowing or feeding cattle, will say unto him by and by, when he is come from the field, Go and sit down to meat?

8 And will not rather say unto him, Make ready wherewith I may sup, and gird thyself, and serve me, till I have eaten and drunken; and afterward thou shalt eat and drink?[b]

9 Doth he thank that servant because he did the things that were commanded him? I trow not.

10 So likewise ye, when ye shall have done all those things which are commanded you, say, We are unprofitable servants: we have done that which was our duty to do.[c]

11 ¶ And it came to pass, as he went to Jerusalem, that he passed through the midst of Samaria and Galilee.[d]

12 And as he entered into a certain village, there met him ten men that were lepers, which stood afar off:[e]

13 And they lifted up their voices, and said, Jesus, Master, have mercy on us.

14 And when he saw them, he said unto them, Go shew yourselves unto the priests. And it came to pass, that, as they went, they were cleansed.[f]

20 ¶ And when he was demanded of the Pharisees, when the kingdom of God should come, he answered them and said, The kingdom of God cometh not [1]with observation:[h]

21 Neither shall they say, Lo here! or, lo there! for, behold, the kingdom of God is [2]within you.

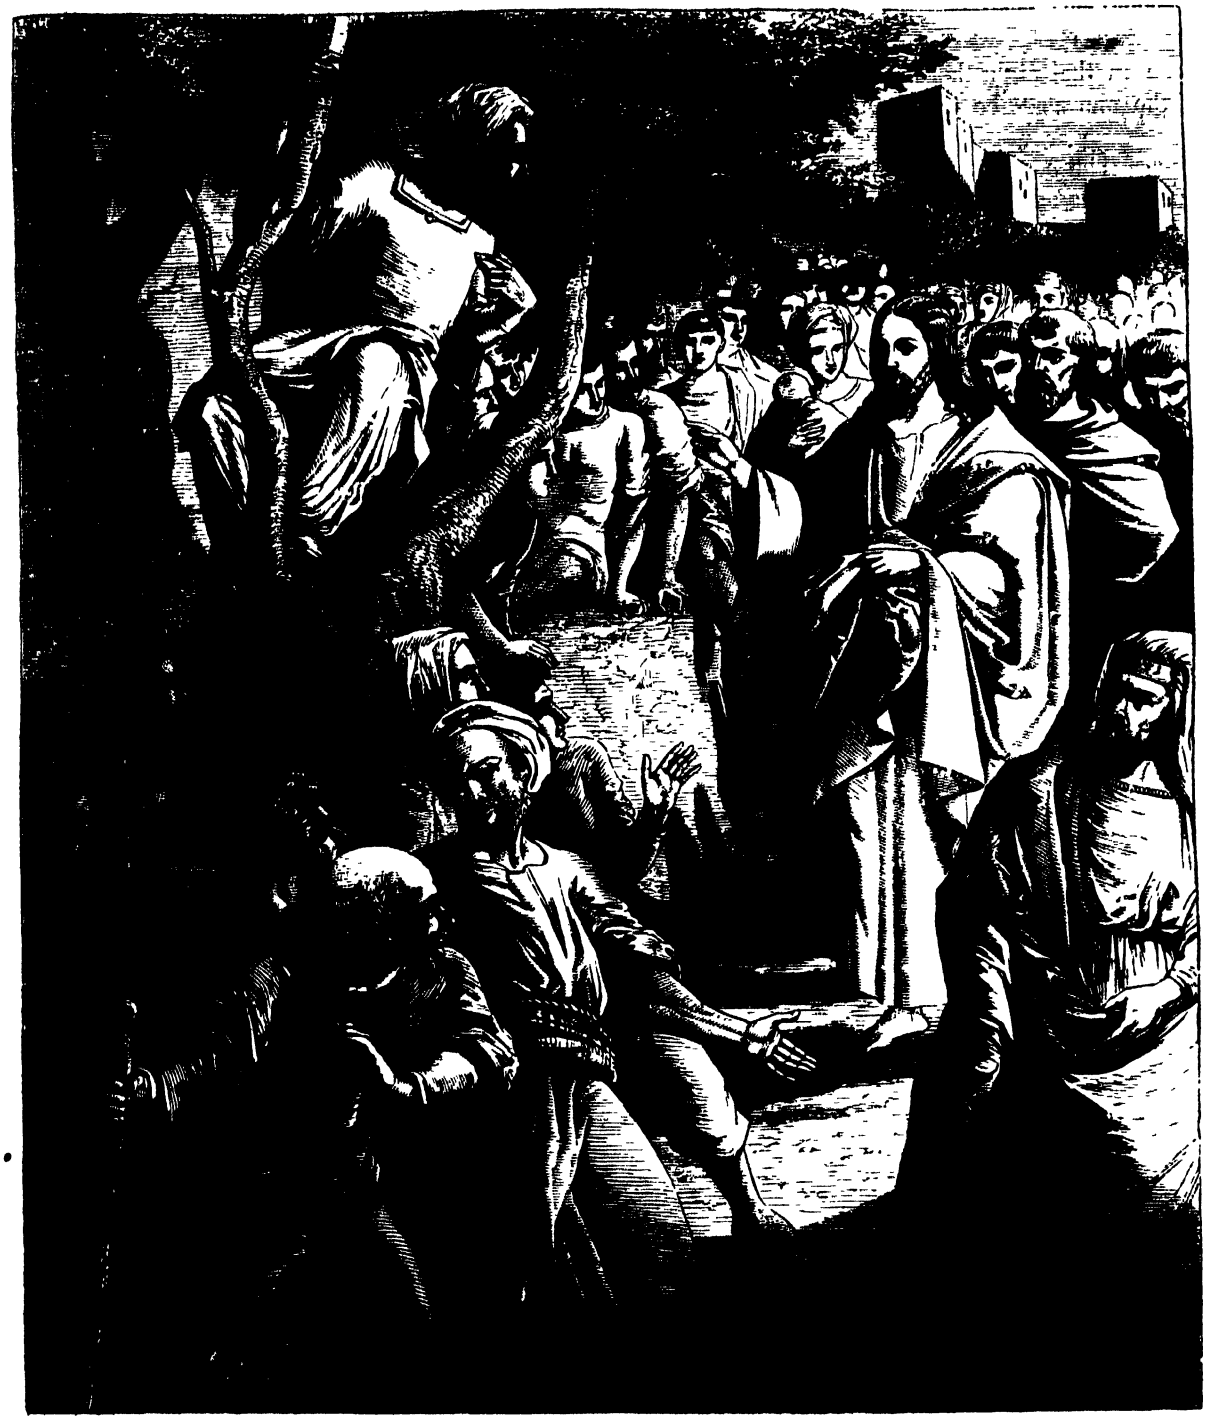
The "sycamine tree" is common in Egypt, and in its general appearance resembles our mulberry tree. Though not common in Palestine, we may conceive that there was one in sight at the moment our Lord was speaking. What a marvellous power is here given to faith! But how seldom is the faith exercised!

7—10. The following paraphrase of Stier is not more correct than appropriate —"Ye are, in all your influence and acting, no more than servants of God: now, how stands among yourselves the relation between servant and lord? The servant is not at once treated as a master, but must perfectly serve till his time of rest comes; and that is his duty as a servant, for which he is entitled to no praise So likewise ye· all those things which are commanded you, ye must do; that is your obligation, and in doing all ye are, over and above, no more than unprofitable servants; that is, ye cannot place God under any obligation, or do him any service of yourselves. Worthless in yourselves, God must first give you and preserve in you whatever capability ye possess"

11. "Passed through the midst of Samaria and Galilee:"—our Lord was now on his last journey to Jerusalem; but instead of going, like others, directly through Samaria to attend the Passover, he proceeded by a route which bordered both on Samaria and Galilee, or which lay between them.

12. "Entered into a certain village·"—lepers were not permitted to come very near the gates of the city, and at some distance these lepers met the Saviour, and, the moment they beheld him, appealed to his compassion and healing power.

For the nature of leprosy, and the law affecting those who were the subjects of it, see Lev. xiii., with the Notes.



14. "Shew yourselves unto the priests."—the Saviour in every instance deferred to the existing ordinances of God. "From the law upon this subject, we must perceive that this requisition to show themselves to the priests would redound to the honour of Jesus. Not only must his enemies be constrained to admit that the law was not dishonoured or abrogated, but rather vindicated by him, while its impotence to do anything for the healing of man was established."

17. "Where are the nine?"—all the ten had faith to go in obedience to the command of Jesus, and on their way thither they are all cleansed, nay, healed in the absence of Jesus; but their faith did not work by love, and hence the absence of that gratitude which ought to have filled their hearts. Only one heart out of ten appreciated the gift bestowed, and beat true to God. What an affecting revelation this of poor human nature!

28 Likewise also as it was in the days of Lot; they did eat, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, they builded;[a] festation in connection with the setting-up of the Messiah's kingdom. The Saviour at once strikes at the root of this expectation, and declares that "the kingdom of God cometh not with observation," with no outward splendour or display. It is not material, but spiritual, and therefore not so much without as within the man. Without the inward principle, the outward relation is nothing. Alford says that the fact of these words being addressed to Pharisees, in whose hearts there was nothing of this new kingdom, should prevent us from taking them in a spiritual sense; and instead of reading "within you," he would read "is already among you." The kingdom of the Messiah which you expect is even now commenced among you, though, influenced as you are by prejudice, you do not observe it, and your actions prove that you do not believe it, yet, I say unto you, it is already among you.

35. "Two women shall be grinding together:"—the mill which was in use among the Hebrews resembled that which is still common in Western Asia. It was formed of two circular stones, about six inches thick and two feet in diameter. These stones were placed one upon the other, and were the upper and nether millstones of which we read in the Old Testament. The upper stone was slightly hollowed underneath, to fit upon the slightly rounded surface of the nether stone. In the centre of the upper stone there was a hole, into which the corn was put by the hand; and a little on one side was a handle to turn the upper stone, the lower one being stationary. The mill was, and still is, commonly turned by two women, who sit opposite each other, and seize the handle by turns, so as to keep up the requisite motion. The operation is a daily one in every house, so that each family grinds its own corn and makes its own bread daily. Sir John Chardin says, "In the East they grind their corn at break of day, and when one goes out in a morning, one hears everywhere the noise of the mill." This peculiar noise, often spoken of by travellers, is alluded to in Jer. xxv. 10; Eccles. xii. 4; and Rev. xviii. 22. The grinding is, as we said, usually performed by women, and it is regarded as a very menial employment. After being ground, the flour is sifted, and the bran is ground over again.

WOMEN GRINDING CORN.—LUKE XVII. 35

37. "Where, Lord?"—no distinct reference having been made to Judea or Jerusalem by our Lord, the question, "Where should all this take place?" was very appropriate in the minds of his startled and astonished disciples. His answer "leads them back to what is of general application, inasmuch as he assigns their moral and religious state of decay (expressed by the word carcase, or body) as the ground of the coming destruction. Only that which is living continues in union with the fountain of life, and is capable, for this reason, of being elevated into the higher sphere of existence which is prepared for it."

CHAPTER XVIII.

The following parable, which belongs to our Evangelist exclusively, has an intimate connection with the preceding discourse, but we must be very careful as to our mode of exegesis or interpretation. Justly says Olshausen, "The Saviour's parables are sometimes set forth not from a standing-point absolutely true, but from one merely relative. From the former, God could never be compared to 'an unjust judge,' however much man may attempt to soften the severity of the expression. When regarded, however, from an inferior, human standing-point, the comparison has a depth of truth adapted to man's experience when struggling with the difficulties of this earthly life. Inasmuch, therefore, as the Saviour lets himself down to this standing-point, this parabolic representation contains what is fitted to move the mind to active exertion."

19 And Jesus said unto him, Why callest thou me good? none is good, save one, that is, God.

20 Thou knowest the commandments, Do not commit adultery, Do not kill, Do not steal, Do not bear false witness, Honour thy father and thy mother.[a]

21 And he said, All these have I kept from my youth up.

22 Now when Jesus heard these things, he said unto him, Yet lackest thou one thing: sell all that thou hast, and distribute unto the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come, follow me.[b]

23 And when he heard this, he was very sorrowful: for he was very rich.

24 And when Jesus saw that he was very sorrowful, he said, How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God![c]

25 For it is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

26 And they that heard it said, Who then can be saved?

27 And he said, The things which are impossible with men are possible with God.[d]

28 Then Peter said, Lo, we have left all, and followed thee.[e]

29 And he said unto them, Verily I say unto you, There is no man that hath left house, or parents, or brethren, or wife, or children, for the kingdom of God's sake,[f]

30 Who shall not receive manifold more in this present time, and in the world to come life everlasting.[g]

31 ¶ Then he took unto him the twelve, and said unto them, Behold, we go up to Jerusalem, and all things that are written by the prophets concerning the Son of man shall be accomplished.[h]

32 For he shall be delivered unto the Gentiles, and shall be mocked, and spitefully entreated, and spitted on:[i]

33 And they shall scourge him, and put him to death: and the third day he shall rise again.

34 And they understood none of these things: and this saying was hid from them, neither knew they the things which were spoken.[j]

43 And immediately he received his sight, and followed him, glorifying God: and all the people, when they saw it, gave praise unto God.[m]

CHAPTER XIX.

1 Of Zacchæus a publican. 11 The ten pieces of money. 28 Christ rideth into Jerusalem with triumph: 41 weepeth over it: 45 driveth the buyers and sellers out of the temple: 47 teaching daily in it. The rulers would have destroyed him, but for the fear of the people.

AND Jesus entered and passed through Jericho.

2 And, behold, there was a man named Zacchæus, which was the chief among the publicans, and he was rich.

3 And he sought to see Jesus who he was; and could not for the press, because he was little of stature.

4 And he ran before, and climbed up into a sycomore tree to see him: for he was to pass that way.

5 And when Jesus came to the place, he looked up, and saw him, and said unto him, Zacchæus, make haste, and come down; for to day I must abide at thy house.

6 And he made haste, and came down, and received him joyfully.

1. "Ought always to pray:"—this refers rather to the inward state and attitude of the soul than to the outward. The desire of the heart, if in harmony with the will of God, is prayer, and this desire nothing should be allowed to overcome.

5—7. "I will avenge her:"—if such "be the power of earnest entreaty, that it can win right even from a man sunk in selfishness, and fearing neither God nor man, how much more will this right be done by the just and holy God in answer to the continual prayer of his elect?"

8. "Shall he find faith on the earth?"—it may be, as Meyer says, "that the painful thought suddenly occurs to the Lord, how many there will be even at his coming, who will not have received him as the Messiah!" but the question of the Saviour rather points to the character of the faith. Will there be such faith as this in the prospect of those events which I have described, and which are coming on the land?

9—14. This parable was not addressed to the Pharisees, but to his disciples and the people in general. The "two men" are to be taken as the types of two distinct classes everywhere, and at every successive stage of the Church's development to be found among men. The design of the parable is to show that the relative position of a man to his fellow-men is often completely reversed when he is brought into the presence of God. What men reject, God accepts; and what men approve and commend, God condemns. Humility is the grand, pre-eminent characteristic of true piety; but self-righteousness is that which men give up last, and with most difficulty.

18—30. "A certain ruler asked him:"—the fact that he was "a ruler," it may be, of one of the synagogues, is the only additional point brought out in the character of this young man.—See Matt. xix. 16—30; Mark x. 17—31, with the Notes.

34. "This saying was hid from them:"—that is, they had no corresponding idea of the import of his words. The whole truth affecting his sufferings and death was not yet allowed to flash its conviction across their minds, as it would have paralysed all their power, and disqualified them for the scenes still before them.

35—43. "A certain blind man:"—this seems to have been the same miracle recorded by Matthew (xx. 29-34) and by Mark (x. 46—52), only Matthew says there were two men, while Luke and Mark confine the cure to one. Our Evangelist may have had some specific reason for selecting one case out of the two, which does not appear on the face of his narrative. These "very differences on such immaterial points show the genuine historical character of the Gospels; and so far from detracting from their character in a higher point of view, they exalt it."

7 And when they saw it, they all murmured, saying, That he was gone to be guest with a man that is a sinner.[a]

8 And Zacchæus stood, and said unto the Lord; Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have taken any thing from any man by false accusation, I restore him fourfold.[b]

9 And Jesus said unto him, This day is salvation come to this house, forsomuch as he also is a son of Abraham.[c]

10 For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.[d]

11 And as they heard these things, he added and spake a parable, because he was nigh to Jerusalem, and because they thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear.[e]

12 He said therefore, A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return.[f]

13 And he called his ten servants, and delivered them [1]ten pounds, and said unto them, Occupy till I come.

14 But his citizens hated him, and sent a message after him, saying, We will not have this man to reign over us.[g]

15 And it came to pass, that when he was returned, having received the kingdom, then he commanded these servants to be called unto him, to whom he had given the [2]money, that he might know how much every man had gained by trading.

16 Then came the first, saying, Lord, thy pound hath gained ten pounds.

17 And he said unto him, Well, thou good servant: because thou hast been faithful in a very little, have thou authority over ten cities.[h]

18 And the second came, saying, Lord, thy pound hath gained five pounds.

19 And he said likewise to him, Be thou also over five cities.

CHAPTER XIX.

The cure effected on behalf of the blind man was performed as the Saviour entered Jericho; now he passes through the city, and another incident of a pleasingly interesting character takes place. A publican, despised by the proud, supercilious Pharisees, becomes the object of the Saviour's special attention and solicitude; while the rich, unconfined grace of the Redeemer so impresses his heart as to result in the moral renovation of the man.

1. "Passed through Jericho:"—this city was distant from Jerusalem only about one hundred and fifty stadia, or fifteen English miles; was very ancient, having been in existence when the Hebrews, under Joshua, took possession of the land of Canaan

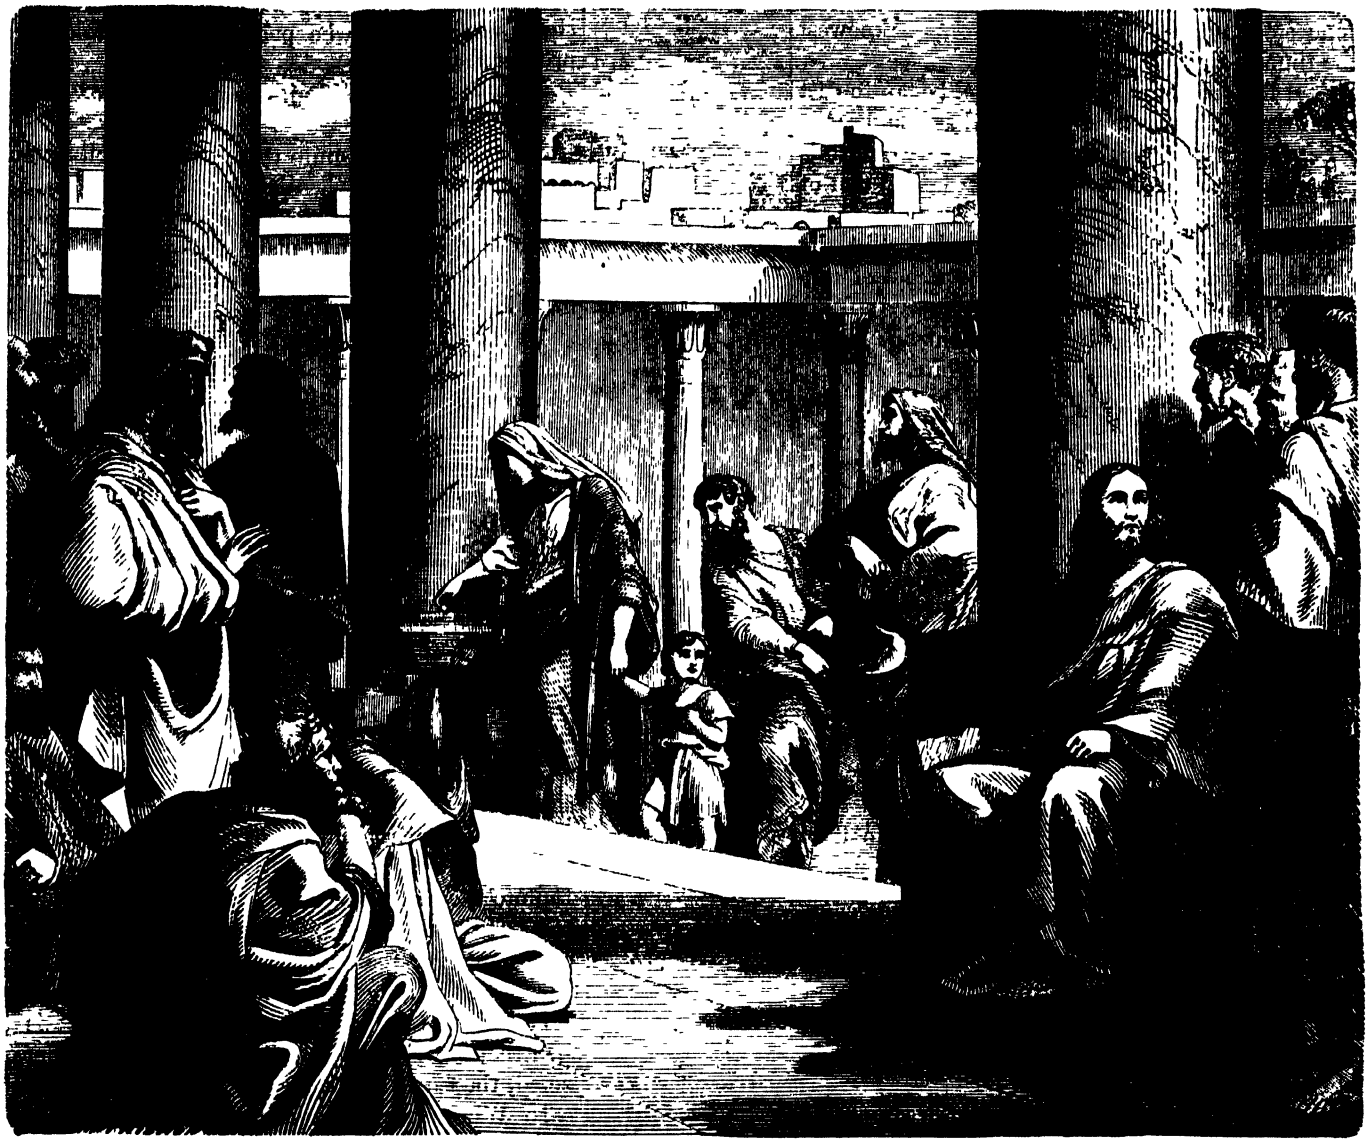
2. "Chief among the publicans:"—the palms and balsam gardens of Jericho brought to its inhabitants considerable trade and traffic, and it is supposed that Zacchæus held the office of an administrator of the revenue derived from these products.

4. "Climbed up into a sycomore tree"—the sycomore of the Bible is the fig-tree of the Egyptians, whose fruit was much esteemed, and the gathering of which was intrusted to a special body of officers. It grows abundantly, and its wood, though much less valuable than the cedar, was used not only for building, but was manufactured into mummy cases; and it is said that coffins made of this wood, some three thousand years ago, have been found in a perfectly sound condition.

5. "To day I must abide at thy house."—there is reason to believe that Zacchæus, notwithstanding his admiration of Christ, had no personal knowledge of the Saviour; but, owing to the established laws of hospitality in the East, this mode of address would not surprise him.

7. "A man that is a sinner:"—judging from his own confession in the following verse, it is not unlikely that he had been guilty of an unprincipled exercise of his power, and therefore was known as an unrighteous exactor; but now repentance leads to confession and restoration. The man's heart is subdued, he is in the attitude to appreciate the grace of the Saviour, and hence the words of Jesus, "This day is salvation come to this house."

11 "The kingdom of God should immediately appear;"—that is, the whole nation was looking for some outward, visible empire, and it was their earnest hope that the time had come for the setting up of this material, earthly kingdom in the world.



12. "A certain nobleman."—this parable is not to be confounded with that embodied in Matt. xxv. 14—30; for there are points in both which render them distinct and separate. The comparison of the nobleman going into a far country to receive a kingdom is supposed to be founded on the history of Archelaus, son of Herod the Great, who had built a most magnificent palace at Jericho. The kings of the Herodian family made journeys to Rome, to receive their office and dominion, and from which they returned in possession of their regal investiture.

13. "Ten pounds:"—OR, TEN MINÆ. The mina was one-sixtieth of a talent, equal to about £3 2s. 6d. of our English money. Let it be observed that each of the ten servants received exactly the same amount—one mina each.

14. "We will not have this man to reign over us."—Josephus tells us that when Archelaus set out for Rome, to receive his appointment to regal dominion, the Jews sent after him a solemn protest, of which Augustus, however, took no notice. Nor would the Jews have Jesus to reign over them; but Christ was God's anointed, and no one could wrest the sceptre from his hand.

20. "Laid up in a napkin:"—the word rendered napkin points to a sort of handkerchief in which the Jews were wont to wrap up and keep their money. Here it was, of course, perfectly unproductive.

27. "Slay them before me:"—these solemn words may refer to the condition of the rebellious and the wicked, first in the events connected with the impending doom of Jerusalem, and then in the transactions of that day when all who have rejected the Saviour's grace and rule, and who are therefore "enemies of the cross of Christ," shall be "punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power."

37 And when he was come nigh, even now at the descent of the mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the disciples began to rejoice and praise God with a loud voice for all the mighty works that they had seen;

38 Saying, Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord: peace in heaven, and glory in the highest.[c]

39 And some of the Pharisees from among the multitude said unto him, Master, rebuke thy disciples.

29. "Bethphage and Bethany:"—the small village of Bethphage stood on the south-east of the Mount of Olives, and adjoining Bethany on the west.

37. "At the descent of the mount:"—this does not mean so much the base or declivity of the mount itself, as the fact that they had reached the point from which they were about to make their descent from the mount.

40. "The stones would immediately cry out:"—this was a proverbial expression, and proves, as used by our Lord, that no ascription of greatness and glory addressed to him by men could exceed his claim

41. "He beheld the city:"—in his descent from the Mount of Olives, the whole city lay under his eye, embosomed in beauty. But, oh! what a spectacle did that city present to his holy mind, in its moral elements! In what striking contrast do we here see his infinite love and their deep-rooted enmity! How unutterable his compassion! How inexplicable their rebellion and hardness of heart! When he grieved, it was for the hardness of men's hearts, and when he wept over the condemned city, it was because he foresaw the direful penalties which sin would entail.

CHAPTER XX.

SYNOPSIS.—Luke xx 1—8, Matt xxi 23—27; Mark xi. 27—33. Luke xx 9—19 Matt xxi 33—46; Mark xii 1—12 Luke xx 20—26; Matt xxii 15—22, Mark xii 13—17 Luke xx 27—40, Matt xxii 23—33; Mark xii. 18—27. Luke xx. 41—47; Matt. xxii. 41—46, xxiii 6, 7, 13, Mark xii. 35—40.

The preceding chapter closed with the intimation that the chief priests and the scribes were held in check by the popular feeling, which had given expression to itself in favour of the Saviour in the prosecution of his sublime work. In the present chapter we have the record of several interviews between the Redeemer and the sacerdotal orders of the Jewish Church. The hatred of these orders "towards the person of the Saviour, and their concern on account of the number of adherents that he had gained among the people, had now risen to the highest degree. But the Spirit of truth and wisdom enabled him to put all their malice to shame. . . . The accurate harmony of all three Evangelists in these statements is undoubtedly a very important argument for the correctness of their description. Everything seems to have transpired in the order in which the history runs, the only difference being that Matthew relates more particulars than the others"

1 The chief priests and the scribes pressed round about him, and began to ply him with numerous questions, if by any chance they might entangle him, or catch him by craft and cunning.

7. "They answered, that they could not tell"—if they were honest and earnest men, in putting the question to Jesus as to the authority he had for his line of action, they would certainly have let the question reach its proper issue; but when they perceived that the Saviour was placing them on the horns of a dilemma, they immediately had recourse to a falsehood to escape from their difficulty. They well knew whence John received his mission and his ministry, and the inference was inevitable, that if the Baptist had held his commission from God, much more did he, the Son and Sent of God, whom they persecuted even unto death.

9. "Speak to the people this parable:"—though the Saviour addressed

Anno Domini 33.

19 ¶ And the chief priests and the scribes the same hour sought to lay hands on him; and they feared the people: for they perceived that he had spoken this parable against them.

20 And they watched him, and sent forth spies, which should feign themselves just men, that they might take hold of his words, that so they might deliver him unto the power and authority of the governor.[a]

21 And they asked him, saying, Master, we know that thou sayest and teachest rightly, neither acceptest thou the person of any, but teachest the way of God [1]truly:[b]

22 Is it lawful for us to give tribute unto Cæsar, or no?

23 But he perceived their craftiness, and said unto them, Why tempt ye me?

24 Shew me a penny. Whose image and superscription hath it? They answered and said, Cæsar's.[c]

25 And he said unto them, Render therefore unto Cæsar the things which be Cæsar's, and unto God the things which be God's.

26 And they could not take hold of his words before the people: and they marvelled at his answer, and held their peace.

27 ¶ Then came to him certain of the Sadducees, which deny that there is any resurrection; and they asked him,[d]

28 Saying, Master, Moses wrote unto us, If any man's brother die, having a wife, and he die without children, that his brother should take his wife, and raise up seed unto his brother.[e]

29 There were therefore seven brethren: and the first took a wife, and died without children.

30 And the second took her to wife, and he died childless.

31 And the third took her; and in like manner the seven also: and they left no children, and died.

32 Last of all the woman died also.

33 Therefore in the resurrection whose wife of them is she? for seven had her to wife.

34 And Jesus answering said unto them, The children of this world marry, and are given in marriage:

35 But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage:

36 Neither can they die any more: for they are equal unto the angels; and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection.[f]

37 Now that the dead are raised, even Moses shewed at the bush, when he calleth the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.[g]

38 For he is not a God of the dead, but of the living: for all live unto him.[h]

39 ¶ Then certain of the scribes answering said, Master, thou hast well said.

40 And after that they durst not ask him any question at all.

41 And he said unto them, How say they that Christ is David's son?[i]

42 And David himself saith in the book of Psalms, The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand,[j]

43 Till I make thine enemies thy footstool.

44 David therefore calleth him Lord, how is he then his son?

45 ¶ Then in the audience of all the people he said unto his disciples,[k]

46 Beware of the scribes, which desire to walk in long robes, and love greetings in the markets, and the highest seats in the synagogues, and the chief rooms at feasts;[l]

47 Which devour widows' houses, and for a shew make long prayers: the same shall receive greater damnation.[m] himself immediately to the people, there can be no doubt that the parable, in its spirit and application, points to the chief priests and the scribes, but whether, as Bengel suggests, the Saviour adopted this mode to prevent the interruption of these sacerdotal orders, does not so clearly appear.

The vineyard represents the Theocratic kingdom; the husbandmen, the Jewish people; the servants, the prophets and the co-workers; the son of the proprietor, no other than the incarnate Redeemer. The Jews were the chosen nation, but we know how they treated the messengers and servants of the Most High God, and how, when he sent his own Son to reveal to them the fulness of eternal life, and receive from them as a people the fruits of faith and love, they took him and with wicked hands put him to death. The design of the parable, therefore, is to expose their dissimulation and abuse of power, and to unveil its atrocious results.

17. "The stone which the builders rejected"—the psalm from which these words are a quotation describes a victorious prince, who, in the power of the Infinite One, subdues and triumphs over his enemies. The Jews applied the psalm to the Messiah, and here the Saviour applies it to himself. The corner-stone is the support and the connecting point of the whole building; and so the Saviour and his work lie at the basis of the new dispensation—the union of both Jew and Gentile in one sacred edifice; and that which, as the corner-stone of the edifice, is refused and rejected by man, is chosen by God, and set forth by him as pre-eminently suitable to his great design. Thus writes this great evangelical prophet—"Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation a stone, a tried stone, a precious corner stone, a sure foundation: he that believeth shall not make haste," or shall not be confounded.

18. "Whosoever shall fall upon that stone:"—it is to be observed that "in the first part of the verse, the stone appears as occasioning the fall, and the destruction thence resulting, through the act of him who falls upon it; while in the second part, inversely, the stone is represented as destroying by its own movement." Nor is this striking image unknown to the ancient prophets. "Under the figure of a piece of rock, which, without being touched, loosens itself and hurls itself down, shattering everything which it encounters, Daniel describes the destroying power of the kingdom of God, and its representative—the Messiah—put forth against the world of evil."

20 "Sent forth spies, who should feign themselves just men."—the course of action now adopted by the chief priests and the scribes reveals the mortification from which they had suffered during this penetrating, piercing address of our Lord; the spirit of dissimulation of which they were the subjects; and the deep-rooted enmity which they cherished against the Holy One of God. Instead of the Saviour's words leading them to repentance and conversion, they only excited their most bitter anger, but so long as the people adhered to Christ and looked upon him as a prophet, these men dared not lay violent hands upon him.

21—26. "Is it lawful for us to give tribute unto Cæsar?"—this question was, no doubt, put to Christ by the spies who had been sent by the Pharisees to watch his words as well as his conduct. There were two parties—the Pharisees and the Herodians. The latter were rather a political than a religious party, whose greatest care was to preserve the public quiet, and avoid, if possible, all occasion of offence to the Romans. Both parties here combine against Christ. A question is proposed to him, apparently out of respect to his authority as a teacher, but really with the view to draw out such an answer from him as would offend either the sacred orders or the politicians. Had he pronounced against the paying of tribute to Cæsar, it would have exposed him to the charge of rebellion, while to allow that such an obligation was binding on them, might have laid him open to the accusation of degrading the Theocracy, which was the distinctive glory of the Jewish nation. His answer struck them dumb, as if death had stilled their tongue.

27—40. On the Saviour's reply to the question of the Sadducees on the doctrine of the resurrection, see Matt. xxii. 23—33, and the Notes.

41. "He said unto them"—not to the Sadducees only, but rather to the Pharisees and the Scribes, for his question refers to a point on which they entertained similar opinions, as to the person of the Messiah.

45—47. "Shall receive greater damnation."—what a fearful denunciation! what an awakening prospect! what a tremendous doom!

CHAPTER XXI.

1 Christ commendeth the poor widow. 5 He foretelleth the destruction of the temple, and of the city Jerusalem: 25 the signs also which shall be before the last day. 34 He exhorteth them to be watchful.

AND he looked up, and saw the rich men casting their gifts into the treasury.[a]

2 And he saw also a certain poor widow casting in thither two mites.[b]

3 And he said, Of a truth I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast in more than they all:[c]

4 For all these have of their abundance cast in unto the offerings of God: but she of her penury hath cast in all the living that she had.

5 ¶ And as some spake of the temple, how it was adorned with goodly stones and gifts, he said,[d]

6 As for these things which ye behold, the days will come, in the which there shall not be left one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down.[e]

7 And they asked him, saying, Master, but when shall these things be? and what sign will there be when these things shall come to pass?

8 And he said, Take heed that ye be not deceived: for many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; [1]and the time draweth near: go ye not therefore after them.[f]

9 But when ye shall hear of wars and commotions, be not terrified: for these things must first come to pass; but the end is not by and by.

10 Then said he unto them, Nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom:[g]

11 And great earthquakes shall be in divers places, and famines, and pestilences; and fearful sights and great signs shall there be from heaven.

12 But before all these, they shall lay their hands on you, and persecute you, delivering you up to the synagogues, and into prisons, being brought before kings and rulers for my name's sake.[h]

13 And it shall turn to you for a testimony.[i]

CHAPTER XXI.

SYNOPSIS.—Luke xxi. 1—4; Mark xii. 41—44 Luke xxi 5—36; Matt. xxiv 1—51; xxv. 1—13, Mark xiii. 1—37. Luke xxi. 37, 38.

Our Lord had occupied the sacred floor of the Temple for the last time, and was about leaving the holy place for ever Hence this great prophetic discourse touching the destruction of Jerusalem. He had already wept over the city. His voice had died away in the ear of the people, in the plaintive and thrilling tone—a tone which had left its impression on the mind of his own disciples—"Behold, your house is left unto you desolate!" and on his leaving the Temple, they call his attention to the magnificence of the building, which leads him to utter the solemn predictions contained in the present chapter. "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear."

1. "And he looked up:"—hitherto he had been absorbed in discourse; but suddenly raising his eyes and looking in the direction of the treasury, he was struck with the spectacle which now presented itself, in connection with the offerings being deposited in the sacred chest. St. Mark tells us that the Saviour beheld how the people cast into the treasury; but our Evangelist speaks only of the rich, just because he wished to bring into bolder relief this poor widow, as presenting the most striking contrast in word and deed.

5. "Goodly stones and gifts:"—we are told that there were foundationwith armies, then know that the desolation thereof is nigh.[a]

21 Then let them which are in Judæa flee to the mountains; and let them which are in the midst of it depart out; and let not them that are in the countries enter thereinto.

22 For these be the days of vengeance, that all things which are written may be fulfilled.[b]

23 But woe unto them that are with child, and to them that give suck, in those days! for there shall be great distress in the land, and wrath upon this people.[c]

24 And they shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations: and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled.[d]

25 ¶ And there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring;[e]

26 Men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken.[f]

27 And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory.[g] stones in the Temple one hundred and twenty feet broad, and one hundred and thirty-four feet in length, of the whitest marble; while the building was enriched with a great variety of consecrated gifts—the offerings of a sanctified reverence, or, as in the case of Cæsar Augustus, who presented some costly vessels as a gift of honour, as a mark of regal acknowledgment

The disciples referred to the magnificent stones of which the Temple walls were built, and to the ornaments with which it was decorated. Our Lord foretells their utter overthrow. This prophecy has been completely fulfilled, and the sacred edifice has long since been levelled with the dust. As if to illustrate the terrible character of the destruction, God's providence has ordained the preservation of one portion of the lower courses of the Temple wall. This is shown in the engraving on the preceding page. The large stones represented on the left are the only evidences now visible of the "goodly stones" of which the Temple was built. They form one side of a court one hundred and twenty feet long, and known as the Jews' wailing-place. Here every day, and more especially on Fridays, the Jews come to weep over the ruin of their Temple and nation, and to pray for their restoration. This privilege they purchase of the Turkish Government. All strangers in Jerusalem visit the spot, and every day Jews may be found there lamenting and praying over the fallen glory of Zion Though it was not to this part of the wall that the disciples referred, yet as the whole wall was no doubt similar, it shows the propriety of their words, and the force of the Lord's prediction.

6. "There shall not be left one stone upon another:"—we learn from the page of history that after the Jews were conquered, Titus commanded his

28 And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh.[a]

29 And he spake to them a parable; Behold the fig tree, and all the trees;[b]

30 When they now shoot forth, ye see and know of your own selves that summer is now nigh at hand.

31 So likewise ye, when ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand.

32 Verily I say unto you, This generation shall not pass away, till all be fulfilled.

33 Heaven and earth shall pass away: but my words shall not pass away.[c]

34 ¶ And take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting, and drunkenness, and cares of this life, and so that day come upon you unawares.[d]

35 For as a snare shall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth.[e]

36 Watch ye therefore, and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man.[f]

37 And in the day time he was teaching in the temple; and at night he went out, and abode in the mount that is called the mount of Olives.[g]

38 And all the people came early in the morning to him in the temple, for to hear him.

CHAPTER XXII.

1 The Jews conspire against Christ. 3 Satan prepareth Judas to betray him. 7 The apostles prepare the passover. 19 Christ instituteth his holy supper, 21 covertly foretelleth of the traitor, 24 deterreth the rest of his apostles from ambition, 31 assureth Peter his faith should not fail: 34 and yet he should deny him thrice. 39 He prayeth in the mount, and sweateth blood, 47 is betrayed with a kiss: 50 he healeth Malchus' ear, 54 he is thrice denied of Peter, 63 shamefully abused, 66 and confesseth himself to be the Son of God.

NOW the feast of unleavened bread drew nigh, which is called the Passover.[h]

2 And the chief priests and scribes sought how they might kill him; for they feared the people.[i]

3 ¶ Then entered Satan into Judas surnamed Iscariot, being of the number of the twelve.[j]

4 And he went his way, and communed with the chief priests and captains, how he might betray him unto them.

5 And they were glad, and covenanted to give him money.[k]

6 And he promised, and sought opportunity to betray him unto them [1]in the absence of the multitude.

7 ¶ Then came the day of unleavened bread, when the passover must be killed.[l]

8 And he sent Peter and John, saying, Go and prepare us the passover, that we may eat.

soldiers to dig up and around the foundations of the whole city, and also of the Temple, although previous to this command he used every means to preserve the sacred edifice. Afterwards Terentius Rufus tore up the foundations of the city with ploughshares, and thus invested the words of prophecy with an emphasis not to be misunderstood.—Hagg. ii. 15; Micah iii. 12.

7—36. "When shall these things be?"—to this question of his disciples, the following prophetic discourse is the solemn reply. For the exposition, see Matt. xxiv. 1—51, xxv. 1—13

When our Lord says, in verse 32, that "this generation shall not pass away, till all be fulfilled," the question naturally arises, Did he mean to limit the word "generation" to the men then actually living, or does he use it in a much wider and more extended sense? The authorities are greatly divided. There are those who think that our Lord used the word "generation" in a double sense, as if he had said, "All that has regard to Jerusalem and its overthrow shall come to pass even in this generation of living men; while the generation of the Jews as a people, or collective whole, shall not pass away until everything included in these predictions is fulfilled." Others maintain that the phrase "this generation" does not at all mean a generation of men in general, but what Christ has everywhere before designated by this—THE CORRUPT ISRAEL—and understand the meaning to be, "This generation will, as it were, not die, but will propagate itself in children and children's children, as a generation ever the same as the present; this generation which rejects me will so remain until it again cries 'Hosannah!' to me in truth. . . . Thus we have in the words of Christ a most significant reference to the historical miracle of the hand of God upon Israel, whose continued separate existence, ever maintaining the same nature and character of one race, even under the curse, mocks the power and cunning of all nations, and contradicts all the usual order of history."—See Numb. xxiii. 9.

It is reported of Frederick the Great, who was a man of great learning and attainments, that he once asked a preacher to furnish in one single word the most convincing argument for the truth of the Bible; and the striking answer was, "THE JEWS!" And it is the recorded opinion of Dean Alford, that "never were a nation so completely one generation, in all accuracy of meaning, as the Jewish people."

How affectingly has the prediction of our Lord been fulfilled in relation to the holy city! It is a fact written on the page of history, that no other city has experienced such a fate. Thirty-four times has Jerusalem been taken and pillaged, and millions of men have been slaughtered within her walls. Can we wonder that Incarnate Love should have wept over it?

37, 38. "He was teaching in the temple:"—these two verses are peculiar to Luke, and seem here to be somewhat suppose that our Lord ever taught in the Temple after the delivery of his great prophetic discourse. Previously to its delivery he had been for some time resident in Jerusalem. The day he spent in the Temple, and the night he in all likelihood passed at Bethany. It was during this time that the people sought eagerly to hear him; but from the moment that he took his final leave of the Temple as his Father's house, and uttered the prophecy of Jerusalem's impending doom, his voice was never more heard within its sacred walls. The prophecy did, in fact, close our Lord's public teaching in Jerusalem. Her children knew not the day of their visitation, and hence made light of the immense and everlasting

9 And they said unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare?

10 And he said unto them, Behold, when ye are entered into the city, there shall a man meet you, bearing a pitcher of water; follow him into the house where he entereth in.

11 And ye shall say unto the goodman of the house, The Master saith unto thee, Where is the guestchamber, where I shall eat the passover with my disciples?

12 And he shall shew you a large upper room furnished: there make ready.

13 And they went, and found as he had said unto them: and they made ready the passover.

14 And when the hour was come, he sat down, and the twelve apostles with him.[a]

15 And he said unto them, [1]With desire I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer:

16 For I say unto you, I will not any more eat thereof, until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God.[b]

17 And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and said, Take this, and divide it among yourselves:

18 For I say unto you, I will not drink of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God shall come.[c]

19 ¶ And he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me.[d]

22 And truly the Son of man goeth, as it was determined: but woe unto that man by whom he is betrayed![g]

23 And they began to enquire among themselves which of them it was that should do this thing.[h]

24 ¶ And there was also a strife among them which of them should be accounted the greatest.[i]

25 And he said unto them, The kings of the Gentiles exercise lordship over them; and they that exercise authority upon them are called benefactors.[j]

26 But ye shall not be so: but he that is greatest among you, let him be as the younger; and he that is chief, as he that doth serve.[k]

SYNOPSIS:—Luke xxii 1, 2, Matt. xxvi 1—5; Mark xiv 1, 2 Luke xxii 3—6; Matt. xxvi 14—16, 19—25, Mark xiv 10—21, Luke xxii 21—23, Matt. xxvi 29—35, Mark xiv 24—31. Our Lord has closed his public ministry, and there now lay before him the deeper scenes of the garden and the cross. "His discourses, which even in the immediately preceding days had so powerfully flowed forth in warnings, reproofs, exhortations, prophecies, were now ended. The obduracy of the Pharisees, and the unbelief of the people, had limited the operation of his ministry. But no obduracy, no unbelief, could retard the sublime work of Christ. With the firm persuasion of his death being near, the Saviour had come to Jerusalem to the feast, and with firm resolve he advanced to meet this death—wherewith from his fall should spring forth new life for a sinful world, and whereby the Comforter, the Holy Ghost, might come, who should remind the disciples of all that their Lord had spoken, in order that they might be placed in a condition to catch up again his effective, thrilling announcements, and, through the Scriptures, to establish their signification and power for ages and for millions."

ANCIENT EARTHEN VESSELS.—LUKE XXII 10. FROM THE EGYPTIAN COLLECTION IN THE BRITISH MUSEUM.

1. "Called the Passover:"—this festival, which was founded upon the exodus from Egypt, was one of the principal feasts among the Jews. But the question is often raised, Was it a mere thank-offering in memory of God's sparing mercy, or did it partake of the character of a propitiation? There can be no doubt that the Passover was connected with the feeling and the highest joy and thanksgiving, but it is just as unquestionable that it had in it the true nature of an offering, in which lies the idea of sacrifice or expiation. All the best expositors are agreed that "every offering, even the thank-offering, was regarded as expiatory, if the offence stood in need of expiation, the expiation being in all offerings the essentially fundamental idea."

3. "Then entered Satan into Judas Iscariot:" with a strange forgetfulness of those moral elements which went to make up the character of the traitor, Dean Alford says:—"Satan had not yet entered into Judas, but only put it into his heart to betray our Lord;" whereas the import of the phrase clearly is, that Satan took full possession of the man, and converted him into his willing slave.

4 "Chief priests and captains:"—these captains were the leaders or officers of the Temple guard, to whom, as Jews, our Lord and his teaching could not but be obnoxious.

6 "In the absence of the multitude:"—how much is embodied in these words! While the authorities, ecclesiastical and civil, conspired together against the sinless Redeemer, the people were rather disposed to range themselves on his side, and to espouse his cause. At all events, it was in the absence of the people that the dark-souled Judas sought to carry out his diabolical design.

ANNO DOMINI 33.

32 But I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not: and when thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren.[a]

33 And he said unto him, Lord, I am ready to go with thee, both into prison, and to death.

34 And he said, I tell thee, Peter, the cock shall not crow this day, before that thou shalt thrice deny that thou knowest me.[b]

35 And he said unto them, When I sent you without purse, and scrip, and shoes, lacked ye any thing? And they said, Nothing.[c]

36 Then said he unto them, But now, he that hath a purse, let him take it, and likewise his scrip: and he that hath no sword, let him sell his garment, and buy one.

37 For I say unto you, that this that is written must yet be accomplished in me, And he was reckoned among the transgressors: for the things concerning me have an end.[d]

38 And they said, Lord, behold, here are two swords. And he said unto them, It is enough.

39 ¶ And he came out, and went, as he was wont, to the mount of Olives; and his disciples also followed him.[e]

40 And when he was at the place, he said unto them, Pray that ye enter not into temptation.[f]

41 And he was withdrawn from them about a stone's cast, and kneeled down, and prayed,[g]

42 Saying, Father, if thou be [1]willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine, be [h].

43 And there appeared an angel unto him from heaven, strengthening him.[i]

44 And being in an agony he prayed more carnestly: and his sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground.[j]

45 And when he rose up from prayer, and was come to his disciples, he found them sleeping for sorrow,

46 And said unto them, Why sleep ye? rise and pray, lest ye enter into temptation.[k]

47 ¶ And while he yet spake, behold a multitude, and he that was called Judas, one of the twelve, went before them, and drew near unto Jesus to kiss him.[l]

48 But Jesus said unto him, Judas, betrayest thou the Son of man with a kiss?

49 When they which were about him saw what would follow, they said unto him, Lord, shall we smite with the sword?

50 ¶ And one of them smote the servant of the high priest, and cut off his right ear.[m]

51 And Jesus answered and said, Suffer ye thus far. And he touched his ear, and healed him.

52 Then Jesus said unto the chief priests, and captains of the temple, and the elders, which were come to him, Be ye come out, as against a thief, with swords and staves?[n]

53 When I was daily with you in the temple, ye stretched forth no hands against me: but this is your hour, and the power of darkness.[o]

54 ¶ Then took they him, and led him, and brought him into the high priest's house. And Peter followed afar off.[p]

7. "Then came the day of unleavened bread,"—that is, the actual advent of the day, or the legal time for the sacrifice of the paschal lamb.

10 "There shall a man meet you"—we must here take with us the fact of our Lord's omniscience. Within his superhuman foresight lay the whole course of things. The man bearing the pitcher was not the proprietor of the house, but his servant, whom they met towards evening, which was the usual time of fetching in water They were commanded simply to follow him, and on reaching the house to address themselves to the proprietor, who doubtless was a man of some means and influence

11 "Where is the guestchamber?"—persons residing in Jerusalem were wont at this holy and festive season to set apart certain portions of their houses, in which parties coming from the country might eat the passover. The question put by the two disciples could not, therefore, excite any surprise.

14 "When the hour was come,"—that is, the hour in the evening appointed for the eating of the paschal supper.

15. "I have desired to eat this passover:"—Bengel says, "He had desired it for the sake of his disciples, to whom he wished now at last to manifest himself more openly in his very act of bidding them farewell. He had desired it for his own sake also, because he was about forthwith after it to enter into his glory" But there is, we think, another and a profounder reason. With this act on his part came the virtual and everlasting abrogation of the whole Jewish system, and the introduction of that new economy, whose provisions of grace extend to all the life and blessedness of a glorified immortality. Hence his own words in the sixteenth verse —"I will not any more eat thereof. . . . . I will not drink of the fruit of the vine" It was his last passover, and the last true passover to all; for he immediately instituted his own supper, and thus inaugurated the reign of grace on earth.

19, 20. "He took bread, and gave thanks"—the Saviour has now passed from the paschal celebration to the affecting memorial of his own mysterious death, as the one only and all-sufficient atonement for sin. The cup is put for the wine in it; the wine was the symbol of atoning blood, and it was by his blood of atonement that he ratified that new covenant which insures to every believer all the blessings of eternal life.

21—23. Judging from the narrative of John (xiii 1—3), these three verses ought to have come before the two preceding verses, which refer to the institution of the Lord's Supper, at which we have no reason to believe Judas was present.

—27. On this dispute about pre-eminence among the disciples of our Lord, see Matt. xx. 20—28, with the Notes.

28. "Continued with me in my temptations:"—the word temptations here is to be taken in the wider sense of trials and conflicts of every kind to which he was subject as a partaker of our common humanity, and in the prosecution of his sublime yet self-denying work

29, 30 "I appoint unto you a kingdom"—the present is the time for severer work, conflict, suffering; but there is a glorious future of rest, and reward, and glory Humiliation will lead to exaltation, and the cross will be followed by the crown. If ye suffer with me here, ye shall reign with me hereafter. "I appoint you a kingdom"—regal dignity, and more than princely festivity. Here you serve—there you will take your place at the table, and eat and drink in MY kingdom. The contrast is between their present circumstances and their future glorified position.

31—34. This sudden address to Peter was in all likelihood occasioned by some remark which that ever forward, ever impetuous apostle had interposed. Simon must follow his Lord through temptation and trial, and now comes his turn to be tested. As the process of winnowing separates the chaff from the wheat, and reveals the nature of both, so the integrity or otherwise of the apostle's character was now to be made manifest.

The word "converted," in the thirty-second verse, would be better rendered "restored," or "confirmed." Self-confidence is always indicative of corresponding internal weakness. The more confident we are in ourselves, the nearer we are to the point of falling.

35—38. "When I sent you without purse."—a much disputed passage; but its evident design is to forewarn his followers of those opposing forces which they would have to encounter in fulfilling their sublime mission as his ambassadors and apostles. So long as he was with them, they had nothing to provide, and nothing to fear; but now he was about to leave them as his representatives in the world, and deep would be their conflict with the enemies of his kingdom. For this reason he not only permits them to avail themselves of the ordinary helps which minister to the supply of food and the means of self-defence, but he enjoins it as something necessary and indispensable in the new and altered circumstances in which they were sure to be placed. They are henceforth to provide for their own support and self-preservation. The use of the sword was to be confined to those occasions when they might be put on the defensive.

The thirty-sixth verse would read better thus:—"He that hath a purse, let him take it; and likewise his scrip (or wallet); and he that hath no purse, let him sell his garment, and buy a sword."

39—46. In this account of our Lord's agony, we are indebted exclusively to our Evangelist for our knowledge of the incidents mentioned in verses 43, 44. The strengthening of which Christ now became conscious, through the ministration of an angel, was both physical and moral. The sweat which oozed from every pore in his body, under the pressure of mental anguish and distress, not only fell like drops of blood, but was itself mingled with blood; a fact not unknown in medical science.

That our Lord's prayer was confined to his present agony, and did not include the sufferings of the cross, and that his prayer was both heard and answered, is placed beyond all dispute by Heb. v. 7.

47—53. In this account of the betrayal and apprehension of Jesus we are struck with the address of Christ to Judas, the naming of the traitor, the revelation of Judas' crime, the zeal of the disciples on behalf of their Lord, and the unparalleled patience and love of the Saviour.

"Lord, shall we smite with the sword?"—the Saviour had just instructed them to provide themselves with the means of defence, and now they think an occasion has arisen for the use of the sword. The act of striking the servant of the high priest was indicative of zeal without knowledge.

"Suffer ye thus far:"—Alford takes this in the sense of "Permit me thus far;" that is, to touch the ear; for his hands, he says, were held. But this is wholly to mistake the meaning of the Evangelist. The Saviour speaks to the wounded man and to the people in general: "Suffer ye thus far"—forbear to avenge this wrong. And as they forbore, he touched the ear, and him on the face, and asked him, saying, Prophesy, who is it that smote thee?

65 And many other things blasphemously spake they against him.

66 ¶ And as soon as it was day, the elders of the people and the chief priests and the scribes came together, and led him into their council, saying,[a]

67 Art thou the Christ? tell us. And he said unto them, If I tell you, ye will not believe:[b]

68 And if I also ask you, ye will not answer me, nor let me go.

69 Hereafter shall the Son of man sit on the right hand of the power of God.[c]

70 Then said they all, Art thou then the Son of God? And he said unto them, Ye say that I am.[d]

71 And they said, What need we any further witness? for we ourselves have heard of his own mouth.[e]

4 Then said Pilate to the chief priests and to the people, I find no fault in this man.[i]

5 And they were the more fierce, saying, He stirreth up the people, teaching throughout all Jewry, beginning from Galilee to this place.

6 When Pilate heard of Galilee, he asked whether the man were a Galilæan.

7 And as soon as he knew that he belonged unto Herod's jurisdiction, he sent him to Herod, who himself also was at Jerusalem at that time.[j]

CHAPTER XXIII.

SYNOPSIS:—Luke xxiii. 1—5; Matt xxvii 11—14; Mark xv 1—5; John xviii. 28—38. Luke xxiii. 6—16 (peculiar to Luke) Luke xxiii 17—25; Matt. xxvii. 15—26; Mark xv 6—15; John xviii. 39, 40. Luke xxiii 26—46 Matt xxvii 31—50; Mark xv. 20—37; John xviii. 16—30. Luke xxiii 47—56, Matt. xxvii. 57—61; Mark xv. 42—47; John xix 38—42.

It would appear that the sitting of the Sanhedrim was held on the night of Christ's arrest, and that next morning judgment was passed upon him; and with the sentence of death upon him, he was led away to Pilate, for the Jews themselves had been divested of the right of jurisdiction in all questions of life and death. Everything in these last moments of our Saviour's history gathers intensity and force, and all is to be consummated in a scene of unutterable suffering and sorrow. He had still a baptism to be baptised with, and he was straitened until it was accomplished.

1. "Led him unto Pilate"—Pontius Pilate was the Roman procurator or governor of Judea at this time. His proper residence was at Cæsarea, but he had a palace or government house in Jerusalem, whither he went up at stated periods, and where he exercised judicial authority.

2. "Forbidding to give tribute to Cæsar:"—for the falsehood involved in this charge, see chap. xx. 21—25.

6—16. These verses are peculiar to our Evangelist. Pilate was not sorry to get rid of the matter now in hand by sending his prisoner to Herod (Antipas), who was tetrarch of Galilee and Perea, but who, being a Jew, was now in Jerusalem during the Passover. The character of Herod induced our Lord to maintain a perfect silence while he was in his presence.

29 For, behold, the days are coming, in the which they shall say, Blessed are the barren, and the wombs that never bare, and the paps which never gave suck.[a]

30 Then shall they begin to say to the mountains, Fall on us; and to the hills, Cover us.[b]

31 For if they do these things in a green tree, what shall be done in the dry?[c]

32 And there were also two other, malefactors, led with him to be put to death.[d]

33 And when they were come to the place, which is called [1]Calvary, there they crucified him, and the malefactors, one on the right hand, and the other on the left.[e]

34 ¶ Then said Jesus, Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do. And they parted his raiment, and cast lots.[f]

35 And the people stood beholding. And the rulers also with them derided him, saying, He saved others; let him save himself, if he be Christ, the chosen of God.[g]

36 And the soldiers also mocked him, coming to him, and offering him vinegar,

37 And saying, If thou be the king of the Jews, save thyself.

38 And a superscription also was written over him in letters of Greek, and Latin, and Hebrew, THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS.[h]

39 ¶ And one of the malefactors which were hanged railed on him, saying, If thou be Christ, save thyself and us.[i]

40 But the other answering rebuked him, saying, Dost not thou fear God, seeing thou art in the same condemnation?

41 And we indeed justly; for we receive the due reward of our deeds: but this man hath done nothing amiss.

42 And he said unto Jesus, Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom.

43 And Jesus said unto him, Verily I say unto thee, To day shalt thou be with me in paradise.

44 And it was about the sixth hour, and there was a darkness over all the [2]earth until the ninth hour.[j]

45 And the sun was darkened, and the veil of the temple was rent in the midst.[k]

46 ¶ And when Jesus had cried with a loud voice, he said, Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit: and having said thus, he gave up the ghost.[l]

47 Now when the centurion saw what was done, he glorified God, saying, Certainly this was a righteous man.[m]

48 And all the people that came together to that sight, beholding the things which were done, smote their breasts, and returned.

49 And all his acquaintance, and the women that followed him from Galilee, stood afar off, beholding these things.[n]

50 ¶ And, behold, there was a man named Joseph, a counsellor; and he was a good man, and a just:[o]

51 (The same had not consented to the counsel and deed of them;) he was of Arimathæa, a city of the Jews: who also himself waited for the kingdom of God.[p]

52 This man went unto Pilate, and begged the body of Jesus.

53 And he took it down, and wrapped it in linen, and laid it in a sepulchre that was hewn in stone, wherein never man before was laid.[q]

54 And that day was the preparation, and the sabbath drew on.[r]

55 And the women also, which came with him from Galilee, followed after, and beheld the sepulchre, and how his body was laid.[s]

56 And they returned, and prepared spices and ointments; and rested the sabbath day according to the commandment.[t]

CHAPTER XXIV.

1 Christ's resurrection is declared by two angels to the women that come to the sepulchre. 9 These report it to others. 13 Christ himself appeareth to the two disciples that went to Emmaus. 36 afterwards he appeareth to the apostles, and reproveth their unbelief: 47 giveth them a charge: 49 promiseth the Holy Ghost: 51 and so ascendeth into heaven.

NOW upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning, they came unto the sepulchre, bringing the spices which they had prepared, and certain others with them.[u]

2 And they found the stone rolled away from the sepulchre.[v]

3 And they entered in, and found not the body of the Lord Jesus.[w]

18. "Release unto us Barabbas:"—if Jesus were really innocent, why did Pilate speak of scourging him? He thus gave the Jews an advantage over him, for they naturally concluded that if he is to be chastised, he must be worthy of punishment. Hence they cry, "Away with this man, and release unto us Barabbas."

27. "There followed him a great company of people;"—among whom, as a matter of course, there were a number of women, whose more tender and affectionate nature was moved even to tears as they saw Jesus being led to crucifixion. These women are not to be confounded with those whose faith in him and devotedness to him remained unshaken even up to death itself, and who were emphatically his followers. There might be some believing women in the present throng, or those who had received some special favour at his hands.

28—31. "Blessed are the barren:"—Alford says, "Many of those who now bewailed him perished in the siege of Jerusalem. Those who now were young wives would not be more than sixty when (A.D. 70) the city was taken. But to their children more especially belonged the miseries of which the Lord here speaks. Between this and then would be time for that effectual weeping which might save both themselves and their children (see Acts ii. 37, 38), but of which few availed themselves."

39—43. These verses, in the form and structure in which they are here found, are peculiar to our Evangelist. The penitent malefactor believed, in common with the Jewish nation, in the approach of the Messianic kingdom; and now realising in the Crucified One the promised Messiah and Saviour, he prefers the prayer, "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom." What "is really astounding is, the power and strength of that faith which, amidst shame, and pain, and mockery, could thus lift itself to the apprehension of the Crucified as his King."

44—49. On the facts and incidents here recorded, see the parallel passages in Matthew and Mark.

The grave has now closed upon the Incarnate Redeemer, but only to render the more illustrious his victory over death by his return to the power of an endless life, and thus bringing life and incorruption to light. His resurrection as the great final argument in favour of his mission and claims, rests on the most incontrovertible evidence; and this it is which gives

15 And it came to pass, that, while they communed together and reasoned, Jesus himself drew near, and went with them.[a]

16 But their eyes were holden that they should not know him.[b]

17 And he said unto them, What manner of communications are these that ye have one to another, as ye walk, and are sad?

18 And the one of them, whose name was Cleopas, answering said unto him, Art thou only a stranger in Jerusalem, and hast not known the things which are come to pass there in these days?[c]

19 And he said unto them, What things? And they said unto him, Concerning Jesus of Nazareth, which was a prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people:[d]

20 And how the chief priests and our rulers delivered him to be condemned to death, and have crucified him.[e]

21 But we trusted that it had been he which should have redeemed Israel: and beside all this, to day is the third day since these things were done.[f]

22 Yea, and certain women also of our company made us astonished, which were early at the sepulchre;[g]

23 And when they found not his body, they came, saying, that they had also seen a vision of angels, which said that he was alive.

24 And certain of them which were with us went to the sepulchre, and found it even so as the women had said: but him they saw not.[h]

25 Then he said unto them, O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken:

26 Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory?[i]

27 And beginning at Moses and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the scriptures the things concerning himself.[j]

29 But they constrained him, saying, Abide with us: for it is toward evening, and the day is far spent. And he went in to tarry with them.[l]

30 And it came to pass, as he sat at meat with them, he took bread, and blessed it, and brake, and gave to them.[m]

31 And their eyes were opened, and they knew him; and he [1]vanished out of their sight.

32 And they said one to another, Did not our heart burn within us, while he talked with us by the way, and while he opened to us the scriptures?

posed upon, and therefore we have strong presumptive proof that they would not deceive others.

13—35. This section of the history is peculiar to our Evangelist, and is replete with interest to every believer.

It may seem strange that these two disciples should have been favoured with this interview and manifestation, even before any one of the Apostles. Olshausen says —"The Lord, according to his promise, would probably have showed himself to his disciples only in quiet Galilee, if they, with a lively faith in his resurrection, had immediately proceeded thither. But the statements of the women who were first privileged to behold the Saviour did not satisfy them. They were unable, on the strength of these statements, to rise above their earthly views to the sublime elevation of an unwavering faith" It may be that John, but he only, was convinced of the truth of Mary's report, so that while all the eleven had previously enjoyed the freest and the fullest intercourse with the Saviour, and had received from his own lips the repeated assurance of his resurrection, it was yet needful that he should give, by personal manifestation, the final completion and consecration of that intercourse, in order that they might be fully qualified for their work in the kingdom of God. And "hence the Lord, after his resurrection, showed himself to them only upon peculiarly sacred occasions, and in ways most impressive and mysterious. . . . Still, they evidently knew that they had now the privilege of association with him in a different manner from what formerly was the case. Hence when, in his ascension to heaven, the Saviour withdrew altogether from them, they were filled with joy. They in no way indulged in their former sorrows, for they knew that Christ would remain in spirit with them, and yet he himself be personally exalted, to sit at the right hand of God"

13. "Two of them went that same day:"—two of whom? Not of the Apostles, but of those who were associated with the Apostles in holy faith and fellowship. In the ninth verse we read, "unto the eleven, and to all the rest;" and of the rest, or included in their number, were these two disciples.

"To a village called Emmaus."—there was a place of this name which was situated about twenty-two Roman miles west of Jerusalem, and which was afterwards called Nicopolis; but the usual opinion is that the Emmaus of our Evangelist was at Kubeibeh, eight or nine miles from Jerusalem. The true Emmaus, however, was distant only sixty stadia, or seven miles and a half. Two centuries ago Kubeibeh was visited by the traveller D'Arvieux, who says. "Emmaus was not worth the trouble of having come out of our way to view. Ruins, indeed, we saw on all sides, and fables we heard from every quarter, though under the guise of traditions, such as the notion of the house of Cleopas, on the site of which a great church was erected, and of which a few masses of the thick wall remain, but nothing else." "It seems, by the ruins which surround the village," says the same traveller, "that it was formerly larger than it was in our Saviour's time." Tobler says the remains of a convent and of a church are still to be seen at Kubeibeh. After all, the true site of Emmaus is very uncertain.

16. "Their eyes were holden:"—was the cause in themselves, or in the form of the risen Saviour? There are those who think that the form of Christ had been changed since his death, and that this change was the commencement of his glorified humanity, and which, probably, the disciples were only permitted to behold in a very minor degree. Christ's human nature veiled his divinity, and so, in like manner, we may reasonably assume that his divine power veiled the splendour of his glorified body—out of tenderness to his disciples, who were unable, with mortal powers, to endure the indescribable effulgence radiating from his divine nature, and his lustrous human form But though for a season "their eyes were holden," they were assured that in the fulness of time they should dwell with him, and behold the glory of his person and the glory of his kingdom—in perpetual accomplishment of the declaration, "Father, I will that they whom thou hast given me be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory."

18. "One of them, whose name was Cleopas:"—who the other was, it is vain to conjecture. Nor are the authorities agreed as to the exact individuality of Cleopas. The reason why our Evangelist mentions him may be that from him he received the materials out of which he has constructed this part of his narrative.

25. "O fools, and slow of heart to believe."—the word here rendered "fool" signifies one who is void of understanding, and hence slow of believing. If his words regarding his sufferings and death had been literally fulfilled, then the simplest reasoning should have forced upon them the conclusion that his resurrection must follow as a consequence, since he had told them repeatedly that he should rise again on the third day

30. "He took bread, and blessed it, and brake."—there is no reference here to his own Holy Supper; it was nothing more than a social meal, and whenever three ate together they were bound to give thanks. Jesus performed this office, and distributed the provision, in order, no doubt, to prepare the minds of these disciples for a still higher revelation of himself.

32. "Did not our heart burn within us?"—the words of Stier are very appropriate here: "This burning speaks not only of new life in the joy and hope of faith, but especially of an internal impulse of love to the Lord, and to this marvellous stranger, for the Lord's sake. When Christ, after his ascension, begins to teach, the sincere and receiving heart begins at once to burn. Did not our hearts more and more burn within us when he talked with us, or, rather, to us, and when he opened to us the Scriptures?" He had touched their hearts; and it would indeed have been strange if, under HIS touch, these hearts were not at once on fire. "The expression, a burning heart, was not coined in the school of human wisdom: these disciples had not found it in the treasure-house of the Divine Word. It is a new word, which was given them in connection with a new and hitherto unfelt experience. How surely and how swiftly does internal experience find the right word for its emotions!"

36. "Jesus himself stood in the midst of them:"—the disciples had here the visible and incontrovertible proof that Jesus lived bodily; and yet his body was not bound and confined as before. The doors of the room in which his disciples were assembled were shut. It is nowhere said that he opened way, and how he was known of them in breaking of bread.

36 ¶ And as they thus spake, Jesus himself stood in the midst of them, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you.[a]

37 But they were terrified and affrighted, and supposed that they had seen a spirit.[b]

38 And he said unto them, Why are ye troubled? and why do thoughts arise in your hearts?

39 Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have.[c]

40 And when he had thus spoken, he shewed them his hands and his feet.

41 And while they yet believed not for joy, and wondered, he said unto them, Have ye here any meat?[d]

42 And they gave him a piece of a broiled fish, and of an honeycomb.

43 And he took it, and did eat before them.[e]

44 And he said unto them, These are the words which I spake unto you, while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled, which were written in the law of Moses, and in the prophets, and in the psalms, concerning me.[f]

45 Then opened he their understanding, that they might understand the scriptures,[g]

46 And said unto them, Thus it is written, and thus it behoved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day:[h]

47 And that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem.[i]

48 And ye are witnesses of these things.[j]

49 ¶ And, behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you: but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high.[k]

50 ¶ And he led them out as far as to Bethany, and he lifted up his hands, and blessed them.[l]

51 And it came to pass, while he blessed them, he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven.[m]

52 And they worshipped him, and returned to Jerusalem with great joy:[n]

53 And were continually in the temple, praising and blessing God. Amen.[o] them, or that they were opened for him; and yet he appears in the midst of his anxious and perplexed followers. The appearance was sudden and unexpected; and hence their amazement and their fear. All attempts to define the power which our Lord now possessed over his body are presumptuous and vain. Beautifully says Stier. "Thus does the Bringer of peace penetrate all the bolts of fear and weakness in the hearts of his disciples, and he comes with his blessing when they are assembled as a company of his own! Doors hinder him not like closed hearts." Let us listen to his own loving and entreating voice "Behold, I stand at the door and knock if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me."

43. "And did eat before them."—although he had such power over his body as to be able to appear and disappear in a moment of time, he continued in possession of a true corporeal nature, even after he rose from the dead, till the day on which he ascended, and re-assumed the glory which he had with the Father before the world began. Hence the fact of his eating and drinking with his disciples.

49 "The promise of my Father."—this was the gift of the Spirit in all his plenitude of light, and life, and power, to qualify them for their work as witnesses for him, and teachers of his truth.—See Acts i. 4, 8, ii. 1—4.

It is a simple fact in the history and ministry of our Lord, that as his course of instruction drew to a close, and as the hour approached for his separation and departure from his disciples, he began to fix their thoughts more intensely and exclusively on the mission and work of the Spirit. They had long enjoyed his personal presence—had been permitted the most familiar and uninterrupted intercourse, and by a gradual process of mental illumination and moral training, had been lifted up to a higher point of spiritual life and consciousness. But their Master was about to be withdrawn; and the simple disclosure of this fact filled their hearts with sorrow. To assuage their grief, the Saviour gave them the promise of another Comforter—even the Spirit of truth—who should not only be with them as a Teacher to guide them into all truth, but should be in them as a new and still higher principle of life, penetrating their whole nature, and taking up his abode in the innermost centre of their being. For the fulfilment of this promise they were to wait till after his ascension; and hence the command which we find embodied in the text—"Tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high." They waited for ten days in solemn prayer and holy expectation, and on the day of Pentecost the Spirit was given in all the plenitude of his light, and life, and power; nor has he ever been withdrawn from the Church or the world. It is as true as it is startling that the apostles and the early Church, believing in his actual presence, never, subsequently to that day, offered up any prayer for his mission or descent;—that as Christ was once offered for all, so the Spirit was given to remain with the Church for ever;—that this is emphatically the dispensation of the Spirit; that he is the last and highest manifestation of the Godhead;—that while the Son came to reveal, the Spirit came to dwell;—that as the Spirit of truth, he only imparts the truth in that he imparts himself;—that his indwelling involves the true idea of life;—for as the Spirit is not something distinct and separate from the truth, but truth itself, so the truth is life itself. "It is the Spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing." Spiritual life comes not by any external relation or connection, but by the indwelling of the Holy Ghost. And unless we conceive of the Spirit as ever present and ever active in all the means which Infinite Love has revealed for the salvation of man, we mistake his operations. The same mistake is committed in the world of mind as in the world of matter—in the domain of morals as in the domain of physics. We speak of the great material universe being governed by certain laws—of being preserved in all the order and harmony of its beautiful mechanism by the force of gravitation. Now what is meant by this force? Whence do we get our idea of power? Is it something distinct from the will of God, and independent of it?—something which God evoked from the silence and the depth of eternity apart from himself? Just as certainly as the same Divine agency is required to uphold the harmonies and the beauties of the external creation, as that which at first brought creation into existence, so the provisions, arrangements, and laws of the Christian Economy are not something distinct and separate from the Spirit, but rather the Spirit himself, in and through these, acting on the inner and spiritual nature of man.

50. "As far as to Bethany:"—the ascension did not take place from the village of Bethany itself, but from the descent of the Mount of Olives towards the village.

We believe not only in a risen and living Saviour, but in a Saviour who is also glorified. That he ascended to the right hand of God, and now reigns in sublimest majesty as Head over all things to his body, the Church, is one of the articles of our faith. His sovereignty is not only a glorious doctrine, but a source of unspeakable consolation and joy. It is his voice which we hear in those bright, beautiful, inspiring words:"—"I am the First and the Last, and the Living One; and I was dead, and behold I am alive for evermore, and have the keys of the unseen world and of death." The whole Church doth acknowledge Thee to be THE LORD. Thou, O Christ, art the King of Glory!

CHAPTER I.

To St. John has been given exclusively the high honour of being the eagle of the Christian Church, whose strong wing carried him up into the ineffable and eternal light. As a consequence, his Gospel is the most sublime record of our Lord's life and sayings, at whose very outset, as at the threshold of the temple of an indwelling Deity, we stand in deep and silent awe, while a voice, solemn as eternity, falls upon our ear—"Put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place on which thou standest is holy ground." We have here to deal with the highest forms of truth, with the most weighty utterances which ever fell from the lips of incarnate Wisdom and Love. It is, therefore, as Stier felt, "a lofty design to expound the Gospel

8 He was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness of that Light.

9 That was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world.[a]

10 He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not.[b]

11 He came unto his own, and his own received him not.[c]

12 But as many as received him, to them gave he [1]power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name:[d]

13 Which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.[e]

14 And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth.[f]

15 ¶ John bare witness of him, and cried, saying, This was he of whom I spake, He that cometh after me is preferred before me: for he was before me.[g]

16 And of his fulness have all we received, and grace for grace.[h]

17 For the law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ.[i]

18 No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him.[j]

19 ¶ And this is the record of John, when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him, Who art thou?[k]

20 And he confessed, and denied not; but confessed, I am not the Christ.[l]

21 And they asked him, What then? Art thou of that Evangelist who has enshrined in Scripture that which the Incarnate Logos, the only begotten of the Father, testified to the world concerning the mysteries of his person and redeeming work, as well as all that he finally poured out of the depths of his own heart into the amazed hearts of his first disciples, for the future interpretation of the Spirit of Truth, when HE should bring his words to their remembrance." It is in this Gospel most emphatically that "Christ bears witness to himself through John, and gives to his servant the pen of a marvellous writer, and the power to sink deep into his Lord's word, and work, and life, and person, and heart."

As to the genuineness of John's narrative, it is on all hands allowed to possess stronger testimonials in history than other writings of the New Testament; while the chief object of the Evangelist is "to place before the eyes of the world the life of Christ, the Son of God, neither for the Jews alone, as Matthew, nor for the Gentiles alone, as Mark and Luke did, but for all those, among Jews and Gentiles, who possessed the ability and the disposition to engage in deeper meditations respecting divine things." It is supposed that he had especially in view the Mystics and the Gnostics of his own day, who professed an inward direct apprehension of the truth in its own purity, but whose deepest apprehensions came infinitely short of what he taught as coming immediately from God. It has been objected that "the Saviour, according to the representation of the fourth Gospel, appears to be a perfectly different person from that which he is described to be in the three other Gospels;" but this arises simply from the fact that, while Matthew presents rather the human side of Christ, to meet the predilection of the sensuous and the sign-seeking Jew, and while Mark exhibits the active side of his character, to meet the view of the busy, enterprising Roman, and while Luke sets forth the benevolent aspect of his character, to meet the wants and expectations of the Gentile nations, John addresses himself to the spiritual and inquiring mind, and hence he brings out the DIVINE side of the Saviour's character, and gives to that all the distinctness and all the prominence which it demanded.

As to the Evangelist himself, he was the son of Zebedee and Salome, and brother of James. His father was a Galilean, and by occupation a fisherman. He is supposed to have resided at Bethsaida, but this is uncertain. John's family seems to have belonged to what we should call the middle class of society; and from chapter xviii. 15 we may infer that he was personally known to Caiaphas, the high priest. His mother, Salome, was one of those women who came with Jesus from Galilee, and ministered unto him; and she was one of the party who brought sweet spices and ointments wherewith to embalm the body of Jesus after his death. Nor is it at all unlikely that, by this pious woman and loving mother, the first germs of religion may have been dropped into the heart of the son, and which we afterwards find developing themselves in corresponding life and loveliness. He was one of the two disciples to whom John the Baptist addressed the awakening and heart-captivating words—"Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world!" and hence his acquaintance with the Saviour dates from the very beginning of our Lord's ministry. He was afterwards taken into the honoured circle of the Twelve; was nearest to the person of Jesus during the whole period of his ministry, accompanied him in many of his journeys, and was admitted to the sublimest scenes in his life. To him did our Lord, when dying on the cross, give his own mother in solemn charge; while the affection and devotedness of the disciple corresponded with the love of the Master. He is supposed, after the death of Mary, to have removed to Ephesus, where he fixed his residence, and exercised his apostolic office. In the reign of Domitian he was banished to the isle of Patmos, where he wrote the Book of Revelation, from which island he returned, under Nerva, to Ephesus, where he is said to have written this Gospel, and to have died in extreme old age.

1. "In the beginning was the Word."—the Greek term, LOGOS, here rendered WORD, has given birth to much serious discussion. It is used by John without any explanation, as if it conveyed an obvious meaning to its readers; and yet, on this one term depends the interpretation and the understanding of the most momentous utterances to be found in this Gospel. The word is never used to express what we understand by Mind or Reason, whether created or uncreated; it cannot be resolved into an abstraction or an attribute, for it here carries with it the idea of personality and active energy: not a personification, but a person, who is identical with Jesus Christ, as the pre-existing Son of God; and who, though manifested in time and space, possessed a pre-existent nature, independent both of space and time. The WORD became flesh, and therefore must have had a previous existence; and in tracing back this existence, we can find no resting-point short of eternity itself. In this his pre-existence the Word was now revealing himself to our race, till the fulness of the time arrived, and he, clothing himself with our nature, appeared in our world as full of grace and truth—the very perfection of all his revelation, and the very embodiment of all love. And hence the use of the word LOGOS by our Evangelist; and hence, too, the absence of all explanation of that term, since he uses it as the final manifestation, or completing revelation, of God to man in the PERSON of his incarnate Son.

3. "All things were made by him:"—then he existed before all things. Nor can he be included in the things which were made by him; otherwise, he made himself, which would be a flat contradiction.

4. "The life was the light of men:"—spiritual light is an essential condition

33 And I knew him not: but he that sent me to baptize with water, the same said unto me, Upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit descending, and remaining on him, the same is he which baptizeth with the Holy Ghost.[a]

34 And I saw, and bare record that this is the Son of God.

35 ¶ Again the next day after John stood, and two of his disciples;

36 And looking upon Jesus as he walked, he saith, Behold the Lamb of God![b]

37 And the two disciples heard him speak, and they followed Jesus.

38 Then Jesus turned, and saw them following, and saith unto them, What seek ye? They said unto him, Rabbi, (which is to say, being interpreted, Master,) where [1]dwellest thou?

39 He saith unto them, Come and see. They came and saw where he dwelt, and abode with him that day: for it was [2]about the tenth hour.

40 One of the two which heard John speak, and followed him, was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother.[c]

41 He first findeth his own brother Simon, and saith unto him, We have found the Messias, which is, being interpreted, [3]the Christ.

42 And he brought him to Jesus. And when Jesus beheld him, he said, Thou art Simon the son of Jona: thou shalt be called Cephas, which is by interpretation, [4]A stone.[d]

43 ¶ The day following Jesus would go forth into Galilee, and findeth Philip, and saith unto him, Follow me.

44 Now Philip was of Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter.[e]

45 Philip findeth Nathanael, and saith unto him, We have found him, of whom Moses in the law, and the prophets, did write, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph.[f]

Hence he who gives life communicates with the life the element in which it develops and reveals itself.

9. "Which lighteth every man that cometh into the world."—a better rendering of this verse, and involving a truer sense, would be—"That was the true light which, coming into the world, lighteth every man."

14. "The glory as of the only begotten of the Father:"—he was not a mere representative image or reflection of the Father's glory, but the very brightness of that glory, and therefore the rendering here should be—"the glory truly of the only begotten of the Father."

16. "Grace for grace;"—or rather, grace in addition to grace; that is, successive and ever-increasing communications of spiritual blessing.

19–27. For the mission and ministry of John the Baptist, see the Notes on Matt. iii. 1—12, Mark i. 1—8.

28. "In Bethabara beyond Jordan:"—this ford of Jordan was about thirty miles north of Jericho.

29. "Behold the Lamb of God."—the question has been asked, "Whence did John derive the designation of the Incarnate One, and in what sense did he use it?" Was it suggested to him by the paschal lamb, or by the lamb offered in the daily morning and evening sacrifice; or by the words of the great evangelical prophet, "He was led as a lamb to the slaughter?" Opinion is divided; but why restrict ourselves to any one of these senses? As a Jew, the mind of John was penetrated and filled with the idea of sacrifice; and the moment he beheld the incarnate Jesus, the Spirit of Revelation unveiled to him the sublime truth that in the Christ now before him all sacrifice was to be consummated, and the grand end of oblation and propitiation effected—the taking away of sin.

40. "One of the two which heard John was Andrew;"—and the other was, no doubt, our own Evangelist, on whose calm, loving, unfading spirit the words, "Behold the Lamb of God," fell with such an emphasis and effect, that he never lost the impression; and hence the phrase, "THE LAMB OF GOD," is exclusively found in this Evangelist.

44. "Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter:"—this place, which was situated on the western bank of the Lake of Gennesareth, is not to be confounded with another Bethsaida, which stood at the top of the lake, on the Jordan.

51. "Hereafter ye shall see heaven open:"—when the Saviour ascended to heaven with a glorified humanity, some portion of the hitherto unseen stood revealed.

CHAPTER II.

The Saviour, having drawn around him a select circle of disciples, is at once introduced by our Evangelist as in the midst of the sublime activities of his ministry. His activity corresponded with the perfection of his character and the love of his heart.

1. "And the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee:"—the journey to Galilee, mentioned in chap. i. 43, is here supposed to be accomplished, and Jesus appears in Cana, the birthplace of Nathanael, who may have accompanied him with John to Galilee. Cana lay about half a day's journey from the Sea of Gennesareth, not far from Capernaum. Leaving the shores of the Jordan, the Redeemer spent the first day in travelling; the second day he may have passed in Nazareth, from which Cana lay distant only some three or four hours' journey, which he performed on the third day. Cana of Galilee, we are told, stood in a fine position, commanding a wide and rich view over the green plain and picturesque hills around Nazareth.

2. "Jesus was called."—as his mother was also there, the likelihood is that the families were related. The disciples were invited out of deference and respect to Christ.

7 Jesus saith unto them, Fill the waterpots with water. And they filled them up to the brim.

8 And he saith unto them, Draw out now, and bear unto the governor of the feast. And they bare it.

9 When the ruler of the feast had tasted the water that was made wine, and knew not whence it was: (but the servants which drew the water knew;) the governor of the feast called the bridegroom,[b]

10 And saith unto him, Every man at the beginning doth set forth good wine; and when men have well drunk, then that which is worse: but thou hast kept the good wine until now.

11 This beginning of miracles did Jesus in Cana of Galilee, and manifested forth his glory; and his disciples believed on him.[c]

12 ¶ After this he went down to Capernaum, he, and his mother, and his brethren, and his disciples: and they continued there not many days.[d]

13 ¶ And the Jews' passover was at hand, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem,[e]

14 And found in the temple those that sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the changers of money sitting:[f]

15 And when he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the temple, and the sheep, and the oxen; and poured out the changers' money, and overthrew the tables;

16 And said unto them that sold doves, Take these things hence; make not my Father's house an house of merchandise.[g]

17 And his disciples remembered that it was written, The zeal of thine house hath eaten me up.[h]

18 ¶ Then answered the Jews and said unto him, What sign shewest thou unto us, seeing that thou doest these things?[i]

19 Jesus answered and said unto them, Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up.[j]

20 Then said the Jews, Forty and six years was this temple in building, and wilt thou rear it up in three days?

23 ¶ Now when he was in Jerusalem at the passover, in the feast day, many believed in his name, when they saw the miracles which he did.

25 And needed not that any should testify of man: for he knew what was in man.[m]

1 Christ teacheth Nicodemus the necessity of regeneration. 14 Of faith in his death. 16 The great love of God towards the world. 18 Condemnation for unbelief. 23 The baptism, witness, and doctrine of John concerning Christ.

THERE was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews:

2 The same came to Jesus by night, and said unto him, Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God: for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him.[n]

3 Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born [1]again, he cannot see the kingdom of God.[o]

4 Nicodemus saith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? can he enter the second time into his mother's womb, and be born?

5 Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God.[p]

6 That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit.

---

4 "Woman, what have I to do with thee?"—as we have before remarked, there was nothing unsuitable or unfilial in this address to his mother "Woman" was a designation of honour, and was applied to those of the highest rank. That our Lord here administered a gentle admonition to his mother is beyond all contradiction; for, as Olshausen says, "after the Redeemer was introduced to his sacred office, the relation to his parents, so far as his work was concerned, must be regarded as dissolved The Son had now become the LORD also of the mother, who could secure her own happiness only by believing obedience to him."

"Mine hour is not yet come:"—he was not to be moved by any merely human suggestion, or any worldly exigency, but only by his inward and divine power, which determined each action in his life, and also its time and its mode.

11. "Manifested forth his glory:"—the miracle was such as could be resolved into nothing less than the power of God, and thus it established his claim to be what he professed himself to be—the Son and the Sent of God.

13–22. "Jesus went up to Jerusalem:"—this was his first official visit to Jerusalem, during which he undertook to cleanse the Temple—an act which he had afterwards to repeat towards the close of his ministry.—See Matt. xxi. 12, 13; Luke xix. 45, 46.

25. "For he knew what was in man:"—what an incontrovertible proof this of our Lord's omniscience, and hence of his Godhead!

CHAPTER III.

The miracles wrought by Christ during his stay in Cana produced an impression on the mind or the imagination of not a few; but their assent or belief was not the faith "which discerned in the miracles of Christ the glory of his grace and truth, nor such as gave them power to become the sons of God."

1 "A ruler of the Jews:"—he was a member of the Sanhedrim, or superior ecclesiastical council of his nation.

2. "The same came to Jesus by night:"—the common belief is that Nicodemus came to Jesus by night out of fear, and to escape notice. This may be the correct view, but of this we have no evidence. It is not unlikely that he chose so late an hour that he might find the Saviour free from the duties and engagements of the day, and so enjoy with him a season of quietude in the pursuit of truth.

3. "He cannot see the kingdom of God:"—the reference here is primarily to the new dispensation of grace, and ultimately to the state of future glory.

5. "Born of water and of the Spirit"—not of water only, but "of water and of the Spirit;" in other words, the outward and visible sign united with the inward and spiritual grace

12. "If I have told you earthly things:"—to what things does our Lord here refer? If the heavenly things about which Jesus spoke to Nicodemus refer to regeneration and entrance into his spiritual kingdom, then "the earthly things" must refer to that worldly sanctuary and those initiatory elements which were characteristic of the old Jewish Economy, from which, in all probability, our Lord began to explain and unfold his own higher and superior Dispensation.

22. "Into the land of Judæa:"—that is, into the rural district, and there baptized—not, as we learn from chap. iv. 2, personally, but through the ministry of his disciples.

23. "Ænon near to Salim:"—Ænon was distant some six miles north-east of Jerusalem, and Salim is supposed to have been to the west of Ænon; but 7 Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born [1]again.

8 The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit.[a]

9 Nicodemus answered and said unto him, How can these things be?[b]

10 Jesus answered and said unto him, Art thou a master of Israel, and knowest not these things?

11 Verily, verily, I say unto thee, We speak that we do know, and testify that we have seen; and ye receive not our witness.[c]

12 If I have told you earthly things, and ye believe not, how shall ye believe, if I tell you of heavenly things?

13 And no man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man which is in heaven.[d]

14 ¶ And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up:[e]

15 That whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life.[f]

16 ¶ For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.[g]

17 For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved.[h]

18 ¶ He that believeth on him is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God.[i]

19 And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil.[j]

20 For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be [2]reproved.[k]

21 But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God.

22 ¶ After these things came Jesus and his disciples into the land of Judæa; and there he tarried with them, and baptized.[l]

23 ¶ And John also was baptizing in Ænon near to Salim, because there was much water there: and they came, and were baptized.[m]

24 For John was not yet cast into prison.[n]

25 ¶ Then there arose a question between some of John's disciples and the Jews about purifying.

26 And they came unto John, and said unto him, Rabbi, he that was with thee beyond Jordan, to whom thou barest witness, behold, the same baptizeth, and all men come to him.[o]

27 John answered and said, A man can [3]receive nothing, except it be given him from heaven.[p]

28 Ye yourselves bear me witness, that I said, I am not the Christ, but that I am sent before him.[q]

29 He that hath the bride is the bridegroom: but the friend of the bridegroom, which standeth and heareth him, rejoiceth greatly because of the bridegroom's voice: this my joy therefore is fulfilled.[r]

30 He must increase, but I must decrease.

31 He that cometh from above is above all: he that is of the earth is earthly, and speaketh of the earth: he that cometh from heaven is above all.[s]

32 And what he hath seen and heard, that he testifieth; and no man receiveth his testimony.[t]

33 He that hath received his testimony hath set to his seal that God is true.[u]

34 For he whom God hath sent speaketh the words of God: for God giveth not the Spirit by measure unto him.[v]

35 The Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into his hand.[w]

36 He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him.[x] their exact geographical position is uncertain, although both were in Judah, and west of the Jordan.

31. "He that is of the earth is earthly, and speaketh of the earth"—here the Baptist speaks of his intermediate dispensation between the Jewish and the Christian as comparatively earthly in contrast with the purely spiritual or heavenly Economy of Him who was coming after him; and this confirms our interpretation of the twelfth verse.

33. "Hath set to his seal that God is true:"—that is, any one who receives Christ and his doctrine asserts the fact of God's faithfulness in fulfilling his promise by sending his Son to be the Redeemer of man. The experience of each believer is proof of the reality of Christ's person and doctrine.

CHAPTER IV.

There is a beautiful simplicity in this chapter, which well harmonises with the avowed design of the whole Gospel, which is to set forth the Messiah in all the attractions of his grace and love. We are far from agreeing with those critics and expositors who can speak of the woman of Samaria here introduced as representing the Samaritan people, and her five husbands as representing the five races from which, according to 2 Kings xvii. 24, the Samaritans sprung; or who adopt the hypothesis that the Samaritan woman, and with her the inhabitants of Shechem, were employed as a medium whereby to symbolise a sentiment, but by no means intended to produce any result either upon the woman or the people of Samaria. On the contrary, the whole chapter is admirably adapted to the readers of John, and places the Messiah in the most gracious and attractive attitude.

1. "When the Lord knew:"—the opposition of the Pharisees was directed, not so much against the Baptist as against his Divine Master; and our Lord, who knew what was in man, withdrew from the immediate sphere of their influence, and returned to Galilee through Samaria.

2. "Jesus himself baptized not:"—why our Lord deputed the work of baptism to his disciples we are not informed, and it is vain to conjecture. One thing is certain, that Christ placed his teaching above any external rite

4. "Must needs go through Samaria."—it was his most direct way to Galilee. Still, there may have been a design in this journey; for, as he made a day's stay on the way, he could not have taken this route merely for expedition.

5. "Which is called Sychar"—better known in the Old Testament by the name of Sychem, or Shechem It stood on the range of Mount Ephraim, in a narrow valley between Mount Ebal and Mount Gerizim.

"Near to the parcel of ground:"—see Genesis xxxiii. 19 and Joshua xxiv. 32.

6. "Jacob's well was there:"—Jacob's well is now sometimes called "Bir-es-Samiriyeh," or, "Well of the Samaritan Woman." It lies at the base of Mount Gerizim, and not far from Nablous, which is the ancient Shechem, or Sychar. In ancient times a church was built over it, and at a more recent period it was covered with a stone vault. The well is about seventy-five feet deep, and is sometimes now without water. Dr. Robinson calls it "dry and deserted," and says that "adjacent to the well are the ruins of an ancient church, forming mounds of rubbish," among which he observed three granite columns. Even he remarks, "I think we may rest with confidence in the opinion that this is Jacob's well, and here the parcel of ground which Jacob gave to his son Joseph." The accompanying engraving will give a correct idea of the present condition of the well.

6. "About the sixth hour;"—corresponding with our twelve o'clock, or mid-day. For a woman to come and draw water at such a time was something unusual; and that it was not common is clear from the fact that she was alone.

10. "If thou knewest the gift of God:"—are these words to be referred to our Lord himself, as God's unspeakable gift? We think not, for the

WHEN therefore the Lord knew how the Pharisees had heard that Jesus made and baptized more disciples than John,[a]

10 Jesus answered and said unto her, If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink; thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water.[d]

11 The woman saith unto him, Sir, thou hast nothing to draw with, and the well is deep: from whence then hast thou that living water?

12 Art thou greater than our father Jacob, which gave us the well, and drank thereof himself, and his children, and his cattle?

13 Jesus answered and said unto her, Whosoever drinketh of this water shall thirst again:

14 But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life.[e]

JACOB'S WELL, NEAR NABLOUS.

5 Then cometh he to a city of Samaria, which is called Sychar, near to the parcel of ground that Jacob gave to his son Joseph.[b]

6 Now Jacob's well was there. Jesus therefore, being wearied with his journey, sat thus on the well: and it was about the sixth hour.

7 There cometh a woman of Samaria to draw water: Jesus saith unto her, Give me to drink.

16 Jesus saith unto her, Go, call thy husband, and come hither.

17 The woman answered and said, I have no husband. Jesus said unto her, Thou hast well said, I have no husband:

Saviour clearly distinguishes between the gift and himself. Are they to be referred to the Holy Spirit? We doubt this. The Saviour came to give life, and to give it more abundantly; and if she could but have realised this sublime fact in him, she might even then have become the conscious possessor of this unspeakable, everlasting boon. The "living water" is here put for life itself, with all its plenitude of joy and happiness.

16. "Go, call thy husband, and come hither:"—the Saviour has startled and surprised the woman by his conversation, so profound, yet so interesting. And having gained access to her mind, he now begins to reveal his supernatural character by laying before her what may be called her personal history. His word was with power. She already felt that she was in the presence of one who could read her heart, and she shrinks from falsehood. Hence her reply, "I have no husband," and hence her conviction, "I perceive that thou art a prophet." Here was the first awakening to a sense of her sin, and of that state of the heart which is essential to conversion.

20 "Our fathers worshipped in this mountain"—having acknowledged the prophetic character and claims of the Redeemer, it was natural that the woman should look to him for some higher and more certain information respecting THE OBJECT of worship; and therefore we concur with Stier in thinking that the fact of her passing so suddenly and immediately to another

18 For thou hast had five husbands; and he whom thou now hast is not thy husband: in that saidst thou truly.

19 The woman saith unto him, Sir, I perceive that thou art a prophet.[a]

20 Our fathers worshipped in this mountain; and ye say, that in Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worship.[b]

21 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, believe me, the hour cometh, when ye shall neither in this mountain, nor yet at Jerusalem, worship the Father.[c]

22 Ye worship ye know not what: we know what we worship: for salvation is of the Jews.[d]

23 But the hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him.[e]

24 God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth.[f]

25 The woman saith unto him, I know that Messias cometh, which is called Christ: when he is come, he will tell us all things.[g]

26 Jesus saith unto her, I that speak unto thee am he.[h]

27 ¶ And upon this came his disciples, and marvelled that he talked with the woman: yet no man said, What seekest thou? or, Why talkest thou with her?

28 The woman then left her waterpot, and went her way into the city, and saith to the men,

29 Come, see a man, which told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Christ?[i]

30 Then they went out of the city, and came unto him.

31 ¶ In the mean while his disciples prayed him, saying, Master, eat.

32 But he said unto them, I have meat to eat that ye know not of.

33 Therefore said the disciples one to another, Hath any man brought him ought to eat?

34 Jesus saith unto them, My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work.[j]

35 Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest.[k]

36 And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal: that both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together.[l]

37 And herein is that saying true, One soweth, and another reapeth.

38 I sent you to reap that whereon ye bestowed no labour: other men laboured, and ye are entered into their labours.

39 ¶ And many of the Samaritans of that city believed on him for the saying of the woman, which testified, He told me all that ever I did.[m]

40 So when the Samaritans were come unto him, they besought him that he would tarry with them: and he abode there two days.

41 And many more believed because of his own word;

42 And said unto the woman, Now we believe, not because of thy saying: for we have heard him ourselves, and know that this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world.[n]

43 ¶ Now after two days he departed thence, and went into Galilee.

44 For Jesus himself testified, that a prophet hath no honour in his own country.[o]

45 Then when he was come into Galilee, the Galilæans received him, having seen all the things that he did at Jerusalem at the feast: for they also went unto the feast.[p]

46 So Jesus came again into Cana of Galilee, where he made the water wine. And there was a certain [1]nobleman, whose son was sick at Capernaum.[q]

47 When he heard that Jesus was come out of Judæa into Galilee, he went unto him, and besought him that he would come down, and heal his son: for he was at the point of death.

48 Then said Jesus unto him, Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe.[r]

49 The nobleman saith unto him, Sir, come down ere my child die.

50 Jesus saith unto him, Go thy way; thy son liveth. And the man believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and he went his way.

subject than her own sinful course of life arose, not so much from a wish to turn the conversation from a topic so unsatisfactory to her, as from a real desire to obtain from this Prophet those lessons which would instruct her as to the true and acceptable worship of God. She feels that she is a sinner, and to God alone must she look for mercy. But how is she to approach him? The Saviour gives the answer to this question.

"This mountain,"—that is, Mount Gerizim, on which stood the temple of the Samaritan race. Josephus tells us that the grandson of Eliashil, who was son-in-law to Sanballat, and whom Nehemiah sent into banishment, was made high priest by Sanballat of the temple which he built on Mount Gerizim. It was destroyed B.C 129; but the Samaritans still used it as a place of prayer and sacrifice; and to this day the few Samaritans in Shechem, or Nablous as it is now called, speak of it as the holy mountain, and turn their faces to it in prayer. The ruins on the top of the hill are supposed by some to be the ruins of the temple, but by others the remains of a Roman fortress.

22. "Ye worship ye know not what"—in the temple on Mount Gerizim there was no oracle to reveal the will of God, and there was no prophetic voice to teach and instruct the people. The consequence was that they had no correct idea of the one true God, or of his relations to man, or of his purposes of love on behalf of the race. The OBJECT of their worship was an abstraction. But the Saviour carries her far beyond the limits of her question when he tells her that in the coming Dispensation the true worship would be confined to neither time nor place, that all national distinctions were to give way, and that God would be worshipped by men of every clime as the Father of spirits and the Redeemer of man.

35. "Say not ye"—it is difficult to account for this form of expression here, unless we take it, with Alford, as a kind of proverbial saying which the Jews, and especially the inhabitants of Galilee, were in the habit of using. There may have been in that locality—west of the Lake of Tiberias—some fixed period in the year—the end of the sowing, or some religious anniversary, when it was a common saying, that it wanted four months to harvest; but in the moral field which was now being sown by the Son of God, there was no need to wait for the fruit. The seed is no sooner sown, as in the present case among the Samaritans, than it springs up, and promises a corresponding harvest. Hence our Lord says, "Look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest."

48. "Except ye see signs and wonders"—this is the language of reproof, not addressed so much to the nobleman, as to the people in general for their want of faith, notwithstanding all that they had seen and heard in Jerusalem. In the officer the Redeemer beheld a humble and an earnest suppliant; and hence the cure which was effected in saving the life of his child. The miracle is indeed "a notable instance of our Lord not quenching the smoking flax, just as his reproof of the Samaritan woman was of his not breaking the bruised reed. The little spark of faith in the breast of this nobleman is by him lit up into a clear and enduring flame, for the light and comfort of himself and his house."

54. "This is again the second miracle;"—that is, clearly, the second miracle in Galilee, and not the second miracle performed by our Lord.

51 And as he was now going down, his servants met him, and told him, saying, Thy son liveth.

52 Then enquired he of them the hour when he began to amend. And they said unto him, Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him.

53 So the father knew that it was at the same hour, in the which Jesus said unto him, Thy son liveth: and himself believed, and his whole house.

54 This is again the second miracle that Jesus did, when he was come out of Judæa into Galilee.

CHAPTER V.

1 Jesus on the sabbath day cureth him that was diseased eight and thirty years. 10 The Jews therefore cavil, and persecute him for it. 17 He answereth for himself, and reproveth them, shewing by the testimony of his Father, 32 of John, 36 of his works, 39 and of the scriptures, who he is.

AFTER this there was a feast of the Jews; and Jesus went up to Jerusalem.[a]

2 Now there is at Jerusalem by the sheep [1]market a pool, which is called in the Hebrew tongue Bethesda, having five porches.[b]

3 In these lay a great multitude of impotent folk, of blind, halt, withered, waiting for the moving of the water.

4 For an angel went down at a certain season into the pool, and troubled the water: whosoever then first after the troubling of the water stepped in was made whole of whatsoever disease he had.

5 And a certain man was there, which had an infirmity thirty and eight years.

6 When Jesus saw him lie, and knew that he had been now a long time in that case, he saith unto him, Wilt thou be made whole?

7 The impotent man answered him, Sir, I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me into the pool: but while I am coming, another steppeth down before me.

8 Jesus saith unto him, Rise, take up thy bed, and walk.[c]

9 And immediately the man was made whole, and took up his bed, and walked: and on the same day was the sabbath.[d]

10 ¶ The Jews therefore said unto him that was cured, It is the sabbath day: it is not lawful for thee to carry thy bed.[e]

11 He answered them, He that made me whole, the same said unto me, Take up thy bed, and walk.

12 Then asked they him, What man is that which said unto thee, Take up thy bed, and walk?

13 And he that was healed wist not who it was: for Jesus had conveyed himself away, [2]a multitude being in that place.

14 Afterward Jesus findeth him in the temple, and said unto him, Behold, thou art made whole: sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee.[f]

15 The man departed, and told the Jews that it was Jesus, which had made him whole.

16 And therefore did the Jews persecute Jesus, and sought to slay him, because he had done these things on the sabbath day.

17 ¶ But Jesus answered them, My Father worketh hitherto, and I work.[g]

18 Therefore the Jews sought the more to kill him, because he not only had broken the sabbath, but said also that God was his Father, making himself equal with God.[h]

19 Then answered Jesus and said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father

CHAPTER V.

"The following account of the cure of a man who had been afflicted for thirty-eight years (says Olshausen) is evidently inserted, not for its own sake, but only as the historical basis of the Redeemer's great discourse which follows. In this discourse Jesus speaks of his relation to the Father in such a manner that the peculiar dignity of Christ is rendered specially distinct; and thus the entire section sustains the most decided connection with the whole design of the Evangelist."

1. "After this there was a feast"—what interval elapsed between the cure of the nobleman's son and the present act of miraculous power it is impossible to say; but there is no reason to believe that the one followed the other immediately.

There has been a great deal of fruitless controversy as to what feast is here intended. It is thought to be the Second Passover of our Lord's ministry—the Pentecost—the Feast of Tabernacles—the Feast of Dedication—and the Feast of Purim; while there are those who think we cannot with any probability gather what festival it was. At the same time, it is but right to say that the weight of authority is in favour of the opinion which makes it the Feast of Purim. The name is derived from PUR, a word which signifies a lot; and the feast, which was celebrated about the middle of the twelfth month, was instituted in commemoration of the deliverance of the Jews from the power and malice of Haman, in the days of Mordecai and Esther (see Esther iii. 6, 7; ix. 24—32). The festival was not far removed from that of the Passover. There is no evidence that our Lord went up to Jerusalem at the Passover next following; at the same time, there is no evidence that he did not attend the feast; and of this we are assured, that our Lord, as a pious Jew, observed the law, and was, in all the ordinances of God's house, blameless.

2. "By the sheep market a pool:"—this sheep market was analogous to the sheep gate mentioned by Nehemiah, iii. 1—32; xii. 39. The pool is not mentioned by Josephus; but modern travellers have tried to trace its connection, in some subterranean channel, with the pool of Siloam. Bethesda signifies "the House of Mercy." It is identified with a reservoir close to the northern wall of the Harem; of which we give an engraving.

4. "An angel went down at a certain season."—the periodic agitation of the spring was attributed to angelic influence. Just as all evil was traced to the presence and influence of evil spirits, so all good was traced up to the ministry and action of those blessed spirits who stand in the presence of God, ever ready and willing to fulfil his will.

6. "Wilt thou be made whole?"—this question was designed to awaken in the man the consciousness of his need, his dependence on a Power above himself, and to centre his faith in the person and work of that loving One who now spoke to him. The answer of the impotent man proves that he was longing for recovery, and that he believed in the possibility of being restored, but he knew not where or how to find a friend and helper. Taking cognisance of this his inward state, the Saviour at once put forth his healing power; and to show the completeness of the recovery, which he had effected by a simple application of his will, he said to the man, "Rise, take up thy bed, and walk."

The bed of the poorer classes in the East was nothing more than a skin, or a piece of coarse cloth, so that it could be easily taken up and carried, and some part of the bodily clothing worn during the day was used for a covering by night.

12. "What man is that?"—the Jewish authorities could not deny the fact of the man's recovery. He is seen by them in the very act of walking and carrying his bed. But it was the Sabbath; and they affect that his conduct is a desecration of the sacred day. The restored man vindicates himself by a reference to the Saviour's authority. "He that made me whole, the same said unto me, Take up thy bed, and walk." The loving power which effected such a cure would bid me do nothing at variance with the law and design of the Sabbath. The Jews were struck dumb. They now pretend to be ignorant of the very person of Jesus—as if any other then living had wrought such miracles. It was sheer hypocrisy on their part.

15. "The man departed, and told the Jews that it was Jesus:"—not, as some have said, out of opposition to Jesus, or to obtain favour from the Jews. They had put the question to him, "What man is that?" He knew not then who it was that had effected his cure; but when he afterwards came to the possession of this knowledge, by our Lord's intercourse with him,

17. "My Father worketh:"—you seek to injure me for an act of mercy rendered to an afflicted man on the Sabbath day, but "where is the evil? for what I have done involves no real breach of the Sabbatic law; for although God ceased from his work of creation on the Sabbath day, and therefore commanded it to be observed as a day of rest, his works of providence, goodness, and mercy have never been suspended; and I, in performing works of mercy on the Sabbath day, only imitate the example of my Father. I and my Father are one. I have an equal right to work on the Sabbath; therefore, in condemning me for doing these things on the Sabbath day, you are not justified."

19. "The Son can do nothing of himself"—Alford says, "The Son cannot work of himself, because he is the Son. his very person pre-supposes the Father's will and counsel as his will and counsel, and his perfect knowledge of that will and counsel." The interpretation of Olshausen is that "Christ asserts the complete unity of operation between the Father and himself: this he states, negatively denying an action of his own will in detachment from God, as well as positively the act of the Son being the act of the Father." Scripture is oft the best interpreter of Scripture, and, in the Divine wisdom, the records of the early Church are made to shed their hallowed light upon other portions of the sacred history. In our judgment, the introductory verse of the first chapter in Genesis elucidates our Saviour's words; for when "GOD" is mentioned, the noun in the Hebrew is plural, but the verb connected with the noun is singular; thus, at the very outset of Holy Scripture, the Almighty is exhibited to man in a plurality of persons, but with a oneness or unity of action. In this sense we can comprehend the Saviour's words, without questioning the Saviour's divinity, when he declares, "The Son can do nothing of himself."

The Saviour having claimed a oneness of nature with the Father, he now shows that there must necessarily be a oneness of will; and, consequently, whatever he did could only be in conformity with his Father's procedure.

21. "The Son quickeneth whom he will:"—we think that Alford has here got the true idea when he says that it "does not imply any selection out of mankind; nor is it said merely to remove the Jewish prejudice, that their own nation alone should rise from the dead; but that in every instance when his will is to vivify, the result necessarily follows." The quickening of which the text speaks refers not only to bodily resurrection, but also to the communication of spiritual life to those who are morally dead. This is placed beyond all dispute by the words of the twenty-fourth verse: "He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life."

27. "Given him authority to execute judgment:"—it is in the office of the final Judge of the world, that the exaltation, dignity, and glory of Christ, as Mediator and Redeemer, are to be manifested to the assembled universe.

32. "There is another that beareth witness:"—who? Doubtless the Saviour here refers to the repeated testimony borne by the Father to the Son, during his life and ministry on the earth.

39, 10 "Search the Scriptures."—there are those who read these words in the imperative mood, according to our English version, and think that the first clause of the fortieth verse is a species of refined irony; but we are not willing to admit that our Lord ever resorts to an ironical mode of speaking. Others take the words in the indicative mood, and read thus—"Ye do search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me, YET ye will not come unto me that ye might have life." He had referred to the testimony of the Baptist in his favour, to the witness borne by his Father, and to his own stupendous deeds—all of which had failed to impress now he commands them to go to their own Scriptures, and search for their testimony, but adds—"YET ye will not come unto me." Ye will not become my disciples, although these Scriptures of the Old Testament, which ye admit to be of Divine authority, testify of me.

CHAPTER VI.

SYNOPSIS:—John vi 1—15, Matt xiv 13—21, Mark vi. 30—44; Luke ix. 10—17. John vi. 16—21, Matt. xiv 22—33, Mark vi 45—52 John vi. 22—59.

Our Evangelist introduces the miracle of the miraculous feeding of the five thousand simply as the groundwork of one of the most profoundly spiritual and interesting discourses of our Lord. From the narrative of St. Luke, we are led to infer that Herod Antipas was taking measures to bring about a personal interview with Jesus, but the Saviour, having a perfect knowledge of his character and conduct, determined immediately to leave the place where he then was, and seek some safe retreat.

If Christ now manifests himself as the High Priest, then we have, first, "the priestly office of the Lord in the wilderness, as shown in this miraculous feeding of the multitude;" and we have, secondly, "the kingly sway of the Lord amid the terrors of the night at sea," when he is seen in the calm dignity of power walking on the disturbed waters of the ocean lake.

1. "Which is the Sea of Tiberias:"—this may have been added by our Evangelist for the sake of his Gentile readers, among whom the lake was better known by this name. It was also called the Lake of Gennesaret, from a town and district of that name on the north or north-west; and the Sea of Galilee, because it lay adjacent to that province.

3. "Went up into a mountain:"—the other Evangelists tell us that it was a desert place, situated, no doubt, on the hill country on the shore of the lake. The Saviour ascended this mount for separation and retirement.

5. "He saith unto Philip:"—here the question comes from our Lord as to how the multitude were to be fed, whereas the other three Evangelists represent the disciples as coming to their Lord after he had been exerting his healing power on their behalf, and asking him to send the people away, that they might have the opportunity of providing themselves with food. Dean Alford justly says that "the very difference in detail among so many independent witnesses makes their accordance in the great central truth so much the more weighty. On every point of importance here, the sacred historians are entirely and absolutely agreed. That every minor detail related by them had its ground in historical fact, we fully believe; it is the tracking it to this ground in each case which is now beyond our power; and here comes in the simplicity and reliance of faith, and the justification of those who believe and receive each Gospel as they find it written."

10. "There was much grass in the place:"—we are told that spring commences in Palestine in the month of February; and the feast of Purim, which preceded the Passover, being in March, this miraculous increase of food took place, in all likelihood, in the latter half of that month, or during the middle of spring.

14. "That prophet that should come:"—from Deut. xviii. 15—18, the Jews were led to expect some particular prophet to arise, distinct from the Messiah, yet intimately connected with his advent.

19 So when they had rowed about five and twenty or thirty furlongs, they see Jesus walking on the sea, and drawing nigh unto the ship: and they were afraid.

20 But he saith unto them, It is I; be not afraid.

21 Then they willingly received him into the ship: and immediately the ship was at the land whither they went.

22 ¶ The day following, when the people which stood on the other side of the sea saw that there was none other boat there, save that one whereinto his disciples were entered, and that Jesus went not with his disciples into the boat, but that his disciples were gone away alone;

23 (Howbeit there came other boats from Tiberias nigh unto the place where they did eat bread, after that the Lord had given thanks:)

24 When the people therefore saw that Jesus was not there, neither his disciples, they also took shipping, and came to Capernaum, seeking for Jesus.

25 And when they had found him on the other side of the sea, they said unto him, Rabbi, when camest thou hither?

26 Jesus answered them and said, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Ye seek me, not because ye saw the miracles, but because ye did eat of the loaves, and were filled.

27 [1]Labour not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you: for him hath God the Father sealed.[a]

28 Then said they unto him, What shall we do, that we might work the works of God?

29 Jesus answered and said unto them, This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent.[b]

30 They said therefore unto him, What sign shewest thou then, that we may see, and believe thee? what dost thou[c] work?

31 Our fathers did eat manna in the desert; as it is written, He gave them bread from heaven to eat.[d]

32 Then Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Moses gave you not that bread from heaven; but my Father giveth you the true bread from heaven.

15. "To make him a king:"—this was on the part of the people, who were now on their way to the capital, and who very naturally concluded that one who had such transcendent power at his command would be the fit monarch to rule over them.

16—21. For the exposition of these verses, and for the right understanding of this sublime miracle, see Matt. xiv. 22—33; Mark vi. 45—52, and the Notes.

22. "The people which stood on the other side"—not the entire multitude who had been fed, but only such of them as had lingered on this coast during the night.

27. "Labour not:"—the word here rendered "Labour not" rather means, not to be concerned or engaged—do not be so concerned or taken up—as to busy yourselves about a mere perishing, material thing.

32. "Moses gave you not that bread:"—the manna was not given by Moses, nor was the manna the bread of spiritual life. Christ himself was the bread of life. There are those who make the manna a type of the true bread—a type of Christ himself; but types are not mere conformities, and resemblance only is not sufficient to constitute a type. Our Lord draws a comparison and a contrast between the manna and himself; but never hints at the manna being typical of himself.

40. "Every one which seeth the Son:"—this term see here is to be taken in the sense not of bodily vision, but of spiritual perception, which spiritual perception is always preceded by faith; and faith in the Saviour carries with it a well-grounded hope of a glorious resurrection and everlasting life.

47—58. "He that believeth on me hath everlasting life:"—in connection with this transcendently important passage, two questions suggest themselves—first, does our Lord here point forward to his approaching death as the one only true and all-sufficient propitiation for sin? And, secondly, has he any reference to the institution and observance of his own sacramental supper, as founded on the fact of a perfect atonement? It is only by a culpable departure from all the recognised and received principles of New Testament exegesis that any man can get away, in his interpretation of these profound words, from the sacrificial death of Christ. The Saviour says, "I am the bread of life;" but that we may be left in no uncertainty regarding the meaning of the word "bread," he adds—"And the bread that I will give you is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world" Now, the term "flesh," as applied to our Lord, expresses the whole of his humanity—"the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us"—"put to death in the flesh." These two passages alone are sufficient to prove that the designation "flesh" is inclusive of the entire human nature of our Lord; so that the phrase, "my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world," is tantamount to the offering up of himself, which he did once for all, and by which he "hath perfected for ever them that are sanctified." The eating of his flesh, and the drinking of his blood, are terms denoting the soul's acceptance of Christ in his person and work as her Redeemer. We must first receive him—the whole Christ—as the propitiation for our sins, before we can look up to him, and rejoice in him as our glorified Head and Lord. And it is to the former fact, and not the latter, except by inference, that Christ here alludes.

But is there no reference in this passage to the sacramental supper? We answer emphatically, NONE. We are quite aware that many good and learned names can be brought forward in favour of an opposite opinion. But by far heaven: if any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever: and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world.[a]

52 The Jews therefore strove among themselves, saying, How can this man give us his flesh to eat?[b]

53 Then Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you.[c]

54 Whoso eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day.[d]

55 For my flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed.

56 He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me, and I in him.[e]

the greater number of modern commentators, both British and foreign, altogether reject the reference to the Lord's Supper. There are those, however, who take a sort of modified view, or middle path, between these two classes. Their idea is, that while there is no reference to the ordinance itself (nor could there well have been any such reference), yet the grand spiritual verity which underlies the ordinance is one and the same with that here insisted on. In the words of Bengel, who takes this middle course—"Jesus framed his words so skilfully, that immediately at the time, and at all times subsequently, they would indeed apply, in their strict literal sense, to the spiritual enjoyment of himself; and yet that afterwards the same words should, by consequence, be appropriate to express the most august mystery of the holy supper when that should be instituted. . . . . The whole of these words concerning his flesh and blood have in view the passion of Jesus Christ, and along with it the holy supper. Hence arises the separate mention of the flesh and of the blood so invariably; for in his passion the blood was drawn out of his body, and the Lamb was thus slain." No one will deny that the fact of Christ's death as an atonement for sin underlies the ordinance of the supper, just because there could have been no Lord's table apart from the Lord's death; but it does not follow that in speaking of his death, our Lord must necessarily allude to his last supper.

'IN THE LAST DAY, THAT GREAT DAY OF THE FEAST, JESUS STOOD AND CRIED, SAYING, IF ANY MAN THIRST, LET HIM COME UNTO ME, AND DRINK.'—JOHN VII. 37.

CHAPTER VII.

1 Jesus reproveth the ambition and boldness of his kinsmen: 10 goeth up from Galilee to the feast of tabernacles: 14 teacheth in the temple 40 Divers opinions of him among the people. 45 The Pharisees are angry that their officers took him not, and chide with Nicodemus for taking his part.

AFTER these things Jesus walked in Galilee: for he would not walk in Jewry, because the Jews sought to kill him.[a]

2 Now the Jews' feast of tabernacles was at hand.[b]

3 His brethren therefore said unto him, Depart hence, and go into Judæa, that thy disciples also may see the works that thou doest.[c]

4 For there is no man that doeth any thing in secret, and he himself seeketh to be known openly. If thou do these things, shew thyself to the world.

For neither did his brethren believe in him.[d]

6 Then Jesus said unto them, My time is not yet come: but your time is alway ready.[e]

7 The world cannot hate you; but me it hateth, because I testify of it, that the works thereof are evil.[f]

8 Go ye up unto this feast: I go not up yet unto this feast; for my time is not yet full come.[g]

9 When he had said these words unto them, he abode still in Galilee.

10 ¶ But when his brethren were gone up, then went he also up unto the feast, not openly, but as it were in secret.

11 Then the Jews sought him at the feast, and said, Where is he?[h]

12 And there was much murmuring among the people concerning him: for some said, He is a good man: others said, Nay; but he deceiveth the people.[i]

32 ¶ The Pharisees heard that the people murmured such things concerning him; and the Pharisees and the chief priests sent officers to take him.

33 Then said Jesus unto them, Yet a little while am I with you, and then I go unto him that sent me.[q]

35 Then said the Jews among themselves, Whither will he go, that we shall not find him? will he go unto the dispersed among the [3]Gentiles, and teach the Gentiles?[s]

36 What manner of saying is this that he said, Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am, thither ye cannot come?

39 (But this spake he of the Spirit, which they that believe on him should receive: for the Holy Ghost was not yet given; because that Jesus was not yet glorified.)[v]

CHAPTER VII.

The conflict between the Jews and the Saviour of the world is now reaching its height "So long, however, as his hour was not yet come, Jesus avoided their snares, and on this account refrained for a long time from going into Judæa Nevertheless, the Feast of Tabernacles induced the Redeemer to visit Jerusalem, probably because, being faithfully obedient to the law of the Old Testament, he carefully fulfilled the command to appear thrice before the Lord without being disturbed by the possible consequences"

2. "The feast of tabernacles "—for an account of this Jewish festival, which was celebrated from the fifteenth to the twenty-third day of the seventh month, which corresponded with the first month of the civil year, see Exod. xxiii. 16, Lev xxiii 39—44; Numb. xxix. 12—38; Deut. xvi. 13—15.

4. "That doeth any thing in secret;"—that is, every man who doeth anything which he desires to be known, doeth it not in secret, but rather in such a way that he and his work may be known openly.

6. "My time . . . . your time "—in Christ's life every act had its own time and place, out of which it could not be done; they were under no such law of limitation, because there were no such ends involved in their procedure.

11. "The Jews sought him at the feast "—though he went up in no caravan, and formed no member of any such party, but alone and privately, his arrival in the city was soon known, and the Jewish council were eager in their pursuit of him, that they might put him to death.

13. "For fear of the Jews:"—these words show what a fearful influence the Jewish authorities had over the minds and the sentiments of the people. Some of those who came from Galilee, and who were rather in favour of the Saviour's character and claims, found the spirit of opposition such that they were afraid to utter a word in his behalf, or to express their sympathy with him.

32 "The Pharisees and the chief priests:"—it is supposed that the Pharisees are placed first, as they were more bitter in their enmity and more determined in their opposition, and that it was by them the chief priests were instigated to their peculiar line of conduct

33. "I go unto him that sent me;"—but they did not believe that he was the Sent of God; and hence when he speaks of his death and subsequent return to the Father, they are wholly unable to comprehend his meaning.

37. "In the last day, that great day of the feast."—there are those who will have this to have been the seventh day, which was an especially solemn one in the Feast of Tabernacles, and not the eighth day, which was a holy convocation, and in which the people offered an offering made by fire unto the Lord; others, however, maintain that it was the eighth day, and not the seventh, because Christ is here alluding to what had taken place on the previous day. The reference is to the custom of a priest bringing water in a golden vessel from the pool of Siloam, with a jubilant procession, to the Temple, and standing near the altar, pouring out the water mixed with wine, while THE HALLEL, which was composed of Psalms cxiii.—cxviii., was sung by the people. This took place on the seventh day; but whether it was the seventh or the eighth day on which our Lord availed himself of this practice to point to the higher blessings of his own spiritual dispensation, we cannot determine.

46 The officers answered, Never man spake like this man.[a]

47 Then answered them the Pharisees, Are ye also deceived?

48 Have any of the rulers or of the Pharisees believed on him?[b]

49 But this people who knoweth not the law are cursed.

50 Nicodemus saith unto them, (he that came [1]to Jesus by night, being one of them,)[c]

51 Doth our law judge any man, before it hear him, and know what he doeth?[d]

52 They answered and said unto him, Art thou also of Galilee? Search, and look: for out of Galilee ariseth no prophet.[e]

53 And every man went unto his own house.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 Christ delivereth the woman taken in adultery. 12 He preacheth himself the light of the world, and justifieth his doctrine: 33 answereth the Jews that boasted of Abraham, 59 and conveyeth himself from their cruelty.

JESUS went unto the mount of Olives.

2 And early in the morning he came again into the temple, and all the people came unto him; and he sat down, and taught them.

3 And the scribes and Pharisees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery; and when they had set her in the midst,

4 They say unto him, Master, this woman was taken in adultery, in the very act.

5 Now Moses in the law commanded us, that such should be stoned: but what sayest thou?[f]

6 This they said, tempting him, that they might have to accuse him. But Jesus stooped down, and with his finger wrote on the ground, as though he heard them not.

7 So when they continued asking him, he lifted up himself, and said unto them, He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her.[g]

8 And again he stooped down, and wrote on the ground.

11 She said, No man, Lord. And Jesus said unto her, Neither do I condemn thee: go, and sin no more.[i]

12 ¶ Then spake Jesus again unto them, saying, I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.[k]

13 The Pharisees therefore said unto him, Thou bearest record of thyself; thy record is not true.[l]

14 Jesus answered and said unto them, Though I bear record of myself, yet my record is true: for I know whence I came, and whither I go; but ye cannot tell whence I come, and whither I go.[m]

15 Ye judge after the flesh; I judge no man.[n]

16 And yet if I judge, my judgment is true: for I am not alone, but I and the Father that sent me.[o]

17 It is also written in your law, that the testimony of two men is true.[p]

18 I am one that bear witness of myself, and the Father that sent me beareth witness of me.[q]

19 Then said they unto him, Where is thy Father? Jesus answered, Ye neither know me, nor my Father: if ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also.[r]

20 These words spake Jesus in the treasury, as he taught in the temple: and no man laid hands on him; for his hour was not yet come.[s]

21 Then said Jesus again unto them, I go my way, and ye shall seek me, and shall die in your sins: whither I go, ye cannot come.[t]

22 Then said the Jews, Will he kill himself? because he saith, Whither I go, ye cannot come.

23 And he said unto them, Ye are from beneath; I am from above: ye are of this world; I am not of this world.[u]

24 I said therefore unto you, that ye shall die in your sins: for if ye believe not that I am he, ye shall die in your sins.[v]

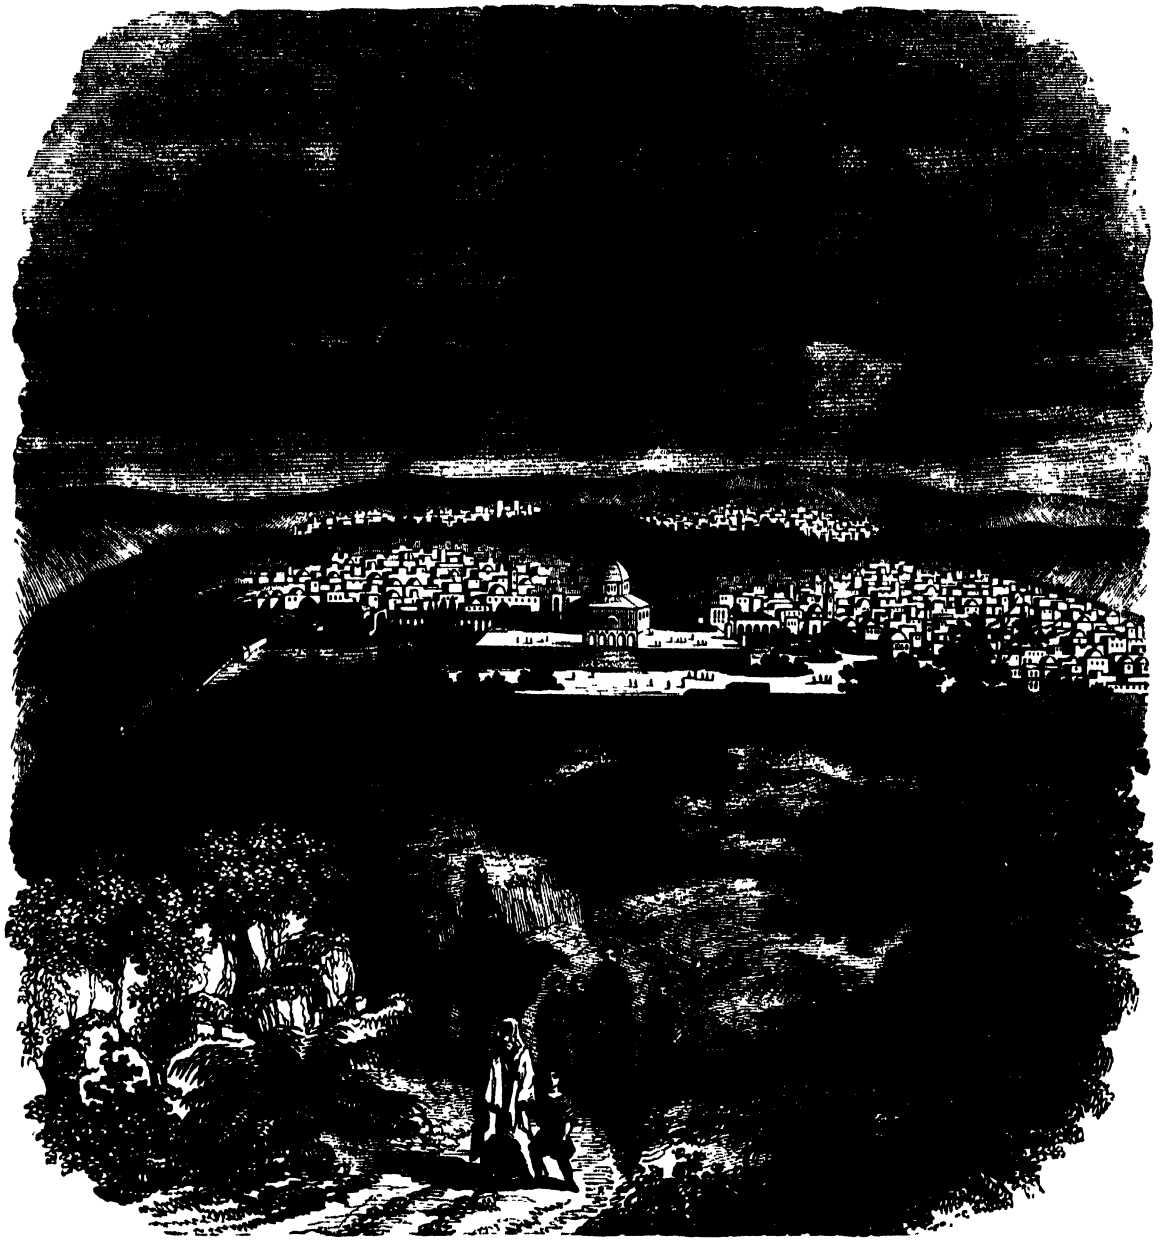
25 Then said they unto him, Who art thou? And Jesus saith unto them, Even the same that I said unto you from the beginning.

52 "Out of Galilee ariseth no prophet"—this proverb was historically incorrect, for Galilee could claim Elijah the Tishbite, and Jonah of Gath-hepher, if not also Nahum and Hosea.

53 "Went unto his own house:"—the Jewish authorities dispersed, and left the Saviour still free to speak and act; but he went to the Mount of Olives—his favourite retreat—for retirement and devotion.

CHAPTER VIII.

The history of the woman taken in adultery, instead of giving any countenance to sin, reveals every human being as a transgressor of the law, and therefore worthy of death; but what the law could not do for the offender, the mercy of God could effect by drawing the sinner as a penitent to the feet of the Saviour; and while proclaiming to the penitent a free and full forgiveness, yet insisting on personal holiness as the evidence of salvation.



5. "That such should be stoned:"—the punishment, according to the law, was death; but the manner of inflicting the death is not mentioned—whether by stoning or otherwise.—Exod. xxxi. 14; xxxv. 2; Numb. xv. 35, 36. To have been consistent, they ought to have brought the man also (Lev. xx. 10; Deut. xxii. 22). They tempted Jesus to pronounce a judgment, hoping to find in the tenor or provisions of that judgment some ground of accusation.

7. "He that is without sin;"—not he that is sinless, or is free from the sin of uncleanness; but who is free from blameworthiness, even if tried by that very law which condemned this unhappy adulteress.

20. "In the treasury;"—that is, in the court of the women, into which the accused had been brought.

28. "Then shall ye know that I am he:"—this conviction would be brought home to them after his death and resurrection in various ways:—by the operation of his Spirit, as on the day of Pentecost; or by Divine judgments, as in the destruction of Jerusalem.

33. "Never in bondage to any man:"—the meaning may be that they were never as a people so reduced by any foreign power as to lose their distinct and exclusive nationality. The Saviour's words, however, went far deeper than this. From the 35th verse it is evident that our Lord clearly

27 They understood not that he spake to them of the Father.

29 And he that sent me is with me: the Father hath not left me alone; for I do always those things that please him.[c]

30 As he spake these words, many believed on him.[d]

31 Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on him, If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed;

32 And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.[e]

42 Jesus said unto them, If God were your Father, ye would love me: for I proceeded forth and came from God; neither came I of myself, but he sent me.[c]

43 Why do ye not understand my speech? even because ye cannot hear my word.[d]

44 Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it.[e]

45 And because I tell you the truth, ye believe me not.

46 Which of you convinceth me of sin? And if I say the truth, why do ye not believe me?

47 He that is of God heareth God's words: ye therefore hear them not, because ye are not of God.[f]

48 Then answered the Jews, and said unto him, Say we not well that thou art a Samaritan, and hast a devil?[g]

49 Jesus answered, I have not a devil; but I honour my Father, and ye do dishonour me.

52 Then said the Jews unto him, Now we know that thou hast a devil. Abraham is dead, and the prophets; and thou sayest, If a man keep my saying, he shall never taste of death.[j]

53 Art thou greater than our father Abraham, which is dead? and the prophets are dead: whom makest thou thyself?

54 Jesus answered, If I honour myself, my honour is nothing: it is my Father that honoureth me; of whom ye say, that he is your God:[k]

55 Yet ye have not known him; but I know him: and if I should say, I know him not, I shall be a liar like unto you: but I know him, and keep his saying.[l]

56 Your father Abraham rejoiced to see my day: and he saw it, and was glad.[m]

57 Then said the Jews unto him, Thou art not yet fifty years old, and hast thou seen Abraham?

58 Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Before Abraham was, I am.[n]

59 Then took they up stones to cast at him: but Jesus hid himself, and went out of the temple, going through the midst of them, and so passed by.[o]

distinguishes between the spiritual seed of Abraham who have come into the liberty of the children of God, and those who are still carnal, and who, being in bondage to the flesh, are really enthralled or enslaved — "The servant (or slave) abideth not in the house for ever," for such is not his right; but the child, the freeborn son, can claim this as his inalienable position.

37. "I know that ye are Abraham's seed:"—there is no contradiction between this verse and those which precede it. While our Lord makes a distinction in the seed of Abraham between the spiritually free and the morally enslaved, he does not deny that they all have derived their natural descent from Abraham. that many of them altogether lacked the faith of their great progenitor was affectingly demonstrated by the fact that they went about to kill him in whom the faith of the patriarch reposed with unwavering confidence.

44. "Ye are of your father the devil:"—the following reading is to be preferred:—"Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye love to do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not, or did not stand fast, in the truth; and now there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own; that is, according to his own fallen nature and evil disposition, or out of his own false and wicked designs; for he is a liar, and the father of lies." Thus our Lord first charges upon these opposing Jews the sin of falsehood, and then shows that their lying proved their relation to the devil, the first utterer of lies, just as certainly as the truth which he uttered and pressed home upon them proved his relation to God as his Father, from whom, and according to whose will and purpose, he had come into the world.

46. "Which of you convinceth me of sin?"—the word "convince" would be better rendered "convict," and hence the Saviour appeals to all, and challenges them to produce a single sin, either of omission or of commission, in his life and teaching.

51. "He shall never see death." this was an insurmountable obstacle to these unbelieving Jews. They knew not that Jesus had come to swallow up death in victory, and that in the case of all his followers death is but a prelude to a higher, purer, diviner life. The Christian never sees death. The moment of dissolution is the moment of greater vivification and of incipient glorification He leaves the worn-out garment of the flesh behind, and only waits for his final clothing till that day when the whole Church is to be perfected at once and for ever.

58 "Before Abraham was, I am·"—to deny the essential pre-existence of Christ in the face of these words, betrays a perversity of view and a state of mind that are painful to contemplate. Our Lord here lays claim to eternal, independent, and immutable Godhead; and that the Jews so understood him is placed beyond all controversy by their subsequent conduct.

It is to the unutterable delight of the whole Christian Church that her Redeemer is no other than "God over all, blessed for evermore."

THE POOL OF SILOAM, OR SELWAN.

CHAPTER IX.

The narrative of the cure effected on a man that had been born blind, as here recorded, is not to be viewed as standing alone or by itself; for it is closely related to what follows, and is, in fact, the historical foundation of those living utterances which are embodied in the subsequent chapter

1. "As Jesus passed by."—it appears that a great number of sufferers were located in the neighbourhood of the Temple, among whom was this blind man. Blindness from the birth was, perhaps, a rare disaster, and hence it was that the disciples so eagerly inquired into its

CHAPTER IX.

1 The man that was born blind restored to sight. 8 He is brought to the Pharisees. 13 They are offended at it, and excommunicate him. 35 but he is received of Jesus, and confesseth him. 39 Who they are whom Christ enlighteneth.

AND as Jesus passed by, he saw a man which was blind from his birth.

2 And his disciples asked him, saying, Master, who did sin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind?[a]

3 Jesus answered, Neither hath this man sinned, nor his parents: but that the works of God should be made manifest in him.[b]

4 I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work.[c]

5 As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world.[d]

6 When he had thus spoken, he spat on the ground, and made clay of the spittle, and he [1]anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay,[e]

7 And said unto him, Go, wash in the pool of Siloam, (which is by interpretation, Sent.) He went his way therefore, and washed, and came seeing.[f]

8 ¶ The neighbours therefore, and they which before had seen him that he was blind, said, Is not this he that sat and begged?

9 Some said, This is he: others said, He is like him: but he said, I am he.

10 Therefore said they unto him, How were thine eyes opened?

11 He answered and said, A man that is called Jesus made clay, and anointed mine eyes, and said unto me, Go to the pool of Siloam, and wash: and I went and washed, and I received sight.[g]

12 Then said they unto him, Where is he? He said, I know not.

13 ¶ They brought to the Pharisees him that aforetime was blind.

14 And it was the sabbath day when Jesus made the clay, and opened his eyes.

15 Then again the Pharisees also asked him how he had received his sight. He said unto them, He put clay upon mine eyes, and I washed, and do see.

16 Therefore said some of the Pharisees, This man is not of God, because he keepeth not the sabbath day. Others said, How can a man that is a sinner do such miracles? And there was a division among them.[h]

17 They say unto the blind man again, What sayest thou of him, that he hath opened thine eyes? He said, He is a prophet.[i]

18 But the Jews did not believe concerning him, that he ha dbeen blind, and received his sight, until they called the parents of him that had received his sight.

19 And they asked them, saying, Is this your son, who ye say was born blind? how then doth he now see?

20 His parents answered them and said, We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind:

21 But by what means he now seeth, we know not; or who hath opened his eyes, we know not: he is of age; ask him: he shall speak for himself.

22 These words spake his parents, because they feared the Jews: for the Jews had agreed already, that if any man did confess that he was Christ, he should be put out of the synagogue.[j]

23 Therefore said his parents, He is of age; ask him.

24 Then again called they the man that was blind, and said unto him, Give God the praise: we know that this man is a sinner.[k]

25 He answered and said, Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not: one thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see.

cause, as they, in common with their nation, believed every affliction, whether physical or mental, to be the punishment of some peculiar sin. "Who did sin? This man, or"—seeing that a man could not sin before he was born—"his parents?" The question in either case rested on a false basis, and hence the reply of our Lord. In the words of Alford—"In the economy of God's providence, this man's suffering had its place and aim, and this was, to bring out the works of God in his being healed by the Redeemer."

5 "I am the light of the world"—this metaphor includes a double meaning—first, that he who restored sight to the blind could also illumine the whole region of the soul, and could introduce man into the marvellous light of life, for, in conformity with the prophecy of Isaiah, he was to open the eyes of the blind, literally and spiritually. The time for work is only while the light continues.

6. "Spat on the ground, and made clay:"—the use of saliva, and even of clay, in diseases of the eye was not unknown to the ancients; but where can we find on record one single case in which the application of these two agents to the outward organ, followed by washing in a pool of water, at once and immediately resulted in a cure? Here is the miracle—not in the application and use of certain external agents, but in the exercise of a power which, acting through these media, results in instantaneous recovery. The healing art has never effected this. But why did our Lord use these agents at all? Alford has given the true answer.—"The conductor of the miraculous power was generally the faith of the recipient, and if such means served to awaken that faith, their use would be accounted for."

The Pool of Siloam, otherwise called Siloah, and by the Arabs Selwan, is a fountain in the valley beneath the south-eastern angle of the wall of Jerusalem, near the foot of Mount Zion, with Moriah on the north. The water now issues from an arched basin, at twenty feet below the surface, and flows into a lower basin, which is supposed to be the one to which our Lord sent the blind man. The water is said to be of a rather disagreeable taste. The fountain of Siloam is a considerable distance further up the valley, and is called the Fountain of the Virgin. From this point the water runs through a subterraneous channel, until it finds its way into the pool, which is fifty-three feet long by eighteen wide. There is a flight of steps down to the pool, which is faced with stones, and has several columns at the side. The water from the pool flows through a channel in the rock out into the gardens beyond. It is very curious that the water of Siloam ebbs and flows, but not at regular intervals. Dr. Robinson and a friend traversed the whole distance of the subterraneous channel between the fountain and the pool. There is not the smallest reason to doubt the identity of the present Siloam with that referred to in the text. The only question that can be asked is, whether our Lord sent the man to the pool, or to what is called the fountain. To this we cannot give a decided reply, but we are inclined to believe the pool is meant.

13. "Brought to the Pharisees:"—these Pharisees may have been one of the inferior courts of the Sanhedrim, and who sat as a court of inquiry into all such cases.

30. "Herein is a marvellous thing"—the man seems to have had no very clear idea of the character and work of our Lord. Having received his sight at the hand of Jesus, he naturally inferred that he was a supernaturally endowed man, and therefore he spake of him as a prophet. The Pharisees called Jesus a sinner, by which they meant a man of impious character and an impostor: this raised a question which he was not prepared to debate; but he adhered to the simple fact of his cure; and then, on being pressed to decide on the character of the great Healer, he accuses them of shutting their eyes to the clearest and most convincing evidence.

34. "They cast him out:"—Bengel says, "from that place in which they were met together;" but we believe that nothing short of ecclesiastical excom-

26 Then said they to him again, What did he to thee? how opened he thine eyes?

27 He answered them, I have told you already, and ye did not hear: wherefore would ye hear it again? will ye also be his disciples?

28 Then they reviled him, and said, Thou art his disciple; but we are Moses' disciples.

29 We know that God spake unto Moses: as for this fellow, we know not from whence he is.[a]

30 The man answered and said unto them, Why herein is a marvellous thing, that ye know not from whence he is, and yet he hath opened mine eyes.[b]

31 Now we know that God heareth not sinners: but if any man be a worshipper of God, and doeth his will, him he heareth.[c]

32 Since the world began was it not heard that any man opened the eyes of one that was born blind.

33 If this man were not of God, he could do nothing.[d]

34 They answered and said unto him, Thou wast altogether born in sins, and dost thou teach us? And they [1]cast him out.[e]

35 Jesus heard that they had cast him out; and when he had found him, he said unto him, Dost thou believe on the Son of God?[f]

36 He answered and said, Who is he, Lord, that I might believe on him?

37 And Jesus said unto him, Thou hast both seen him, and it is he that talketh with thee.[g]

38 And he said, Lord, I believe. And he worshipped him.

39 ¶ And Jesus said, For judgment I am come into this world, that they which see not might see; and that they which see might be made blind.[h]

40 And some of the Pharisees which were with him heard these words, and said unto him, Are we blind also?[i]

41 Jesus said unto them, If ye were blind, ye should have no sin: but now ye say, We see; therefore your sin remaineth.[j]

CHAPTER X.

1 Christ is the door, and the good shepherd. 19 Divers opinions of him. 24 He proveth by his works that he is Christ the Son of God. 39 escapeth the Jews, 40 and went again beyond Jordan, where many believed on him.

VERILY, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber.

2 But he that entereth in by the door is the shepherd of the sheep.

3 To him the porter openeth; and the sheep hear his voice: and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out.

4 And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him: for they know his voice.

5 And a stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers.

6 This parable spake Jesus unto them: but they understood not what things they were which he spake unto them.

7 Then said Jesus unto them again, Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep.

8 All that ever came before me are thieves and robbers: but the sheep did not hear them.

9 I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture.[k]

10 The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.

11 I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep.[l] munication is meant. Among the Jews there were three kinds of excommunication, of which this casting out may probably have been the lowest. A person so excommunicated was "separated from the congregation." If during thirty days he repented of his error or wickedness, he was re-admitted; but if he persisted, he was at the end of that time subjected to a more solemn and penal excommunication.

38. "Lord, I believe."—he discovered that Jesus, who now spoke to him, was no other than he who had given him sight, his faith rises to a higher point; and cut off from his former relation to his synagogue and his nation, he more implicitly, and probably all the more gladly, was led to accept the Saviour, and rest on him alone for all future grace and succour. In gratitude and faith he worshipped him—not only gave him the honour due to a prophet, but that homage and love of the heart which are due only to God.

39. "For judgment I am come."—it is the province of judgment to discriminate and distinguish; and hence our Lord, in carrying out the will and purpose of his Father, makes a difference, and according to that difference does he proceed. Wherever he finds the desiring and the willing mind, he readily bestows his blessings. Hence he gave sight to this man who was born blind, and followed this with the richer blessing of inward and spiritual enlightenment, while he left those proud and self-sufficient Jews, who boasted of their light and knowledge, in all the darkness and ignorance of a spiritual blindness.

41. "If ye were blind:"—if you had no means of inward illumination, and if your blindness were not self-induced, "ye should have no sin." They would not have been guilty. But with the Scriptures in their hands, and with every possible means of reaching the truth, they were without excuse. How needful the prayer—"From hardness of heart, and contempt of thy word, good Lord, deliver us!"

CHAPTER X.

This chapter has an immediate connection with the preceding. The conduct of the Pharisees, who professed to be the teachers and guides of the people, had furnished sufficient ground on which to rest the comparison between a good and a bad shepherd. We may suppose there was some little pause, during which the thoughts of the Saviour were occupied with the unfaithfulness of those professed pastors, and hence the comparison which he here institutes. We say comparison, for the passage does not reach the character of a parable, in the full meaning of that word.

1. "He that entereth not by the door."—these words, and, indeed, the whole verse, must be taken in the most general sense, and are applicable to every one who undertakes to teach and lead the Church of God. Only one legitimate way of access lies open into the sheepfold. All others are forbidden; and whoever will not enter by the one door, or in the spirit of submission and obedience to Christ, as the Chief Shepherd of the sheep, but will force his way in through any other medium, must be looked upon as actuated by no pure motive, and having in view no good design.

2. "Is the shepherd of the sheep;"—that is, of that particular fold The sheep are to be intrusted to the faithful exclusively—the true servants of Christ

3. "To him the porter openeth."—here the comparison is not to be too closely pressed. The idea is, that just as the porter who taketh charge of the flock during the temporary absence of the shepherd will welcome his return, and at once admit him to the fold, so the Spirit will open a door into the spiritual fold to every one who comes as an under shepherd, in the name of Christ, to feed his flock and promote his glory.

"Calleth his own sheep by name:"—it is a fact that in the East each sheep had its name; that each recognised the shepherd's voice when he called; and that the flock were not driven by the shepherd, but followed him as their

12 But he that is an hireling, and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth: and the wolf catcheth them, and scattereth the sheep.[a]

13 The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep.

14 I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine.[b]

15 As the Father knoweth me, even so know I the Father: and I lay down my life for the sheep.[c]

16 And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd.[d]

17 Therefore doth my Father love me, because I lay down my life, that I might take it again.[e]

18 No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again. This commandment have I received of my Father.[f]

19 ¶ There was a division therefore again among the Jews for these sayings.[g]

20 And many of them said, He hath a devil, and is mad; why hear ye him?[h]

21 Others said, These are not the words of him that hath a devil. Can a devil open the eyes of the blind?[i]

22 ¶ And it was at Jerusalem the feast of the dedication, and it was winter.

23 And Jesus walked in the temple in Solomon's porch.[j]

24 Then came the Jews round about him, and said unto him, How long dost thou [1]make us to doubt? If thou be the Christ, tell us plainly.

25 Jesus answered them, I told you, and ye believed not: the works that I do in my Father's name, they bear witness of me.[k]

26 But ye believe not, because ye are not of my sheep, as I said unto you.[l]

27 My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me:[m]

28 And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand.[n]

29 My Father, which gave them me, is greater than all; and no man is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand.[o]

30 I and my Father are one.[p]

31 Then the Jews took up stones again to stone him.[q]

32 Jesus answered them, Many good works have I shewed you from my Father; for which of those works do ye stone me?

33 The Jews answered him, saying, For a good work we stone thee not; but for blasphemy; and because that thou, being a man, makest thyself God.[r]

34 Jesus answered them, Is it not written in your law, I said, Ye are gods?[s]

35 If he called them gods, unto whom the word of God came, and the scripture cannot be broken;[t]

36 Say ye of him, whom the Father hath sanctified, and sent into the world, Thou blasphemest; because I said, I am the Son of God?[u]

37 If I do not the works of my Father, believe me not.[v]

38 But if I do, though ye believe not me, believe the works: that ye may know, and believe, that the Father is in me, and I in him.[w]

39 Therefore they sought again to take him: but he escaped out of their hand,[x]

40 And went away again beyond Jordan into the place where John at first baptized; and there he abode.[y]

41 And many resorted unto him, and said, John did no miracle: but all things that John spake of this man were true.[z]

42 And many believed on him there.[a]

CHAPTER XI.

1 Christ raiseth Lazarus, four days buried. 45 Many Jews believe. 47 The high priests and Pharisees gather a council against Christ. 49 Caiaphas prophesieth. 54 Jesus hid himself. 55 At the passover they enquire after him, and lay wait for him.

NOW a certain man was sick, named Lazarus, of Bethany, the town of Mary and her sister Martha.[b]

2 (It was that Mary which anointed the Lord with ointment, and wiped his feet with her hair, whose brother Lazarus was sick.)[c]

3 Therefore his sisters sent unto him, saying, Lord, behold, he whom thou lovest is sick.

4 When Jesus heard that, he said, This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby.[d] leader. So every teacher must precede his flock in teaching, in example, in faith, and in work.

14. "I know my sheep"—this is not to be resolved into mere knowledge, by which he could discriminate between the true and the false—the sheep and the goat; but into that complacency which he had in them as his redeemed and sanctified followers It means both approval and delight. And so their knowledge of him is that which is inseparable from the confidence of the heart—from supreme and undivided love

16. "Other sheep I have:"—these other sheep are not to be referred to the Jews who were scattered among other nations, but to the Gentiles, who were to be brought in through the proclamation of his Gospel by the Apostles and teachers of Christianity.

17, 18. "Because I lay down my life"—here is the grand mystery of our holy faith—the love of the Father in the Son whom he has sent; and the love of the Son to the Father as shown in the scheme of redemption.

22 "The feast of the dedication:"—this national festival was instituted at the latter end of the second century before Christ, in memory of the purification of the Temple after it had been most wantonly profaned by Antiochus. It was held in the month Chisleu, which corresponds with our December, and lasted in all seven days.

23. "In Solomon's porch:"—according to Josephus, this was an original work of Solomon's, which remained from the former building; but other writers do not hesitate to describe it as a magnificent porch of more modern date erected on the same spot as Solomon's porch, and therefore bearing the same name.

30. "I and my Father are one:"—not only one in counsel and purpose, but, as the exigencies of the case require, one in power; and if one in power, necessarily one in nature also.

40. "The place where John at first baptized:"—see for this locality chapter i. 28, and the Notes thereon.

THE RAISING OF LAZARUS.—JOHN XI. 43, 44.

5 Now Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus.

6 When he had heard therefore that he was sick, he abode two days still in the same place where he was.[a]

7 Then after that saith he to his disciples, Let us go into Judæa again.

8 His disciples say unto him, Master, the Jews of late sought to stone thee; and goest thou thither again?[b]

9 Jesus answered, Are there not twelve hours in the day? If any man walk in the day, he stumbleth not, because he seeth the light of this world.[c]

10 But if a man walk in the night, he stumbleth, because there is no light in him.[d]

12 Then said his disciples, Lord, if he sleep, he shall do well.

13 Howbeit Jesus spake of his death: but they thought that he had spoken of taking of rest in sleep.

14 Then said Jesus unto them plainly, Lazarus is dead.

15 And I am glad for your sakes that I was not there, to the intent ye may believe; nevertheless let us go unto him.

16 Then said Thomas, which is called Didymus, unto his fellowdisciples, Let us also go, that we may die with him.

CHAPTER XI.

The closing verses of the preceding chapter form the transition point to the following touching and heart-revealing narrative. "The Lord left Jerusalem, but did not return to Galilee. He went to the other side of Jordan, into the neighbourhood which John the Baptist had consecrated by the commencement of his ministry. Many old friends of the Baptist had collected around Christ, and found the words of the Baptist confirmed in him. Although John had not appeared as a worker of miracles, yet they were convinced that a prophetic spirit dwelt and operated in him. Hence they believed in Jesus, to whom John professed to be only a forerunner."

1. "Bethany, the town of Mary and her sister Martha:"—this village stood on the south-east side of the Mount of Olives, and was about ten miles distant from Jerusalem. From the mention of Mary and Martha, it would seem that they were well known within the circle of our Evangelist's friends and readers.

ANNO DOMINI 33.

17 Then when Jesus came, he found that he had lain in the grave four days already.

18 Now Bethany was nigh unto Jerusalem, [1]about fifteen furlongs off:

19 And many of the Jews came to Martha and Mary, to comfort them concerning their brother.

20 Then Martha, as soon as she heard that Jesus was coming, went and met him: but Mary sat still in the house.

21 Then said Martha unto Jesus, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.

22 But I know, that even now, whatsoever thou wilt ask of God, God will give it thee.[a]

23 Jesus saith unto her, Thy brother shall rise again.

24 Martha saith unto him, I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day.[b]

25 Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live:[c]

26 And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?

27 She saith unto him, Yea, Lord: I believe that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, which should come into the world.[d]

28 And when she had so said, she went her way, and called Mary her sister secretly, saying, The Master is come, and calleth for thee.

29 As soon as she heard that, she arose quickly, and came unto him.

30 Now Jesus was not yet come into the town, but was in that place where Martha met him.

31 The Jews then which were with her in the house, and comforted her, when they saw Mary, that she rose up hastily and went out, followed her, saying, She goeth unto the grave to weep there.[e]

32 Then when Mary was come where Jesus was, and saw him, she fell down at his feet, saying unto him, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.[f]

33 When Jesus therefore saw her weeping, and the Jews also weeping which came with her, he groaned in the spirit, and [2]was troubled.

2 Gr he troubled himself

34 And said, Where have ye laid him? They said unto him, Lord, come and see.

35 Jesus wept.[g]

36 Then said the Jews, Behold how he loved him!

37 And some of them said, Could not this man, which opened the eyes of the blind, have caused that even this man should not have died?[h]

38 Jesus therefore again groaning in himself cometh to the grave. It was a cave, and a stone lay upon it.

39 Jesus said, Take ye away the stone. Martha, the sister of him that was dead, saith unto him, Lord, by this time he stinketh: for he hath been dead four days.

40 Jesus saith unto her, Said I not unto thee, that, if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldest see the glory of God?[i]

41 Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lifted up his eyes, and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me.

42 And I knew that thou hearest me always: but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me.[j]

43 And when he thus had spoken, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth.

44 And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with graveclothes: and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, Loose him, and let him go.[k]

45 Then many of the Jews which came to Mary, and had seen the things which Jesus did, believed on him.[l]

46 But some of them went their ways to the Pharisees, and told them what things Jesus had done.

47 ¶ Then gathered the chief priests and the Pharisees a council, and said, What do we? for this man doeth many miracles.[m]

48 If we let him thus alone, all men will believe on him: and the Romans shall come and take away both our place and nation.

49 And one of them, named Caiaphas, being the high priest that same year, said unto them, Ye know nothing at all,[n]

50 Nor consider that it is expedient for us, that

4—11 "This sickness is not unto death. . . . Lazarus is dead"—there is an apparent contradiction here, but it is only apparent. The disciples could not understand what he meant by "Lazarus sleepeth," and therefore he had to say to them plainly, "Lazarus is dead." His soul had doubtless left the body, but still it had not entered the world of life and glory. It was for the time being in a trance, or state of ecstatic enjoyment, from which our Lord was about to recall it, that it might again take possession of the body which it had left, and, therefore, the sickness of Lazarus was not so unto death that he was not again to live and move in this earthly sphere, yet he was so far removed out of the sphere of earthly life, as that nothing short of Omnipotent power could overcome the law of decomposition now at work on his physical nature, or bring the soul into union with the body.

16. "That we may die with him,"—not to die with Lazarus, but with Jesus, whose life was in imminent danger, arising out of the deep-rooted enmity of the Jews; and Thomas preferred to go with Jesus and share his fate, than be left alone in the world, with all its temptations, conflicts, and dangers.

19. "Came to comfort them"—these, no doubt, were some of their female friends, or the women who came to mourn with them. There were thirty days spent in the ceremonies of grief connected with death and bereavement.

20. "Mary sat still in the house."—Trench and others think that Mary did not know of the approach of the Saviour, and hence her present attitude; but that attitude rather corresponds with all that we know of her character.

25. "I am the resurrection:"—in these words, which form the central point of the history, we have embodied one of the most profound and animating truths of our holy faith—namely, that He who came to redeem men from sin and all its consequences had in himself the fulness of all life, and that this life was to reveal itself in the vivification and glorification of both soul and body. "He that believeth in me, though he were dead (or though he die), yet shall he live (in a future state, and live for ever): and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die" (i.e., shall not die for ever, but he shall have the conquest over temporal death, by a glorious resurrection to eternal life). Such is the deep and penetrating sense of these words.

33. "He groaned in the spirit"—by a severer effort of the mind, Jesus at first restrained his tears; so that when he afterwards did weep, his tears produced all the greater effect upon the bystanders. When it is said that he groaned and was troubled, let it be borne in mind that though he was at this moment the subject of deep inward agitation, "the affections of his mind were not passions, but voluntary emotions, which he had altogether in his control; accordingly, this troubling of himself was fully consonant with order and the highest reason."

38. "Again groaning in himself"—this arose from the fearful unbelief which was then revealing itself in those by whom he was surrounded. He then proceeds to work the miracle, by which he rebukes their unbelief and refutes their false reasoning.

48. "The Romans shall come"—they affected to believe that the adhesion of the people to Jesus would be looked upon by the Romans as sedition, the consequence of which would be the loss of a local habitation, of their territorial possessions, and of their national existence. And yet this state of things they afterwards brought upon themselves.

49. "Caiaphas being the high priest:"—it is said that he sustained this office during the whole eleven years of the procuratorship of Pontius Pilate; but whether there was anything memorable in this, as the year in which Jesus one man should die for the people, and that the whole nation perish not.[a]

51 And this spake he not of himself: but being high priest that year, he prophesied that Jesus should die for that nation;

52 And not for that nation only, but that also he should gather together in one the children of God that were scattered abroad.[b]

53 Then from that day forth they took counsel together for to put him to death.

54 Jesus therefore walked no more openly among the Jews; but went thence unto a country near to the wilderness, into a city called Ephraim, and there continued with his disciples.[c]

55 ¶ And the Jews' passover was nigh at hand: and many went out of the country up to Jerusalem before the passover, to purify themselves.[d]

56 Then sought they for Jesus, and spake among themselves, as they stood in the temple, What think ye, that he will not come to the feast?[e]

57 Now both the chief priests and the Pharisees had given a commandment, that, if any man knew where he were, he should shew it, that they might take him.

CHAPTER XII.

1 Jesus excuseth Mary anointing his feet. 9 The people flock to see Lazarus. 10 The high priests consult to kill him. 12 Christ rideth into Jerusalem. 20 Greeks desire to see Jesus. 23 He foretelleth his death. 37 The Jews are generally blinded 42 yet many chief rulers believe, but do not confess him. 44 therefore Jesus calleth earnestly for confession of faith.

THEN Jesus six days before the passover came to Bethany, where Lazarus was which had been dead, whom he raised from the dead.[f]

2 There they made him a supper; and Martha served: but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him.[g]

3 Then took Mary a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair: and the house was filled with the odour of the ointment.[h]

4 Then saith one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, which should betray him,

5 Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence, and given to the poor?

6 This he said, not that he cared for the poor; but because he was a thief, and had the bag, and bare what was put therein.[i]

7 Then said Jesus, Let her alone: against the day of my burying hath she kept this.

8 For the poor always ye have with you; but me ye have not always.[j]

9 Much people of the Jews therefore knew that he was there: and they came not for Jesus' sake only, but that they might see Lazarus also, whom he had raised from the dead.[k]

10 ¶ But the chief priests consulted that they might put Lazarus also to death;[l]

11 Because that by reason of him many of the Jews went away, and believed on Jesus.[m]

12 ¶ On the next day much people that were come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem,[n]

13 Took branches of palm trees, and went forth to meet him, and cried, Hosanna: Blessed is the King of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord.[o]

14 And Jesus, when he had found a young ass, sat thereon; as it is written,[p]

15 Fear not, daughter of Sion: behold, thy King cometh, sitting on an ass's colt.[q]

16 These things understood not his disciples at the first: but when Jesus was glorified, then remembered they that these things were written of him, and that they had done these things unto him.[r]

17 The people therefore that was with him when he called Lazarus out of his grave, and raised him from the dead, bare record.

18 For this cause the people also met him, for that they heard that he had done this miracle.[s]

19 The Pharisees therefore said among themselves, Perceive ye how ye prevail nothing? behold, the world is gone after him.[t] was to die, or as being the last year in the seventy weeks predicted by Daniel as preceding the destruction of Jerusalem; or whether there was something peculiar in his holding the office that year in contradistinction from Annas, who was high priest by right, it is impossible to say. One thing is certain, as Alford has it, that "it pleased God to make him, as high priest, the special though involuntary organ of the Holy Spirit, and thus to utter by him a prophecy of the death of Christ and its effects."

54. "A city called Ephraim:"—it is supposed that this town is the same with that of Ophrah and Ephrain, mentioned in 2 Chron. xiii. 19, and was situated about eight miles north of Jerusalem, on the way to Jericho, and within the bounds of the tribe of Benjamin.

55. "To purify themselves:"—that is, from any ceremonial uncleanness, that so they might be able to keep the Passover according to the law of the institution. (See Numb. ix. 10; 2 Chron. xxx. 17.) To engage in any spiritual service, we must have "our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water."

CHAPTER XII.

We left our Lord with his disciples at Ephraim. From Ephraim his way to Jerusalem is through Jericho, where he heals the blind man, and enters the house of Zacchæus. It is probable that he arrived at Bethany in the evening of the sixth day; that he there spent the Sabbath in holy quiet; and that the anointing here referred to took place six days before the Passover. The death of Christ was now at hand. With great desire he desires to eat the paschal lamb with his followers before he suffers; and with that act was to close his life of humiliation and sorrow. In dying, he was to gain the victory over death; in rising, bring life and immortality to light; and in ascending, open the kingdom of heaven to all believers.

2 "Made him a supper,"—that is, the disciples of Bethany. Not that they invited him; but he being come, they, to express their regard, prepared this festal repast. "It needs no explanation that Martha finds means to serve even in a strange house, where she might serve HIM; but Mary, in her placid frame of mind, shows herself in all her greatness. She honours and anoints him, as her heart prompts, with all the magnificence and costly tribute which is in her power."

3. "A pound of ointment:"—on the nature and value of this precious unguent, see Matt. xxvi. 6—13; Mark xiv. 3—9.

6. "Was a thief, and had the bag:"—the word rendered "bag" means any kind of pouch, coffer, or money-chest; and from the fact of Judas being called "a thief," it has been not unfairly inferred that he may have been guilty of purloining the money intrusted to his keeping.

8. "The poor always ye have with you:"—according to the law (Deut. xv. 11), the Hebrew was under solemn obligation to open his hand to the poor of the land; and here, in a manner almost marvellous, the Saviour, to whom all actions of thanksgiving and love are due, "places himself in parallel with the poor on whom we bestow benefactions; and by him, in his human tenderness, is keenly felt the separation from the earthly fellowship of his own disciples." The fact that he was to be but a little while longer with them is the reason which he gives why their immediate and special attentions should be all directed to himself—"ME ye have not always."

20 ¶ And there were certain Greeks among them that came up to worship at the feast:[a]

21 The same came therefore to Philip, which was of Bethsaida of Galilee, and desired him, saying, Sir, we would see Jesus.[b]

22 Philip cometh and telleth Andrew: and again Andrew and Philip tell Jesus.

23 ¶ And Jesus answered them, saying, The hour is come, that the Son of man should be glorified.[c]

24 Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit.[d]

25 He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal.[e]

26 If any man serve me, let him follow me; and where I am, there shall also my servant be: if any man serve me, him will my Father honour.[f]

27 Now is my soul troubled; and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour: but for this cause came I unto this hour.[g]

28 Father, glorify thy name. Then came there a voice from heaven, saying, I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again.[h]

29 The people therefore, that stood by, and heard it, said that it thundered: others said, An angel spake to him.

30 Jesus answered and said, This voice came not because of me, but for your sakes.[i]

31 Now is the judgment of this world: now shall the prince of this world be cast out.[j]

32 And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me.[k]

33 This he said, signifying what death he should die.[l]

34 The people answered him, We have heard out of the law that Christ abideth for ever: and how sayest thou, The Son of man must be lifted up? who is this Son of man?[m]

35 Then Jesus said unto them, Yet a little while is the light with you. Walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you: for he that walketh in darkness knoweth not whither he goeth.[n]

36 While ye have light, believe in the light, that ye may be the children of light. These things spake Jesus, and departed, and did hide himself from them.[o]

37 ¶ But though he had done so many miracles before them, yet they believed not on him:

38 That the saying of Esaias the prophet might be fulfilled, which he spake, Lord, who hath believed our report? and to whom hath the arm of the Lord been revealed?[p]

39 Therefore they could not believe, because that Esaias said again,

40 He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart; that they should not see with their eyes, nor understand with their heart, and be converted, and I should heal them.[q]

41 These things said Esaias, when he saw his glory, and spake of him.[r]

42 ¶ Nevertheless among the chief rulers also many believed on him; but because of the Pharisees they did not confess him, lest they should be put out of the synagogue:[s]

43 For they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God.[t]

45 And he that seeth me seeth him that sent me.[v]

46 I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth on me should not abide in darkness.[w]

47 And if any man hear my words, and believe not, I judge him not: for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world.[x]

48 He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day.[y]

49 For I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak.[z]

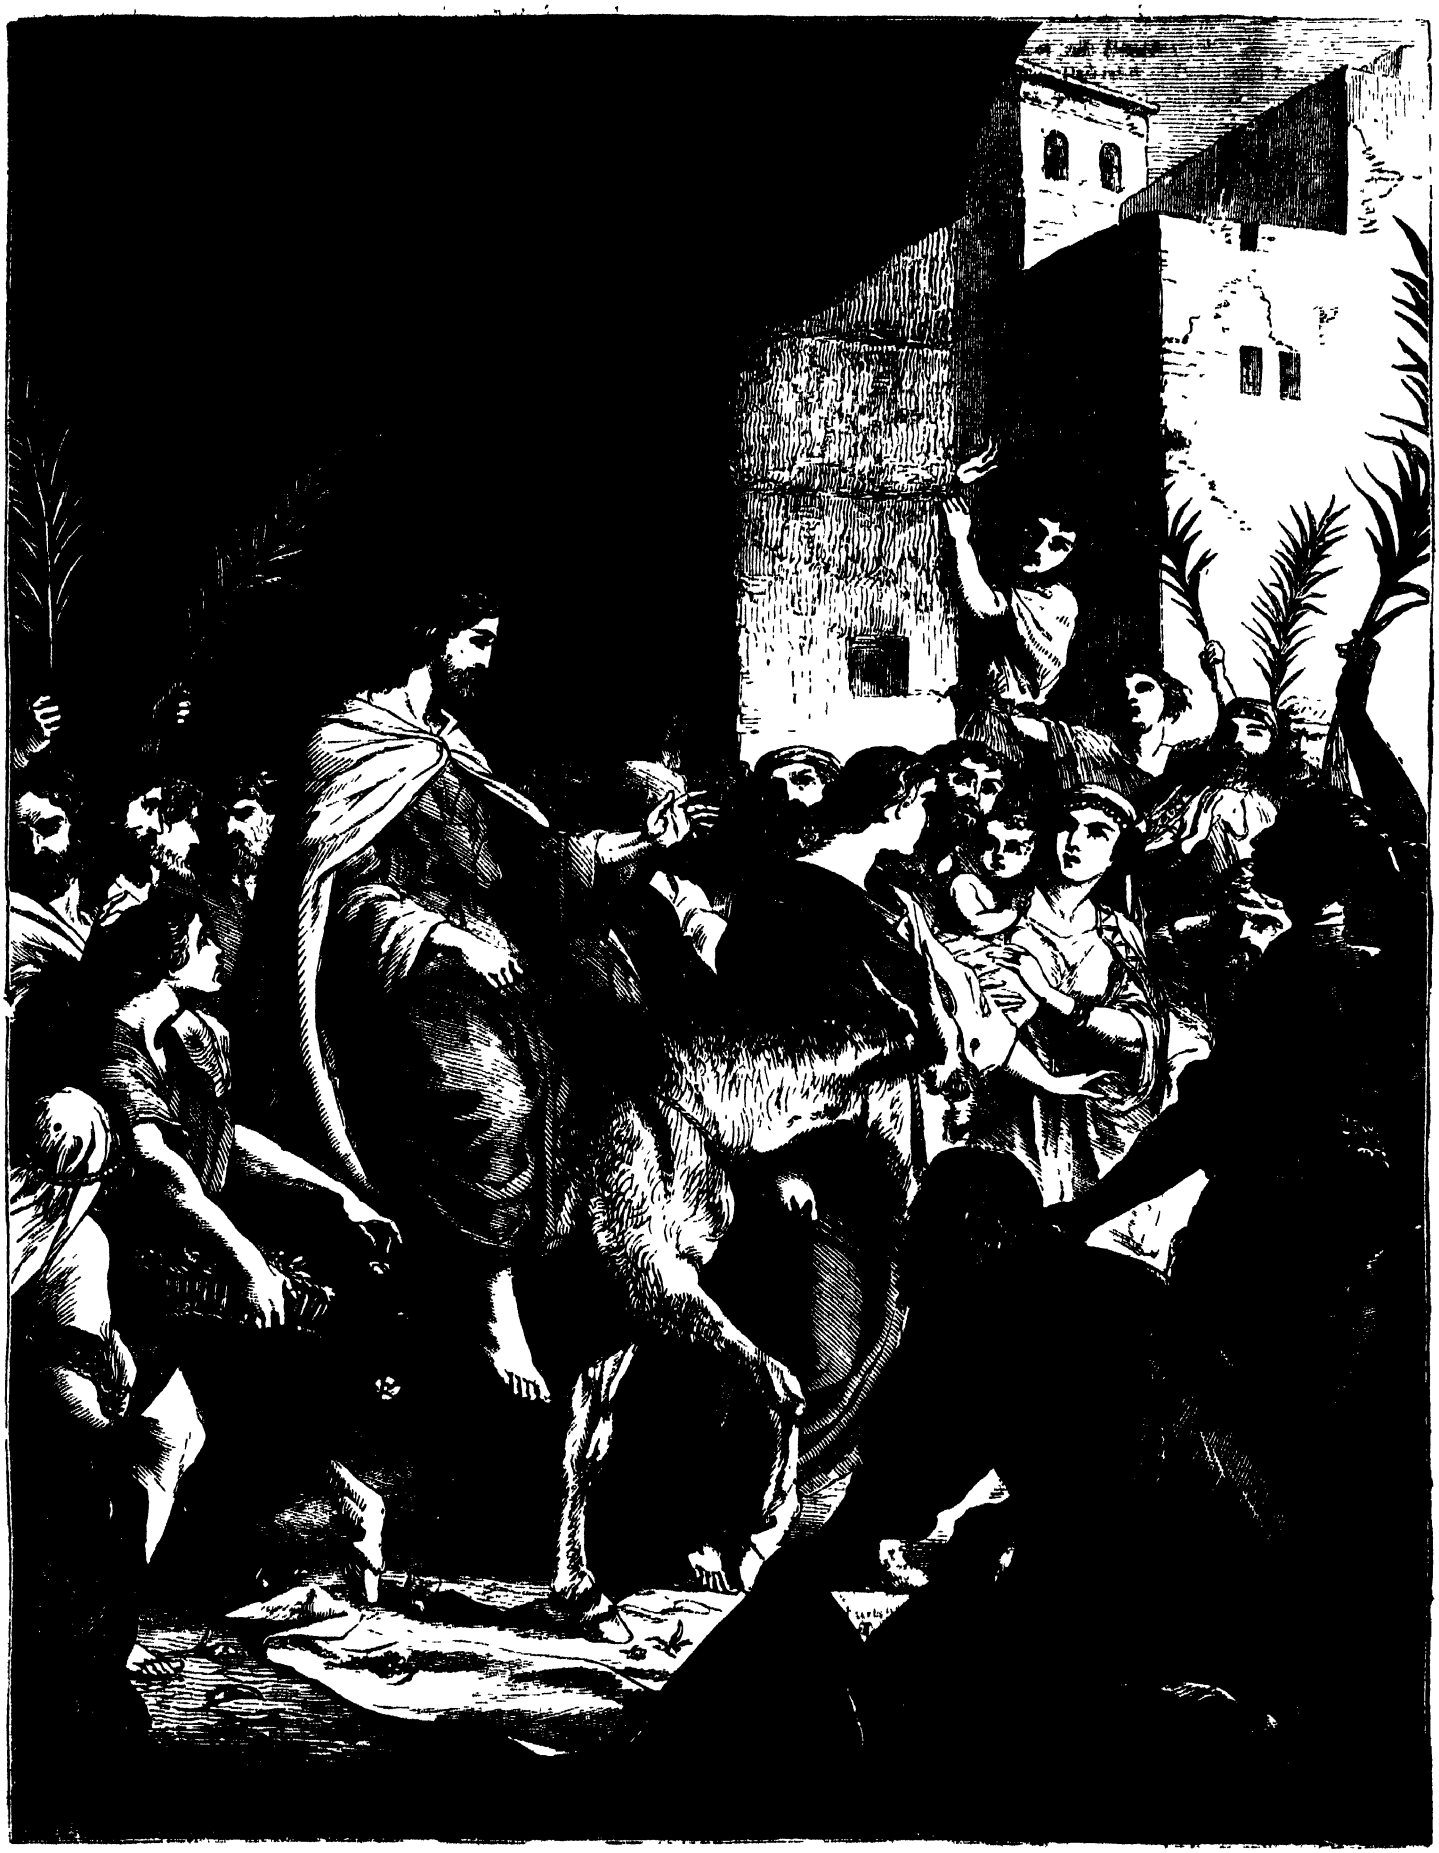
50 And I know that his commandment is life everlasting: whatsoever I speak therefore, even as the Father said unto me, so I speak.

---

11. "By reason of him many of the Jews went away:"—it is worthy of note how Lazarus, who, for a long time after being restored to life, remained "silent, and solemn, and self-involved," became such an inciting cause among the Jews of that enmity which reached its sad climax in putting the Saviour to death so much so, that even the life of Lazarus is in danger. What depth of hatred! what malignant determination! And yet the Incarnate Son did pray, "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do!"

12—19. For a farther account of this triumphal entry into Jerusalem, see Matt. xxi. 1—17, Mark xi 1—11; Luke xix. 29—44, with the Notes.

"The Pharisees said, Perceive ye how ye prevail nothing?"—here the rulers of the people are forced to admit that they were losing their hold of the popular mind and feeling; and had the people been left to freedom of action, it is impossible to say in what numbers they would have ranged themselves on the side of Christ and truth.



21. "Bethsaida of Galilee"—this town, which must be distinguished from another Bethsaida which stood on the east bank of the Jordan, was situated on the west of the Jordan, near the Sea of Tiberias. It was the birthplace of Andrew, Peter, and Philip. (Mark xiv. 70; John i. 44.)

24. "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone:"—this is a well-known physiological fact. The vital principle may be in the seed, but unless the seed is brought into contact with the soil and its surrounding elements, and decompose, it yields nothing. Everything must die to live, and the life which comes through death is yet more fruitful. "These wise men from the West represent at the end of Christ's life that which the wise men from the East represented at its beginning; but these come to the cross of the King, even as those came to his manger, and receive presently fuller intelligence." This fuller intelligence is, that it is necessary for Christ to die, that the Divine love might be manifested by the accomplishment of the work which his Father gave him to do, and that he might thereby bring life and immortality to light, and open the kingdom of heaven to all believers; and that every one who would be Christ's disciple must be prepared for the self-denying service of his Divine Master, if he desired hereafter to dwell with his risen Lord, and to behold his glory.

27. "What shall I say?"—there are those who would change the punctuation of this verse, and read it thus:—"Now is my soul troubled; and what! shall I say, Father! save me from this hour? But for this cause came I unto this hour." Others, however, object to this proposed change in the punctuation. It makes no important difference which reading is adopted, for in both there comes out the perfect submission of the Saviour's will to the will of his Father. Truly "it must have been more than a mere mortal apprehension of death—it must have been a conflict and agitation of a peculiar and unshared kind which could thus disturb the Son of God as the Son of man, in the midst of his testimony to his own and to his Father's glory." This is a mystery which we can never fathom.

31. "Now is the judgment of this world:"—the crisis, the era has arrived in which the work of discrimination and judgment is to come into view, in dethroning Satan as the prince of this world, and in opening a way for the recovery of fallen man from Satan's grasp. This is to be done through my cross and passion, so that I, if I be lifted up, will draw both Jews and Gentiles unto me—men of all languages and of all climes.

39. "They could not believe:"—simply because from the beginning they would not, in spite of all the overwhelming evidence by which they were surrounded; and this, as Stier says, "is the predicted judicial hardening, by the fulfilment of which unbelief itself receives a direful admonition, and the visitation becomes only a new argument urging men to embrace the faith of Christ."

"HOSANNA: BLESSED IS THE KING OF ISRAEL THAT COMETH IN THE NAME OF THE LORD."—JOHN XII. 13.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 Jesus washeth the disciples' feet; exhorteth them to humility and charity. 18 He foretelleth, and discovereth to John by a token, that Judas should betray him 31 commandeth them to love one another, 36 and forewarneth Peter of his denial.

NOW before the feast of the passover, when Jesus knew that his hour was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end.[a]

2 And supper being ended, the devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray him;[b]

3 Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was come from God, and went to God;[c]

4 He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself.[d]

5 After that he poureth water into a bason, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded.

6 Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and [1]Peter saith unto him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet?[e]

7 Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter.[f]

8 Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me.[g]

10 Jesus saith to him, He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and ye are clean, but not all.[h]

11 For he knew who should betray him; therefore said he, Ye are not all clean.[i]

12 So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you?

13 Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well: for so I am.[j]

14 If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet.[k]

15 For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.[l]

20 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that receiveth whomsoever I send receiveth me; and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me.[q]

21 When Jesus had thus said, he was troubled in spirit, and testified, and said, Verily, verily, I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me.[r]

22 Then the disciples looked one on another, doubting of whom he spake.

42 "Among the chief rulers;"—that is, among the members of the Jewish council, such as Nicodemus and others; but still the other portion of the council retained their opposition to Christ and his doctrine, and so far acted as a restraint on those who had embraced his truth.

49 "He gave me a commandment:"—the word "commandment" is to be taken in the sense of "commission;" and this commission in its tendency is no other than life everlasting for all who believe. It is the will of God that all who receive the Son should in due time receive life eternal.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Redeemer, having closed his public ministry, now gathers round him the narrow circle of his own immediate followers, who had courageously confessed their faith in him as their Saviour and their Lord, and who were solemnly pledged to the interests of his kingdom, and makes known to them the most loving thoughts of his heart; he addresses to them words of richest consolation, and, in a strain of sublime devotion never before attained, commends them to the grace and care of his Father.

That this last meal of Jesus with his disciples was no other than the Passover is now all but universally admitted. This was followed by the institution of his own supper, but of which John gives us no account; simply because the other Evangelists had given the narration with such minuteness and precision as to render any further reference to it unnecessary to John's main design. What the other Evangelists omit, he here takes up—the washing of the disciples' feet, which act forms an historical basis for the discourses which follow.

A question has been raised as to the day on which our Lord ate his last Passover. Was it on the evening of the Thursday or the Friday? It was on the evening of the Friday that the Jews kept the sacred feast; and yet the great majority of critics and commentators incline to the opinion that our Lord kept it on the evening of Thursday. It is argued that in the computation of time, as in many other things, an interruption or derangement had crept in among the Jews. From Exod. xii 6 we learn that the paschal lamb was to be killed in the evening of the fourteenth day of the first month; but the phrase "in the evening" is thought by some, even among the Jews, to mean after the going down of the sun till entire darkness; while others of them maintain that it points only to the decline of the day before the going down of the sun. The reckoning of the day thus became subject to diversity; but our Lord kept to the proper and legal day, which had been displaced by the dominant party in the Jewish Church. If the paschal lamb was slain after the going down of the sun, then our Lord was put to death on the same day—the one sacrifice for sin.

1 "Before the feast:"—it is impossible to determine the exact time, but it was in all likelihood on the day preceding.

2. "Supper being ended:"—this rendering is just the reverse of what the original expresses. It should read, "While supper was being served," and just as they had taken their seats at the table.

"Having now put into the heart of Judas."—but Judas had before this entered into covenant with the Sanhedrim to betray the Saviour; and therefore the meaning must be, that the traitor became at this moment the subject of such Satanic influence that he could no longer conceal the deep, dark design of his heart.

5. "Began to wash the disciples' feet:"—this was the office of the meanest slave; and yet our Lord, laying aside such articles of his dress as would have encumbered him in performing such a service, washed the feet of his disciples; and while in the very act of doing it, his glory and his humility appear in marvellous combination.

8. "If I wash thee not:"—taking the outward washing as symbolical of inward moral purity, it was most solemnly true that without spiritual purification there could be neither union nor fellowship with Christ; but it does not follow from this that submission to the outward rite was any evidence of the inward and spiritual grace. The Saviour washed the feet of Judas, and yet Judas betrayed him. In the spiritual sense, whoever is washed by Jesus is brought into union with him; but if not so washed, we can have no part with him.

16. "The servant is not greater than his lord:"—the occasion which gave rise to this act of humility and of condescension on the part of our Lord, as we learn from Luke xxii. 24—27, was a strife among his disciples for the pre-eminence; and in what more forcible manner could he, the Lord of all, have taught them the lesson of humility than by this act of deepest self-humiliation, in which he stooped to render a service to his disciples that custom was wont to regard as the duty of the hireling or of the slave?

19—21. "That when it is come to pass:"—the correspondence between his words and the future event would powerfully confirm his claim to be the Messiah, and therefore present another ground for their faith and confidence.

23 Now there was leaning on Jesus' bosom one of his disciples, whom Jesus loved.[a]

24 Simon Peter therefore beckoned to him, that he should ask who it should be of whom he spake.

25 He then lying on Jesus' breast saith unto him, Lord, who is it?

26 Jesus answered, He it is, to whom I shall give a [1]sop, when I have dipped it. And when he had dipped the sop, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon.

27 And after the sop Satan entered into him. Then said Jesus unto him, That thou doest, do quickly.[b]

28 Now no man at the table knew for what intent he spake this unto him.

29 For some of them thought, because Judas had the bag, that Jesus had said unto him, Buy those things that we have need of against the feast; or, that he should give something to the poor.[c]

30 He then having received the sop went immediately out: and it was night.

31 ¶ Therefore, when he was gone out, Jesus said, Now is the Son of man glorified, and God is glorified in him.[d]

32 If God be glorified in him, God shall also glorify him in himself, and shall straightway glorify him.[e]

33 Little children, yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me: and as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go, ye cannot come; so now I say to you.[f]

34 A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.[g]

35 By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.[h]

36 ¶ Simon Peter said unto him, Lord, whither goest thou? Jesus answered him, Whither I go, thou canst not follow me now; but thou shalt follow me afterwards.[i]

37 Peter said unto him, Lord, why cannot I follow thee now? I will lay down my life for thy sake.[j]

38 Jesus answered him, Wilt thou lay down thy life for my sake? Verily, verily, I say unto thee, The cock shall not crow, till thou hast denied me thrice.

CHAPTER XIV.

1 Christ comforteth his disciples with the hope of heaven: 6 professeth himself the way, the truth, and the life, and one with the Father. 13 assureth their prayers in his name to be effectual. 15 requireth love and obedience, 16 promiseth the Holy Ghost the Comforter, 27 and leaveth his peace with them.

LET not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me.[k]

2 In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you.[l]

3 And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also.[m]

4 And whither I go ye know, and the way ye know.

5 Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest; and how can we know the way?

6 Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me.[n]

7 If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also: and from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him.[o]

8 Philip saith unto him, Lord, shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us.

9 Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father?[p]

10 Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? the words that I speak unto you I speak not of myself: but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works.[q]

11 Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: or else believe me for the very works' sake.[r]

The connection of this with the verse following is rather difficult, except we conceive of the Saviour as now contemplating the mission of his followers as his representatives in the world, and the expositors of his truth, when suddenly his thoughts revert to the traitor, and then he becomes troubled in spirit; therefore, we may suppose that the Saviour was influenced by one of those deep mental agitations which disturbed his sinless nature where guilt and ruin were foreseen.

26. "To whom I shall give a sop."—this sop was a piece of unleavened bread dipped in a certain sauce, and in itself was the symbolical expression of friendly affection, though, in the case of Judas, "the affecting sign of a heretofore relation." Taken as a token of friendship, the other disciples might at first think that Judas was highly favoured—it was the last appeal of Infinite Love to the heart of the traitor. Judas might have perceived that he was known, and the love with which he was still in contact might now at the last moment have availed for his salvation. As Bengel beautifully says, "How very near to Jesus was Judas on this occasion! But in a short while after, by what a wide gulf did glory separate Jesus from Judas, and destruction separate Judas from Jesus!"

27. "That thou doest, do quickly:"—when it is said that Satan entered into Judas, the meaning is that the man was wholly under the dominion and subject to the will of the Evil One; and therefore the Saviour, knowing that he was bent on fulfilling his dark design, bids him away from his own presence, and from the more purified circle of his disciples.

34. "A new commandment:"—a great deal has been said as to what this new commandment is; but the opinions are too numerous to be inserted here. If the Saviour uttered these words in connection with the institution of his own supper, in which was set forth his self-sacrificing love in all its fulness, then he thus gave his followers a new standard for the degree or measure of their love—a love which goes so far as to part with life itself for its chosen object. "Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us; and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren." It was not a new injunction, for the Saviour had already taught that every one was bound to love his neighbour as himself; but here the former precepts of justice, and the more recent precept of love, are condensed into a command, enforced by new motives; and as the fellowship of the Gospel embraces all that bears in it the seed and germ of the Divine life, so the New Testament injunction of brotherly love for Christ's sake comprehends every Christian duty that we can render to others.

CHAPTER XIV.

In this farewell address of our Lord to his chosen followers, we are introduced into the very Holy of Holies in our Christian Revelation. For, in the words of Stier, "what the departing Saviour here poured forth for future remembrance remains still inexhaustible for our poor understanding, and far transcends the common laws of our so-called logical order of thought." The consolations, disclosures, predictions, and promises of the Son of God to his faithful followers, are blessings that none can adequately estimate.

1. "Let not your heart be troubled:"—the disciples were filled with grief arising from the prospect of their Lord's departure, and he seeks to calm and tranquillise their spirits by enjoining upon them a firm faith in what God had revealed concerning him as his Son and their Redeemer, and an equal faith in himself and in all which he had said concerning his mission, work, and future glory. "Believe in God, and believe in me."

2. "Are many mansions:"—the common idea attached to these words is,

12 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father.[a]

13 And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son.[b]

14 If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it.

15 ¶ If ye love me, keep my commandments.[c]

16 And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever;[d]

17 Even the Spirit of truth; whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you.[e]

18 I will not leave you [1]comfortless: I will come to you.[f]

19 Yet a little while, and the world seeth me no more; but ye see me: because I live, ye shall live also.[g]

20 At that day ye shall know that I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in you.[h]

21 He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him.[i]

22 Judas saith unto him, not Iscariot, Lord, how is it that thou wilt manifest thyself unto us, and not unto the world?[j]

23 Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him.[k]

24 He that loveth me not keepeth not my sayings: and the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's which sent me.[l]

25 These things have I spoken unto you, being yet present with you.

1 The consolation and mutual love between Christ and his members, under the parable of the vine. 18 A comfort in the hatred and persecution of the world. 26 The office of the Holy Ghost, and of the apostles.

AM the true vine, and my Father is the husbandman.

2 Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away: and every branch that beareth fruit, he purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit.[s]

3 Now ye are clean through the word which I have spoken unto you.[t]

4 Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me.[u]

5 I am the vine, ye are the branches: He that the amplitude of heaven, as if Christ were desirous of assuring his followers that there is room enough for them in the glorified world—a truth we readily admit. But we can conceive of no such ordinary expression falling from the lips of Incarnate Wisdom. He had spoken of his departure; now he tells them that he is only going to another department of his Father's house. "In that house are many mansions this is one mansion, and here I leave you for a time; I go to another mansion, and ere long I will come and take you to myself, that where I am there ye may be also; for in that higher mansion there is no separation."

6. "I am the way:"—this is an answer to Thomas's question, only the Saviour inverts the order. Thomas was confessedly ignorant both of the end and of the way to that end. Christ, therefore, begins with the latter; and to the question concerning the way, he says, "I am the way;" to the question, "How can we know?" he replies, "I am the truth;" to the question, "Whither?" he answers, "I am the life." The term WAY is used metaphorically to denote that Christ is the only medium through which we can find access to God, either here or hereafter; and, therefore, to the metaphorical declaration, I AM THE WAY, there is subjoined a more literal declaration—I AM THE WAY, THE TRUTH, AND THE LIFE. He who moves onward by this way, he, and he alone, truly avails himself of the right path; and he who steadfastly holds to this way, he has life for ever: therefore, if we desire present comfort and future safety, we must come to Christ, and regard him as the Author of the way, the Teacher of the truth, and the Giver of life.

9. "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father:"—Philip and the other disciples were asking for some outward and visible manifestation; but the Saviour reminds them that God is not to be seen, but only perceived; and that, if their spiritual perception had been rightly exercised, they might have discovered the essentially divine beneath and behind the veil of that humanity which was visible in him to their outward eye. All which God could reveal of himself to man was revealed in Christ; and therefore he that had seen or had the true perception of who and what Christ was, had seen the Father.

12. "Greater works than these:"—this was to result from the completion of his one work of mediation, together with the mission and operation of the Holy Spirit, and no sooner was the Spirit poured out on his disciples than we see the most wondrous results—as, for example, on the day of Pentecost, and as the fruit of a single discourse.

16. "Another Comforter"—the word "Comforter" is peculiar to John, and is not to be found in any other of the New Testament writers. Its meaning is best expressed by our word ADVOCATE; that is, one who is called in to render help—a counsellor, defender, patron—one who speaks in another's behalf, and suggests to him what he ought to say.

27. "Peace I leave with you:"—the common salutation among the Jews was, SHALOM, SHALOM—"Peace, peace"—which, in but too many cases, was both empty and unmeaning; but here our Lord promises to his followers the actual enjoyment of that inward quiet and repose which pervaded his own ineffable nature, and which would yield them the most abiding happiness, hush the tumult of their spirit, and fill them with that peace which passeth all understanding.

30. "Hath nothing in me:"—the Saviour began his public life by entering into conflict with the Evil One, and now, at the close of his life, the attack is to be renewed on the part of Satan; but there was nothing, even after thirty-three years of personal contact with our sinful humanity, in the Incarnate One on which the devil could successfully act. Such a High Priest became us, who, though tempted, was holy, harmless, and undefiled.

CHAPTER XV.

To express the bond of love which existed between himself and his disciples, our Lord chooses the similitude of a vine; but for this selection it is not needful to suppose that our Lord's eye was now resting on a plantation of vines, with fires burning in the midst of it; nor that vines were clustering round the windows of the chamber in which he sat; nor that the chamber was decorated with vine foliage. No; for nothing was more natural than the similitude here employed, if we remember that it was used by Christ immediately after the institution of the supper, in which the highest consecration abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit: for [1]without me ye can do nothing.[a]

6 If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned.[b]

7 If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you.[c]

8 Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples.[d]

9 As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you: continue ye in my love.

10 If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love.[e] had been given to the symbol of the vine, and while the cup of communion was still before him on the table.

9. "Continue ye in my love:"—by holy obedience to his will, they would be increasingly conscious of his love; for as the Father loved him, so he loved them; but their conscious enjoyment of this love depended on that holiness of life which led to obedience.

11. "That my joy might remain in you:"—it has been a question, whether the Saviour here refers to his joy in his disciples, or to their joy flowing from him. Alford is very decided on this point, and makes it the joy of the Son in the consciousness of the love of God—of his unity with the Father, and his desire that their joy might, by the indwelling of that HIS joy, be uplifted and ennobled, even to fulness—to the extreme of their capability of enjoyment—and that this joy might remain with them.

13. "Greater love hath no man than this:"—there are those who affect to have found a contradiction between this verse and Rom. v. 8, where we read that "God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain: that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you.[a]

17 These things I command you, that ye love one another.[b]

18 If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you.[c]

19 If ye were of the world, the world would love his own: but because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you.[d]

20 Remember the word that I said unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord. If they have persecuted me, they will also persecute you; if they have kept my saying, they will keep your's also.[e]

21 But all these things will they do unto you for my name's sake, because they know not him that sent me.[f]

22 If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin: but now they have no [1]cloke for their sin.[g]

23 He that hateth me hateth my Father also.[h]

24 If I had not done among them the works which none other man did, they had not had sin: but now have they both seen and hated both me and my Father.[i]

25 But this cometh to pass, that the word might be fulfilled that is written in their law, They hated me without a cause.[j]

26 But when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father, he shall testify of me:[k]

27 And ye also shall bear witness, because ye have been with me from the beginning.[l]

CHAPTER XVI.

1 Christ comforteth his disciples against tribulation by the promise of the Holy Ghost, and by his resurrection and ascension: 23 assureth their prayers made in his name to be acceptable to his Father. 33 Peace in Christ, and in the world affliction.

THESE things have I spoken unto you, that ye should not be offended.[m]

2 They shall put you out of the synagogues: yea, the time cometh, that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service.[n]

3 And these things will they do unto you, because they have not known the Father, nor me.[o]

4 But these things have I told you, that when the time shall come, ye may remember that I told you of them. And these things I said not unto you at the beginning, because I was with you.[p]

5 But now I go my way to him that sent me; and none of you asketh me, Whither goest thou?[q]

6 But because I have said these things unto you, sorrow hath filled your heart.[r]

7 Nevertheless I tell you the truth; It is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him unto you.[s]

8 And when he is come, he will [2]reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment:

9 Of sin, because they believe not on me;[t]

10 Of righteousness, because I go to my Father, and ye see me no more;[u] sinners, Christ died for us." To die for an enemy is conceived to be a greater act and expression of love than to die for a friend. But the fact is overlooked that those disciples had once been enemies; and though they were friends, their salvation still depended on his death and surely the law of friendship could go no further than to die for those whom we love. The two texts are thus in perfect harmony.

22 "They had not had sin"—according to some expositors, the crime here referred to consisted in a deep-rooted hatred to the person and office of the Saviour, but according to others, it is to be resolved into the sin of unbelief, as being the last, complete, and ruining sin of the Jewish people. The truth is, that both these elements of guilt and culpability are included in the charge preferred by our Lord against his own nation. In their present unbelief all former sin was included, and in proportion to their unbelief was the strength and the intensity of their hatred. In rejecting him, in spite of all evidence supplied, and all remedies employed, they rendered their salvation impracticable.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Saviour, to represent the union subsisting between himself and his followers, chose the vine as one of the most significant emblems in Nature; for although its stock and stem be not sightly, yet in its foliage it is vigorous, beautiful, and richly-spreading, and bears the most generous of all fruits. But here the Redeemer reminds his disciples that union with him would not exempt them from the opposition—the fiercest and most fiery persecution—of the world. On the contrary, in the degree in which they were faithful to him would be the conflict which they would have to maintain This fact our Lord for a season withheld, out of compassion to his disciples, till the minds of his followers were established in the truth, and they had learned to repose their faith in that truth in the face of all opposition, and under the pressure of all suffering. Now he no longer withholds the communication, and thus prepares them for the contest which was before them, animating them to fortitude and fidelity.

1 "That ye should not be offended."—to be forewarned is to be forearmed · with the intimation of coming suffering, he assures them of the abiding presence and all-sufficient grace of the Holy Spirit, the Comforter.

2 "Think that he doeth God service"—the Rabbins designated the murder of those whom they deemed ungodly a sacrifice acceptable to God.

4. "These things I said not:"—his presence with them rendered it unnecessary that he should dwell very largely, in his intercourse with them, either on the sufferings which they would have to endure in the world, or on the consolations which he had provided for them under those sufferings.

5. "None of you asketh me:"—the stress is not to be laid on the fact of his departure, for that, as we learn from chapter xiii. 36, xiv. 5, had occupied their thoughts more than once; but on the NATURE of his departure—what it involved, or what were to be its effects. The idea of his withdrawal from them filled their hearts with such grief as to exclude all deeper, calmer thought about the object to be accomplished, and the means by which it was to be effected

8—11. "He will reprove;"—rather, he will convert through your ministry, and so convince of sin; and he who is thus convinced of sin will either pass over to the righteousness of Christ, or have his share in the judgment that shall be passed upon the wicked. A man convinced of sin, in the evangelical sense of that word, feels his need of a righteousness independent of himself—even the righteousness of Christ, while the man who has the conviction of sin, and neither repents nor believes, must eventually perish.

13. "He will guide you into all truth:"—these words must not be confined in their application to the Apostles to them first the Spirit revealed the deep things of God, and through their teaching and writings the same Divine Spirit leads us, by his enlightening and sanctifying influence, into all truth as it is revealed in the pages of Holy Writ.

22. "I will see you again"—the primary reference, no doubt, is to his appearance after his resurrection, when we are told that their sorrow was turned into joy; but there can be no question, we think, that our Lord here intended to fix their thoughts on the sublime and all-inspiring fact of his future triumphant presence with them and with the whole Church, and which, as they were filled with his Spirit, they would be enabled mentally to realise, and be led earnestly to long for the day when this blissful scene shall become the portion of the redeemed.

30. "Needest not that any man should ask thee:"—he had just expressed himself with such freedom and clearness that they were no longer in doubt as to whither he was going; and hence the corresponding conviction which they had of whence he came.

33. "In the world ye shall have tribulation:"—the opposition of the world,

11 Of judgment, because the prince of this world is judged.[a]

12 I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now.[b]

13 Howbeit when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak: and he will shew you things to come.[c]

14 He shall glorify me: for he shall receive of mine, and shall shew it unto you.

15 All things that the Father hath are mine: therefore said I, that he shall take of mine, and shall shew it unto you.[d]

16 A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me, because I go to the Father.[e]

17 Then said some of his disciples among themselves, What is this that he saith unto us, A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me: and, Because I go to the Father?

18 They said therefore, What is this that he saith, A little while? we cannot tell what he saith.

19 Now Jesus knew that they were desirous to ask him, and said unto them, Do ye enquire among yourselves of that I said, A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me?

20 Verily, verily, I say unto you, That ye shall weep and lament, but the world shall rejoice: and ye shall be sorrowful, but your sorrow shall be turned into joy.

21 A woman when she is in travail hath sorrow, because her hour is come: but as soon as she is delivered of the child, she remembereth no more the anguish, for joy that a man is born into the world.[f]

22 And ye now therefore have sorrow: but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you.[g]

23 And in that day ye shall ask me nothing. Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you.[h]

24 Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name: ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full.[i]

25 These things have I spoken unto you in [1]proverbs: but the time cometh, when I shall no more speak unto you in [2]proverbs, but I shall shew you plainly of the Father.

26 At that day ye shall ask in my name: and I say not unto you, that I will pray the Father for you:[j]

27 For the Father himself loveth you, because ye have loved me, and have believed that I came out from God.[k]

28 I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world: again, I leave the world, and go to the Father.[l]

29 His disciples said unto him, Lo, now speakest thou plainly, and speakest no [3]proverb.

30 Now are we sure that thou knowest all things, and needest not that any man should ask thee: by this we believe that thou camest forth from God.[m]

31 Jesus answered them, Do ye now believe?

32 Behold, the hour cometh, yea, is now come, that ye shall be scattered, every man to [4]his own, and shall leave me alone: and yet I am not alone, because the Father is with me.[n]

33 These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world.[o]

CHAPTER XVII.

1 Christ prayeth to his Father to glorify him, 6 to preserve his apostles, 11 in unity, 17 and truth, 20 to glorify them, and all other believers with him in heaven.

THESE words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee:[p]

2 As thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him.[q]

3 And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent.[r]

4 I have glorified thee on the earth: I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do.[s]

5 And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was.[t]

6 I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world: thine they were, and thou gavest them me; and they have kept thy word.[u]

7 Now they have known that all things whatsoever thou hast given me are of thee.

8 For I have given unto them the words which like the storm from the bosom of some darker cloud, was about to burst upon them in the prosecution of their sublime mission; and he therefore fortifies their minds, and assures them of a participation in the rest and quiet possessed by him in his own ineffable nature. With Christ in the vessel, we may smile at the storm.

CHAPTER XVII.

We have seen that during the last moments spent by our Lord in the midst of his chosen disciples before he suffered, "words full of heavenly thought flowed from his lips. all that his heart, which glowed with love, had yet to say to his friends, was compressed into this short season." We have discovered, moreover, how rich in truth and consolation were these last farewell words. And now we see him, like a consecrated High Priest, passing into the holiest of all, and there breathing out the deepest feelings of his soul on behalf of his Church, in a prayer which stands unparalleled; for, as Luther justly says, "plain and artless as it sounds, it is so deep, and rich, and wide, that no one can find its bottom or extent"

It has been a question—In what does the intercession of our Lord consist? Is it the fact that he has, like the high priest under the law, taken the blood of atonement into heaven, as the true Holy of Holies, and there, in oral language, made intercession on behalf of his Church? Or does his intercession consist in the existence and presentation of his entire humanity before the throne of God? We have nothing whatever to do with the mode in which the intercession is carried on, but simply with the fact; and of this we have abundant testimony in the statements and representations of the thou gavest me; and they have received them, and have known surely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me.[a]

9 I pray for them: I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me; for they are thine.[b]

10 And all mine are thine, and thine are mine; and I am glorified in them.[c]

11 And now I am no more in the world, but these are in the world, and I come to thee. Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are.[d]

12 While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name: those that thou gavest me I have kept, and none of them is lost, but the son of perdition; that the scripture might be fulfilled.[e]

13 And now come I to thee; and these things I speak in the world, that they might have my joy fulfilled in themselves.

14 I have given them thy word; and the world hath hated them, because they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.[f]

15 I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil.[g]

16 They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

17 Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth.[h]

18 As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world.[i]

19 And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be [1]sanctified through the truth.[j]

20 Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word;

21 That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me.[k]

22 And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one:[l]

23 I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one; and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me.[m]

CHAPTER XVIII.

1 Judas betrayeth Jesus. 6 The officers fall to the ground. 10 Peter smiteth off Malchus' ear. 12 Jesus is taken, and led unto Annas and Caiaphas. 15 Peter's denial. 19 Jesus examined before Caiaphas. 28 His arraignment before Pilate. 36 His kingdom. 40 The Jews ask Barabbas to be let loose.

WHEN Jesus had spoken these words, he went forth with his disciples over the brook Cedron, where was a garden, into the which he entered, and his disciples.[q]

2 And Judas also, which betrayed him, knew the place: for Jesus ofttimes resorted thither with his disciples.[r]

3 Judas then, having received a band of men and officers from the chief priests and Pharisees, cometh thither with lanterns and torches and weapons.[s]

4 Jesus therefore, knowing all things that should come upon him, went forth, and said unto them, Whom seek ye?

5 They answered him, Jesus of Nazareth. Jesus saith unto them, I am he. And Judas also, which betrayed him, stood with them.

6 As soon then as he had said unto them, I am he, they went backward, and fell to the ground.

7 Then asked he them again, Whom seek ye? And they said, Jesus of Nazareth.

Christian Testament.—"Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true; but into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us." "We have such an high priest, who is set on the right hand of the throne of the majesty in the heavens, a minister of the sanctuary, and of the true tabernacle, which the Lord pitched, and not man." With these fresh and ever-living words of inspiration before us, how true is it that "he bears in the sanctuary the precious name of his people upon his breast as the true High Priest, and that his prayer is supported by his almighty power, for his glorified humanity sits in its perfect tabernacle."

4. "I have finished the work"—the Saviour here speaks by anticipation So certain was he of being borne up by his Father in the extreme depth of his sorrow, and of completing all for which he had assumed our nature, that he confidently speaks of his work as done yet the garden and the cross were still before him. He had honoured the law of God actively by obeying, and was now proceeding to honour its claims passively by submitting. To accomplish willingly whatever God has enjoined, and to endure patiently whatever he has appointed, "is to finish the work which he gave us to do"

10. "And thine are mine"—any creature can say, "All mine are thine"—that is, everything which we possess has God for its Source and its Proprietor; but what creature dare say, "All thine are mine?" This includes an eternity and independence of being, with the absolute possession of whatever exists throughout the universe. Such language could come from the lips of Him only who could say, "I and my Father are one."

22. "The glory which thou gavest me I have given them:"—the glory which the Father bestowed upon the Son was the taking of him as the Son, clothed in our nature, into such endearing union with himself, and also through the Son revealing himself to the world so Christ gives this glory to his disciples by taking them into deathless union with himself as their Redeemer, and through them revealing himself to an unbelieving world.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The glorification of renewed humanity in God is the sublime thought with which our great High Priest closes his intercessory prayer in behalf of his disciples, and, in fact, in behalf of his Church throughout all ages. As Olshausen beautifully says, "He has compressed in the last moments of his conversation with his own the most sublime and glorious sentiments ever uttered by human lips. But hardly has the sound of the last word died away, when Jesus passes with his disciples over the brook Cedron to Gethsemane, and the bitter conflict draws on"

1 "Over the brook Cedron"—this mountain stream, which emptied itself into the Dead Sea, ran through the valley which separated Jerusalem from the Mount of Olives, and formed the eastern boundary of the ancient and of the modern city. We are told that the stream was some nine feet in width, and that, when swollen by the rains, its current was deep and rapid. For about nine months in the year the channel or bed of the stream is dry.

"Where was a garden"—this was Gethsemane, a grove thickly planted with olives, and only about a stone's throw from the brook Kedron, or Cedron, as it is often called. It lay on the western side of the Mount of Olives, and commanded a full view of Jerusalem.

2. "And Judas . . . . . knew the place:"—this by some annotators is regarded as a proof that the traitor had left the holy circle of the disciples

"THEN CAME JESUS FORTH, WEARING THE CROWN OF THORNS, AND THE PURPLE ROBE."—JOHN XIX. 5.

8 Jesus answered, I have told you that I am he: if therefore ye seek me, let these go their way:

9 That the saying might be fulfilled, which he spake, Of them which thou gavest me have I lost none.[a]

10 Then Simon Peter having a sword drew it, and smote the high priest's servant, and cut off his right ear. The servant's name was Malchus.[b]

11 Then said Jesus unto Peter, Put up thy sword into the sheath: the cup which my Father hath given me, shall I not drink it?[c]

12 Then the band and the captain and officers of the Jews took Jesus, and bound him,

13 And led him away to Annas first; for he was father in law to Caiaphas, which was the high priest that same [1]year.[d]

14 Now Caiaphas was he, which gave counsel to the Jews, that it was expedient that one man should die for the people.[e]

15 ¶ And Simon Peter followed Jesus, and so did another disciple: that disciple was known unto the before the Saviour had addressed to them his farewell discourse (chapters xiv.—xvii.); and therefore of his not being present at the Lord's Supper.

8. "With lanterns and torches:"—we learn from chapter xiii. 30 that "it was night," and hence these lights. The weapons, no doubt, belonged to the band or cohort of Roman soldiers which, with the officers of the Jewish authorities, went in search of Christ.

8. "Let these go their way:"—how intense the love of the Saviour for his followers! In the immediate prospect of the most overwhelming suffering and death, he forgets himself in his solicitude for them. The soldiers had in all likelihood threatened the life of his followers, and therefore he at once gives himself up, that they might escape.

9. "That the saying might be fulfilled:"—the words, as originally employed by our Lord, were not a prophecy, but a simple declaration, and in the present instance were again, though in a far inferior sense, verified. The words had unquestionably a much deeper meaning than what belonged to this occasion. Nor should the principles laid down by Alford on the fulfilment of prophecy ever be overlooked—"that to fulfil a prophecy is not to exhaust its capability of being again and again fulfilled; that the words of the Lord have many stages of unfolding; and that the temporal deliverance of the Apostles now was doubtless but a part in the great spiritual safe-keeping which the Lord asserted by anticipation in these words."

10. "Then Simon Peter . . . . . The servant's name was Malchus:"—nowhere else is the name of Peter given in connection with this act, nor is the name of Malchus given by the other Evangelists. It is not improbable, as Bengel thinks, that this man, for a long time after, continued to be well known among both Jews and Christians.—See Matt. xxvi. 51.

13. "Led him away to Annas:"—it appears that although this office was in reality filled by Caiaphas, yet the statement in the inspired narrative is confirmed by historic testimony. Whether this hearing before Annas is to be taken as entirely distinct from that which is recorded in the other Gospels, is a question on which the authorities are undecided.

15. "So did another disciple:"—from the uniform practice of John, in high priest, and went in with Jesus into the palace of the high priest.[a]

16 But Peter stood at the door without. Then went out that other disciple, which was known unto the high priest, and spake unto her that kept the door, and brought in Peter.[b]

17 Then saith the damsel that kept the door unto Peter, Art not thou also one of this man's disciples? He saith, I am not.

18 And the servants and officers stood there, who had made a fire of coals; for it was cold: and they warmed themselves: and Peter stood with them, and warmed himself.

19 ¶ The high priest then asked Jesus of his disciples, and of his doctrine.

20 Jesus answered him, I spake openly to the world; I ever taught in the synagogue, and in the temple, whither the Jews always resort; and in secret have I said nothing.[c]

21 Why askest thou me? ask them which heard me, what I have said unto them: behold, they know what I said.

22 And when he had thus spoken, one of the officers which stood by struck Jesus [1]with the palm of his hand, saying, Answerest thou the high priest so?[d]

23 Jesus answered him, If I have spoken evil, bear witness of the evil: but if well, why smitest thou me?

24 Now Annas had sent him bound unto Caiaphas the high priest.[e]

25 And Simon Peter stood and warmed himself. They said therefore unto him, Art not thou also one of his disciples? He denied it, and said, I am not.[f]

26 One of the servants of the high priest, being his kinsman whose ear Peter cut off, saith, Did not I see thee in the garden with him?

27 Peter then denied again: and immediately the cock crew.[g]

28 ¶ Then led they Jesus from Caiaphas unto the [2]hall of judgment: and it was early; and they themselves went not into the judgment hall, lest they should be defiled; but that they might eat the passover.[h]

29 Pilate then went out unto them, and said, What accusation bring ye against this man?

30 They answered and said unto him, If he were not a malefactor, we would not have delivered him up unto thee.

31 Then said Pilate unto them, Take ye him, and judge him according to your law. The Jews therefore said unto him, It is not lawful for us to put any man to death:

32 That the saying of Jesus might be fulfilled, which he spake, signifying what death he should die.[i]

33 Then Pilate entered into the judgment hall again, and called Jesus, and said unto him, Art thou the King of the Jews?[j]

34 Jesus answered him, Sayest thou this thing of thyself, or did others tell it thee of me?

35 Pilate answered, Am I a Jew? Thine own nation and the chief priests have delivered thee unto me: what hast thou done?

36 Jesus answered, My kingdom is not of this world: if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence.[k]

37 Pilate therefore said unto him, Art thou a king then? Jesus answered, Thou sayest that I am a king. To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth. Every one that is of the truth heareth my voice.[l]

38 Pilate saith unto him, What is truth? And when he had said this, he went out again unto the Jews, and saith unto them, I find in him no fault at all.[m]

39 But ye have a custom, that I should release unto you one at the passover: will ye therefore that I release unto you the King of the Jews?[n]

40 Then cried they all again, saying, Not this man, but Barabbas. Now Barabbas was a robber.[o] omitting his own name in every scene in which he was himself conspicuous, we have not a doubt that the reference here is to the beloved disciple himself How he was known to the high priest does not appear.

16. "Spake unto her that kept the door."—whether Annas and Caiaphas occupied one and the same palace, we cannot tell; but it is well known that women were employed among the Jews in the capacity of door-keepers, as here described.

19. "Asked Jesus . . . . . of his doctrine"—it may be that this inquiry was instituted in the hope that the Saviour might criminate himself, and thus furnish matter of accusation before the Sanhedrim.

22. "One of the officers."—not one of the Roman cohort, but some one in the service of the Sanhedrim The Saviour had simply referred to those who had listened to his teaching as to independent testimony; and hence this was a most unjustifiable act

24. "Sent him bound unto Caiaphas:"—from verse 12 we learn that he had been bound, and, so bound, was brought before Annas: now, Annas does not set him free, but transfers him, still bound, to the judgment-seat of Caiaphas, which was, perhaps, under the same roof. John does not relate the hearing before Caiaphas, for the simple reason that he never gives the preliminary proceedings where he has already, by anticipation, substantially given its result.

25—27. On the denial of Peter, and its attendant circumstances, see Matt. xxvi. 71—74.

28. "Lest they should be defiled:"—Pilate, as a Roman consul, was, of course, a Gentile; but the entrance of a Jew into the house of a Gentile made him unclean until the evening. Hence these Jews would not enter the Prætorium, lest by defilement they should be excluded from the Paschal Feast.

31. "It is not lawful for us to put any man to death:"—Pilate would not proceed to try the case till the Jews had preferred a formal accusation against the Saviour. They assert that he is a malefactor, but of this Pilate had yet no proof; and hence he tells them that if they had a law by which he stood accused and condemned, then it was for them to carry out that law, for he could not be the penal officer of the Sanhedrim. Here they were involved in a difficulty. It was not lawful for them to put any man to death. From the time that Archelaus was deposed, in A.D 6–7, and Judea became a Roman province, it followed as a consequence that the Roman law deprived them of the power of putting any man to death.

32 "What death he should die."—in chap. xii. 32 Jesus had said, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." Had he been condemned by Jewish law, he would have been stoned; but capital punishment, by Roman law, was crucifixion.

37. "That I should bear witness unto the truth:"—Jesus did not come into the world to recommend by his testimony truth in general, but the truth of the Gospel; and every one who is desirous of acquiring true religion "hears his voice," and gives heed to his instructions.

CHAPTER XIX.

1. "Pilate took Jesus, and scourged him:"—Olshausen thinks this was an act of lenity on the part of the Roman procurator, who imagined that he might thus overcome the hatred of the Jews, and save the life of his prisoner; and certainly Luke xxiii. 16, 22 favours this view: and yet the very life which, with his convictions of Christ's innocence, he should have shielded as his own, and even with his own, he, in his weakness, sacrificed to popular fury.

CHAPTER XIX.

1 Christ is scourged, crowned with thorns, and beaten. 4 Pilate is desirous to release him, but being overcome with the outrage of the Jews, he delivered him to be crucified. 23 They cast lots for his garments. 26 He commendeth his mother to John. 28 He dieth. 31 His side is pierced. 38 He is buried by Joseph and Nicodemus.

THEN Pilate therefore took Jesus, and scourged him.[a]

2 And the soldiers platted a crown of thorns, and put it on his head, and they put on him a purple robe,

3 And said, Hail, King of the Jews! and they smote him with their hands.

4 Pilate therefore went forth again, and saith unto them, Behold, I bring him forth to you, that ye may know that I find no fault in him.[b]

5 Then came Jesus forth, wearing the crown of thorns, and the purple robe. And Pilate saith unto them, Behold the man!

6 When the chief priests therefore and officers saw him, they cried out, saying, Crucify him, crucify him. Pilate saith unto them, Take ye him, and crucify him: for I find no fault in him.[c]

7 The Jews answered him, We have a law, and by our law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God.[d]

8 ¶ When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he was the more afraid;

9 And went again into the judgment hall, and saith unto Jesus, Whence art thou? But Jesus gave him no answer.[e]

10 Then saith Pilate unto him, Speakest thou not unto me? knowest thou not that I have power to crucify thee, and have power to release thee?

11 Jesus answered, Thou couldest have no power at all against me, except it were given thee from above: therefore he that delivered me unto thee hath the greater sin.[f]

12 And from thenceforth Pilate sought to release him: but the Jews cried out, saying, If thou let this man go, thou art not Cæsar's friend: whosoever maketh himself a king speaketh against Cæsar.[g]

13 ¶ When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he brought Jesus forth, and sat down in the judgment seat in a place that is called the Pavement, but in the Hebrew, Gabbatha.

14 And it was the preparation of the passover, and about the sixth hour: and he saith unto the Jews, Behold your King![h]

15 But they cried out, Away with him, away with him, crucify him. Pilate saith unto them, Shall I crucify your King? The chief priests answered, We have no king but Cæsar.[i]

16 Then delivered he him therefore unto them to be crucified. And they took Jesus, and led him away.[j]

17 And he bearing his cross went forth into a place called the place of a skull, which is called in the Hebrew Golgotha:[k]

18 Where they crucified him, and two other with him, on either side one, and Jesus in the midst.

2. "Platted a crown of thorns:"—we cannot conceive that this act of mockery took place in the presence of Pilate; it is more probable that while the soldiers were engaged in scourging Jesus, he had retired into the interior of his own dwelling with a burdened heart and an accusing conscience. In his absence, the soldiers, encouraged and excited by the Jews, indulged themselves in these acts of solemn mockery.

5. "Behold the man!"—was this the language of scorn, or of deep feeling and corresponding solicitude? We are inclined to believe with those who think that "the only true interpretation of this expression is that according to which it is regarded as the efflux of the Roman's utmost sympathy with the fate of the Being who had exercised on him so mighty an influence." But "whilst the stubborn Roman, who had grown up amid the din of battle, and had familiarised himself with hardship and suffering, was seized with a feeling of tender sympathy upon beholding in his thorn-crown the King in whom so wondrously commingled heavenly dignity with the deepest humiliation, they who were accustomed to what is holy—who their life long had employed themselves about the sacred law, and the prophecies relating to this very Being—these men could only vociferate their merciless cry, 'Crucify him! crucify him!'"

9. "Jesus gave him no answer:"—on what principle did the Redeemer of the world, at such a moment, maintain this entire silence? His very silence was an answer; but apart from this, Pilate had heard enough from the lips of Jesus to lead him to decision. It was, therefore, unnecessary for our Lord to reiterate his replies in the ears of a man who was so unprepared to act according to his own deep convictions; and in the sublime silence of the Saviour he not only discovers the majesty of our Lord's bearing, but is furnished with a reply to his own question which nothing could evade or weaken.

13. "In a place that is called the Pavement:"—the seat of judgment was outside the prætorium, or hall, and stood on an elevation, like the bench of our judges in modern times. The floor of this platform, and perhaps the whole area of the apartment, was paved with stone. Here, in the presence of the Roman procurator, "the highest passion and the most dignified repose once more are seen confronting each other!"

17. "Golgotha:"—another name for Calvary, which was north of the ancient city of Jerusalem, and about half a mile distant from the Temple. It was called "Golgotha, or the place of a skull," as we have before remarked, either from its natural shape or from the fact that it was the spot selected for the execution of criminals.

The engraving represents a portion of the street along which tradition states that our Saviour passed on his way to crucifixion. An archway across the street is called the Ecce Homo—Behold the Man!—because it is supposed that there Pilate brought forth Jesus, and stood himself when he uttered these words to the people. The designation Via Dolorosa, or "The Sorrowful Way," is not very ancient, but the monks have succeeded in marking along it quite a multitude of places where they say particular events took place. Dr. Robinson says that here "monkish tradition has brought together the scenes of all the events, historical or legendary, connected with the crucifixion. Along this way, they say, our Saviour bore his cross. Here one may see, if he pleases, the place where the Saviour, fainting under his burden, leaned against the wall of a house, and the impression of his shoulder remains unto this day. Near by are also pointed out the houses of the rich man and Lazarus in the parable. To judge from present appearances, the beggar was quite as well lodged as his opulent neighbour." It is lamentable to think how deceit and fraud traffic in human credulity and superstition.

VIA DOLOROSA.

19 ¶ And Pilate wrote a title, and put it on the cross. And the writing was, JESUS OF NAZARETH THE KING OF THE JEWS.[a]

20 This title then read many of the Jews: for the place where Jesus was crucified was nigh to the city: and it was written in Hebrew, and Greek, and Latin.

21 Then said the chief priests of the Jews to Pilate, Write not, The King of the Jews; but that he said, I am King of the Jews.

22 Pilate answered, What I have written I have written.

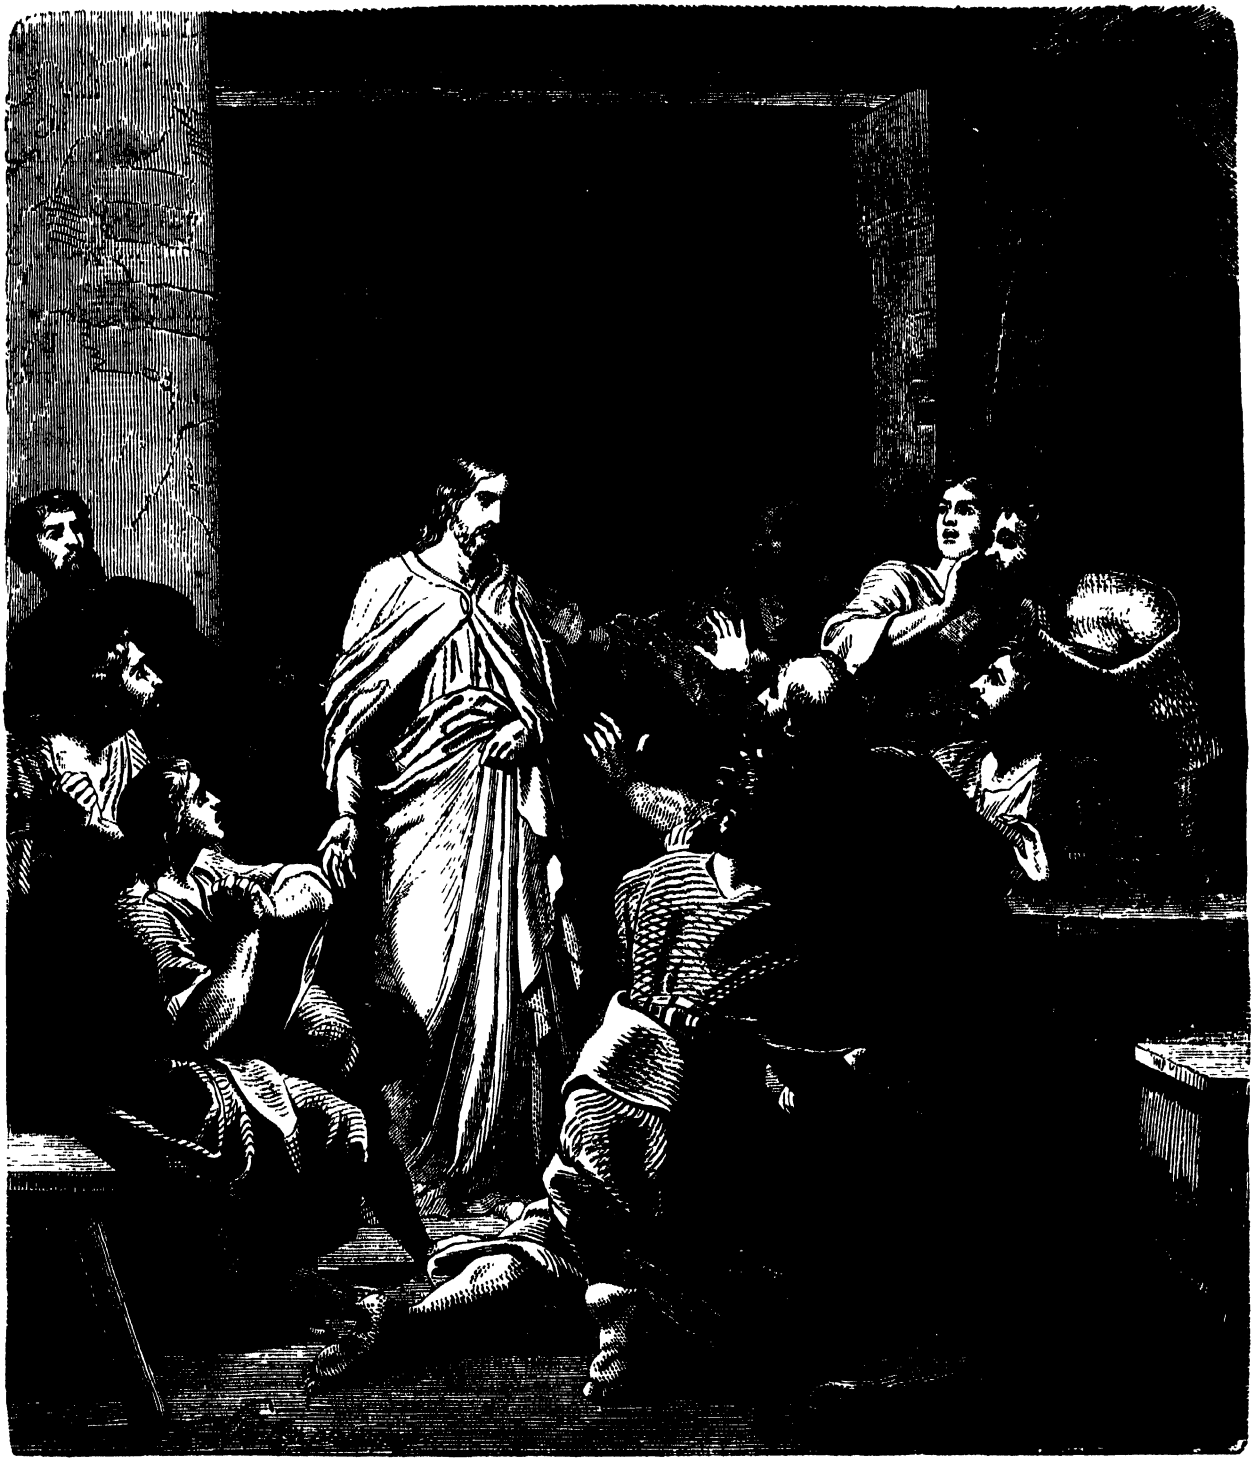
they filled a spunge with vinegar, and put it upon hyssop, and put it to his mouth.[h]

30 When Jesus therefore had received the vinegar, he said, It is finished: and he bowed his head, and gave up the ghost.[i]

31 The Jews therefore, because it was the preparation, that the bodies should not remain upon the cross on the sabbath day, (for that sabbath day was an high day,) besought Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away.[j]

32 Then came the soldiers, and brake the legs of

22. "What I have written I have written:"—one of the charges preferred by the Jews against Jesus was, that he had set himself up for a king: and by urging this point, they had prevailed on Pilate to condemn him; and now Pilate, possibly in derision, reminds them of it by writing a title which assumed the truth of the Saviour's claim. Hence their complaint, "Write not, The King of the Jews; but that he said, I am King of the Jews:" and hence his answer, "What I have written I have written." Whatever import Pilate attached to the title when he first wrote it out, certain it is that just as he perceived it to be unacceptable to the chief priests and other Jewish authorities, whom he utterly detested, the more tenaciously did he adhere to it, and would admit of no alteration. The title was written in three different languages—in Hebrew, or Aramaic, the language of the common people; in Greek, as more generally spoken; and in Latin, as more official.



23. "Made four parts, to every soldier a part"—there were four soldiers and a centurion, and the garments of those who were executed became by law the perquisite of the soldiers on duty. The "coat," or tunic, was properly a priestly vestment, woven of linen or wool, which reached from the neck to the feet, and was fastened round the throat with a clasp.

27. "That disciple took her unto his own home:"—how intense is the love of Jesus for his mother, even in the article of death, and how unlimited his confidence in the beloved disciple! The feeling of abandonment would have been too violent to her; hence Jesus presents to her a second son, instead of the beloved one she deemed herself to have lost.

31. "That sabbath day was an high day:"—a kind of double Sabbath—the first day of unleavened bread coinciding with an ordinary Sabbath. According to the law in Deut. xxi 23, the body of a criminal who was executed was to be taken down and buried on the same day.

"That their legs might be broken:"—this was sometimes added to the punishment of crucifixion, as an additional penalty; but on this occasion it was probably done to hasten the death of the criminals, that their bodies might be removed from the cross by the time which the law prescribed.

34. "Pierced his side:"—as the soldiers had already satisfied themselves the first, and of the other which was crucified with him.

33 But when they came to Jesus, and saw that he was dead already, they brake not his legs:

34 But one of the soldiers with a spear pierced his side, and forthwith came there out blood and water.[a]

35 And he that saw it bare record, and his record is true: and he knoweth that he saith true, that ye might believe.

36 For these things were done, that the scripture should be fulfilled, A bone of him shall not be broken.[b]

37 And again another scripture saith, They shall look on him whom they pierced.[c]

38 ¶ And after this Joseph of Arimathæa, being a of the death of Jesus, we know not what could prompt any one of them to this act; but the act itself was in perfect accordance with ancient and received prophecy.

38. There were two or three places named Arimathea, or Ramah, in Palestine. The one mentioned in the text is supposed by some to have been situated upon the borders of Ephraim and Benjamin. In 1 Sam. i. 1, it is called Ramathaim-Zophim, and was the birthplace of the prophet Samuel. Some have supposed that Arimathea was at Ramleh, not far from Lydda. Others, again, have sought for it at Rentieh, or Renthieh, a ruin on the Damascus road, north of Lydda. In the opinion of Dr Robinson, the true Arimathea remains to be discovered. The engraving represents one of the places which has been fixed upon as the probable site of the Arimathea of disciple of Jesus, but secretly for fear of the Jews, besought Pilate that he might take away the body of Jesus: and Pilate gave him leave. He came therefore, and took the body of Jesus.[a]

39 And there came also Nicodemus, which at the first came to Jesus by night, and brought a mixture of myrrh and aloes, about an hundred pound weight.[b]

40 Then took they the body of Jesus, and wound it in linen clothes with the spices, as the manner of the Jews is to bury.[c]

41 Now in the place where he was crucified there was a garden; and in the garden a new sepulchre, wherein was never man yet laid.

8 Then went in also that other disciple, which came first to the sepulchre, and he saw, and believed.

9 For as yet they knew not the scripture, that he must rise again from the dead.[j]

10 Then the disciples went away again unto their own home.

11 ¶ But Mary stood without at the sepulchre weeping: and as she wept, she stooped down, and looked into the sepulchre,[k]

17 Jesus saith unto her, Touch me not; for I am not yet ascended to my Father: but go to my

Joseph, whose generous courage in seeking to secure an honourable burial for Christ, is recorded by the Evangelists with so much minuteness.

39 "Nicodemus . . . . . brought a mixture of myrrh and aloes:"—of this fact John alone has taken any note. The love of both Joseph and Nicodemus to Christ, as evinced by their deeds, was called forth by the love of Christ to them. His death is the power which constrains men; and thus this act of love on the part of both these men is a testimony for Jesus, and an example of the future effect to be produced in the hearts of Christ's disciples by the remembrance of his death. The Evangelist mentions the weight of the spices as a proof of the greatness of their love, as it was usual to employ large quantities of spices in embalming, when men desired to show particular respect to the deceased.

CHAPTER XX.

1. "Cometh Mary Magdalene:"—we learn from the other Evangelists that she was not alone in her visit to the tomb.

2. "We know not where they have laid him:"—she here speaks in the name of her companions, and perhaps in that of all those who she thought might be equally affected as herself. She may have conjectured that Joseph had laid the body of Jesus in his own sepulchre, only for a time, until he should find another place for it.

3—8. These verses are full of little, yet most characteristic incidents. Luke speaks of Peter going to the sepulchre, but makes no mention of "the other disciple." Greater speed was appropriate in John, who was the younger of the two; greater gravity or sedateness was appropriate in Peter, the elder. In Peter, we have faith; in John, we have love. John outruns Peter; comes first to the sepulchre; but, when there, reverently abstains from going in. Peter hastens after him; but when he arrives, he at once rushes in: then John follows, and believes. "What can exceed the powerful simplicity of this description? And what is not related is as full of truth as that which is. From verses 6 and 7 we seem to hear the very voice of Peter describing to his companion the inner state of the tomb." "John saw, and believed." Did not Peter believe? The answer is not given. What, then, did John believe? Not simply that they had taken the body of Jesus, as Mary had said, but, in the words of Alford, "he believed that Jesus was risen from the dead: he received into his mind, embraced with his assent, THE FACT OF THE RESURRECTION for the first time." And let us add, that in believing this his faith grasped tenaciously all those sublime truths which the Saviour taught during his life and ministry, and which his resurrection verified.

11. "Mary stood without:"—she had followed, at a slower pace, Peter and John, when they set out for the sepulchre.

12. "Seeth two angels:"—the interest of these holy spirits in this our world and for our race is a revealed fact. They were the willing ministers and attendants of our Lord during his sojourn on earth; and if they announced his incarnation to the shepherds on the plains of Bethlehem, how fitting was it that they should convey the glad intelligence to his redeemed followers that he had now risen to the power of an endless life! The two angels seen by Mary are in white, because from the world of light; they sit, as not defending, but peacefully watching the body—at the head and the feet; possibly to denote that the body of the Lord was from head to foot in the charge of his Father and of his servants.

14. "Knew not that it was Jesus"—she was absorbed in grief; nor had it even entered her mind that she was to see Jesus alive at that moment. "Her tears wove the veil which concealed him who stands before her." And how true is it that "seeking after the dead prevents us from seeing the living."

17. "Touch me not."—it is difficult to say how many interpretations have been given to these words. The difficulty has been found not so much in the prohibition, "Touch me not," as in the reason given for it—"for I am not yet ascended to my Father" Without attempting to examine the opinions of others, we think it better to confine ourselves to what we consider to be the true idea embodied in the words. There could be nothing wrong in the mere act of Mary in touching the body of the Risen One, for we find him afterwards saying to his own disciples, "Handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have;" but the act revealed a certain state of mind and feeling. Mary, in all likelihood, embraced the brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, and your Father; and to my God, and your God.[a]

18 Mary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things unto her.[b]

19 ¶ Then the same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came Jesus and stood in the midst, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you.[c]

20 And when he had so said, he shewed unto them his hands and his side. Then were the disciples glad, when they saw the Lord.[d]

21 Then said Jesus to them again, Peace be unto you: as my Father hath sent me, even so send I you.[e]

22 And when he had said this, he breathed on them, and saith unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghost:

23 Whose soever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them; and whose soever sins ye retain, they are retained.[f]

24 ¶ But Thomas, one of the twelve, called Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came.[g]

25 The other disciples therefore said unto him, We have seen the Lord. But he said unto them, Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe.

26 ¶ And after eight days again his disciples were within, and Thomas with them: then came Jesus, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, and said, Peace be unto you.

27 Then saith he to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side: and be not faithless, but believing.[h]

28 And Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord and my God.

CHAPTER XXI.

1 Christ appearing again to his disciples was known of them by the great draught of fishes. 12 He dineth with them: 15 earnestly commandeth Peter to feed his lambs and sheep: 18 foretelleth him of his death. 22 rebuketh his curiosity touching John. 25 The conclusion.

AFTER these things Jesus shewed himself again to the disciples at the sea of Tiberias; and on this wise shewed he himself.

2 There were together Simon Peter, and Thomas called Didymus, and Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, and the sons of Zebedee, and two other of his disciples.[l]

3 Simon Peter saith unto them, I go a fishing. They say unto him, We also go with thee. They went forth, and entered into a ship immediately; and that night they caught nothing.

4 But when the morning was now come, Jesus stood on the shore: but the disciples knew not that it was Jesus.[m]

5 Then Jesus saith unto them, [1]Children, have ye any meat? They answered him, No.[n]

Saviour under the impression that he had come back to perpetuate his stay on earth, and to resume with his followers his former intercourse and fellowship. To set her mind free from this false impression, he tells her that he has yet to ascend to his Father, and that in his state of supreme exaltation they were to enjoy with him the most intimate and conscious communion. Hence the prohibition, "Touch me not," do not hold me, as if I had come to make a permanent stay on earth. The object of my present manifestation is to give you the evidences of my resurrection, but having thus risen from the dead, I must leave this earth soon; therefore go and tell my brethren that I ascend—that I am alive and on the earth; but my testimony as their Redeemer is on high. "I ascend to my Father, and your Father; and to my God, and your God." for thus only can our union and fellowship be perfected.

22, 23. "He breathed on them . . . Whose soever sins ye remit."—the sense of this passage has been greatly controverted On the whole, we think that no gifts of apostleship were now formally conferred, as Thomas was not present, who yet was an apostle in the same sense in which the rest were. The words, closely considered, amount to this: that with this gift and real participation of the Holy Spirit comes the conviction, and therefore the knowledge, of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment; and this knowledge becomes more perfect the more men are filled with the Holy Ghost. Since this is so, they who were pre-eminently filled with his presence were pre-eminently gifted with the discernment of sin and repentance in others; hence the apostles were divinely qualified and authorised to pronounce pardon of sin and the contrary. As the apostles received this power by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, they were enabled to discern the hearts of men, and to give sentence on that discernment (see Acts v. 1–11; viii. 21; xiii. 9). The power here given to the apostles was given to them in their official capacity as the founders and rulers of the first churches, with whom it rested to deal with all offences affecting the members of those churches, and to lay down the law with Divine authority regarding the treatment of offenders: whose sins they retained, they were retained; and whose sins they remitted, they were remitted, as in the case of the incestuous member in the church at Corinth. The Apostle Paul, convinced of his guilt, held him as guilty, and treated him as such by an act of excommunication; but when the man repented of his sin, and gave practical proof of his repentance, the apostle enjoined that he should be freely forgiven, and restored to the fellowship of the faithful. In our reflections upon this subject we must distinguish between pronouncing a man pardoned, and assuring him that he will be pardoned if he repent and believe. The latter power belongs to any individual Christian; the former belongs to no man, but is the exclusive prerogative of the Most High. Thus the declarative act belongs to man—the judicial act belongs to God.

CHAPTER XXI.

The authenticity of this last chapter has been called in question; that is to say, there are those who maintain that John is not the author of it. But if we except the last two verses, there is nothing in the chapter itself to make it improbable that it is the production of the same hand that wrote the preceding narrative; and though the two excepted verses partake more of the epistolary form than that of narrative, yet they singularly resemble in style the Epistles of John. Some have supposed that the Evangelist added this chapter as a kind of supplement to his narrative, and that it did not come from his pen till some years later. Supplement though it be, its contents are rich in matter, and bring into view two or three incidents of intense interest to the student of sacred history, and especially to those who believe in the life of Christ no less than in his death—in his resurrection no less than in his crucifixion.

1. "After these things."—the reference here is not to the immediately preceding context. The last two verses of the twentieth chapter stand as a sort of conclusion to the whole narrative; and therefore we must connect this verse with verses 19—29, in which we have recorded the appearance of our Lord to his followers on the evening of the first day of the week, and of what took place in connection with that appearance.

"The sea of Tiberias:"—the town of Tiberias is supposed to be the same with that of Cinneroth or Chinneroth, which stood on the western shore of the lake, near the borders of Zebulon and Naphtali. This lake formerly abounded in fish; and though it was not more than twenty miles long by six or eight wide, it was subject to sudden squalls and violent storms. Most of the time of our Lord's ministry was spent on these shores, and there many of

6 And he said unto them, Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find. They cast therefore, and now they were not able to draw it for the multitude of fishes.[e]

7 Therefore that disciple whom Jesus loved saith unto Peter, It is the Lord. Now when Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he girt his fisher's coat unto him, (for he was naked,) and did cast himself into the sea.[b]

8 And the other disciples came in a little ship; (for they were not far from land, but as it were two hundred cubits,) dragging the net with fishes.

9 As soon then as they were come to land, they saw a fire of coals there, and fish laid thereon, and bread.

10 Jesus saith unto them, Bring of the fish which ye have now caught.

11 Simon Peter went up, and drew the net to land full of great fishes, an hundred and fifty and three: and for all there were so many, yet was not the net broken.

12 Jesus saith unto them, Come and dine. And none of the disciples durst ask him, Who art thou? knowing that it was the Lord.[c]

13 Jesus then cometh, and taketh bread, and giveth them, and fish likewise.

14 This is now the third time that Jesus shewed himself to his disciples, after that he was risen from the dead.[d]

15 ¶ So when they had dined, Jesus saith to Simon Peter, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my lambs.

16 He saith to him again the second time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my sheep.[e]

17 He saith unto him the third time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? Peter was grieved because he said unto him the third time, Lovest thou me? And he said unto him, Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus saith unto him, Feed my sheep.[f]

18 Verily, verily, I say unto thee, When thou wast young, thou girdedst thyself, and walkedst whither thou wouldest: but when thou shalt be old, thou shalt stretch forth thy hands, and another shall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou wouldest not.[g]

19 This spake he, signifying by what death he should glorify God. And when he had spoken this, he saith unto him, Follow me.[h]

20 Then Peter, turning about, seeth the disciple whom Jesus loved following; which also leaned on his breast at supper, and said, Lord, which is he that betrayeth thee?[i]

21 Peter seeing him saith to Jesus, Lord, and what shall this man do?

22 Jesus saith unto him, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? follow thou me.[j]

23 Then went this saying abroad among the brethren, that that disciple should not die: yet Jesus said not unto him, He shall not die; but, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee?

24 This is the disciple which testifieth of these things, and wrote these things: and we know that his testimony is true.[k]

25 And there are also many other things which Jesus did, the which, if they should be written every one, I suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that should be written. Amen.[l] his most wonderful works were done. Moreover, it was pre-eminently consecrated by the Saviour's glorious manifestation of himself after his resurrection from the dead.

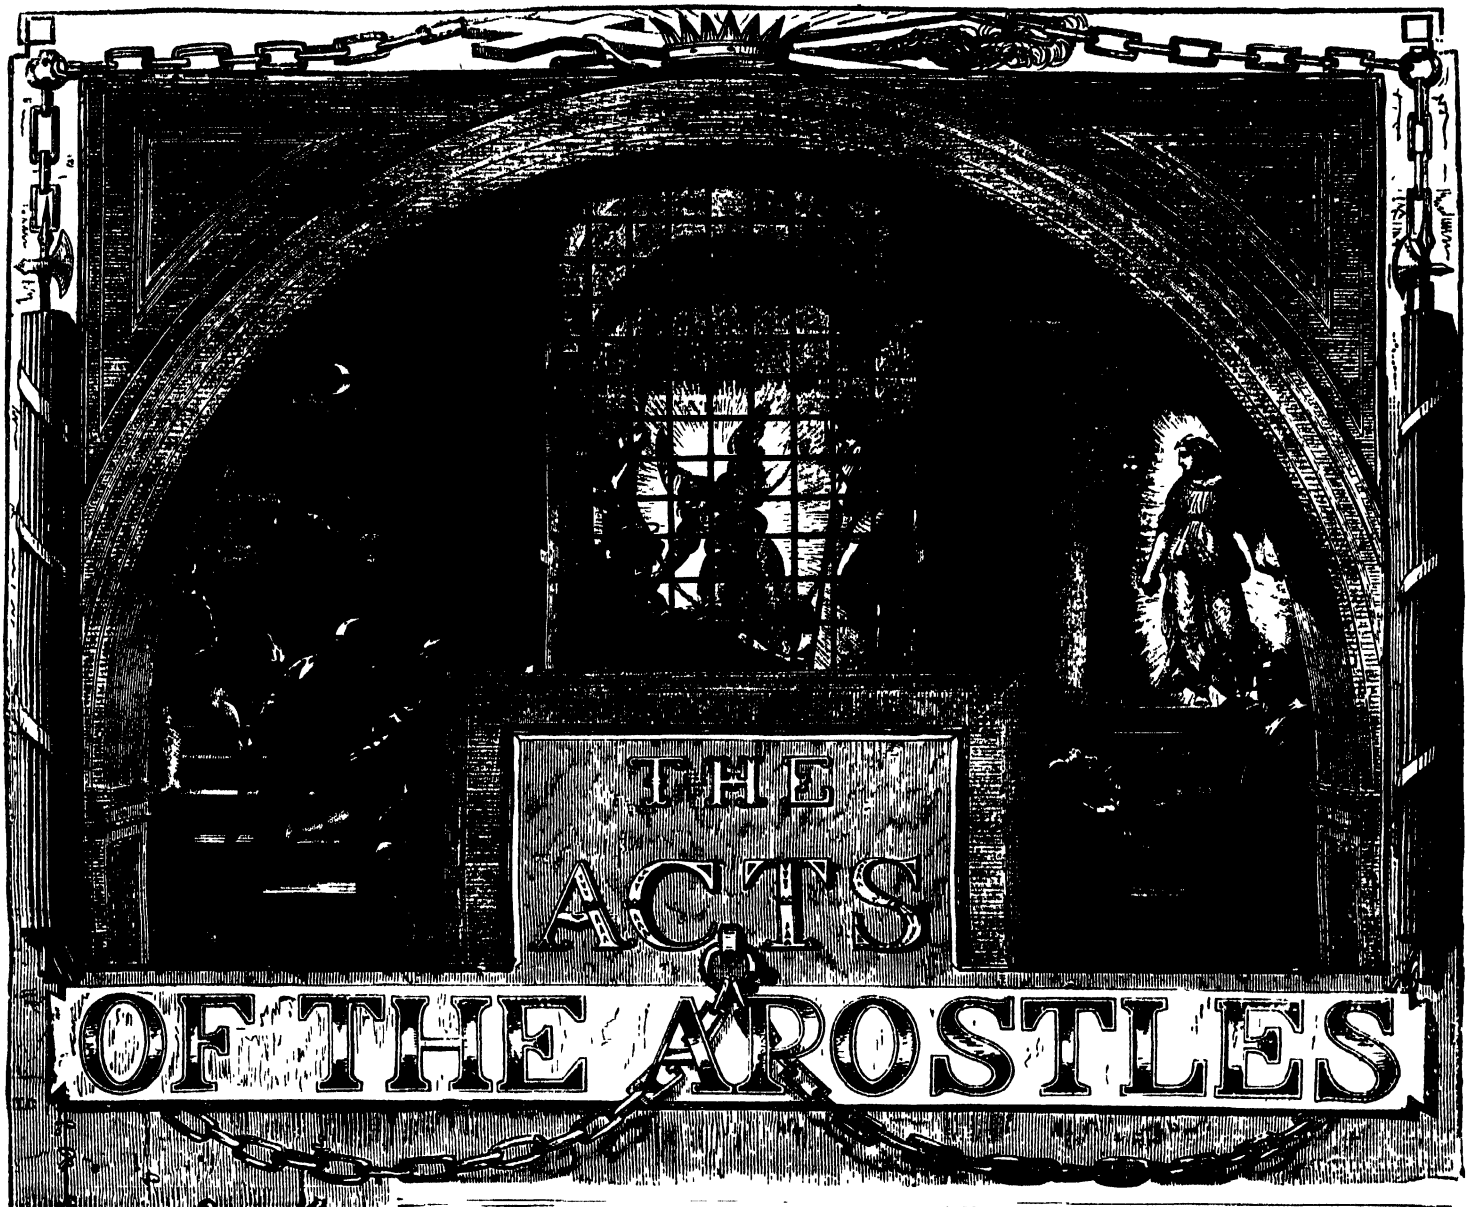
6. "On the right side of the ship."—we presume that the side of the vessel was named by our Lord, that the locality of the miracle might be one of Divine appointment, and not one arising from their own selection. The miracle was in no way to depend upon their practical knowledge—the command was founded on the omniscience and unlimited power of the Saviour.

7. "He was naked:"—not literally so, but had stripped himself of his outer or upper garment in the prosecution of his calling.

8. "Two hundred cubits:"—the cubit was equal to eighteen inches: this would give us one hundred yards, or three hundred feet

12. "Come and dine:"—the Greek verb used is applied to the morning's meal. The apostles had been fishing all night, and it was now morning. How long this manifestation lasted, or what was the conversation carried on between Christ and his followers during this meal, we are not told.

15. "Lovest thou me more than these?"—to understand the question, and see its pertinence and its force, we have but to remember the words of Peter to his Lord, "Though all men be offended because of thee, yet will I never be offended," "I will lay down my life for thy sake." Now the hour of trial is at hand; his faith and his fortitude must be put to the test; and hence, as he had been the first to profess his willingness to die for Christ, the Saviour puts the question, "Lovest thou me more than these?"—art thou prepared first to suffer and first to die? Is thy love likely, in such circumstances, to transcend the love of thy fellow-disciples? And hence it was that Jesus afterwards gave him a prophetic intimation of his death as a martyr.



17. "Peter was grieved:"—thrice had Peter denied the Saviour, and three different times does the Saviour put the question to Peter, "Lovest thou me?" Peter was overwhelmed with grief to think that he had given occasion to his Lord to suspect his professed love and attachment, or to seem to call in question the soundness and sincerity of his trust. He therefore makes his appeal to the infallible omniscience of the Saviour—lays open to his infinite and unerring knowledge his inmost soul—"Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee." It is enough. Peter, the man of rock, is again himself: and hence the commission given to him to feed the Church of God—old and young—all, from the youngest and most tender lamb in the fold, up to the most nurtured and matured in the flock.

18 "Another shall gird thee"—the former part of the verse refers to the freedom of action which Peter enjoyed in the every-day walks and duties of life, before he entered on his sublime work of an ambassador and apostle of Christ; but now he should find it far different. He was to be hedged in by circumstances and influences which would impede his course, and through which he would have to urge his way; and though his life might be spared even to comparative old age, there was yet a martyr's death before him. Such is the prophetic intimation embodied in this latter clause. It is tolerably certain that Peter did suffer martyrdom, but when or where is not clearly ascertained. Some of the ancient historians affect to relate the circumstances connected with his arrest, imprisonment, and crucifixion—the kind of death indicated in the text, but we cannot place implicit dependence in their narrative. The general belief is, that Peter was put to death in the time of Nero, A.D. 65.

21. "What shall this man do?"—the question brings into the strongest light the distinguishing characteristic of this ever forward, ever impetuous apostle. His curiosity was excited, but our Lord does not gratify it. He rather reminds Peter, in the words which follow, that the appointed lot of his fellow-disciples was in no way connected with his onward course, and that his immediate and only duty was to follow his Master even to death itself.

22. "He tarry till I come:"—it is maintained by Lightfoot, Hammond, and a numerous body of divines, that the coming of Christ refers to his appearing at the destruction of Jerusalem, with which was connected the entire overthrow of the Jewish polity and worship, and the complete establishment of his own spiritual and everlasting kingdom in the world.

In the words of Olshausen, "Here closes our consideration of the history of the Lord's hallowed life—a life which, issuing from the mystery of divinity, planting itself in the depths of humanity, reveals an incomparable lustre, glory, and beauty, even in its humiliation—a lustre that transcends that of any other living revelation. As the complete result of this life, the glorified Saviour returns to the bosom of the Father, from which the impulses of love had sent him forth as the Eternal Word. But yet Christ leaves after him in the world the impress of his own appearance, and also leaves for its welfare a little circle of friends, in whose hearts his Spirit had found its abode. This little company was the nucleus of a new world—the embryo of an unanticipated future." And now that he occupies the throne of unbounded empire, how full of promise to his Church are his sublime words, "BEHOLD, I MAKE ALL THINGS NEW!"

CHAPTER 1.

1 Christ, his apostles to the beholding of his ascension, gathereth them together unto the mount Olivet, then Jerusalem the sending down of the Holy Ghost, promiseth after few days to send it by virtue whereof they should be witnesses unto him, even to the utmost parts of the earth 9 After his ascension they are warned by two angels to depart, and to set their minds upon his second coming 12 They accordingly return, and, giving themselves to prayer, choose Matthias apostle in the place of Judas.

8 But ye shall receive [1]power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judæa, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.[h]

9 And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight.[i]

CHAPTER I.

The following record of apostolic life and labour is invaluable in connection with the history of Christianity and the founding of the Saviour's spiritual kingdom in the world. "THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES embrace that portion of the history of the Church which contains the canonical beginnings whose ecclesiastical continuations and developments are proceeding even in our own days. And the history brings these canonical principles in so authentic a manner before us, that not only may their onward course be distinctly traced, but also their normal value for all relations and conditions of the Church, which are comprised within that period, may with certainty be inferred."

Some writers have complained that this Book of the Acts is devoid of an object. The objections taken to this book, on the ground that it has neither plan nor purpose, might with equal justice be urged against the outward and material world. "He who contemplates Nature in her exterior aspects, discerns nothing but the life and motion of a mass of objects apparently without plan or method; he, however, whose glance penetrates into her internal economy, cannot fail to discover in them her final cause of order and law. And is not our experience the same in the case of those original works in which the mind of man displays its creative genius? The first impression which the works of Homer or Milton make upon us is that of a wild luxuriance of Nature, and commentators have not yet found a limit to the discovery of leading thoughts pervading and running through the whole. And are we to think less than this of the Holy Ghost, who prepares and sanctifies for himself his human instruments for the production of the Scriptures, which, in all ages of the Church, are to lend to every holy thought, and to every spiritual impulse, the support of a Divine certainty?"

That St. Luke was the author of this book has never been doubted, except by a few writers, who have gone in the face of the most abundant and conclusive evidence. The record is addressed to the same distinguished personage as the third Gospel, and the narrative in the Acts begins just where that Gospel leaves off—THE ASCENSION OF OUR LORD. The reason for this is obvious, as it ushers the reader at once to that great event, the effusion of the Holy Spirit, as the sequence of the Saviour's exaltation and universal supremacy. "The visible ascension, as the last historical circumstance that the eyes of men witnessed in connection with Christ (except the view of Christ granted to Stephen)—this, we say, is the most fitting and naturally to be expected attestation of his heavenly origin; for what could more clearly, sensibly, and decisively testify that this MAN, who thus miraculously ascended to God, was also miraculously born into the world? It was the final and most evident (for the first witnesses, indispensable) exhibition of the truth, that the kingdom of Jesus should be established by the Spirit from heaven, and through this same Jesus. And finally, it is even to us the most assuring guarantee and pledge of his heavenly power, of his heavenly being, and of the certainty of his return to perfect the happiness of his people, and to establish his kingdom upon earth; for he who ascended above all heavens in the highest power, can, when it pleaseth him, come down to this earth again."

1. "Of all that Jesus began to do and teach:"—that is to say, he had already traced the life and ministry of Christ from its beginning to its close in his former treatise, and, therefore, it was not needful to go over that ground now. The present record was written, it is supposed, during the two years in which St. Paul was a prisoner at Rome, when Luke was with him as his companion and friend—See chap. xxviii. 30, 31.

2 "Had given commandments:"—that is, given them all needful instruction as to their future course; and with all power given unto him in heaven and earth, he gave them their sublime commission to go and preach the Gospel to every creature.

3. For these proofs we have only to go back to the two closing chapters of John, and the last chapter in the Gospel of Luke himself. Alford thinks that between the resurrection and ascension the apostles received from our Lord the whole substance of the doctrine of the kingdom of God.

4. "The promise of the Father:"—this was the gift of the Holy Ghost, without whose presence and power their mission would have been entirely fruitless.

6. "Restore again the kingdom:"—their minds were not yet wholly freed from the idea of an immediate outward earthly empire with Christ as its reigning Head. In wisdom the Saviour leaves a veil over the future, and reminds them of present duty and solemn obligation. "Ye shall be witnesses unto me." They were to represent his life and make known his truth, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance.[a]

5 And there were dwelling at Jerusalem Jews, devout men, out of every nation under heaven.

6 Now [1]when this was noised abroad, the multitude came together, and were [2]confounded, because that every man heard them speak in his own language.

7 And they were all amazed and marvelled, saying one to another, Behold, are not all these which speak Galilæans?[b]

8 And how hear we every man in our own tongue, wherein we were born?

9 Parthians, and Medes, and Elamites, and the dwellers in Mesopotamia, and in Judæa, and Cappadocia, in Pontus, and Asia,

10 Phrygia, and Pamphylia, in Egypt, and in the parts of Libya about Cyrene, and strangers of Rome, Jews and proselytes, 11 Cretes and Arabians, we do hear them speak in our tongues the wonderful works of God.

12 And they were all amazed, and were in doubt, saying one to another, What meaneth this?

13 Others mocking said, These men are full of new wine.

14 ¶ But Peter, standing up with the eleven, lifted up his voice, and said unto them, Ye men of Judæa, and all ye that dwell at Jerusalem, be this known unto you, and hearken to my words:

15 For these are not drunken, as ye suppose, seeing it is but the third hour of the day.[c]

16 But this is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel;

17 And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams:[d]

18 And on my servants and on my handmaidens I will pour out in those days of my Spirit; and they shall prophesy:[e]

19 And I will shew wonders in heaven above, and signs in the earth beneath; blood, and fire, and vapour of smoke:[f]

20 The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before that great and notable day of the Lord come:[g]

21 And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be saved.[h]

22 Ye men of Israel, hear these words; Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of God among you by miracles and wonders and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know:[i]

23 Him, being delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain:[j]

24 Whom God hath raised up, having loosed the pains of death: because it was not possible that he should be holden of it.[k]

25 For David speaketh concerning him, I foresaw the Lord always before my face, for he is on my right hand, that I should not be moved:[l]

26 Therefore did my heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad; moreover also my flesh shall rest in hope:

27 Because thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption.

28 Thou hast made known to me the ways of life; thou shalt make me full of joy with thy countenance.

29 Men and brethren, [3]let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day.[m]

30 Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne;[n]

31 He seeing this before spake of the resurrection and they were to begin their ministry in Jerusalem; to testify the love of that Saviour who prayed for his murderers, and died that he might become the Redeemer of both Jew and Gentile.

11. "Shall so come in like manner."—in the clouds, and in glory, and then shall he be attended by myriads of angelic spirits There was a propriety in the address, "Ye men of Galilee," which at once served to remind them of their origin, their call to be his disciples, and the duty of obedience to him resting on them in consequence.

19. Aceldama, or "The Field of Blood," is a plot of ground lying in the Valley of Hinnom, to the south of Jerusalem. It would seem that it had previously been called the Potter's Field (see Matt. xxvii. 10), and the purchase of it with the thirty pieces of silver is clearly predicted by the prophet Zechariah (chap. xi 12, 13). Helena, the mother of Constantine the Great, covered over a portion of this ground, we are told, as a place of burial. In fact, almost from the time named in the text, it seems to have been a burial place for strangers and foreigners. The Armenian Christians of Mount Zion long used it as a cemetery There still exist there the ruins of an ancient charnel-house, consisting of a long massive stone building with an arched roof. The place is now deserted. It was formerly believed that the soil would consume dead bodies in twenty-four hours, and shiploads of it were exported. Not far from Aceldama was the Potter's Gate, which, of course, was named after the Potter's Field, and both owe their designation to a bed of clay which was used in the making of pottery (see Jer. xix. 2)

20. "Let his habitation be desolate."—the psalm from which these words are taken has reference to the Messiah, still, the words were not primarily meant to be applied to Judas, the betrayer. They were applied first to the enemies of David, and then, as a prophecy, they pointed forward to the traitor.

26. "The lot fell upon Matthias:"—this act on the part of Peter and his fellow-apostles is thought by some persons (but, as we think, very erroneously) to be in opposition to the express command of their risen Lord, to wait until they were endued with power from on high. If they were not qualified to preach till they had received the Spirit, far less were they qualified to choose an apostle. Nay, such a choice rested solely with Christ himself, and the man must hold his commission immediately from Christ. Hence our Lord, it is said, set aside this election by choosing Paul to fill the vacant office—a statement of which we have no evidence, and therefore reject. That, nevertheless, this honoured apostle was divinely commissioned the Scriptures clearly prove; and to the fact of his DIVINE appointment Paul refers in his Epistles: "An apostle, not of man, nor of the will of man, but of God."

CHAPTER II.

1. "When the day of Pentecost was fully come."—according to the law in Lev. xxiii 15, Deut xvi 9, this festival, which was the same as the Feast of Weeks, and the Feast of Harvest, was kept at the distance of seven weeks, or forty-nine days, from the second day of the Passover—the day on which the firstfruits were offered, or when the sickle was first put into the corn The following or fiftieth day was Pentecost, and this festival was confined to that one day. When this day was fully come—that is, while the day was being kept, and its sacred hours were gliding away—there happened the supernatural scene which the writer describes. A more glorious harvest than could be reaped from the material earth was to be realised in this New Dispensation in the salvation of countless thousands of otherwise ruined souls.

3 "And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire."—in what "the sound from heaven" consisted, we know not. The tongues of fire were the symbol of the Divine glory.

5. "Out of every nation."—the nations are specified in verses 9—11, and the Jews from these various countries were now in Jerusalem attending the Feast of Pentecost, as one of the three great festivals, when all the male Hebrews were required to appear in Jerusalem

9—11. Parthia was originally a province of Media, on its eastern side, between the Persian Gulf and the Tigris. Media was west of Parthia and Hyrcania, south of the Caspian Sea, east of Armenia, and north of Persia. Elam was a province of Persia. Mesopotamia lay between the Euphrates and the Tigris. Judæa lay to the south of the path from Mesopotamia to Cappadocia, which latter was a Roman province, and embraced Armenia Minor. Pontus lay along the south coast of the Euxine, and was separated

19, 20. "Wonders . . . signs:"—these are to be taken not in the sense of devastation and ruin, but of supernatural appearances, or even prodigies.

27. "My soul in hell:"—the word translated "hell" in this verse, and in the 31st, would be better rendered hades, or "the unseen world."

38. "In the name:"—literally, "on the name;" that is, in confessing what that one name implies.

47. "Such as should be saved;"—or rather, who were in the way of attaining salvation.

CHAPTER III.

The apostles having received power from on high by the descent of the Spirit, in conformity with the promise of their Lord, were fully qualified to enter on their sublime mission. Hence Peter began to preach at once to the multitude assembled in Jerusalem at the Feast of Harvest; and he reaped fruit in the conversion of three thousand souls. But his mission must have the confirmation which is involved in the power of working miracles; and hence the deed and the cure which we have recorded in the present chapter. Now took place "the practical confirmation of the first preaching of Peter, in which he showed that the name which in Jerusalem must be called upon for deliverance and salvation is no other than the name of Jesus Christ;" and that this name "is not only powerful over the spiritual, but also over the external world."

1. "The hour of prayer:"—there were three hours of prayer—morning,

'HIS NAME THROUGH FAITH IN HIS NAME HATH MADE THIS MAN STRONG, WHOM YE SEE AND KNOW."—ACTS III. 16.

CHAPTER III.

1 Peter preaching to the people that came to see a lame man restored to his feet, 12 professeth the cure not to have been wrought by his or John's own power, or holiness, but by God, and his Son Jesus, and through faith in his name. 13 withal reprehending them for crucifying Jesus. 17 Which because they did it through ignorance, and that thereby were fulfilled God's determinate counsel, and the scriptures: 19 he exhorteth them by repentance and faith to seek remission of their sins, and salvation in the same Jesus.

NOW Peter and John went up together into the temple at the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour.[a]

2 And a certain man lame from his mother's womb was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple which is called Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple;[b]

3 Who seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple asked an alms.

4 And Peter, fastening his eyes upon him with John, said, Look on us.

5 And he gave heed unto them, expecting to receive something of them.

6 Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk.[c]

7 And he took him by the right hand, and lifted him up: and immediately his feet and ancle bones received strength.

8 And he leaping up stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God.[d]

9 And all the people saw him walking and praising God:[e] evening, and noon. The morning and evening were the third and ninth hours, or the hours of morning and evening sacrifice.

6. "In the name of Jesus Christ:"—it is worthy of remark that in all the miracles wrought by our Lord he never referred farther back than himself for the power; whereas the apostles never attempted anything supernatural in their own name, or in their own strength.

16. "And his name:"—on his exaltation the Saviour received a name which is above every name; and this name implies both the power and the grace

10 And they knew that it was he which sat for alms at the Beautiful gate of the temple: and they were filled with wonder and amazement at that which had happened unto him.[a]

11 And as the lame man which was healed held Peter and John, all the people ran together unto them in the porch that is called Solomon's, greatly wondering.[b]

12 ¶ And when Peter saw it, he answered unto the people, Ye men of Israel, why marvel ye at this? or why look ye so earnestly on us, as though by our own power or holiness we had made this man to walk?

13 The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath glorified his Son Jesus; whom ye delivered up, and denied him in the presence of Pilate, when he was determined to let him go.[c]

14 But ye denied the Holy One and the Just, and desired a murderer to be granted unto you;[d]

15 And killed the [1]Prince of life, whom God hath raised from the dead; whereof we are witnesses.[e]

16 And his name through faith in his name hath made this man strong, whom ye see and know: yea, the faith which is by him hath given him this perfect soundness in the presence of you all.[f]

17 And now, brethren, I wot that through ignorance ye did it, as did also your rulers.[g]

18 But those things, which God before had shewed by the mouth of all his prophets, that Christ should suffer, he hath so fulfilled.[h]

19 ¶ Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord;[i]

20 And he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you:

21 Whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began.[j]

22 For Moses truly said unto the fathers, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you.[k]

CHAPTER IV.

1 The rulers of the Jews offended with Peter's sermon, 4 (though thousands of the people were converted that heard the word,) imprison him and John. 5 After, upon examination Peter boldly avouching the lame man to be healed by the name of Jesus, and that by the same Jesus only we must be eternally saved, 13 they command him and John to preach no more in that name, adding also threatening, 23 whereupon the church fleeth to prayer. 31 And God, by moving the place where they were assembled, testified that he heard their prayer: confirming the church with the gift of the Holy Ghost, and with mutual love and charity.

AND as they spake unto the people, the priests, and the [2]captain of the temple, and the Sadducees, came upon them,

2 Being grieved that they taught the people, and preached through Jesus the resurrection from the dead.[n]

3 And they laid hands on them, and put them in hold unto the next day: for it was now eventide.

4 Howbeit many of them which heard the word believed; and the number of the men was about five thousand.

5 ¶ And it came to pass on the morrow, that their rulers, and elders, and scribes,

6 And Annas the high priest, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and as many as were of the kindred of the high priest, were gathered together at Jerusalem.[o]

7 And when they had set them in the midst, they asked, By what power, or by what name, have ye done this?[p]

which were the efficient causes of the present cure. But to whom does Peter refer when he says, "through faith in his name?" Does he refer to the faith of the man, or to the faith of himself and his fellow-apostles as the witnesses of Christ's death and resurrection? Alford refers it to the apostles. There can be no doubt that they have faith in their risen Lord, and in his power to effect the cure; but we think Peter here speaks of the faith of the man as the great pre-requisite for the reception of the benefit about to be bestowed upon him.

19. "When the times of refreshing shall come;"—that is, until the time that all things are restored or set in order, he is to remain in heaven; and only when he has made all things new is he to appear to gather all things into one.

CHAPTER IV.

That eminent German commentator, Olshausen, says:—"The auspicious opening of the young Church of Christ could not fail speedily to attract the attention of those who occupied the seat of Moses. But as they were themselves the murderers of the Son of God, and would not humble themselves before him to receive even the pardon of their sins, which was offered to them by the preaching of the Apostles in their presence, they fell in consequence into the new sin of seeking to resist the Spirit."

1. "Captain of the temple:"—this officer was not, as has sometimes been supposed, a Roman soldier, but one of the Levitical guard, whose duty it was to preserve order in the Temple, and tranquillity in its neighbourhood. The pretence that the Apostles were disturbing the peace was made the ground of their arrest. The priests again took offence because that men who had proceeded from none of their schools dared to take upon themselves the office of public teaching; while the Sadducees, who could not deny the fact of Christ's resurrection, wished to put that conflicting testimony to silence.

3. "In hold unto the next day:"—it was now too late to institute an inquiry into the conduct of the Apostles, and therefore they were kept in custody till the following day.

4. "The number of the men was about five thousand:"—not in addition to the three thousand on the day of Pentecost, but all together.

6. "Annas the high priest:"—on Annas and Caiaphas as both sustaining this distinguished office at the same time, compare Matt. xxvi. 57 and Luke iii. 2. As to who John and Alexander were, nothing is certainly known. Even the conjectures which have been published are improbable.

7. "They asked, By what power?"—the Sanhedrim were quite competent to ask the Apostles by what authority they undertook to teach publicly. Peter replies by referring to the miracle which had been wrought on the impotent man, and leaves the inference to be drawn by the Jewish council that the same power by which they had effected so signal a cure gave them their commission to teach and preach.

11. "This is the stone which was set at nought:"—this one only foundation the Jews rejected, and, as there is no other name given under heaven whereby they could be saved, by their own act of rejection they reduced their salvation to an impossibility. If not saved by Christ, they could not be saved at all.

8 Then Peter, filled with the Holy Ghost, said unto them, Ye rulers of the people, and elders of Israel,[a]

9 If we this day be examined of the good deed done to the impotent man, by what means he is made whole;

10 Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whom God raised from the dead, even by him doth this man stand here before you whole.[b]

11 This is the stone which was set at nought of you builders, which is become the head of the corner.[c]

12 Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved.[d]

13 ¶ Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, and perceived that they were unlearned and ignorant men, they marvelled; and they took knowledge of them, that they had been with Jesus.[e]

14 And beholding the man which was healed standing with them, they could say nothing against it.[f]

15 But when they had commanded them to go aside out of the council, they conferred among themselves,

16 Saying, What shall we do to these men? for that indeed a notable miracle hath been done by them is manifest to all them that dwell in Jerusalem; and we cannot deny it.[g]

17 But that it spread no further among the people, let us straitly threaten them, that they speak henceforth to no man in this name.

18 And they called them, and commanded them not to speak at all nor teach in the name of Jesus.[h]

19 But Peter and John answered and said unto them, Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye.[i]

20 For we cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard.[j]

21 So when they had further threatened them, they let them go, finding nothing how they might punish them, because of the people: for all men glorified God for that which was done.[k]

22 For the man was above forty years old, on whom this miracle of healing was shewed.

23 ¶ And being let go, they went to their own company, and reported all that the chief priests and elders had said unto them.[l]

24 And when they heard that, they lifted up their voice to God with one accord, and said, Lord, thou art God, which hast made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all that in them is:[m]

25 Who by the mouth of thy servant David hast said, Why did the heathen rage, and the people imagine vain things?[n]

26 The kings of the earth stood up, and the rulers were gathered together against the Lord, and against his Christ.

27 For of a truth against thy holy child Jesus, whom thou hast anointed, both Herod, and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, and the people of Israel, were gathered together,[o]

28 For to do whatsoever thy hand and thy counsel determined before to be done.[p]

29 And now, Lord, behold their threatenings: and grant unto thy servants, that with all boldness they may speak thy word,[q]

30 By stretching forth thine hand to heal; and that signs and wonders may be done by the name of thy holy child Jesus.[r]

31 ¶ And when they had prayed, the place was shaken where they were assembled together; and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and they spake the word of God with boldness.[s]

32 And the multitude of them that believed were of one heart and of one soul: neither said any of them that ought of the things which he possessed was his own; but they had all things common.[t]

33 And with great power gave the apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus: and great grace was upon them all.[u]

34 Neither was there any among them that lacked: for as many as were possessors of lands or houses sold them, and brought the prices of the things that were sold,[v]

35 And laid them down at the apostles' feet: and distribution was made unto every man according as he had need.[w]

36 And Joses, who by the apostles was surnamed Barnabas, (which is, being interpreted, The son of consolation,) a Levite, and of the country of Cyprus,

37 Having land, sold it, and brought the money, and laid it at the apostles' feet.[x]

13—18. What an attestation to the truth of the Gospel do these verses embody! The Sanhedrim could not deny the miracle—could not gainsay the fact of the Saviour's resurrection—could not refute the teaching of those "unlearned and ignorant men;" they could do no more than charge the Apostles not to teach any more in the name of Jesus.

19. "Whether it be right in the sight of God:"—silence was imposed upon them; but silent they could not be. The power from which they held their commission was far above all human authority, and to obey God was their duty at all hazards. Here is a principle of universal application. Nothing must be allowed to contravene the will of God; we must obey to the last possible point of sacrifice and suffering, not counting life itself dear unto us.

21. "All men glorified God:"—the people believed, while their rulers threatened.

23—31. "Being let go, they went to their own company:"—on their release, the Apostles hastened to join their friends, who, on hearing how God had interposed on behalf of his servants, burst out into strains of joyous thanksgiving, in which they bring conspicuously into view the truth that —— who had created all things, had, by his servant David, foretold the opposition of the worldly authorities to the kingdom of his Son; that in their opposition they were free agents, but still were subject to Divine control; that what they had done in putting his Son to death was according to his own previous counsel, who causes the deeds of wicked men to serve him; and that now vain and fruitless would be all their attempts to impede the progress of that truth which they boldly and faithfully taught. To render their success yet more they pray for an increase of miraculous power in connection with their ry of the word, not to exalt and glorify themselves in the eyes of men, but to insure attention to their sublime and saving message, and to lead the sinner to the Saviour. In the act of presenting the prayers, they received the answer, for they were endued with special gifts of God's Holy Spirit.

32. "Ought of the things which he possessed was his own"—of this community of goods in the Apostolic Church we have an intimation in chap. ii. 45. As these first believers were cut off from their families and their friends, and the powers of the world and of the Jewish Church were opposed to them, this state of things, in conjunction with their love for their Christian brethren, must be regarded as the reason for the practice. It was an exigency to them and to their position; and hence the practice never existed in other places or at any other period.

36. "Barnabas, a Levite, of the country of Cyprus:"—from Jer. xxxii. 7 we learn that the Levites began to possess land even before the captivity, and therefore much more extensively after the return from exile. Barnabas,

CHAPTER V.

1 After that Ananias and Sapphira his wife for their hypocrisy at Peter's rebuke had fallen down dead, 12 and that the rest of the apostles had wrought many miracles, 14 to the increase of the faith: 17 the apostles are again imprisoned, 19 but delivered by an angel bidding them to preach openly to all 21 when, after their teaching accordingly in the temple, 29 and before the council, 33 they are in danger to be killed, through the advice of Gamaliel, a great counsellor among the Jews, they be kept alive, 40 and are but beaten: for which they glorify God, and cease no day from preaching.

BUT a certain man named Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, sold a possession,

2 And kept back part of the price, his wife also being privy to it, and brought a certain part, and laid it at the apostles' feet.[a]

3 But Peter said, Ananias, why hath Satan filled thine heart [1]to lie to the Holy Ghost, and to keep back part of the price of the land?[b]

4 Whiles it remained, was it not thine own? and after it was sold, was it not in thine own power? why hast thou conceived this thing in thine heart? thou hast not lied unto men, but unto God.

5 And Ananias hearing these words fell down, and gave up the ghost: and great fear came on all them that heard these things.[c]

6 And the young men arose, wound him up, and carried him out, and buried him.[d]

7 And it was about the space of three hours after, when his wife, not knowing what was done, came in.

8 And Peter answered unto her, Tell me whether ye sold the land for so much? And she said, Yea, for so much.

9 Then Peter said unto her, How is it that ye have agreed together to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? behold, the feet of them which have buried thy husband are at the door, and shall carry thee out.[e]

10 Then fell she down straightway at his feet, and yielded up the ghost: and the young men came in, and found her dead, and, carrying her forth, buried her by her husband.[f]

11 And great fear came upon all the church, and upon as many as heard these things.[g]

12 ¶ And by the hands of the apostles were many signs and wonders wrought among the people; (and they were all with one accord in Solomon's porch.[h]

13 And of the rest durst no man join himself to them: but the people magnified them.[i]

14 And believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women.)

15 Insomuch that they brought forth the sick [2]into the streets, and laid them on beds and couches, that at the least the shadow of Peter passing by might overshadow some of them.[j]

16 There came also a multitude out of the cities round about unto Jerusalem, bringing sick folks, and them which were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed every one.[k]

17 ¶ Then the high priest rose up, and all they that were with him, (which is the sect of the Sadducees,) and were filled with [3]indignation,[l]

18 And laid their hands on the apostles, and put them in the common prison.

19 But the angel of the Lord by night opened the prison doors, and brought them forth, and said,[m]

20 Go, stand and speak in the temple to the people all the words of this life.[n]

21 And when they heard that, they entered into the temple early in the morning, and taught. But the high priest came, and they that were with him, and called the council together, and all the senate of the children of Israel, and sent to the prison to have them brought.[o]

22 But when the officers came, and found them not in the prison, they returned, and told,

23 Saying, The prison truly found we shut with all safety, and the keepers standing without before the doors: but when we had opened, we found no man within.

24 Now when the high priest and the captain of the temple and the chief priests heard these things, they doubted of them whereunto this would grow.[p]

25 Then came one and told them, saying, Behold, the men whom ye put in prison are standing in the temple, and teaching the people.

26 Then went the captain with the officers, and brought them without violence: for they feared the people, lest they should have been stoned.[r]

27 And when they had brought them, they set them before the council: and the high priest asked them,

28 Saying, Did not we straitly command you that ye should not teach in this name? and, behold, ye whose original name was Joses, was an early convert to the Christian faith; and it was from his remarkable powers of speaking and of administering comfort to the afflicted that he was surnamed Barnabas, which is Syriac, and signifies "the son of consolation." He was a Levite. His native place was the island of Cyprus, in the Mediterranean, whose chief productions were wines, oil, honey, and wool. Barnabas was probably a man of considerable wealth, and one of the first to sell his property for the common good; and hence the place which has been assigned to him in the sacred history.

No power or plan can supply the place of that faith which works by love. The Gospel establishes, in a kind and Christian spirit, an interest in each other's welfare: the rich man bears a portion of the poor man's poverty, and the poor man receives a portion of the rich man's wealth; and this is effected without changing anything externally, but by awakening that benevolence which teaches us to regard and to treat the need of a brother as our own.

CHAPTER V.

This is a continuation of the narrative touching the community of goods in the Church at Jerusalem. Barnabas has been introduced as a type of that pure, self-sacrificing love which is the very essence of the Christian faith; and now Ananias and Sapphira come before us as a most affecting example of the abuse which the selfish and the sordid were tempted to make of this original and peculiar institute. "This is the first trace of a shade which falls upon the pure, bright form of the young Church; a member of the Christian body misguidedly attempts, along with his wife, to deceive the Apostles. Hypocrisy and falsehood were their sin, and death was their punishment."

2. "Kept back part of the price:"—their sin lay in openly professing to give the whole of what they had realised by the sale of their property, "as a gift of brotherly love to the common stock; but their aim was to obtain for themselves the credit of pre-eminent love and zeal, by contributing only a portion of the price, while they professed to give up the whole, and thus secure for themselves a maintenance from the common stock. They wished to serve two masters, but to appear to serve only One."

3. "Peter said:"—the Apostle might know, and others might know, that the property had been sold for more; or the deceit of the parties might have been made known to him by supernatural intimation.

4. "Was it not thine own?"—these words clearly indicate that no one was compelled to part with his property, or to devote it to the common good; but having vowed, they were bound to perform.

It is to be observed that the Apostle speaks of Ananias as lying to the Holy Ghost, and at the same time as lying unto God, while in this verse he have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and intend to bring this man's blood upon us.[a]

29 ¶ Then Peter and the other apostles answered and said, We ought to obey God rather than men.[b]

30 The God of our fathers raised up Jesus, whom ye slew and hanged on a tree.[c]

31 Him hath God exalted with his right hand to be a Prince and a Saviour, for to give repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins.[d]

32 And we are his witnesses of these things; and so is also the Holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey him.[e]

33 ¶ When they heard that, they were cut to the heart, and took counsel to slay them.[f] represents both Ananias and Sapphira as tempting the Spirit of the Lord. It follows that the Holy Ghost must have a distinct personal existence, and yet be essentially the same with God. The Apostle's words clearly establish the personality of the Holy Spirit.

13. "And of the rest durst no man join himself to them." According to Alford, none, whether believer or not, dared to join himself to the Apostles, as being one of them, or equal to them; but Baumgarten says, "No one who did not belong to the Christian body dared, from a feeling of reverential awe, to intrude himself among them;" that is, among the Apostles and believers.

17. "The high priest . . . they that were with him"—this was Annas, and the Sadducees were those who ranged themselves on his side, to carry out the counsel of the Sanhedrim. The teaching of the Apostles struck at the very root of the Sadducean belief, and its tendency was to undermine the whole Jewish system. Hence the activity of these two parties.

him: he also perished; and all, even as many as obeyed him, were dispersed.

38 And now I say unto you, Refrain from these men, and let them alone: for if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to nought:[a]

39 But if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it; lest haply ye be found even to fight against God.[b]

40 And to him they agreed: and when they had called the apostles, and beaten them, they commanded that they should not speak in the name of Jesus, and let them go.[c]

41 ¶ And they departed from the presence of the council, rejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for his name.[d]

42 And daily in the temple, and in every house, they ceased not to teach and preach Jesus Christ.[e]

CHAPTER VI.

1 The apostles, desirous to have the poor regarded for their bodily sustenance, as also careful themselves to dispense the word of God, the food of the soul, 3 appoint the office of deaconship to seven chosen men. 5 Of whom Stephen, a man full of faith, and of the Holy Ghost, is one. 12 Who is taken of those, whom he confounded in disputing, 13 and after falsely accused of blasphemy against the law and the temple.

4 But we will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word.[i]

15 And all that sat in the council, looking stedfastly on him, saw his face as it had been the face of an angel.

21 "Called the council together, and all the senate of the children of Israel."—these were not two separate bodies, but one judicature; both the nouns, according to a well-known canon, referring to one and the same thing. The reading should be, "called together the council, even all the senate," or all the elders of the children of Israel, this clause being intended to explain to foreigners the true meaning of the preceding word—"the council," or, as the Greek expresses it, "the Sanhedrim."

34. "Then stood there up one in the council."—Gamaliel—supposed to be the same with Rabban Gamaliel, one of the seven to whom, among the Rabbis, the Jews gave the title of Rabban, and the preceptor of Saul of Tarsus—tries to moderate the storm which was now raging, by recommending a delay, so as to leave the future to disclose the proper line of action.

36 "Before these days rose up Theudas."—the name was common with the Jews, and there were several insurrections

37. "Rose up Judas:"—this was Judas Galilæus, who appeared in the days of Cæsar Augustus, and who, on the occasion of the census under Quirinus, raised a disturbance by avowing that the Jews, as the people of God, ought not to pay taxes to the Romans, the payment of tribute being a mark of slavery. His followers remained till the great Jewish war under Titus.

41. "Suffer shame for his name:"—this influence of "the holy name, which could transmute shame and suffering endured for its sake into honour and rejoicing, greatly transcends all that the name of any created being had ever accomplished. Here, therefore, we have actual demonstration that the name of Jesus is THE NAME OF GOD."

CHAPTER VI.

Olshausen asserts that "the whole complexion of this narrative makes it certain that it could only be designed for an introduction to the history of Stephen," and that Luke wished "to inform his readers shortly of the occasion on which this celebrated martyr received office in the Church, and thus to introduce him to them as a distinguished member of the body."

1. "The Grecians against the Hebrews:"—great accessions were made to the Church through the ministry of the Apostles. These converts were composed of two classes: on the one side stood the Jews, who, being natives of Palestine, and speaking in the Hebrew, or rather in the Aramaic, tongue, were called Hebrews; while on the other side were all such as had been in the provinces of the Roman empire, and who, as making use of the Greek tongue, were called Greeks, or Hellenists. The Hebrews, no doubt, were the chief element father was dead, he removed him into this land, wherein ye now dwell.[a]

5 And he gave him none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on: yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him, when as yet he had no child.[b]

6 And God spake on this wise, That his seed should sojourn in a strange land; and that they should bring them into bondage, and entreat them evil four hundred years.[c]

7 And the nation to whom they shall be in bondage will I judge, said God: and after that shall they come forth, and serve me in this place.[d]

8 And he gave him the covenant of circumcision: and so Abraham begat Isaac, and circumcised him the eighth day; and Isaac begat Jacob; and Jacob begat the twelve patriarchs.[e]

9 And the patriarchs, moved with envy, sold Joseph into Egypt: but God was with him,[f]

10 And delivered him out of all his afflictions, and gave him favour and wisdom in the sight of Pharaoh king of Egypt; and he made him governor over Egypt and all his house.[g]

11 Now there came a dearth over all the land of Egypt and Chanaan, and great affliction: and our fathers found no sustenance.[h]

12 But when Jacob heard that there was corn in Egypt, he sent out our fathers first.[i]

13 And at the second time Joseph was made known to his brethren; and Joseph's kindred was made known unto Pharaoh.[j]

14 Then sent Joseph, and called his father Jacob to him, and all his kindred, threescore and fifteen souls.[k]

15 So Jacob went down into Egypt, and died, he, and our fathers,[l]

16 And were[*] carried over into Sychem, and laid in the sepulchre that Abraham bought for a sum of money of the sons of Emmor the father of Sychem.[m]

17 But when the time of the promise drew nigh, which God had sworn to Abraham, the people grew and multiplied in Egypt,[n]

18 Till another king arose, which knew not Joseph.

19 The same dealt subtilly with our kindred, and evil entreated our fathers, so that they cast out their young children, to the end they might not live.[o]

20 In which time Moses was born, and was [1]exceeding fair, and nourished up in his father's house three months:[p]

21 And when he was cast out, Pharaoh's daughter took him up, and nourished him for her own son.[q]

22 And Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in words and in deeds.[r]

23 And when he was full forty years old, it came into his heart to visit his brethren the children of Israel.[s]

24 And seeing one of them suffer wrong, he defended him, and avenged him that was oppressed, and smote the Egyptian:

25 [2]For he supposed his brethren would have understood how that God by his hand would deliver them: but they understood not.

26 And the next day he shewed himself unto them as they strove, and would have set them at one again, saying, Sirs, ye are brethren; why do ye wrong one to another?[t]

27 But he that did his neighbour wrong thrust him away, saying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge over us?[u]

28 Wilt thou kill me, as thou diddest the Egyptian yesterday?

29 Then fled Moses at this saying, and was a stranger in the land of Madian, where he begat two sons.[v]

30 And when forty years were expired, there appeared to him in the wilderness of mount Sina an angel of the Lord in a flame of fire in a bush.[w]

31 When Moses saw it, he wondered at the sight: and as he drew near to behold it, the voice of the Lord came unto him,

32 Saying, I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. Then Moses trembled, and durst not behold.[x]

33 Then said the Lord to him, Put off thy shoes from thy feet: for the place where thou standest is holy ground.[y]

34 I have seen, I have seen the affliction of my people which is in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning, and am come down to deliver them. And now come, I will send thee into Egypt.[z]

35 This Moses whom they refused, saying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge? the same did God send to be a ruler and a deliverer by the hand of the angel which appeared to him in the bush.[a]

36 He brought them out, after that he had shewed wonders and signs in the land of Egypt, and in the Red sea, and in the wilderness forty years.[b] in the Church; and hence the complaint of the Hellenists, that their widows were not equally cared for.

4. "Give ourselves continually to prayer:"—there was a higher sphere than that in which the evil now complained of was said to exist; and therefore it was not right that they should come down to this lower ground, to the neglect or omission of more sacred duties. At first they undertook to attend to the poor, but afterwards deputed this office to some of the Hebrew members of the Church.

5. "They chose:"—with the exception of Stephen and Philip, the others are unknown to us beyond their names. All the names are Greek; but there is no proof that all these seven men were Hellenists. It is also worthy of remark that the title DEACON is nowhere applied to these seven men in Scripture; nor does the word occur in the Book of the Acts at all. Still, the universal consent of Christian writers, in all ages, in regarding this as the institution of the office of deacons is not to be overlooked.

9. "The synagogue of the Libertines:"—these Libertines were the descendants of Jewish "freedmen" at Rome, who had been expelled by Tiberius.

15. "His face as it had been the face of an angel:"—the general interpretation put upon these words is, that the face of Stephen was lighted up with a Divine radiance, as if it were something external to himself; whereas it was but the inward illumination of which he was the conscious and happy subject.

CHAPTER VII.

This chapter is intimately connected with the preceding one. The address of Stephen is not at first sight such as we should naturally look for from a man in his peculiar position, it cannot, properly speaking, be called a defence, for it is largely made up of a review of the Jewish history. But then he connects this history with the person, life, ministry, and death of Christ, and thus comes to vindicate his attachment to the Christian Church, and his belief in the Christian faith.

2. "Before he dwelt in Charran:"—it is taken as an objection to the genuineness of Stephen's address, that its historical statement does not harmonise with the original sources; that the appearance which is here said

37 ¶ This is that Moses, which said unto the children of Israel, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, [1]like unto me; him shall ye hear.[a]

38 This is he, that was in the church in the wilderness with the angel which spake to him in the mount Sina, and with our fathers: who received the lively oracles to give unto us:[b]

39 To whom our fathers would not obey, but thrust him from them, and in their hearts turned back again into Egypt,

40 Saying unto Aaron, Make us gods to go before us: for as for this Moses, which brought us out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.[c]

41 And they made a calf in those days, and offered sacrifice unto the idol, and rejoiced in the works of their own hands.[d]

42 Then God turned, and gave them up to worship the host of heaven; as it is written in the book of the prophets, O ye house of Israel, have ye offered to me slain beasts and sacrifices by the space of forty years in the wilderness?[e]

43 Yea, ye took up the tabernacle of Moloch, and the star of your god Remphan, figures which ye made to worship them: and I will carry you away beyond Babylon.

46 Who found favour before God, and desired to find a tabernacle for the God of Jacob.[h]

47 But Solomon built him an house.[i]

48 Howbeit the most High dwelleth not in temples made with hands; as saith the prophet,[j]

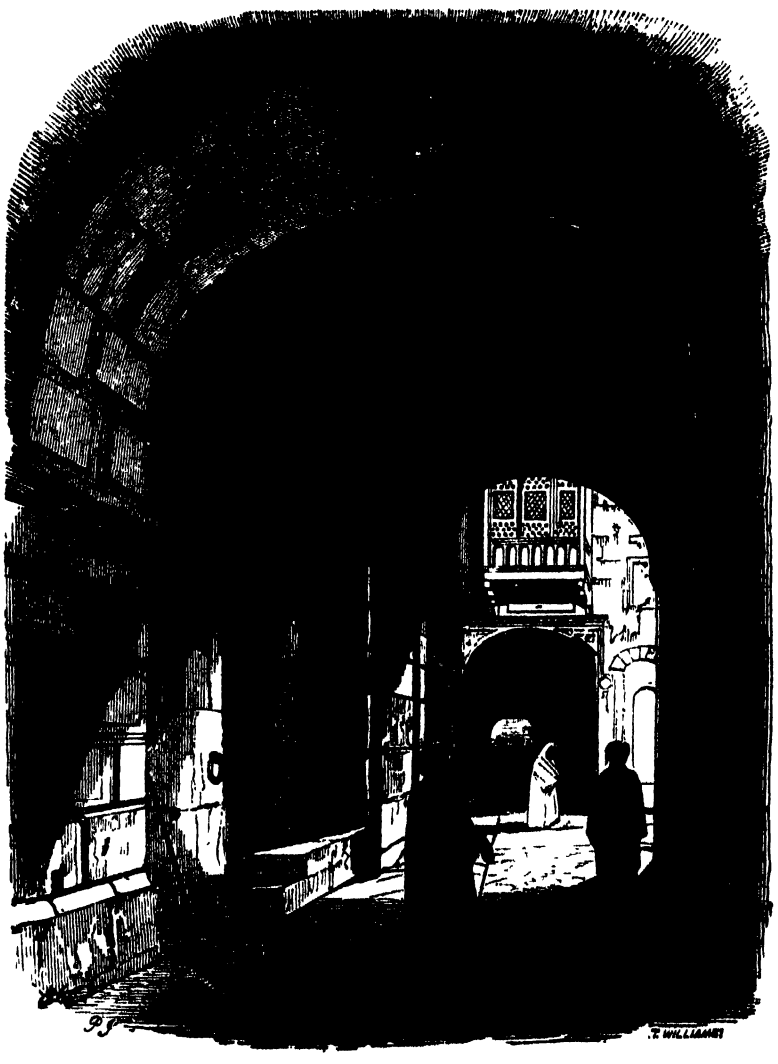
50 Hath not my hand made all these things?



51 ¶ Ye stiffnecked and uncircumcised in heart and ears, ye do always resist the Holy Ghost: as your fathers did, so do ye.[l]

52 Which of the prophets have not your fathers persecuted? and they have slain them which shewed before of the coming of the Just One; of whom ye have been now the betrayers and murderers:[m]

to have taken place before he dwelt in Charran is described in the book of Genesis as having taken place after his arrival in Haran; that Abraham's migration from Haran to Canaan is here alleged to have been after the death of Terah the father of Abraham; whereas we learn from Gen. xi. 32 that Terah reached the age of two hundred and five years, and therefore lived nearly sixty years after the period in question; for he was seventy years old before he begat Abraham, and Abraham was seventy-five when he removed to Canaan. To obviate this difficulty, recourse is had to tradition. There are so many references to Rabbinical tradition in the address of Stephen, as not only to justify the supposition that he had received a thoroughly Rabbinical education, but to show that these references to tradition render it highly probable that ancient genuine statements were preserved traditionally among the Jews, which received their higher confirmation by admission into the New Testament. Taking this for granted, we may accept the traditional belief that Abraham had some supernatural appearance, even in Ur of the Chaldees, before he dwelt in Charran. Of Mesopotamia, whose northern part was inhabited by Chaldeans, Ur was, in a somewhat wider sense of the word, a city; and therefore mention might be made of Abraham's residence in Mesopotamia before his arrival in Haran.

6. "Four hundred years:"—in Exodus and in Galatians the period is said to have been four hundred and thirty years. The various modes of reconciling this discrepancy are too long and too elaborate to be introduced here; but reckoning from Abraham's departure from Ur, twenty-five years before the birth of Isaac, to the exodus from Egypt, the whole period of the sojourning of the children of Israel was four hundred and thirty years. Stephen gives the round number.

ST. STEPHEN'S GATE, AT JERUSALEM.

8. "The covenant of circumcision;"—or rather, he gave circumcision as the sign of the covenant or arrangement into which he had entered with his servant Abraham.

14. "Threescore and fifteen souls."—in Gen xlvi. 27, and other parts of the Old Testament, the number is seventy. Stephen doubtless includes the five sons of Ephraim and Manasseh, as being of the posterity of Jacob.

18. "Knew not Joseph;"—did not appreciate Joseph's character and merits, and acted independently of him altogether.

22. "Learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians:"—of this there is no mention in the Old Testament history, and therefore Stephen speaks according to tradition. So we may say of the age of Moses, and of the inference to be drawn from his defending his brother Hebrew from the oppression of the Egyptian.

45. "Brought in with Jesus;"—or rather, with Joshua in his conquest of the nations.

51. "Ye do always resist the Holy Ghost:"—they had had the highest demonstration of his presence and power in the ministry and the miracles of the Apostles.

55. "Saw the glory of God;"—by the term "glory of God" we understand the Shekinah, or symbol of the Divine presence. God was pleased to vouchsafe to the martyr Stephen a sight of Jesus in his exaltation and glory.

58. The gate represented in the illustration is the one by which it is traditionally said that Stephen was taken out of Jerusalem to be stoned. Out of this gate you pass into the valley of Jehoshaphat, where the road branches off into different directions, one of which leads to Bethany and Jericho. St. Stephen's Gate is supposed to be the same as that called the sheep gate in Neh. iii. 1; and the high gate of Benjamin, in Jer. xx. 2. Mr. Lewis says, "It is remarkable that to this day the Bedouins bring their sheep to market in this quarter of the city." The same gate used to be regarded as the Valley gate referred to in Neh. iii. 13; but this opinion must be erroneous.

59. "Calling upon God, and saying, Lord Jesus:"—here is a prayer addressed by the dying Stephen immediately to Jesus. Christ is therefore true God.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 By occasion of the persecution in Jerusalem, the church being planted in Samaria, 5 by Philip the deacon, who preached, did miracles, and baptized many, among the rest Simon the sorcerer, a great seducer of the people: 14 Peter and John come to confirm and enlarge the church: where, by prayer and imposition of hands giving the Holy Ghost, 18 when Simon would have bought the like power of them, 20 Peter sharply reproving his hypocrisy, and covetousness, and exhorting him to repentance, together with John preaching the word of the Lord, return to Jerusalem. 26 But the angel sendeth Philip to teach, and baptize the Ethiopian eunuch.

AND Saul was consenting unto his death. And at that time there was a great persecution against the church which was at Jerusalem; and they were all scattered abroad throughout the regions of Judæa and Samaria, except the apostles.[a]

2 And devout men carried Stephen to his burial, and made great lamentation over him.[b]

3 As for Saul, he made havock of the church, entering into every house, and haling men and women committed them to prison.[c]

4 Therefore they that were scattered abroad went every where preaching the word.[d]

5 Then Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and preached Christ unto them.[e]

6 And the people with one accord gave heed unto those things which Philip spake, hearing and seeing the miracles which he did.

7 For unclean spirits, crying with loud voice, came out of many that were possessed with them: and many taken with palsies, and that were lame, were healed.[f]

8 And there was great joy in that city.

9 But there was a certain man, called Simon, which beforetime in the same city used sorcery, and bewitched the people of Samaria, giving out that himself was some great one:[g]

10 To whom they all gave heed, from the least to the greatest, saying, This man is the great power of God.

12 But when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women.[h]

13 Then Simon himself believed also: and when he was baptized, he continued with Philip, and wondered, beholding the [1]miracles and signs which were done.

14 Now when the apostles which were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John:

15 Who, when they were come down, prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Ghost:[i]

16 (For as yet he was fallen upon none of them: only they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus.)[j]

17 Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost.[k]

19 Saying, Give me also this power, that on whomsoever I lay hands, he may receive the Holy Ghost.

20 But Peter said unto him, Thy money perish with thee, because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money.[l]

21 Thou hast neither part nor lot in this matter: for thy heart is not right in the sight of God.

22 Repent therefore of this thy wickedness, and pray God, if perhaps the thought of thine heart may be forgiven thee.[m]

23 For I perceive that thou art in the gall of bitterness, and in the bond of iniquity.[n]

24 Then answered Simon, and said, Pray ye to the Lord for me, that none of these things which ye have spoken come upon me.[o]

25 And they, when they had testified and preached the word of the Lord, returned to Jerusalem, and

CHAPTER VIII.

"The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the Church." The persecution which dispersed the members of the Church at Jerusalem had the effect of spreading the Gospel through various regions, both near and remote. The wrath of man works the righteousness of God thus the positive and the negative statement are alike true

1. "Saul was consenting"—he regarded the murder of Stephen as a deed well pleasing to God. The Apostle of the nations comes before us a furious persecutor!

"The regions of Judæa and Samaria."—these are specially named, as having not a few of the followers of Christ living there; but it is thought that Christianity now found its way into Phœnicia, and Cyprus, and Antioch.

2. "Devout men:"—these, we are told, are not to be viewed as believers, but pious Jews who regarded Stephen as innocent. We think both may have been intended.

9. "Used sorcery, and bewitched the people"—with such deceivers the country was overrun in the days of the Apostles. It is said that Simon Magus was worshipped at Rome as a god, on account of his wondrous magical power, and had a statue, on the island in the Tiber, erected to his memory; but the history partakes more of fable than of truth. The ancient fathers considered Simon Magus as the founder of the sect called Gnostics.

18 "He offered them money"—though it is said in the thirteenth verse that "Simon himself believed," it is yet clear that his belief amounted to nothing more than an outward conformity to the requirements of Christianity. Hence the pointed words of Peter which follow.

23 "Gall of bitterness . . . bond of iniquity:"—gall is the very essence of bitterness; while the poison of the serpent was conceived to be seated in the gall. The idea, therefore, is, that Simon was under the bitterest and most deadly influence, and, notwithstanding his profession of faith, that he was still "tied and bound with the chain of his sins." How fearful his condition! How imperative his repentance and reformation!

25. The ambassadors of the Cross were on their way back to Jerusalem; and as their journey took them through several Samaritan villages, they everywhere pressed upon their hearers the claims of the new faith. On their way home, Philip was addressed by an angel from heaven, from whom he received a special commission, in which were involved interests of incalculable moment, and which the evangelist delayed not to fulfil.

26. "The angel of the Lord spake unto Philip"—it is supposed that this angelic appearance took place in Samaria, after Peter and John had taken leave of their companion; but of this we have no intimation.

"Go toward the south:"—instead of going through Jerusalem, he probably followed the high road for a time, and thence struck across the country in a south-west direction, to gain at some given point the road leading from Jerusalem to Gaza. This Gaza was situated on the exterior side of Canaan, in the tribe of Judah, from which tribe it was taken by the Philistines, and formed one of their five principal cities. It was once subject to Egypt; but Alexander the Great took it, after a siege of five months. It was destroyed by the Jewish king, Alexander Jannæus, but rebuilt by the Roman general, Gabinius; and then was given by Augustus to Herod, on whose death it was attached to the province of Syria. The city, which is large, and contains at the present day a population of some 15,000 souls, stands on an elevation, while the scenery around is varied and beautiful.

"Which is desert."—this cannot apply to the city itself, but to the way which the angel instructed Philip to take. Robinson found an ancient road leading direct from Jerusalem to Gaza, which at the present time is desert, or thinly peopled, and might have been at that earlier period.

preached the gospel in many villages of the Samaritans.

26 And the angel of the Lord spake unto Philip, saying, Arise, and go toward the south unto the way that goeth down from Jerusalem unto Gaza, which is desert.

27 And he arose and went: and, behold, a man of Ethiopia, an eunuch of great authority under Candace queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her treasure, and had come to Jerusalem for to worship,[a]

28 Was returning, and sitting in his chariot read Esaias the prophet.

29 Then the Spirit said unto Philip, Go near, and join thyself to this chariot.

30 And Philip ran thither to him, and heard him read the prophet Esaias, and said, Understandest thou what thou readest?

31 And he said, How can I, except some man should guide me? And he desired Philip that he would come up and sit with him.

32 The place of the scripture which he read was this, He was led as a sheep to the slaughter; and like a lamb dumb before his shearer, so opened he not his mouth:[b]

33 In his humiliation his judgment was taken away: and who shall declare his generation? for his life is taken from the earth.

34 And the eunuch answered Philip, and said, I pray thee, of whom speaketh the prophet this? of himself, or of some other man?

35 Then Philip opened his mouth, and began at the same scripture, and preached unto him Jesus.[c]

36 And as they went on their way, they came unto a certain water: and the eunuch said, See, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized?[d]

37 And Philip said, If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God.[e]

38 And he commanded the chariot to stand still: and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him.

39 And when they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the eunuch saw him no more: and he went on his way rejoicing.[f]

40 But Philip was found at Azotus: and passing through he preached in all the cities, till he came to Cæsarea.

27 "A man of Ethiopia."—this was Ethiopia Proper, a mountainous and well-watered country, lying south of Egypt, and including the western countries of Nubia and Abyssinia. During his visit to Jerusalem, this man's attention, no doubt, had been drawn to the controversy respecting Jesus as the promised Messiah, or he may have been a proselyte of the gate, which will account for his reading the Jewish Scriptures

As among the Egyptians Pharaoh was the name given to their kings, so among the Ethiopians Candace was given to all their queens. This queen reigned in Meroe, the chief city of Ethiopia Proper, or Upper Egypt.

29. "The Spirit said unto Philip"—that is, by some mode of communication which the evangelist at once understood and obeyed.

33. "His judgment was taken away:"—in Hebrew, the literal reading of this clause is, "He was taken away by distress and judgment;" which Lowth renders, "by an oppressive judgment." But we conceive the idea to be, that "in his humiliation he was denied the most common justice."

"His generation."—the character of the age in which he lived, say some; his eternal Sonship and his miraculous incarnation, say others. But why should it not refer to his posterity? He was to see his seed, and prolong his days.

39. "The Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip:"—it is impossible, we think, to regard this as anything less than a miraculous disappearance.

40. "At Azotus . . . . . till he came to Cæsarea:"—Azotus is the same with Ashdod, one of the five principal cities of the Philistines, situated on the Mediterranean, some fifteen or twenty miles north of Gaza. Here was the temple of Dagon, in which the Philistines placed the ark of the Lord. Though it formerly withstood the siege of Psammetichus, King of Egypt, for twenty-five years, it is now a village of mud houses, yet having a beautiful site and abundance of olives.

Cæsarea:—this important place is not to be confounded with Cæsarea Philippi. It was one of the largest towns in Palestine, with a seaport, and stores between Joppa and Carmel, about seventy miles from Jerusalem. It was greatly enlarged and beautified by Herod the Great, and was named Cæsarea, in honour of Cæsar Augustus. It was the Roman capital of Palestine, was called Cæsarea Palestinæ, and before the destruction of Jerusalem was the seat of the Roman procurators. It was inhabited chiefly by Gentiles. It is now in ruins. An engraving on another page shows the present condition of the ruins

The Abyssinians have a tradition which ascribes their conversion to Christianity to the influence of the distinguished courtier to whom Philip preached the Gospel.

CHAPTER IX

Here we enter on the Second Part of this Apostolic Record, and have to trace one of the most interesting and eventful lives in the whole history of our humanity. The character of the Apostle Paul stands forth so prominently, that it engrosses all attention to itself. The ground of this fact, that Paul occupies so conspicuous a place in the Apostolic Church, is to be sought not alone in the greatness of his intellect, and in his zeal and faithfulness, but in the circumstance that the Twelve were primarily destined for the people of Israel. Paul's destination, however, was to be a messenger to the Gentile world.

1. "Unto the high priest:"—this is said to have been Theophilus, brother and successor to Jonathan, who succeeded Caiaphas.

2. "Desired of him letters:"—these letters of authorisation were written by the high priest in the name of the whole Sanhedrim.

Damascus is one of the oldest cities in the world It was the capital of Ancient Syria, and for three centuries the residence of the Syrian kings. It is beautifully situated at the foot of Mount Hermon, in a large and well-watered plain. Its history, from the days of Abraham down to the conversion of Saul of Tarsus, is full of stirring incident. At present it is a large city, with 250,000 inhabitants, of whom some 70,000 are said to be Christians.

"The synagogues:"—that is, to the presidents of the synagogues, who would recognise the authority of the Sanhedrim, and carry out its instructions.

8 And Saul arose from the earth; and when his eyes were opened, he saw no man: but they led him by the hand, and brought him into Damascus.

9 And he was three days without sight, and neither did eat nor drink.

10 ¶ And there was a certain disciple at Damascus, named Ananias; and to him said the Lord in a vision, Ananias. And he said, Behold, I am here, Lord.[a]

11 And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the street which is called Straight, and enquire in the house of Judas for one called Saul, of Tarsus: for, behold, he prayeth,[b]

20 And straightway he preached Christ in the synagogues, that he is the Son of God.[i]

21 But all that heard him were amazed, and said; Is not this he that destroyed them which called on this name in Jerusalem, and came hither for that intent, that he might bring them bound unto the chief priests?[j]

22 But Saul increased the more in strength, and confounded the Jews which dwelt at Damascus, proving that this is very Christ.[k]

23 ¶ And after that many days were fulfilled, the Jews took counsel to kill him:[l]

24 But their laying await was known of Saul.

The journey to Damascus presupposes the existence of Christians in that city, and who were, perhaps, some of the fruit reaped on the day of Pentecost.

"THIS WAY," or "THE WAY," had become a well-known designation for the Christian faith. The expression was sometimes varied. In chap. xvi. 17 it is called "the way of salvation," and in chap. xviii. 25 it is termed "the way of the Lord"

5. "To kick against the pricks"—this is a proverbial expression, and points to the fact that restive oxen would often kick against the very goad which was employed to lead or drive them, and thus wound themselves the more deeply. Opposition to higher power is the idea involved.

7. "Stood speechless:"—there is an apparent discrepancy between this account and that given by Paul himself in a subsequent chapter. Here it is said that the men "stood speechless;" there it is said, "they fell to the ground:" here, that they heard a voice, but saw no man; there, that "they saw the light, but heard not the voice." They might see the light or effulgence which now surrounded them, and yet discern no bodily form; and they might hear a voice, and yet not be able to understand what was said. In their alarm, the words uttered might be to them as a terrific sound.

11. "The street which is called Straight"—there is still in Damascus a street which extends through it in long perspective; and this may be the street here referred to.

Tarsus was the capital of Cilicia, situated in a fruitful plain on the river Cydnus, and distinguished as the birthplace of many eminent men. It was, though subject to Rome, a free city, having its own laws and liberties. From the number of its schools and learned men, it was ranked by the side of Athens and Alexandria. Its present condition is wretched in the extreme,

And they watched the gates day and night to kill him.[a]

25 Then the disciples took him by night, and let him down by the wall in a basket.[b]

26 And when Saul was come to Jerusalem, he assayed to join himself to the disciples: but they were all afraid of him, and believed not that he was a disciple.[c]

27 But Barnabas took him, and brought him to the apostles, and declared unto them how he had seen the Lord in the way, and that he had spoken to him, and how he had preached boldly at Damascus in the name of Jesus.[d]

29 And he spake boldly in the name of the Lord Jesus, and disputed against the Grecians: but they went about to slay him.[f]

38 And forasmuch as Lydda was nigh to Joppa, and the disciples had heard that Peter was there, they sent unto him two men, desiring him that he would not [2]delay to come to them.

39 Then Peter arose and went with them. When he was come, they brought him into the upper chamber: and all the widows stood by him weeping,

14. "Here he hath authority:"—it could hardly fail to be notified to Ananias and the Christians at Damascus, by their brethren at Jerusalem, that Saul was on his way to persecute them.

23. "After that many days were fulfilled:"—it is probable that previous to this Paul took his journey into Arabia, of which he makes mention in his Epistle to the Galatians; and after receiving in the desert of Arabia the highest revelations of truth from his exalted Lord, he returned to Damascus; and it was not till the lapse of three whole years that he went up to Jerusalem, and sought an introduction to the Apostles.

27. "Barnabas took him:"—they were probably brought up in the same school at Tarsus.

30. "Down to Cæsarea:"—not Cæsarea Philippi, but Cæsarea of Palestine.

32. "Peter passed throughout all quarters:"—this journey was undertaken after Saul's conversion, but before he went up to Jerusalem, where he saw Peter. It was a time of peace, of which Peter availed himself.

35. "Lydda and Saron:"—Lydda, or Lod, was a large village on the Mediterranean, not far from Joppa, and just one day's distance from Jerusalem. Saron may have been the village between Lydda and Arsef, on the celebrated plain extending along the coast from Cæsarea to Joppa.

36. "At Joppa:"—Joppa is a celebrated and very ancient city and seaport on the shore of the Mediterranean, and at the extremity of a high road to Jerusalem. The place is mentioned in Josh. xix. 46, as Japho, and it is still called Jaffa or Yaffa. It was the principal if not the only port of Palestine, and hence Hiram, king of Tyre, sent hither the materials for the temple, which had then to be conveyed by land forty miles to Jerusalem. The harbour has never been either safe or commodious. Here Jonah embarked and shewing the coats and garments which Dorcas made, while she was with them.

40 But Peter put them all forth, and kneeled down, and prayed; and turning him to the body said, Tabitha, arise. And she opened her eyes: and when she saw Peter, she sat up.[a]

41 And he gave her his hand, and lifted her up, and when he had called the saints and widows, presented her alive.

42 And it was known throughout all Joppa; and many believed in the Lord.[b]

43 And it came to pass, that he tarried many days in Joppa with one Simon a tanner.[c]

CHAPTER X.

1 Cornelius, a devout man, 5 being commanded by an angel, sendeth for Peter. 11 who by a vision 15, 20 is taught not to despise the Gentiles. 34 As he preacheth Christ to Cornelius and his company, 44 the Holy Ghost falleth on them, 48 and they are baptized.

THERE was a certain man in Cæsarea called Cornelius, a centurion of the band called the Italian band,

2 A devout man, and one that feared God with all his house, which gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God alway.[d]

3 He saw in a vision evidently about the ninth hour of the day an angel of God coming in to him, and saying unto him, Cornelius.[e]

4 And when he looked on him, he was afraid, and said, What is it, Lord? And he said unto him, Thy prayers and thine alms are come up for a memorial before God.

5 And now send men to Joppa, and call for one Simon, whose surname is Peter:

6 He lodgeth with one Simon a tanner, whose house is by the sea side: he shall tell thee what thou oughtest to do.[f]

7 And when the angel which spake unto Cornelius was departed, he called two of his houshold servants, and a devout soldier of them that waited on him continually;

8 And when he had declared all these things unto them, he sent them to Joppa.

9 ¶ On the morrow, as they went on their journey, and drew nigh unto the city, Peter went up upon the housetop to pray about the sixth hour:[g]

10 And he became very hungry, and would have eaten: but while they made ready, he fell into a trance,

11 And saw heaven opened, and a certain vessel descending unto him, as it had been a great sheet knit at the four corners, and let down to the earth:[h]

12 Wherein were all manner of fourfooted beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air.

13 And there came a voice to him, Rise, Peter; kill, and eat.

14 But Peter said, Not so, Lord; for I have never eaten any thing that is common or unclean.[i]

15 And the voice spake unto him again the second time, What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common.[j]

16 This was done thrice: and the vessel was received up again into heaven.

17 Now while Peter doubted in himself what this vision which he had seen should mean, behold, the men which were sent from Cornelius had made enquiry for Simon's house, and stood before the gate,

18 And called, and asked whether Simon, which was surnamed Peter, were lodged there.

19 ¶ While Peter thought on the vision, the Spirit said unto him, Behold, three men seek thee.[k]

20 Arise therefore, and get thee down, and go with them, doubting nothing: for I have sent them.[l]

21 Then Peter went down to the men which were sent unto him from Cornelius; and said, Behold, I am he whom ye seek: what is the cause wherefore ye are come?

22 And they said, Cornelius the centurion, a just man, and one that feareth God, and of good report among all the nation of the Jews, was warned from God by an holy angel to send for thee into his house, and to hear words of thee.[m]

23 Then called he them in, and lodged them. And on the morrow Peter went away with them, and certain brethren from Joppa accompanied him.[n]

24 And the morrow after they entered into Cæsarea. And Cornelius waited for them, and had called together his kinsmen and near friends.

25 And as Peter was coming in, Cornelius met for Tarshish, and here Peter lodged when he raised Dorcas to life, and when he was sent for by Cornelius. Joppa stands on a rocky hill of an oblong shape, and the houses and streets rise upon it in tiers, presenting an imposing and picturesque appearance. The market is well supplied, but travellers differ considerably as to the cleanliness and comfort of the town, the condition of which seems to vary with the season. Joppa has been often sacked and destroyed; at present it is a walled town, containing four or five thousand inhabitants, one-fourth of whom may profess the Christian religion.

Tabitha is the Aramaic form, and Dorcas the Greek form of the name.

43. "Simon a tanner"—the fact that Peter took up his abode with him shows that Jewish practices were already disregarded by him.

CHAPTER X.

It may be that Peter was in no uncertainty as to the fact that the Gentiles were to be received into the Christian Church, but only whether they could be admitted without being circumcised, and taking upon themselves the obligation of the law. On this he stood in need of further instruction.

1. "A centurion of the band:"—an officer commanding the sixth part of a cohort. The Italian band was the cohort levied in Italy, and not in Syria.

2. "A devout man:"—by what influence he had been induced to abandon idolatry, and become a worshipper of the true God, we are not told, or whether he had become a proselyte of the gate. Still, the testimony to his faith and piety is explicit and satisfactory.

3. "The ninth hour:"—as this was one of the Jewish hours of prayer—three in the afternoon—we may infer that Cornelius was a Jewish proselyte.

9. "Upon the housetop to pray about the sixth hour:"—this was on the flat roof, which was used for retirement, devotion, and religious celebrations. The hour of prayer was also the hour of the mid-day meal; and hence the fact of Peter being the subject of hunger.

10. "Fell into a trance."—or was in an ecstacy—in such a state of supernatural elevation as to be unconscious of present objects, and of anything external. All that now was present to him was purely internal and mental.

17. "Peter doubted in himself:"—he was not yet able to realise the truth shadowed forth in the vision, that men from all parts of the world were now to be received into the kingdom of God, without reference to the law, and were to be regarded as possessed of equal moral purity with the Jew himself.

23. "Called he them in, and lodged them:"—Gentiles as these messengers were, he takes them under the same roof, and, it may be, gave them a place at the same table with himself.

him, and fell down at his feet, and worshipped him.

26 But Peter took him up, saying, Stand up; I myself also am a man.[a]

27 And as he talked with him, he went in, and found many that were come together.

28 And he said unto them, Ye know how that it is an unlawful thing for a man that is a Jew to keep company, or come unto one of another nation; but God hath shewed me that I should not call any man common or unclean.[b]

29 Therefore came I unto you without gainsaying, as soon as I was sent for: I ask therefore for what intent ye have sent for me?

30 And Cornelius said, Four days ago I was fasting until this hour; and at the ninth hour I prayed in my house, and, behold, a man stood before me in bright clothing,[c]

31 And said, Cornelius, thy prayer is heard, and thine alms are had in remembrance in the sight of God.[d]

32 Send therefore to Joppa, and call hither Simon, whose surname is Peter; he is lodged in the house of one Simon a tanner by the sea side: who, when he cometh, shall speak unto thee.

33 Immediately therefore I sent to thee; and thou hast well done that thou art come. Now therefore are we all here present before God, to hear all things that are commanded thee of God.

34 ¶ Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons:[e]

35 But in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him.[f]

36 The word which God sent unto the children of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ: (he is Lord of all:)[g]

37 That word, I say, ye know, which was published throughout all Judæa, and began from Galilee, after the baptism which John preached;

38 How God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and with power: who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil; for God was with him.[h]

39 And we are witnesses of all things which he did both in the land of the Jews, and in Jerusalem; whom they slew and hanged on a tree:[i]

CHAPTER XI.

1 Peter, being accused for going in to the Gentiles, 5 maketh his defence, 18 which is accepted. 19 The gospel being spread into Phenice, and Cyprus, and Antioch, Barnabas is sent to confirm them. 26 The disciples there are first called Christians. 27 They send relief to the brethren in Judæa in time of famine.

AND the apostles and brethren that were in Judæa heard that the Gentiles had also received the word of God.

2 And when Peter was come up to Jerusalem, they that were of the circumcision contended with him,[r]

3 Saying, Thou wentest in to men uncircumcised, and didst eat with them.[s]

4 But Peter rehearsed the matter from the beginning, and expounded it by order unto them, saying,[t]

5 I was in the city of Joppa praying: and in a trance I saw a vision, A certain vessel descend, as it had been a great sheet, let down from heaven by four corners; and it came even to me:[u]

---

24. "His kinsmen and near friends;"—who, in all probability, were, like himself, worshippers of the true God, and were solicitous to hear what the servant of God might have to say to them in connection with Cornelius.

28. "Ye know . . . but God hath showed:"—this rendering destroys the beauty and the force of this passage. The Apostle's idea is this:—Ye Gentiles know full well that we Jews keep ourselves, as a general rule, separate from the uncircumcised heathen; and to me God hath shewed that I should not henceforth call the heathen common or unclean. We all, therefore, occupy one ground before him.

35. "He that feareth him:"—the Apostle does not mean to say that merely on the standing of unaided human nature—that is, apart from the mediation and the grace of Christ—it is possible to gain the favour of God. The fear and the righteousness of which Cornelius was the subject, being the result of a Divine principle, would, by virtue of the Saviour's merits, lead to the world of perfect light and life.

37. "That word, I say, ye know:"—as Cæsarea was near to Galilee, in which so many of our Lord's disciples dwelt, Cornelius and his friends could not have failed to have heard of the new faith, and what it professed to be, although they had yet no spiritual perception and appreciation of its truths. And this is all that is implied in the words now before us.

It is something worthy of remark in this apostolic address, that the first proposition advanced concerning Jesus Christ should assert his universal dominion—"HE IS LORD OF ALL."

CHAPTER XI.

By the supernatural and miraculous gift of the Spirit, God has now placed the Gentiles on an equality with the believing Jews; in proof of which the Apostle at once proposed that they should be baptised, to denote their incorporation into Christ's holy family. The necessity of this supernatural gift, and the admission of the first fruits of the Gentile world into the Church of Christ, becomes yet more apparent when we reflect upon the effects which the whole transaction produced on the Church at Jerusalem. This is the subject of the present chapter.

1. "That were in Judæa;"—that is, throughout the land of Judea.

3. "To men uncircumcised:"—Peter having returned to Jerusalem, he is called upon to explain his conduct in reference to the course which he had adopted at Cæsarea. We must limit the phrase to those Jewish converts who laid great stress on circumcision, and on that account had no sympathy with the Gentile world.

4. "Expounded it by order;"—that is, he gave them a connected account of all the circumstances, just as they took place, in reference to Cornelius and his friends.

6 Upon the which when I had fastened mine eyes, I considered, and saw fourfooted beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air.

7 And I heard a voice saying unto me, Arise, Peter; slay and eat.

8 But I said, Not so, Lord: for nothing common or unclean hath at any time entered into my mouth.

9 But the voice answered me again from heaven, What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common.

10 And this was done three times: and all were drawn up again into heaven.

12. "These six brethren accompanied me:"—as they had gone with him to Cæsarea, and had been eye and ear-witnesses of all that had taken place, so they returned with him to Jerusalem, were present now when he was called to defend his conduct, and could therefore either confirm or contradict his statements. His recital once finished, and their conviction is irresistible that it was the Lord's doing, and therefore could not be but marvellous in their sight.

"Entered into the man's house:"—it is somewhat singular that Peter never once names Cornelius in the progress of his address. It may be, as Alford suggests, "because he (Cornelius), his character and person, was absorbed in the category to which he belonged—that of men uncircumcised."

19—21. Here the Evangelist resumes his narrative from chap. viii. 4, and now describes the effect produced by the persecution of the Church, after the death of Stephen, in the wider diffusion of the Gospel. The dispersed followers of the Saviour everywhere became witnesses of his truth.

PHENICE was that sea-coast strip north of Palestine, about 120 miles long, extending from the river Eleutherus to a little south of Tyre, and which at this time belonged to the province of Syria. It is sometimes called the coasts of Tyre and Sidon. CYPRUS was a large island in the Mediterranean, intimately connected by commerce with Phenice. It contained many Jews. ANTIOCH was founded by Seleucus Nicator, who called it after his father, Antiochus. It was situated on the river Orontes, in a large and well-watered plain, about 120 stadia (or furlongs) from the sea. It was a great and populous city, the Asiatic capital of the Roman empire, and is second only to Jerusalem in the history of Christianity and her first missions. CYRENE was a city of Northern Africa, and at one time a populous and important place. It stood in a fair and fruitful plain, some miles away from the Mediterranean Sea, and it was the metropolis of Pentapolis, or Libya Cyrenaica. Its builder lived about 650 B.C., and it had been under Roman rule since 97 B.C. The Jews resorted in great numbers to Cyrene, because sent forth Barnabas, that he should go as far as Antioch.[a]

23 Who, when he came, and had seen the grace of God, was glad, and exhorted them all, that with purpose of heart they would cleave unto the Lord.[b]

24 For he was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith: and much people was added unto the Lord.[c]

25 Then departed Barnabas to Tarsus, for to seek Saul:[d]

26 And when he had found him, he brought him unto Antioch. And it came to pass, that a whole year they assembled themselves [1]with the church, and taught much people. And the disciples were called Christians first in Antioch.

27 ¶ And in these days came prophets from Jerusalem unto Antioch.[e]

28 And there stood up one of them named Agabus, and signified by the spirit that there should be great dearth throughout all the world: which came to pass in the days of Claudius Cæsar.[f]

29 Then the disciples, every man according to his ability, determined to send relief unto the brethren which dwelt in Judæa:[g]

30 Which also they did, and sent it to the elders by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.[h]

the rulers protected and favoured them. Some of these Jews were at Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost. Simon, a Cyrenian, was compelled to carry the cross of our Lord. Stephen disputed with Cyrenian Jews. Cyrenian converts proclaimed the Gospel at Antioch, and one of them, at least, is called a prophet. (See Matt. xxvii. 32; Acts ii. 10; vi. 9; xi. 20; xiii. 1.) At the present day, Cyrene is a scene of desolation, but the ruins have recently been explored by some of our own countrymen, with very successful results. The traveller, Paul Lucas, who visited the place a century and a half since, represents the necropolis and other remains as very extraordinary, and clearly much more extensive than at present. After many changes, Cyrene became a ruin under the Saracen domination.

25. "Departed Barnabas to Tarsus"—Barnabas found that the work at Antioch was more than he could accomplish, and therefore goes to Tarsus, to secure the co-operation of this new and distinguished convert to the faith.

CHAPTER XII.

1 King Herod persecuteth the Christians, killeth James, and imprisoneth Peter; whom an angel deliverath upon the prayers of the church. 20 In his pride taking to himself the honour due to God, he is stricken by an angel, and dieth miserably. 24 After his death, the word of God prospereth.

NOW about that time Herod the king [1]stretched forth his hands to vex certain of the church.

2 And he killed James the brother of John with the sword.[a]

3 And because he saw it pleased the Jews, he proceeded further to take Peter also. (Then were the days of unleavened bread.)[b]

4 And when he had apprehended him, he put him in prison, and delivered him to four quaternions of soldiers to keep him; intending after Easter to bring him forth to the people.[c]

5 Peter therefore was kept in prison: but [2]prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God for him.[d]

6 And when Herod would have brought him forth, the same night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains: and the keepers before the door kept the prison.

7 And, behold, the angel of the Lord came upon him, and a light shined in the prison: and he smote Peter on the side, and raised him up, saying, Arise up quickly. And his chains fell off from his hands.[e]

8 And the angel said unto him, Gird thyself, and bind on thy sandals. And so he did. And he saith unto him, Cast thy garment about thee, and follow me.

9 And he went out, and followed him; and wist not that it was true which was done by the angel; but thought he saw a vision.[f]

10 When they were past the first and the second ward, they came unto the iron gate that leadeth unto the city; which opened to them of his own accord: and they went out, and passed on through one street; and forthwith the angel departed from him.[g]

11 And when Peter was come to himself, he said, Now I know of a surety, that the Lord hath sent his angel, and hath delivered me out of the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews.[h]

12 And when he had considered the thing, he came to the house of Mary the mother of John, whose surname was Mark; where many were gathered together praying.[i]

13 And as Peter knocked at the door of the gate, a damsel came [3]to hearken, named Rhoda.

14 And when she knew Peter's voice, she opened not the gate for gladness, but ran in, and told how Peter stood before the gate.

15 And they said unto her, Thou art mad. But she constantly affirmed that it was even so. Then said they, It is his angel.[j]

16 But Peter continued knocking: and when they had opened the door, and saw him, they were astonished.

17 But he, beckoning unto them with the hand to hold their peace, declared unto them how the Lord had brought him out of the prison. And he said, Go shew these things unto James, and to the brethren. And he departed, and went into another place.[k]

18 Now as soon as it was day, there was no small stir among the soldiers, what was become of Peter.

19 And when Herod had sought for him, and found him not, he examined the keepers, and commanded that they should be put to death. And he went down from Judæa to Cæsarea, and there abode.

20 ¶ And Herod [4]was highly displeased with them of Tyre and Sidon: but they came with one accord to him, and, having made Blastus [5]the king's chamberlain their friend, desired peace; because their country was nourished by the king's country.[l]

21 And upon a set day Herod, arrayed in royal apparel, sat upon his throne, and made an oration unto them.

22 And the people gave a shout, saying, It is the voice of a god, and not of a man.

23 And immediately the angel of the Lord smote him, because he gave not God the glory: and he was eaten of worms, and gave up the ghost.[m]

24 ¶ But the word of God grew and multiplied.[n]

25 And Barnabas and Saul returned from Jerusalem, when they had fulfilled their [6]ministry, and took with them John, whose surname was Mark.[o]

CHAPTER XII.

These are the words of Baumgarten:—"The universal importance of the rise of the Church in the Gentile city of Antioch is exhibited still more distinctly by the fact that about the same time the hostility to the Gospel which prevailed in Jerusalem became still more bitter. Nothing could well be added to the intensity of hatred which, in the preceding narrative, had already risen to the height of deadly animosity to the disciples of Jesus; but still the power and the authority which this enmity hitherto could command were extremely limited. But now all that up to this time had been wanting to the malice of the Jews against the Christians—the power to carry its resolves into execution—was furnished to it; and, in fact, we hereafter see it succeeding in Jerusalem to the full extent of its malignity."

1. "Herod the king:"—this was Herod Agrippa, grandson of Herod the Great, to whom, for some important services which he had rendered to the Empire, Claudius gave Samaria and Judæa, so that he now ruled all the kingdom of his grandfather, Herod the Great.

4. "Four quaternions of soldiers:"—the Romans divided the night into four watches, and each watch was committed to four soldiers, to two of whom the prisoner was chained, while the other two kept watch before the doors of the prison.

"After Easter:"—for Herod, who was a rigid observer of the Jewish rites, would not execute a prisoner during the feast. But that over, it was his intention to bring him out and pass sentence upon him in the audience, and even in the sight of the people.

12. "John, whose surname was Mark:"—supposed to be one and the same with Mark the Evangelist, whose mother, Mary, was aunt to Barnabas (Col. iv. 10).

17. "Unto James:"—whether this was James the brother of our Lord, or James the son of Alphæus, is disputed.

20. "Nourished by the king's country:"—some quarrel had arisen on commercial grounds between Herod and the parties here named, and in his royal displeasure he even threatened to break off all commerce with them for the future. This would have deprived them of corn and other articles so necessary for their subsistence and comfort: and therefore they employed his own chamberlain, a Roman, to intercede for them. Herod replied in person; but the man usurped the place of God, by allowing language to be addressed to himself which belongs alone to God, and hence the judgment which was inflicted on him. To be eaten up of worms is mentioned by more than one writer as the termination of the Divine judgment.

25. "Had fulfilled their ministry;"—that is, of conveying to the elders, or presbyters, or bishops of the Church at Jerusalem, the bounty of the Church at Antioch for the relief of the suffering saints.—See chap. xi. 30.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 Paul and Barnabas are chosen to go to the Gentiles. 7 Of Sergius Paulus, and Elymas the sorcerer. 14 Paul preacheth at Antioch, that Jesus is Christ. 42 The Gentiles believe: 45 but the Jews gainsay and blaspheme: 46 whereupon they turn to the Gentiles. 48 As many as were ordained to life believed.

NOW there were in the church that was at Antioch certain prophets and teachers; as Barnabas, and Simeon that was called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manaen, [1]which had been brought up with Herod the tetrarch, and Saul.[a]

2 As they ministered to the Lord, and fasted, the Holy Ghost said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them.[b]

3 And when they had fasted and prayed, and laid their hands on them, they sent them away.[c]

4 ¶ So they, being sent forth by the Holy Ghost, departed unto Seleucia; and from thence they sailed to Cyprus.[d]

5 And when they were at Salamis, they preached the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews: and they had also John to their minister.[e]

6 And when they had gone through the isle unto Paphos, they found a certain sorcerer, a false prophet, a Jew, whose name was Bar-jesus:[f]

7 Which was with the deputy of the country, Sergius Paulus, a prudent man; who called for Barnabas and Saul, and desired to hear the word of God.

8 But Elymas the sorcerer (for so is his name by interpretation) withstood them, seeking to turn away the deputy from the faith.[g]

9 Then Saul, (who also is called Paul,) filled with the Holy Ghost, set his eyes on him,[h]

10 And said, O full of all subtilty and all mischief, thou child of the devil, thou enemy of all righteousness, wilt thou not cease to pervert the right ways of the Lord?[i]

11 And now, behold, the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, not seeing the sun for a season. And immediately there fell on him a mist and a darkness; and he went about seeking some to lead him by the hand.[j]

12 Then the deputy, when he saw what was done, believed, being astonished at the doctrine of the Lord.

13 Now when Paul and his company loosed from Paphos, they came to Perga in Pamphylia: and John departing from them returned to Jerusalem.[k]

CHAPTER XIII.

2. "Separate me:"—an incontrovertible proof of the personality and Godhead of the Holy Spirit.

4. "Seleucia:"—a strong, fortified city of Syria, on the shores of the Mediterranean, some fifteen miles west of Antioch, and about five miles from the mouth of the Orontes.

5. "John to their minister;"—that is, John Mark, in whose mother's house the disciples were assembled when Peter, on his release from prison, to their surprise, made his appearance.

6. "Had gone through the isle unto Paphos;"—that is, from its eastern to its western extremity, where stood Paphos, the capital of the whole island, and the residence of the Roman proconsul, and representative of the great imperial power of the world. A Jew, of the name of Bar-jesus, who, in connection with his vocation as a professed teacher, practised sorcery, being in the service of Sergius Paulus, the proconsul, endeavoured to destroy the impression which the truth, as uttered by Paul and Barnabas, had produced on the mind of the Roman representative. In attestation of their Divine mission, the Apostle put forth his miraculous power, which owned no source but God, and struck blind the man. The miracle reassured the deputy that Paul and Barnabas held their commission from heaven, and he held fast the truth which he had received. Opposition to the truth is frequently overruled, and made to promote the glory of God.

That this sorcerer had not the prophetic spirit, and could not foretell the future, is clear by Luke speaking of him as "a false prophet," and from the fact that the Apostle calls him a "child of the devil."

It is to be remarked that it is in connection with the conversion of Sergius that Saul first took the Roman name of PAUL. This he may have done from the fact of looking upon that conversion as truly significant of the whole of 30 But God raised him from the dead :[a]

31 And he was seen many days of them which came up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem, who are his witnesses unto the people.[b]

32 And we declare unto you glad tidings, how that the promise which was made unto the fathers,[c]

33 God hath fulfilled the same unto us their children, in that he hath raised up Jesus again ; as it is also written in the second psalm, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee.[d]

34 And as concerning that he raised him up from the dead, now no more to return to corruption, he said on this wise, I will give you the sure [1]mercies of David.[e]

35 Wherefore he saith also in another psalm, Thou shalt not suffer thine Holy One to see corruption.[f]

36 For David, [2]after he had served his own generation by the will of God, fell on sleep, and was laid unto his fathers, and saw corruption :[g]

37 But he, whom God raised again, saw no corruption.

38 ¶ Be it known unto you therefore, men and brethren, that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins :[h]

39 And by him all that believe are justified from all things, from which ye could not be justified by the law of Moses.[i]

40 Beware therefore, lest that come upon you, which is spoken of in the prophets ;[j]

41 Behold, ye despisers, and wonder, and perish : for I work a work in your days, a work which ye shall in no wise believe, though a man declare it unto you.

42 And when the Jews were gone out of the synagogue, the Gentiles besought that these words might be preached to them [3]the next sabbath.

43 Now when the congregation was broken up, many of the Jews and religious proselytes followed Paul and Barnabas : who, speaking to them, persuaded them to continue in the grace of God.[k]

44 ¶ And the next sabbath day came almost the whole city together to hear the word of God.

45 But when the Jews saw the multitudes, they were filled with envy, and spake against those things which were spoken by Paul, contradicting and blaspheming.[l]

46 Then Paul and Barnabas waxed bold, and said, It was necessary that the word of God should first have been spoken to you : but seeing ye put it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles.[m]

47 For so hath the Lord commanded us, saying, I have set thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldest be for salvation unto the ends of the earth.[n]

48 And when the Gentiles heard this, they were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord : and as many as were ordained to eternal life believed.[o]

49 And the word of the Lord was published throughout all the region.

50 But the Jews stirred up the devout and honourable women, and the chief men of the city, and raised persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them out of their coasts.[p]

51 But they shook off the dust of their feet against them, and came unto Iconium.[q]

52 And the disciples were filled with joy, and with the Holy Ghost.[r] his future labours: it at once designated his own new character, and his divinely-appointed destination for the Roman Gentile world.

14 "Antioch in Pisidia "—they now went inland from Perga. The Antioch to which they now came is to be distinguished from Antioch in Syria, from which they originally set out. This was the capital of the province of Pisidia, in Asia Minor. Pisidia lay north of Pamphylia The reason why the Apostles took this direction may have been that in this city there was a large community of Jews, and therefore presenting a very inviting field of labour; for though his mission was to the Gentiles, he never failed, whithersoever he went, to put himself first in contact with his own nation and people. It was the first city in which the preaching of Paul and Barnabas led to the formation of a Christian Church; and hence it is that the narrator here enters so fully on the doings of both of these illustrious ambassadors of Christ.

15. "Reading of the law and the prophets :"—in the synagogue the writings of Moses were so divided and arranged, as to be read through on the Sabbaths at least once every year. The reading of the prophets was introduced at a later period, and afterwards retained. To each synagogue there was a head or ruler, but here there seems to have been a plurality of elders or rulers. Any Jew might address the assembly on or from the lesson of the day. The address of Paul on the present occasion is truly characteristic of the man and the Christian—the teacher and the Apostle.

33. "In the second Psalm :"—these words have been generally applied to the Saviour's incarnation; but here the Apostle gives them their true application, since the fact of Christ's sonship depended on his resurrection from the dead, as did also the fulfilment of God's promises to the faithful; and hence the application of the words addressed to the Church, "I will give you the sure mercies of David."

39. "Could not be justified by the law of Moses :"—the law was "only a shadow of good things to come;" it made nothing perfect—it could not; and hence it was only as the mind and the faith reached forth to the promised Redeemer, that any moral or spiritual good was realised. But the Saviour, by his perfect obedience, became the end of the law for righteousness unto every one that believeth, and thus insured for the believer what it was not and is not in the nature of law to hold out.

51. "Came unto Iconium :"—this was a populous city east of Antioch in Pisidia, near the foot of Mount Taurus. The Apostle deemed it necessary to continue for some time in this city, confiding in the protecting hand of God. It was at this time the capital of Lycaonia. It is now called Conia or Cogni, and has a population of some 15,000.

10 Said with a loud voice, Stand upright on thy feet. And he leaped and walked.[b]

11 And when the people saw what Paul had done, they lifted up their voices, saying in the speech of Lycaonia, The gods are come down to us in the likeness of men.[c]

12 And they called Barnabas, Jupiter; and Paul, Mercurius, because he was the chief speaker.

13 Then the priest of Jupiter, which was before their city, brought oxen and garlands unto the gates, and would have done sacrifice with the people.[d]

14 Which when the apostles, Barnabas and Paul, heard of, they rent their clothes, and ran in among the people, crying out,[e]

15 And saying, Sirs, why do ye these things? We also are men of like passions with you, and preach unto you that ye should turn from these vanities unto the living God, which made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all things that are therein:[f]

16 Who in times past suffered all nations to walk in their own ways.[g]

17 Nevertheless he left not himself without witness, in that he did good, and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness.[h]

18 And with these sayings scarce restrained they the people, that they had not done sacrifice unto them.

19 ¶ And there came thither certain Jews from Antioch and Iconium, who persuaded the people, and, having stoned Paul, drew him out of the city, supposing he had been dead.[i]

20 Howbeit, as the disciples stood round about him, he rose up, and came into the city: and the next day he departed with Barnabas to Derbe.

21 And when they had preached the gospel to that city, and [1]had taught many, they returned again to Lystra, and to Iconium, and Antioch,[j]

22 Confirming the souls of the disciples, and exhorting them to continue in the faith, and that we must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God.[k]

23 And when they had ordained them elders in every church, and had prayed with fasting, they commended them to the Lord, on whom they believed.[l]

24 And after they had passed throughout Pisidia, they came to Pamphylia.

25 And when they had preached the word in Perga, they went down into Attalia:

26 And thence sailed to Antioch, from whence they had been recommended to the grace of God for the work which they fulfilled.[m]

27 And when they were come, and had gathered the church together, they rehearsed all that God had done with them, and how he had opened the door of faith unto the Gentiles.[n]

28 And there they abode long time with the disciples.

CHAPTER XV.

1 Great dissension ariseth touching circumcision. 6 The apostles consult about it, 22 and send their determination by letters to the churches. 36 Paul and Barnabas, thinking to visit the brethren together, fall at strife, and depart asunder.

AND certain men which came down from Judæa taught the brethren, and said, Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved.[o]

2 When therefore Paul and Barnabas had no small dissension and disputation with them, they determined that Paul and Barnabas, and certain other of them, should go up to Jerusalem unto the apostles and elders about this question.[p]

3 And being brought on their way by the church, they passed through Phenice and Samaria, declaring the conversion of the Gentiles: and they caused great joy unto all the brethren.[q]

4 And when they were come to Jerusalem, they were received of the church, and of the apostles and elders, and they declared all things that God had done with them.[r]

5 But there [2]rose up certain of the sect of the Pharisees which believed, saying, That it was needful to circumcise them, and to command them to keep the law of Moses.[s]

6 ¶ And the apostles and elders came together for to consider of this matter.

7 And when there had been much disputing, Peter rose up, and said unto them, Men and brethren, ye know how that a good while ago God made choice among us, that the Gentiles by my mouth should hear the word of the gospel, and believe.[t]

8 And God, which knoweth the hearts, bare them witness, giving them the Holy Ghost, even as he did unto us;[u]

1. "Also of the Greeks:"—the fact of their being present in the synagogue seems to imply that they had some predilection for the Jewish worship and religion.

3. "Gave testimony unto the word."—this refers not to the signs and wonders done by the hands of the Apostles, but to the positively moral and spiritual effect produced on the heart and life of those who believed the truth—an effect which could be resolved only into the power of God.

6. "Lystra and Derbe."—these towns lay south and south-east of Iconium, but their sites are very uncertain.

8. "Sat at Lystra;"—that is, plainly, in some place of public resort, or near to it.

11 "The speech of Lycaonia:"—their language or dialect is supposed to have been the old Assyrian, or a corruption of the Greek, but it is impossible to determine.

19. "Supposing he had been dead."—if struck with a stone, he might be so stunned as to become unconscious, and present the appearance of one dead.

26. "Thence sailed to Antioch;"—that is, to Antioch in Syria, where they met the Church in solemn assembly, and related to them their grand missionary tour.

CHAPTER XV.

"The first Church of the Gentiles arose in Antioch; but no Apostle was present or took part in forming it. Its very institution cannot record the name of its author. And it is from this community that the mission is sent forth to the Gentiles without any intervention of Apostles, or even of the Church at Jerusalem."

1. "Certain men which came down from Judæa:"—they professed to have embraced the Christian faith, for they were members of the Church at Jerusalem; but such was the strength of their former prejudices, and so unyielding were they in their Jewish tendencies, that they insisted on the necessity, in every instance, of conformity to the law of Moses. Paul was in direct antagonism with them, and hence his disputation with them, which resulted in the Church at Antioch deputing Paul and Barnabas to go to Jerusalem and confer with the Apostles and presbyters.

3. "Through Phenice and Samaria:"—for the introduction of Christianity

9 And put no difference between us and them, purifying their hearts by faith.[a]

10 Now therefore why tempt ye God, to put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear?[b]

11 But we believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved, even as they.[c]

12 ¶ Then all the multitude kept silence, and gave audience to Barnabas and Paul, declaring what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles by them.[d]

13 ¶ And after they had held their peace, James answered, saying, Men and brethren, hearken unto me:[e]

14 Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name.[f]

15 And to this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written,

16 After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up:[g]

17 That the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things.

18 Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world.

19 Wherefore my sentence is, that we trouble not them, which from among the Gentiles are turned to God:[h]

20 But that we write unto them, that they abstain from pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from things strangled, and from blood.[i]

21 For Moses of old time hath in every city them that preach him, being read in the synagogues every sabbath day.[j]

22 Then pleased it the apostles and elders, with the whole church, to send chosen men of their own company to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas; namely, Judas surnamed Barsabas, and Silas, chief men among the brethren:[k]

23 And they wrote letters by them after this manner; The apostles and elders and brethren send greeting unto the brethren which are of the Gentiles in Antioch and Syria and Cilicia:

24 Forasmuch as we have heard, that certain which went out from us have troubled you with words, subverting your souls, saying, Ye must be circumcised, and keep the law: to whom we gave no such commandment:[l]

25 It seemed good unto us, being assembled with one accord, to send chosen men unto you with our beloved Barnabas and Paul,

26 Men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.[m]

27 We have sent therefore Judas and Silas, who shall also tell you the same things by [1]mouth.

28 For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things;

29 That ye abstain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well. Fare ye well.[n]

30 So when they were dismissed, they came to Antioch: and when they had gathered the multitude together, they delivered the epistle:

31 Which when they had read, they rejoiced for the [2]consolation.

32 And Judas and Silas, being prophets also themselves, exhorted the brethren with many words, and confirmed them.[o]

33 And after they had tarried there a space, they were let go in peace from the brethren unto the apostles.[p]

34 Notwithstanding it pleased Silas to abide there still.

35 Paul also and Barnabas continued in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others also.[q]

36 ¶ And some days after Paul said unto Barnabas, Let us go again and visit our brethren in every city where we have preached the word of the Lord, and see how they do.[r]

37 And Barnabas determined to take with them John, whose surname was Mark.[s]

38 But Paul thought not good to take him with them, who departed from them from Pamphylia, and went not with them to the work.[t]

39 And the contention was so sharp between them, that they departed asunder one from the other: and so Barnabas took Mark, and sailed unto Cyprus;

40 And Paul chose Silas, and departed, being recommended by the brethren unto the grace of God.[u]

41 And he went through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the churches.[v] into these places, and for an account of the places themselves, see chap. viii. 4—25, xi. 19—21.

5. "Certain of the sect of the Pharisees:"—these men did not call in question the mission and ministry of Paul and Barnabas, nor did they doubt the fact that many of the Gentiles had been converted to the Christian faith, of which faith they themselves were professed believers; but they were so attached to the law in its very letter, that they deemed it impossible for a man to be saved independently of fulfilling its requirements.

6. "The apostles and elders came together:"—though these only are named, it is clear from verse 12 that the whole Church was either present or largely represented in this deliberative assembly.

7. "A good while ago:"—eleven years or more had rolled away since the conversion of Cornelius.

16, 17. "I will return:"—this citation is from the prophet Amos. As to the prophecy itself, Alford says that it regards that glorious restitution of the kingdom to (the spiritual) David, which began by the incarnation of the Lord, and shall be perfected by his reign over all nations.

18. "Known unto God:"—his whole procedure presupposes a fixed and definite plan, according to which all events transpire; and those events are inseparable from the salvation of the Church.

20. "Pollutions of idols:"—not the gross and debasing rites of idolatry, but from eating those things which were offered in sacrifice to idols.—See verse 29.

"Things strangled:"—because these retained the blood, and blood in any form was forbidden by the law, as being the life of the creature.

22. "Judas and Silas:"—of this Judas nothing more is known than, as we learn from verse 32, that he was a prophet, or superior teacher, in the primitive Church; although there are those who would make him the brother of Joseph Barsabas, who is named in chap. i. 23. Silas is the Silvanus of Paul's Epistles. He, too, was a prophet, or eminent teacher, and accompanied the great Apostle of the nations in his second missionary journey through Asia Minor to Macedonia; he remained behind in Berea, and joined Paul again at Corinth, where he laboured with him and Timothy.—See chap. xvii. 4, 10, 14; xviii. 5; 1 Thess. i. 1; 2 Thess. i. 1; 2 Cor. i. 19.

CHAPTER XVI.

1 Paul having circumcised Timothy, 7 and being called by the Spirit from one country to another, 14 converteth Lydia, 16 casteth out a spirit of divination. 19 For which cause he and Silas are whipped and imprisoned. 26 The prison doors are opened. 31 The jailor is converted, 37 and they are delivered.

THEN came he to Derbe and Lystra: and, behold, a certain disciple was there, named Timotheus, the son of a certain woman, which was a Jewess, and believed; but his father was a Greek:[a]

2 Which was well reported of by the brethren that were at Lystra and Iconium.[b]

3 Him would Paul have to go forth with him; and took and circumcised him because of the Jews which were in those quarters: for they knew all that his father was a Greek.[c]

4 And as they went through the cities, they delivered them the decrees for to keep, that were ordained of the apostles and elders which were at Jerusalem.[d]

5 And so were the churches established in the faith, and increased in number daily.[e]

6 Now when they had gone throughout Phrygia and the region of Galatia, and were forbidden of the Holy Ghost to preach the word in Asia,

7 After they were come to Mysia, they assayed to go into Bithynia: but the Spirit suffered them not.

8 And they passing by Mysia came down to Troas.[f]

9 And a vision appeared to Paul in the night; There stood a man of Macedonia, and prayed him, saying, Come over into Macedonia, and help us.[g]

10 And after he had seen the vision, immediately we endeavoured to go into Macedonia, assuredly gathering that the Lord had called us for to preach the gospel unto them.[h]

11 Therefore loosing from Troas, we came with a straight course to Samothracia, and the next day to Neapolis;

12 And from thence to Philippi, which is [1]the chief city of that part of Macedonia, and a colony: and we were in that city abiding certain days.[i]

13 And on the [2]sabbath we went out of the city by a river side, where prayer was wont to be made; and we sat down, and spake unto the women which resorted thither.

14 ¶ And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city of Thyatira, which worshipped God, heard us: whose heart the Lord opened, that she attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul.[j]

15 And when she was baptized, and her houshold, she besought us, saying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house, and abide there. And she constrained us.[k]

16 ¶ And it came to pass, as we went to prayer, a certain damsel possessed with a spirit [3]of divination met us, which brought her masters much gain by soothsaying:[l]

17 The same followed Paul and us, and cried, saying, These men are the servants of the most high God, which shew unto us the way of salvation.

18 And this did she many days. But Paul, being grieved, turned and said to the spirit, I command thee in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her. And he came out the same hour.[m]

19 ¶ And when her masters saw that the hope of their gains was gone, they caught Paul and Silas, and drew them into the [4]marketplace unto the rulers,[n]

20 And brought them to the magistrates, saying, These men, being Jews, do exceedingly trouble our city,[o]

21 And teach customs, which are not lawful for us to receive, neither to observe, being Romans.

22 And the multitude rose up together against them: and the magistrates rent off their clothes, and commanded to beat them.[p]

23 And when they had laid many stripes upon them, they cast them into prison, charging the jailor to keep them safely:

24 Who, having received such a charge, thrust them into the inner prison, and made their feet fast in the stocks.

25 ¶ And at midnight Paul and Silas prayed, and sang praises unto God: and the prisoners heard them.

26 And suddenly there was a great earthquake, so that the foundations of the prison were shaken: and immediately all the doors were opened, and every one's bands were loosed.[q]

27 And the keeper of the prison awaking out of his sleep, and seeing the prison doors open, he drew out his sword, and would have killed himself, supposing that the prisoners had been fled.

28 But Paul cried with a loud voice, saying, Do thyself no harm: for we are all here.

29 Then he called for a light, and sprang in, and came trembling, and fell down before Paul and Silas,

30 And brought them out, and said, Sirs, what must I do to be saved?[r]

31 And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house.

32 And they spake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his house.[s]

CHAPTER XVI.

In this and the preceding chapter we have the details of Paul's second missionary tour through Asia Minor to Macedonia and Greece; thence by sea, touching at Ephesus, to Jerusalem, and back again to Antioch. In this fresh enterprise he is not accompanied by Barnabas, his friend and fellow-labourer. A serious difference of opinion sprung up between these two holy and devoted men regarding the conduct of John Mark (who was nephew to Barnabas) during their former journey (chap. xiii. 13; xv. 36—41). Their separation, although the result of human infirmity, led to two missions instead of one. This is the last time in the book of the Acts of the Apostles that mention is made of Barnabas; but we find from the Epistles that Barnabas and Paul, and Mark and Paul, were afterwards reconciled, and became fellow-labourers in the work of evangelising the world.

4. "The decrees:"—these were embodied in the written judgment delivered in the Council held at Jerusalem, and sent to the Church in Antioch, in reference to the observance of Jewish rites.

6. "In Asia:"—the Asia of the New Testament is always taken for Asia Minor.

12. The course of St. Paul to Philippi is very distinctly indicated. He was at Troas, in Mysia, when he saw the vision recorded in ver. 9. Sailing from Troas, he proceeded in a north-westerly direction

"WHOM THEREFORE YE IGNORANTLY WORSHIP, HIM DECLARE I UNTO YOU."—ACTS XVII. 23.

33 And he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes; and was baptized, he and all his, straightway.

34 And when he had brought them into his house, he set meat before them, and rejoiced, believing in God with all his house.[a]

35 And when it was day, the magistrates sent the serjeants, saying, Let those men go.

36 And the keeper of the prison told this saying to Paul, The magistrates have sent to let you go: now therefore depart, and go in peace.

past the island of Samothracia, and thence to Neapolis, on the coast of Macedonia. He was now in Europe. From Neapolis he went overland to Philippi, an ancient city which owed its name to Philip, the father of Alexander the Great, before whose time it had been called Crenides and Datos. Philippi was an important place, and had been the scene of several great battles. The Roman emperor Augustus had conferred upon it the title and privileges of a colony, and it was the chief city of that part of Macedonia. Among the privileges of a colony was this, that it was governed by the same laws as Rome itself. Paul was well aware of this, and therefore we find him, in verse 37, asserting his privileges as a Roman citizen. To the Christians in this city St. Paul addressed one of his epistles. The church there existed for several centuries; but in the general decline of those parts of the world, Philippi was reduced to ruins. The site is strewed with relics of the former grandeur of the city. The statement of the New Testament, that Philippi was a colony, has been called in question, owing to the small support to be derived for it from other ancient writers. The discovery of the coin figured in the previous page has decided this question, by furnishing undeniable evidence of the minute accuracy of the Biblical narrative. The reverse of the coin bears the letters PHILIP. COLA., which means that the money was that of Philippi a colony.

13. "By a river side:"—Philippi had no Jewish synagogue; but Jews and 40 And they went out of the prison, and entered into the house of Lydia: and when they had seen the brethren, they comforted them, and departed.[a]

CHAPTER XVII.

1 Paul preacheth at Thessalonica, 4 where some believe, and others persecute him. 10 He is sent to Berea, and preacheth there. 13 Being persecuted at Thessalonica, 15 he cometh to Athens, and disputeth, and preacheth the living God to them unknown, 34 whereby many are converted unto Christ.

NOW when they had passed through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where was a synagogue of the Jews:

2 And Paul, as his manner was, went in unto them, and three sabbath days reasoned with them out of the scriptures,[b]

3 Opening and alleging, that Christ must needs have suffered, and risen again from the dead; and that this Jesus, [1]whom I preach unto you, is Christ.[c]

4 And some of them believed, and consorted with Paul and Silas; and of the devout Greeks a great multitude, and of the chief women not a few.[d]

5 ¶ But the Jews which believed not, moved with envy, took unto them certain lewd fellows of the baser sort, and gathered a company, and set all the city on an uproar, and assaulted the house of Jason, and sought to bring them out to the people.[e]

6 And when they found them not, they drew Jason and certain brethren unto the rulers of the city, crying, These that have turned the world upside down are come hither also;[f]

7 Whom Jason hath received: and these all do contrary to the decrees of Cæsar, saying that there is another king, one Jesus.[g]

8 And they troubled the people and the rulers of the city, when they heard these things.

9 And when they had taken security of Jason, and of the other, they let them go.

10 ¶ And the brethren immediately sent away Paul and Silas by night unto Berea: who coming thither went into the synagogue of the Jews.[h]

12 Therefore many of them believed; also of honourable women which were Greeks, and of men, not a few.

13 But when the Jews of Thessalonica had knowledge that the word of God was preached of Paul at Berea, they came thither also, and stirred up the people.

14 And then immediately the brethren sent away Paul to go as it were to the sea: but Silas and Timotheus abode there still.[j]

15 And they that conducted Paul brought him unto Athens: and receiving a commandment unto Silas and Timotheus for to come to him with all speed, they departed.[k]

16 ¶ Now while Paul waited for them at Athens, his spirit was stirred in him, when he saw the city [2]wholly given to idolatry.[l]

17 Therefore disputed he in the synagogue with the Jews, and with the devout persons, and in the market daily with them that met with him.

18 Then certain philosophers of the Epicureans, and of the Stoicks, encountered him. And some said, What will this [3]babbler say? other some, He seemeth to be a setter forth of strange gods: because he preached unto them Jesus, and the resurrection.

19 And they took him, and brought him unto [4]Areopagus, saying, May we know what this new doctrine, whereof thou speakest, is?

20 For thou bringest certain strange things to our ears: we would know therefore what these things mean.

21 (For all the Athenians and strangers which were there spent their time in nothing else, but either to tell, or to hear some new thing.)

22 ¶ Then Paul stood in the midst of [5]Mars' hill, and said, Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious.

23 For as I passed by, and beheld your [6]devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, TO THE proselytes had their PROSEUCHE, or place of prayer, by a river side. It was held outside of the city for the sake of retirement, and near to a stream of water on account of the various ablutions required by the Mosaic ritual.

14. "A seller of purple:"—the purple dyeing of this neighbourhood had a reputation reaching as far back as the days of Homer; and we are assured that "the guild of dyers" at Thyatira have left inscriptions, still existing, showing the accuracy of the Scripture narrative. "The city of Thyatira" was in the province of Lydia, in Asia Minor.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Apostle having successfully introduced the Gospel into Europe, and having in Philippi reaped the firstfruits of a harvest which inspired his loftiest hopes as to the future of Christianity and the Church, he is now prepared "to follow the impulse given him from without, and to proceed farther in the path of his great vocation."

2. "Paul went in unto them;"—that is, in among the Jews assembled in the synagogue. "Neither the call unto the nations of the isles, which he received in Troas, nor even the ratification thereof which he had gained in Philippi, did or could divert the Apostle from his original course and order of proceeding—of turning first of all to the Jews, and then to the Gentiles;" though he had no reason to believe that the Jews in Thessalonica would treat him otherwise than the Jews at Antioch.

COIN OF ATHENS, SHOWING THE ACROPOLIS.

5. "The house of Jason:"—Jason was a Christian convert, and a zealous friend of the Apostle.

13. Everywhere the Jewish element of opposition was the same.

16. "Waited for them at Athens:"—in Athens the Apostle was in the centre of Grecian science and art, and he brought into immediate contact with Grecian society an element of life infinitely transcending their highest imaginations. The coin of Athens, represented in the cut, bears upon its reverse a representation of the Acropolis of Athens, with the ascent to it by steps. Upon the summit of the hill stands the temple of Minerva, and a colossal statue of Minerva, which looks towards the west. The reason for the prominence given to Minerva at Athens accounts for the position of her temple and statue. She was the popular deity of the city, and, indeed, the very name of Athens is but a slight alteration of the Greek name for Minerva, which was Athené.

"Wholly given to idolatry:"—"the multitude of statues and temples to the gods in Athens is celebrated with honour by classic writers of other nations, and with pride by their own." But it was this their idolatry which stirred the spirit of the Apostle, not with bitterness or wrath, but with sorrow.

19. "Areopagus:"—this is the well-known name of a hill

UNKNOWN GOD. Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you.

24 God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands ;[a]

25 Neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though he needed any thing, seeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things ;[b]

26 And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation ;[c]

27 That they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him, though he be not far from every one of us :[d]

28 For in him we live, and move, and have our being; as certain also of your own poets have said, For we are also his offspring.[e]

29 Forasmuch then as we are the offspring of God, we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art and man's device.[f]

30 And the times of this ignorance God winked at; but now commandeth all men every where to repent :[g]

31 Because he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath [1]given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead.[h]

32 ¶ And when they heard of the resurrection of the dead, some mocked: and others said, We will hear thee again of this matter.

33 So Paul departed from among them.

34 Howbeit certain men clave unto him, and believed: among the which was Dionysius the Areopagite, and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

CHAPTER XVIII.

3 Paul laboureth with his hands, and preacheth at Corinth to the Gentiles. 9 The Lord encourageth him in a vision. 12 He is accused before Gallio the deputy, but is dismissed. 18 Afterwards passing from city to city he strengtheneth the disciples. 24 Apollos, being more perfectly instructed by Aquila and Priscilla, 28 preacheth Christ with great efficacy.

AFTER these things Paul departed from Athens, and came to Corinth;

2 And found a certain Jew named Aquila, born in Pontus, lately come from Italy, with his wife Priscilla; (because that Claudius had commanded all Jews to depart from Rome :) and came unto them.[i]

5 And when Silas and Timotheus were come from Macedonia, Paul was pressed in the spirit, and testified to the Jews that Jesus [2]was Christ.[l]

6 And when they opposed themselves, and blasphemed, he shook his raiment, and said unto them, Your blood be upon your own heads; I am clean: from henceforth I will go unto the Gentiles.[m]

7 ¶ And he departed thence, and entered into a certain man's house, named Justus, one that worshipped God, whose house joined hard to the synagogue.

8 And Crispus, the chief ruler of the synagogue, believed on the Lord with all his house; and many of the Corinthians hearing believed, and were baptized.[n]

9 Then spake the Lord to Paul in the night by a vision, Be not afraid, but speak, and hold not thy peace :[o]

11 And he [3]continued there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.

16 And he drave them from the judgment seat.

17 Then all the Greeks took Sosthenes, the chief ruler of the synagogue, and beat him before the judgment seat. And Gallio cared for none of those things.[r] in the city of Athens, to the west of the Acropolis, which was entirely filled with statues and temples. There was on the hill an open space, in which the celebrated tribunal of the Areopagus held its court. Paul is not speaking in the presence of that tribunal, but simply occupies the hill as a favourable position.

23. "To THE UNKNOWN GOD :"—in the preceding verse he had spoken of them as "too superstitious;" that is, of their religiousness leading them to extremes. In proof of which he adduces the fact of their having an altar to the Unknown God. "HIM whom ye ignorantly worship, declare I unto you." Thus the Apostle, with consummate wisdom, refuted the charge of being a setter forth of strange gods.

28. "Certain also of your own poets :"—Aratus, who was a Cilician and countryman of Paul, and lived nearly three centuries before the Christian era.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The fruits of Paul's ministry at Athens were apparently very scanty. Honourable mention is made of two converts, but of whom we know nothing more. Nor can we tell what influence they exerted in the centre of the world's wisdom after the Apostle withdrew from Athens. Nothing discouraged by his non-success in the seat of Grecian science and art, Paul girds himself for renewed activity and labour.

20 When they desired him to tarry longer time with them, he consented not;

21 But bade them farewell, saying, I must by all means keep this feast that cometh in Jerusalem: but I will return again unto you, if God will. And he sailed from Ephesus.[a]

22 And when he had landed at Cæsarea, and gone up, and saluted the church, he went down to Antioch.

23 And after he had spent some time there, he departed, and went over all the country of Galatia and Phrygia in order, strengthening all the disciples.[b]

26 And he began to speak boldly in the synagogue: whom when Aquila and Priscilla had heard, they took him unto them, and expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly.

27 And when he was disposed to pass into Achaia,

1. "Came to Corinth"—which at this time was a colony, the capital of the Roman province of Achaia, and the residence of the proconsul.

2. "Lately come from Italy:"—it is not improbable that Aquila and Priscilla had become converts to the Christian faith in Rome, and, consequently, had brought their knowledge of the Gospel to Corinth. Aquila and Priscilla left Italy in consequence of the imperial edict which commanded all Jews to leave the empire, but for what reason this edict was promulgated does not appear. It was issued in the thirteenth year of the reign of Claudius, A.D. 54.—See verse 26; Rom. xvi. 3; 1 Cor. xvi. 19; 2 Tim. iv. 19.

5 When they heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus.[g]

6 And when Paul had laid his hands upon them, the Holy Ghost came on them; and they spake with tongues, and prophesied.[h]

7 And all the men were about twelve.

8 And he went into the synagogue, and spake boldly for the space of three months, disputing and persuading the things concerning the kingdom of God.[i]

9 But when divers were hardened, and believed not, but spake evil of that way before the multitude, he departed from them, and separated the disciples, disputing daily in the school of one Tyrannus.[j]

10 And this continued by the space of two years;

3. "He abode with them:"—we incline to the opinion that the similarity of labour and the similarity of thought united to influence the Apostle in the selection of his abode; for the Apostle was of the same craft. He had, like all Jewish children, learned a trade or business; the fact that Aquila and his wife were tent-makers would not have attracted the Apostle, but for the higher element of Christian life. Tent-making was very common in Cilicia, from the fact that the hair of a species of very shaggy goat was worked into a thick stuff somewhat like felt, which was very much employed in covering tents. Paul worked with his own hands, even after his call to the ministry and the apostleship, that he might prevent either friend or foe from saying that he had made a gain of godliness.

7. "Into a certain man's house:"—the Apostle seems from these words to have given up his abode with Aquila, and now resides in the house of a Gentile proselyte, named Justus, whose residence adjoined the synagogue.

12. "Gallio was the deputy of Achaia:"—Achaia was originally a senatorial province, but under Tiberius it became imperial, and as a Roman province included Hellas and Peloponnesus, which, with Macedonia, embraced all their Grecian dominions. Gallio, the deputy, whose original name was Marcus Annæus Novatus, but which, on his adoption into the family of Lucius Junius Gallio, he changed into the name of his adoptive father, was brother of Seneca, the old philosopher.

18. "He had a vow:"—when or on what occasion this vow was made, we have no means of knowing, nor is it necessary to inquire. It was not the vow of the Nazarite.

19. "Came to Ephesus:"—Ephesus, which was situated on the river Cayster, between Smyrna and Miletus, was the ornament and metropolis of Proconsular Asia, and celebrated for its magnificent temple of Diana. It was now subject to Rome.

22. "Landed at Cæsarea;"—that is, Cæsarea of Palestine.

24. "A certain Jew named Apollos:"—of his origin and descent we know nothing. He was a native of Alexandria, which was the abode of many of the Jews, and these men were familiar with the language, learning, and philosophy of the Greeks. Apollos was a pious and eloquent man; but of the sublime doctrines of Christianity he was comparatively ignorant. And hence the pains which Aquila and Priscilla took to teach him.

so that all they which dwelt in Asia heard the word of the Lord Jesus, both Jews and Greeks.[a]

11 And God wrought special miracles by the hands of Paul:[b]

12 So that from his body were brought unto the sick handkerchiefs or aprons, and the diseases departed from them, and the evil spirits went out of them.[c]

13 ¶ Then certain of the vagabond Jews, exorcists, took upon them to call over them which had evil spirits the name of the Lord Jesus, saying, We adjure you by Jesus whom Paul preacheth.[d]

14 And there were seven sons of one Sceva, a Jew, and chief of the priests, which did so.

15 And the evil spirit answered and said, Jesus I know, and Paul I know; but who are ye?

16 And the man in whom the evil spirit was leaped on them, and overcame them, and prevailed against them, so that they fled out of that house naked and wounded.

17 And this was known to all the Jews and Greeks also dwelling at Ephesus; and fear fell on them all, and the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified.[e]

18 And many that believed came, and confessed, and shewed their deeds.[f]

19 Many of them also which used curious arts brought their books together, and burned them before all men: and they counted the price of them, and found it fifty thousand pieces of silver.

20 So mightily grew the word of God and prevailed.[g]

21 ¶ After these things were ended, Paul purposed in the spirit, when he had passed through Macedonia and Achaia, to go to Jerusalem, saying, After I have been there, I must also see Rome.[h]

22 So he sent into Macedonia two of them that ministered unto him, Timotheus and Erastus; but he himself stayed in Asia for a season.[i]

23 And the same time there arose no small stir about that way.[j]

24 For a certain man named Demetrius, a silversmith, which made silver shrines for Diana, brought no small gain unto the craftsmen;[k]

25 Whom he called together with the workmen of like occupation, and said, Sirs, ye know that by this craft we have our wealth.

26 Moreover ye see and hear, that not alone at Ephesus, but almost throughout all Asia, this Paul hath persuaded and turned away much people, saying that they be no gods, which are made with hands:[l]

27 So that not only this our craft is in danger to be set at nought; but also that the temple of the great goddess Diana should be despised, and her magnificence should be destroyed, whom all Asia and the world worshippeth.

28 And when they heard these sayings, they were full of wrath, and cried out, saying, Great is Diana of the Ephesians.

29 And the whole city was filled with confusion: and having caught Gaius and Aristarchus, men of Macedonia, Paul's companions in travel, they rushed with one accord into the theatre.[m]

30 And when Paul would have entered in unto the people, the disciples suffered him not.

31 And certain of the chief of Asia, which were his friends, sent unto him, desiring him that he would not adventure himself into the theatre.

32 Some therefore cried one thing, and some another: for the assembly was confused; and the more part knew not wherefore they were come together.

33 And they drew Alexander out of the multitude,

CHAPTER XIX.

In the twenty-first verse of the preceding chapter we find the Apostle leaving Ephesus for Jerusalem, that he might be present at the approaching festival of the Passover, or, it may be, of Pentecost, but promising to return. After this festival he went down from Jerusalem to Antioch, from whence he set out to visit the churches which had been planted in Galatia and Phrygia, and having passed through the upper coasts, or the eastern parts of Asia Minor, or those provinces which lay more in the interior, as opposed to Ephesus, which was situated upon the coast, he came, according to his promise, to Ephesus, from which in the meantime Apollos had removed to Corinth.

2. "Whether there be any Holy Ghost"—this verse is not happily rendered in our English version, for they were not ignorant that there was a Holy Ghost, because John in his ministration not only spake of the Spirit descending on Christ, but likewise of Christ baptising with the Holy Ghost; and they had not heard of the miraculous gifts of the Holy Ghost, and they did not know that such gifts were imparted.

6. "The Holy Ghost came on them:"—not only were they conscious of the higher principle of the heavenly life procured by Christ for all his disciples, but they were endowed with miraculous powers, not so much on their own behalf as in behalf of others.

COIN OF EPHESUS, SHOWING THE TEMPLE AND IMAGE OF DIANA. FROM THE ORIGINAL IN THE BRITISH MUSEUM.

9. "In the school of one Tyrannus:"—whether this was a private synagogue, as some have supposed, or whether Tyrannus was a Gentile sophist, and may have granted the use of this building to the Apostle for the sake of listening to his reasoning and his teaching, it is impossible to say.

10. "By the space of two years:"—the effect of the Apostle's teaching during this period may be inferred from the fact that the seven churches of Asia were now planted and established.

13. "Exorcists:"—it was not an uncommon profession, even among the Jews, for individuals to go about and profess, by the use of the Divine name, to dispossess persons and places of evil spirits.

19. "Many of them which used curious arts:"—the parties were moved by fear and dread from what they had seen in the case of Sceva's seven sons.

"Fifty thousand pieces of silver:"—if these were Roman denarii, then, taking the denarius at the value of eightpence halfpenny, the total amount would be £1,770 of our money.

24. "Silver shrines:"—these were little models of the celebrated temple of Diana, and of the image which, as they asserted, came down from Jupiter, which it was the custom to carry on a journey, or to place in the house as a charm.

27. Ephesus was the capital of Ionia, and one of the most considerable cities of Asia Minor, the emporium of Asia on this side the Taurus. By the Romans it was called the first and greatest metropolis of Asia. It has been always celebrated for its temple to Artemis, or Diana, and the statue of that goddess. This statue was said to have fallen from heaven—perhaps because of its great antiquity—and was probably very rude, consisting of little more than a head and a trunk. According to some, it was of the wood of the vine; but Xenophon says it was of gold. In its latter form it was a combination of astronomical and idolatrous emblems. The temple in which the image was located was a splendid structure, and of ancient origin. It was burnt down at the birth of Alexander the Great, but was restored with so much magnificence, by contributions from all parts, that it was regarded as one of the seven wonders of the world. From its foundation to its completion two hundred and twenty years elapsed. When St. Paul was there it was in its glory, and immensely rich. It was at last burnt by the Goths, in the time of the Emperior Gallienus, and never rebuilt. The present site of Ephesus is well nigh desolate, although a railway has been carried to its immediate the Jews putting him forward. And Alexander beckoned with the hand, and would have made his defence unto the people.[a]

34 But when they knew that he was a Jew, all with one voice about the space of two hours cried out, Great is Diana of the Ephesians.

35 And when the townclerk had appeased the people, he said, Ye men of Ephesus, what man is there that knoweth not how that the city of the Ephesians is [1]a worshipper of the great goddess Diana, and of the image which fell down from Jupiter?

36 Seeing then that these things cannot be spoken against, ye ought to be quiet, and to do nothing rashly.

37 For ye have brought hither these men, which are neither robbers of churches, nor yet blasphemers of your goddess.

38 Wherefore if Demetrius, and the craftsmen which are with him, have a matter against any man, [2]the law is open, and there are deputies: let them implead one another.

39 But if ye enquire any thing concerning other matters, it shall be determined in a [3]lawful assembly.

40 For we are in danger to be called in question for this day's uproar, there being no cause whereby we may give an account of this concourse.

41 And when he had thus spoken, he dismissed the assembly.

CHAPTER XX.

1 Paul goeth to Macedonia. 7 He celebrateth the Lord's supper, and preacheth. 9 Eutychus having fallen down dead, 10 is raised to life. 17 At Miletum he calleth the elders together, telleth them what shall befall to himself, 28 committeth God's flock to them, 29 warneth them of false teachers, 32 commendeth them to God, 36 prayeth with them, and goeth his way.

AND after the uproar was ceased, Paul called unto him the disciples, and embraced them, and departed for to go into Macedonia.[b]

2 And when he had gone over those parts, and had given them much exhortation, he came into Greece,

3 And there abode three months. And when the Jews laid wait for him, as he was about to sail into Syria, he purposed to return through Macedonia.[c]

4 And there accompanied him into Asia Sopater of Berea; and of the Thessalonians, Aristarchus and Secundus; and Gaius of Derbe, and Timotheus; and of Asia, Tychicus and Trophimus.[d]

5 These going before tarried for us at Troas.

6 And we sailed away from Philippi after the days of unleavened bread, and came unto them to Troas in five days; where we abode seven days.[e]

7 And upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow; and continued his speech until midnight.[f]

8 And there were many lights in the upper chamber, where they were gathered together.[g]

9 And there sat in a window a certain young man named Eutychus, being fallen into a deep sleep: and as Paul was long preaching, he sunk down with sleep, and fell down from the third loft, and was taken up dead.

10 And Paul went down, and fell on him, and embracing him said, Trouble not yourselves; for his life is in him.[h]

11 When he therefore was come up again, and had broken bread, and eaten, and talked a long while, even till break of day, so he departed.

12 And they brought the young man alive, and were not a little comforted.

13 ¶ And we went before to ship, and sailed unto Assos, there intending to take in Paul: for so had he appointed, minding himself to go afoot.

14 And when he met with us at Assos, we took him in, and came to Mitylene.

15 And we sailed thence, and came the next day over against Chios; and the next day we arrived at Samos, and tarried at Trogyllium; and the next day we came to Miletus.

16 For Paul had determined to sail by Ephesus, because he would not spend the time in Asia: for he hasted, if it were possible for him, to be at Jerusalem the day of Pentecost.[i]

17 ¶ And from Miletus he sent to Ephesus, and called the elders of the church.

18 And when they were come to him, he said unto vicinity, now called Ayasaluk. Recent explorers have identified some of the ruins, but the true position of Diana's great temple is still unknown. Among the coins of Ephesus, there are some which exhibit on the reverse the image of Diana, and the front elevation of her temple. One of these we have copied, bearing the head of the Emperor Hadrian, and a Greek inscription—"Kaisar Olympios Adrianos"—on the obverse; and on the reverse, the façade of the temple and statue of Diana, with the words "of the Ephesians" in Greek. Diana is represented with a turreted head, and a halo about it; with many breasts, and a staff in each hand. Other coins of Ephesus have the word Neocorus, the very word translated "worshipper" in verse 35, where the margin has, more correctly, "temple keeper."

29. The theatre of Ephesus was a vast and magnificent structure, 660 feet in diameter, and the largest ever built. It is calculated that it could accommodate 56,700 persons. The ruins of it still exist upon the side and near the foot of a hill. They consist of some circular seats and a number of arches, and are regarded with special interest, because the supposed scene of the uproar described in this chapter. In allusion, probably, to this scene, and to the spectacles which were common in this very building, St. Paul says, "If after the manner of men I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, what advantageth it me, if the dead rise not?" (1 Cor. xv. 32).

The ruins of this theatre show that it must have been on the grandest scale; but at present only its form can be described, for the seats are removed, and the proscenium is a hill of ruins. Insignificant as these remains now are, compared with what they must once have been, when Ephesus was in her pride, they will always be associated, in the Christian's mind, with the circumstances attendant upon St. Paul's visit.

CHAPTER XX.

The Apostle quits Ephesus only to prosecute his labours in other directions, and with his eye fixed on Rome as the goal to which he was pressing forward.

5. "Tarried for us at Troas:"—he therefore went into Macedonia by Troas, where he expected to find Titus; but disappointed in this expectation, he set out for Macedonia, and there he found him.—See 2 Cor. ii. 12; vii. 5.

7. "To break bread;"—that is, in the supper of the Lord; and the inference is obvious, that the communion was inseparable from the worship of the sanctuary, and was always administered on the first day of every week.

9. "Sat in a window:"—let it be borne in mind, that windows in the East had neither glass nor shutters.

11. "Had broken bread:"—this is not to be confounded with the breaking of bread mentioned in the seventh verse: there, the reference is clearly to the Lord's Supper; here, nothing more is meant than an ordinary meal for refreshment.

17. "From Miletus he sent to Ephesus:"—he stayed a few days at Miletus, which gave him the opportunity of thus convening the bishops or presbyters of the Church, and of addressing them.

them, Ye know, from the first day that I came into Asia, after what manner I have been with you at all seasons,[a]

19 Serving the Lord with all humility of mind, and with many tears, and temptations, which befell me by the lying in wait of the Jews:[b]

20 And how I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you, but have shewed you, and have taught you publickly, and from house to house,[c]

21 Testifying both to the Jews, and also to the Greeks, repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ.[d]

22 And now, behold, I go bound in the spirit unto Jerusalem, not knowing the things that shall befall me there:[e]

23 Save that the Holy Ghost witnesseth in every city, saying that bonds and afflictions [1]abide me.[f]

24 But none of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy, and the ministry, which I have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the gospel of the grace of God.[g]

25 And now, behold, I know that ye all, among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, shall see my face no more.[h]

26 Wherefore I take you to record this day, that I am pure from the blood of all men.[i]

27 For I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God.[j]

28 ¶ Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood.[k]

29 For I know this, that after my departing shall grievous wolves enter in among you, not sparing the flock.[l]

30 Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them.[m]

31 Therefore watch, and remember, that by the space of three years I ceased not to warn every one night and day with tears.[n]

32 And now, brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified.[o]

33 I have coveted no man's silver, or gold, or apparel.[p]

34 Yea, ye yourselves know, that these hands have ministered unto my necessities, and to them that were with me.[q]

36 ¶ And when he had thus spoken, he kneeled down, and prayed with them all.[s]

37 And they all wept sore, and fell on Paul's neck, and kissed him,[t]

38 Sorrowing most of all for the words which he spake, that they should see his face no more. And they accompanied him unto the ship.[u]

CHAPTER XXI.

1 Paul will not by any means be dissuaded from going to Jerusalem. 9 Philip's daughters prophetesses. 17 Paul cometh to Jerusalem: 27 where he is apprehended, and in great danger, 31 but by the chief captain is rescued, and permitted to speak to the people.

AND it came to pass, that after we were gotten from them, and had launched, we came with a straight course unto Coos, and the day following unto Rhodes, and from thence unto Patara:

2 And finding a ship sailing over unto Phenicia, we went aboard, and set forth.

3 Now when we had discovered Cyprus, we left it on the left hand, and sailed into Syria, and landed at Tyre: for there the ship was to unlade her burden.

4 And finding disciples, we tarried there seven days: who said to Paul through the Spirit, that he should not go up to Jerusalem.[v]

5 And when we had accomplished those days, we departed and went our way; and they all brought us on our way, with wives and children, till we were out of the city: and we kneeled down on the shore, and prayed.[w]

6 And when we had taken our leave one of another, we took ship; and they returned home again.[x]

7 And when we had finished our course from Tyre, we came to Ptolemais, and saluted the brethren, and abode with them one day.

8 And the next day we that were of Paul's company departed, and came unto Cæsarea: and we entered into the house of Philip the evangelist, which was one of the seven; and abode with him.[y]

9 And the same man had four daughters, virgins, which did prophesy.[z]

10 And as we tarried there many days, there came down from Judæa a certain prophet, named Agabus.[a]

22. "Bound in the spirit;"—that is, he was so powerfully influenced that he could not act otherwise; and yet he was straitened and bound as to the future course of events. He knew not what was before him. But his faith in the overruling and all-wise providence of God sustained him under all difficulties.

28. "Hath made you overseers"—Dean Alford says: "The English version has hardly dealt fairly in this case with the sacred text, in rendering the word OVERSEERS; whereas it ought here, as in all other places, to have been BISHOPS, that the fact of elders and bishops having been originally and apostolically synonymous might be apparent to the ordinary English reader, which now it is not."

29. "After my departing:"—this may refer to his departure in person from his present sphere of labour, or it may point to his death. The "grievous wolves" are not to be resolved into persecutors, but false teachers; and these were to spring up in their own midst, and pervert the very truth which they professed.

CHAPTER XXI.

How true is it that there are no backward steps allowed for those who know the bliss of faith! Hence it is that we find our Apostle, strong in the conviction of duty, pressing forward in his course, and yet more abundant in labour.

4. "Who said to Paul through the Spirit:"—coming in a straight course from Patara, they left the island of Cyprus on the left, and came to the far-famed city of Tyre, whose situation and magnificence have already been referred to; and here they found certain disciples who saw, by the spirit of prophecy, the afflictions that awaited Paul, and therefore, from their own affectionate regard, they recommended that he should not go up to Jerusalem if he regarded his personal safety. God gave the knowledge, the men gave the advice.

15. "Took up our carriages:"—the word "carriage" here is clearly put for the things carried—namely, the baggage. This baggage they now packed up, and made themselves ready for the journey.

ANNO DOMINI 60.

11 And when he was come unto us, he took Paul's girdle, and bound his own hands and feet, and said, Thus saith the Holy Ghost, So shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man that owneth this girdle, and shall deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles.[a]

12 And when we heard these things, both we, and they of that place, besought him not to go up to Jerusalem.

13 Then Paul answered, What mean ye to weep and to break mine heart? for I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus.[b]

23 Do therefore this that we say to thee: We have four men which have a vow on them;

24 Them take, and purify thyself with them, and be at charges with them, that they may shave their heads: and all may know that those things, whereof

16 There went with us also certain of the disciples of Cæsarea, and brought with them one Mnason of Cyprus, an old disciple, with whom we should lodge.

17 And when we were come to Jerusalem, the brethren received us gladly.[d]

18 And the day following Paul went in with us unto James; and all the elders were present.[e]

19 And when he had saluted them, he declared particularly what things God had wrought among the Gentiles by his ministry.[f]

20 And when they heard it, they glorified the Lord, and said unto him, Thou seest, brother, how many thousands of Jews there are which believe; and they are all zealous of the law:[g]

25 As touching the Gentiles which believe, we have written and concluded that they observe no such thing, save only that they keep themselves from things offered to idols, and from blood, and from strangled, and from fornication.[i]

26 Then Paul took the men, and the next day purifying himself with them entered into the temple, to signify the accomplishment of the days of purification, until that an offering should be offered for every one of them.[j]

27 And when the seven days were almost ended, the Jews which were of Asia, when they saw him in the temple, stirred up all the people, and laid hands on him,[k]

16. "Brought with them one Mnason;"—or, rather, brought us to one Mnason, with whom we might lodge. He was, perhaps, a resident at Jerusalem, but well known to the disciples at Cæsarea.

22. "The multitude must needs come together;"—or, a multitude will come together, and in order to promote peace and a good understanding between them, do this.

24. "Purify thyself with them:"—this proposal was made by James and the elders to Paul, with a view to conciliate the Jews; and in consenting to it, Paul must have done so with the distinct idea that it was an act which was recommended by prudence, and was strictly justifiable, as the Mosaic law was also the civil law in Palestine. For the law regarding the vow of the Nazarites, see Numb. vi. 3—18.

man, that teacheth all men every where against the people, and the law, and this place: and further brought Greeks also into the temple, and hath polluted this holy place.[a]

29 (For they had seen before with him in the city Trophimus an Ephesian, whom they supposed that Paul had brought into the temple.)[b]

30 And all the city was moved, and the people ran together: and they took Paul, and drew him out of the temple: and forthwith the doors were shut.[c]

31 And as they went about to kill him, tidings came unto the chief captain of the band, that all Jerusalem was in an uproar.

32 Who immediately took soldiers and centurions, and ran down unto them: and when they saw the chief captain and the soldiers, they left beating of Paul.[d]

33 Then the chief captain came near, and took him, and commanded him to be bound with two chains; and demanded who he was, and what he had done.[e]

34 And some cried one thing, some another, among the multitude: and when he could not know the certainty for the tumult, he commanded him to be carried into the castle.

35 And when he came upon the stairs, so it was, that he was borne of the soldiers for the violence of the people.

36 For the multitude of the people followed after, crying, Away with him.[f]

37 And as Paul was to be led into the castle, he said unto the chief captain, May I speak unto thee? Who said, Canst thou speak Greek?

38 Art not thou that Egyptian, which before these days madest an uproar, and leddest out into the wilderness four thousand men that were murderers?[g]

39 But Paul said, I am a man which am a Jew of Tarsus, a city in Cilicia, a citizen of no mean city: and, I beseech thee, suffer me to speak unto the people.[h]

40 And when he had given him licence, Paul stood on the stairs, and beckoned with the hand unto the people. And when there was made a great silence, he spake unto them in the Hebrew tongue, saying,[i]

MEN, brethren, and fathers, hear ye my defence which I make now unto you.[j]

2 (And when they heard that he spake in the Hebrew tongue to them, they kept the more silence: and he saith,)

3 I am verily a man which am a Jew, born in Tarsus, a city in Cilicia, yet brought up in this city at the feet of Gamaliel, and taught according to the perfect manner of the law of the fathers, and was zealous toward God, as ye all are this day.[k]

4 And I persecuted this way unto the death, binding and delivering into prisons both men and women.[l]

5 As also the high priest doth bear me witness, and all the estate of the elders: from whom also I received letters unto the brethren, and went to Damascus, to bring them which were there bound unto Jerusalem, for to be punished.[m]

6 And it came to pass, that, as I made my journey, and was come nigh unto Damascus about noon, suddenly there shone from heaven a great light round about me.[n]

7 And I fell unto the ground, and heard a voice saying unto me, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?

8 And I answered, Who art thou, Lord? And he said unto me, I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest.

9 And they that were with me saw indeed the light, and were afraid: but they heard not the voice of him that spake to me.[o]

10 And I said, What shall I do, Lord? And the Lord said unto me, Arise, and go into Damascus; and there it shall be told thee of all things which are appointed for thee to do.

11 And when I could not see for the glory of that 31 "Into the castle,"—or tower of Antonia, which from the north-west overlooked the Temple, and from which the chief captain could see the riot.

38. "Art not thou that Egyptian?"—of this Egyptian rebel, and of his unfortunate attempt against the Romans, which attempt was suppressed by the Procurator Felix, there is a detailed account by Josephus in his "Antiquities."

CHAPTER XXII.

The right of Roman citizenship claimed by the Apostle in the close of the preceding chapter saved him from summary punishment at the hands of Claudius Lysias, the Roman tribune, and to save himself from any unjust charge before his superiors, the tribune determined to deliver him over to the Jewish tribunals, and hence the appearance of the Apostle before the Sanhedrim. In the meanwhile Paul hoped to appease his enemies by recounting the manner in which he had been brought to acknowledge Jesus as the Messiah and Sent of God. But the mention of Christ and of the Gentiles only intensified their opposition, and they called for his immediate death

2. "In the Hebrew tongue;"—that is, in Syro-Chaldaic, as the mother tongue of the Jews in Judea at this time.

3. Tarsus was a celebrated city, the metropolis of Cilicia, in Asia Minor. It was built in a plain, and was watered by the river Cydnus. It was a place of great antiquity, and its origin was by some ascribed to Perseus, and by others to Sardanapalus. Very frequent allusions to it occur in classic writers, which justify the declaration of St. Paul, that Tarsus was no mean city. As a seat of Greek philosophy and literature, it ranked with Athens and Alexandria. The city was made free by Augustus. At a later period it was made a colony. Tarsus was early the home for a Christian Church, and continued to be a town of importance for many generations. At the present time it is a town of some 30,000 inhabitants, called Tersoos, and not far from it are some considerable ruins. Captain Beaufort says that there are many respectable mosques and minarets at Tersoos; that most of the houses are small and wretched; but that the bazaars were well stocked, and the inhabitants had a general look of business. The difficulty of examining the town and neighbourhood was, however, great, owing to "the ferocious disposition of the people, as well as of their governor."

"At the feet of Gamaliel."—this distinguished preceptor of Paul is supposed to be the same with Rabban Gamaliel, and grandson of the famous Hillel.—See chap. v. 34.

5. "The high priest;"—that is, Theophilus, who was still living. "All the estate of the elders" denotes the whole of the Sanhedrim. These could testify to his zeal as a Jew.

6—15. For remarks on Paul's conversion, and the differences existing in the various accounts of that wondrous event, see chapter ix., with the Notes.

16. "Wash away thy sins;"—it would appear from these words that this light, being led by the hand of them that were with me, I came into Damascus.

12 And one Ananias, a devout man according to the law, having a good report of all the Jews which dwelt there,[a]

13 Came unto me, and stood, and said unto me, Brother Saul, receive thy sight. And the same hour I looked up upon him.

14 And he said, The God of our fathers hath chosen thee, that thou shouldest know his will, and see that Just One, and shouldest hear the voice of his mouth.[b]

15 For thou shalt be his witness unto all men of what thou hast seen and heard.[c]

16 And now why tarriest thou? arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord.[d]

17 And it came to pass, that, when I was come again to Jerusalem, even while I prayed in the temple, I was in a trance;[e]

18 And saw him saying unto me, Make haste, and get thee quickly out of Jerusalem: for they will not receive thy testimony concerning me.[f]

19 And I said, Lord, they know that I imprisoned and beat in every synagogue them that believed on thee:[g]

20 And when the blood of thy martyr Stephen was shed, I also was standing by, and consenting unto his death, and kept the raiment of them that slew him.[h]

21 And he said unto me, Depart: for I will send thee far hence unto the Gentiles.[i]

22 And they gave him audience unto this word, and then lifted up their voices, and said, Away with such a fellow from the earth: for it is not fit that he should live.[j]

23 And as they cried out, and cast off their clothes, and threw dust into the air,

24 The chief captain commanded him to be brought into the castle, and bade that he should be examined by scourging; that he might know wherefore they cried so against him.

25 And as they bound him with thongs, Paul said unto the centurion that stood by, Is it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Roman, and uncondemned?[k]

26 When the centurion heard that, he went and told the chief captain, saying, Take heed what thou doest: for this man is a Roman.

30 On the morrow, because he would have known the certainty wherefore he was accused of the Jews, he loosed him from his bands, and commanded the chief priests and all their council to appear, and brought Paul down, and set him before them.

CHAPTER XXIII.

1 As Paul pleadeth his cause, 2 Ananias commandeth them to smite him. 7 Dissension among his accusers 11 God encourageth him. 14 The Jews' laying wait for Paul 20 is declared unto the chief captain. 27 He sendeth him to Felix the governor.

AND Paul, earnestly beholding the council, said, Men and brethren, I have lived in all good conscience before God until this day.[l]

2 And the high priest Ananias commanded them that stood by him to smite him on the mouth.[m]

3 Then said Paul unto him, God shall smite thee, thou whited wall: for sittest thou to judge me after the law, and commandest me to be smitten contrary to the law?[n]

4 And they that stood by said, Revilest thou God's high priest?

5 Then said Paul, I wist not, brethren, that he was the high priest: for it is written, Thou shalt not speak evil of the ruler of thy people.[o]

6 But when Paul perceived that the one part were Sadducees, and the other Pharisees, he cried out in the council, Men and brethren, I am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee: of the hope and resurrection of the dead I am called in question.[p]

7 And when he had so said, there arose a dissension between the Pharisees and the Sadducees: and the multitude was divided.

8 For the Sadducees say that there is no resur-was the Jewish doctrine of baptism. In no sense does baptism, if unaccompanied by the purifying influence of the Holy Spirit, wash away sin.

17. "I was in a trance:"—of this fact there is nothing said in the ninth chapter; but of the fact there can be no doubt, since we have here his own narration, and not that of the Evangelist.

21. "Far hence unto the Gentiles:"—it may be, as Alford says, that "the object of Paul in relating this vision appears to have been to show that his own inclination and prayer had been that he might preach the Gospel to his own people, but that it was by the imperative command of the Lord himself that he went to the Gentiles."

23. "Threw dust into the air:"—the very mention of the Gentiles as objects of the Divine favour roused their indignation to the highest pitch; and this displeasure was manifested by rending their garments, and throwing dust into the air, as symbolical of their perplexity and the bitterness of their wrath.

28. "Paul said, . . I was free born:"—but in what sense? Not as a native of Tarsus, for that city possessed no such privilege. The probability is, that either his father or some of his ancestors must have attained the right of citizenship, either by purchase, or as the reward of special service.

30. "Commanded the chief priests and all their council to appear:"—Alford thinks it "remarkable that the tribune in command should have had the power to summon the Sanhedrim." But why? If the Jews were the accusing party, and the Sanhedrim was the great ecclesiastical authority, what more natural or more just than that the tribune should summon them to appear, and let the Apostle make his defence in their hearing?

CHAPTER XXIII.

What dignity attaches to the Christian character! The noblest figure and the most commanding in the assembly into which we are here introduced is the man who stands accused. Every other figure becomes little and insignificant in contrast with him, and every utterance falls powerless when compared with his living word. The man, the Christian, and the Apostle are alike conspicuous in Paul.

1. "Lived in all good conscience;"—that is, he had kept the Mosaic law in its spirit; "for he is not a Jew, which is one outwardly; neither is that circumcision, which is outward in the flesh: but he is a Jew, which is one inwardly; and circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit, and not in the letter; whose praise is not of men, but of God." Hence says the Apostle, "before God," who looks to the heart.

5. "I wist not, brethren, that he was the high priest:"—we learn from rection, neither angel, nor spirit: but the Pharisees confess both.[a]

9 And there arose a great cry: and the scribes that were of the Pharisees' part arose, and strove, saying, We find no evil in this man: but if a spirit or an angel hath spoken to him, let us not fight against God.[b]

10 And when there arose a great dissension, the chief captain, fearing lest Paul should have been pulled in pieces of them, commanded the soldiers to go down, and to take him by force from among them, and to bring him into the castle.

11 And the night following the Lord stood by him, and said, Be of good cheer, Paul: for as thou hast testified of me in Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also at Rome.[c]

12 And when it was day, certain of the Jews banded together, and bound themselves [1]under a curse, saying that they would neither eat nor drink till they had killed Paul.[d]

13 And they were more than forty which had made this conspiracy.

14 And they came to the chief priests and elders, and said, We have bound ourselves under a great curse, that we will eat nothing until we have slain Paul.

15 Now therefore ye with the council signify to the chief captain that he bring him down unto you to morrow, as though ye would enquire something more perfectly concerning him: and we, or ever he come near, are ready to kill him.

16 And when Paul's sister's son heard of their lying in wait, he went and entered into the castle, and told Paul.

17 Then Paul called one of the centurions unto him, and said, Bring this young man unto the chief captain: for he hath a certain thing to tell him.

18 So he took him, and brought him to the chief captain, and said, Paul the prisoner called me unto him, and prayed me to bring this young man unto thee, who hath something to say unto thee.

19 Then the chief captain took him by the hand, and went with him aside privately, and asked him, What is that thou hast to tell me?

20 And he said, The Jews have agreed to desire thee that thou wouldest bring down Paul to morrow into the council, as though they would enquire somewhat of him more perfectly.[e]

21 But do not thou yield unto them: for there lie in wait for him of them more than forty men, which have bound themselves with an oath, that they will neither eat nor drink till they have killed him: and now are they ready, looking for a promise from thee.

22 So the chief captain then let the young man depart, and charged him, See thou tell no man that thou hast shewed these things to me.

23 And he called unto him two centurions, saying, Make ready two hundred soldiers to go to Cæsarea, and horsemen threescore and ten, and spearmen two hundred, at the third hour of the night;

24 And provide them beasts, that they may set Paul on, and bring him safe unto Felix the governor.

25 And he wrote a letter after this manner:

26 Claudius Lysias unto the most excellent governor Felix sendeth greeting.

27 This man was taken of the Jews, and should have been killed of them: then came I with an army, and rescued him, having understood that he was a Roman.[f]

28 And when I would have known the cause wherefore they accused him, I brought him forth into their council:[g]

29 Whom I perceived to be accused of questions of their law, but to have nothing laid to his charge worthy of death or of bonds.[h]

30 And when it was told me how that the Jews laid wait for the man, I sent straightway to thee, and gave commandment to his accusers also to say before thee what they had against him. Farewell.[i]

31 Then the soldiers, as it was commanded them, took Paul, and brought him by night to Antipatris.

32 On the morrow they left the horsemen to go with him, and returned to the castle:

33 Who, when they came to Cæsarea, and delivered the epistle to the governor, presented Paul also before him.

34 And when the governor had read the letter, he asked of what province he was. And when he understood that he was of Cilicia;[j]

35 I will hear thee, said he, when thine accusers are also come. And he commanded him to be kept in Herod's judgment hall.[k]

CHAPTER XXIV.

1 Paul being accused by Tertullus the orator, 10 answereth for his life and doctrine 24 He preacheth Christ to the governor and his wife. 26 The governor hopeth for a bribe, but in vain. 27 At last, going out of his office, he leaveth Paul in prison.

AND after five days Ananias the high priest descended with the elders, and with a certain orator named Tertullus, who informed the governor against Paul.[l]

2 And when he was called forth, Tertullus began to accuse him, saying, Seeing that by thee we enjoy great

Josephus that the office of high priest was vacant at that time; consequently, while various reasons are assigned for this reply, the most probable is that the Apostle would not recognise Ananias as entitled to the designation of high priest, as he had forfeited the office by some offence for which he was amenable to Roman authority; but finding, on his return from Rome, that the office was vacant—Jonathan, the high priest, having been murdered by Felix—Ananias, although deposed from office, assumed its sacred functions; which assumption, it is presumed, our Apostle refused to acknowledge, and hence the terms in which he addressed him: "God shall smite thee, thou whited wall." If the language of the Apostle be considered [illegible] and offensive, it must be borne in mind that Ananias had inflicted upon Paul one of the greatest indignities to which a resident in the East can be subjected—that of striking him on the mouth when speaking. This, according to Oriental customs, was declaring the speaker to be a worthless character, unworthy of belief. The offended Apostle saw before him a man violating the laws of the empire by a self-restoration to the high priesthood, and also violating the rules of justice while professing to administer justice. To rebuke the offender, the Apostle uttered in his presence not a rash and angry malediction, but a prophecy, foretelling that the smiter would himself be smitten. His future conduct marked the depravity of the man. Ananias afterwards became one of Paul's accusers, and endeavoured to assassinate him; but God preserved the life of his servant, and five years after he caused the prediction to be fulfilled. A tumult arose, and Ananias discovered that the excited multitudes were urged on by his own son. In their rage they reduced the high priest's house to ashes, and Ananias attempted to conceal himself in an old aqueduct, but he was dragged from his hiding-place and put to death.

14. "Came to the chief priests and elders;"—that is, of course, such of them as were Sadducees, or sympathisers with the Sadducean party in their opposition to Paul and his doctrine.

23. "Two hundred soldiers:"—these were the ordinary heavy-armed legionary soldiers, but distinct from the horsemen and the spearmen mentioned immediately afterwards. These spearmen may have been either lancers, or a kind of military lictors, or some light-armed troops.

35. "To be kept in Herod's judgment hall."—Felix, the procurator, resided in what was formerly the palace of Herod the Great, and this hall was a building attached to the palace.

CHAPTER XXIV.

1. "After five days:"—according to the eleventh verse, twelve days had elapsed since he went up to Jerusalem; so that this must have been the fifth day from the time of his departure from Antipatris to Cæsarea.

"With the elders:"—not the whole of them, but only a representative number, with power to act for the whole.

and a mover of sedition among all the Jews throughout the world, and a ringleader of the sect of the Nazarenes:[a]

6 Who also hath gone about to profane the temple: whom we took, and would have judged according to our law.[b]

7 But the chief captain Lysias came upon us, and with great violence took him away out of our hands,[c]

8 Commanding his accusers to come unto thee: by examining of whom thyself mayest take knowledge of all these things, whereof we accuse him.[d]

9 And the Jews also assented, saying that these things were so.

10 Then Paul, after that the governor had beckoned unto him to speak, answered, Forasmuch as I know that thou hast been of many years a judge unto this nation, I do the more cheerfully answer for myself:

11 Because that thou mayest understand, that there are yet but twelve days since I went up to Jerusalem for to worship.[e]

12 And they neither found me in the temple disputing with any man, neither raising up the people, neither in the synagogues, nor in the city:[f]

13 Neither can they prove the things whereof they now accuse me.

14 But this I confess unto thee, that after the way which they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and in the prophets:[g]

15 And have hope toward God, which they themselves also allow, that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust.[h]

16 And herein do I exercise myself, to have always a conscience void of offence toward God, and toward men.[i]

17 Now after many years I came to bring alms to my nation, and offerings.[j]

18 Whereupon certain Jews from Asia found me purified in the temple, neither with multitude, nor with tumult.[k]

19 Who ought to have been here before thee, and object, if they had ought against me.[l]

20 Or else let these same here say, if they have found any evil doing in me, while I stood before the council,

21 Except it be for this one voice, that I cried standing among them, Touching the resurrection of the dead I am called in question by you this day.[m]

22 And when Felix heard these things, having more perfect knowledge of that way, he deferred them, and said, When Lysias the chief captain shall come down, I will know the uttermost of your matter.[n]

23 And he commanded a centurion to keep Paul, and to let him have liberty, and that he should forbid none of his acquaintance to minister or come unto him.[o]

24 And after certain days, when Felix came with his wife Drusilla, which was a Jewess, he sent for Paul, and heard him concerning the faith in Christ.

25 And as he reasoned of righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come, Felix trembled, and answered, Go thy way for this time; when I have a convenient season, I will call for thee.

26 He hoped also that money should have been given him of Paul, that he might loose him: wherefore he sent for him the oftener, and communed with him.[p]

27 But after two years Porcius Festus came into Felix' room: and Felix, willing to shew the Jews a pleasure, left Paul bound.[q]

CHAPTER XXV.

2 The Jews accuse Paul before Festus. 8 He answereth for himself, 11 and appealeth unto Cæsar. 14 Afterwards Festus openeth his matter to king Agrippa, 23 and he is brought forth. 25 Festus clareth him to have done nothing worthy of death.

NOW when Festus was come into the province, after three days he ascended from Cæsarea to Jerusalem.

2 Then the high priest and the chief of the Jews informed him against Paul, and besought him,[r]

3 And desired favour against him, that he would send for him to Jerusalem, laying wait in the way to kill him.[s]

4 But Festus answered, that Paul should be kept at Cæsarea, and that he himself would depart shortly thither.

5 Let them therefore, said he, which among you are able, go down with me, and accuse this man, if there be any wickedness in him.[t]

3. "We accept it always."—accept what? The orator means to say, "Not only here in thy presence, but in all places, at all times, we acknowledge thy good and benignant rule.

5. "The sect of the Nazarenes"—this designation must have been put into his mouth by the Jews, who could not call them Christians, as this would have been to admit the pretensions and claims of Jesus, their Master. This is the only instance in which the Christians are so named.

10. "Many years a judge"—Felix was now in the seventh year of his procuratorship, and his intimate acquaintance with all questions of jurisprudence emboldened the Apostle to speak with all freedom. But how striking the contrast between the flattery and the falsehood of Tertullus, and the manly, dignified, truthful address of Paul! He stood erect before God and man.

19. "Who ought to have been here"—this was a master-stroke on the part of the Apostle. It being, as Alford says, "the custom of the Romans not to judge a prisoner without the accusers face to face," he deposes that his real accusers were the Asiatic Jews who first raised the cry against him in the Temple—not the Sanhedrim, who merely received him at the hands of others; and that these [Asiatic Jews] were not present."

20. "If they have found any evil doing in me:"—this is a Hebrew mode of expression, and is tantamount to "let them say what they have found wrong in my conduct."

22. "Having more perfect knowledge;"—that is, being in possession of all the facts of the case, he deferred any further proceedings till Lysias arrived. Whether he ever arrived does not appear.

24. "His wife Drusilla" is said to have been the daughter of Herod Agrippa. She was married to Azizus, king of Emesa; but Felix became enamoured of her beauty, and through the agency of a magician induced her to leave her husband, and live with him. It was, perhaps, to gratify Drusilla that he sent for Paul, to hear of the Christian faith.

27. "Porcius Festus came into Felix' room:"—Felix was deposed, and by his deposition was disgraced and degraded. The Jews having preferred some serious complaints against him, he wished, in leaving office, to conciliate and insure their good will. He therefore left Paul still bound and in prison. But in filling up that which was behind of the afflictions of Christ, we see in Paul how nobly there stood out the man in the Christian, and the Christian in the man.

CHAPTER XXV.

1. "Come into the province, after three days:"—properly speaking, Judea was only a procuratorship attached to the province of Syria. A part is taken

6 And when he had tarried among them [1]more than ten days, he went down unto Cæsarea; and the next day sitting on the judgment seat commanded Paul to be brought.

7 And when he was come, the Jews which came down from Jerusalem stood round about, and laid many and grievous complaints against Paul, which they could not prove.[a]

8 While he answered for himself, Neither against the law of the Jews, neither against the temple, nor yet against Cæsar, have I offended any thing at all.[b]

9 But Festus, willing to do the Jews a pleasure, answered Paul, and said, Wilt thou go up to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these things before me?[c]

10 Then said Paul, I stand at Cæsar's judgment seat, where I ought to be judged: to the Jews have I done no wrong, as thou very well knowest.

11 For if I be an offender, or have committed any thing worthy of death, I refuse not to die: but if there be none of these things whereof these accuse me, no man may deliver me unto them. I appeal unto Cæsar.[d]

12 Then Festus, when he had conferred with the council, answered, Hast thou appealed unto Cæsar? unto Cæsar shalt thou go.

13 And after certain days king Agrippa and Bernice came unto Cæsarea to salute Festus.

14 And when they had been there many days, Festus declared Paul's cause unto the king, saying, There is a certain man left in bonds by Felix:[e]

15 About whom, when I was at Jerusalem, the chief priests and the elders of the Jews informed me, desiring to have judgment against him.[f]

16 To whom I answered, It is not the manner of the Romans to deliver any man to die, before that he which is accused have the accusers face to face, and have licence to answer for himself concerning the crime laid against him.[g]

17 Therefore, when they were come hither, without any delay on the morrow I sat on the judgment seat, and commanded the man to be brought forth.[h]

18 Against whom when the accusers stood up, they brought none accusation of such things as I supposed:

19 But had certain questions against him of their own superstition, and of one Jesus, which was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alive.[i]

21 But when Paul had appealed to be reserved unto the [3]hearing of Augustus, I commanded him to be kept till I might send him to Cæsar.

22 Then Agrippa said unto Festus, I would also hear the man myself. To morrow, said he, thou shalt hear him.[j]

23 And on the morrow, when Agrippa was come, and Bernice, with great pomp, and was entered into the place of hearing, with the chief captains, and principal men of the city, at Festus' commandment Paul was brought forth.

24 And Festus said, King Agrippa, and all men which are here present with us, ye see this man, about whom all the multitude of the Jews have dealt with me, both at Jerusalem, and also here, crying that he ought not to live any longer.[k]

25 But when I found that he had committed nothing worthy of death, and that he himself hath appealed to Augustus, I have determined to send him.[l]

26 Of whom I have no certain thing to write unto my lord. Wherefore I have brought him forth before you, and specially before thee, O king Agrippa, that, after examination had, I might have somewhat to write.

27 For it seemeth to me unreasonable to send a prisoner, and not withal to signify the crimes laid against him.

CHAPTER XXVI.

2 Paul, in the presence of Agrippa, declareth his life from his childhood, 12 and how miraculously he was converted, and called to his apostleship. 24 Festus chargeth him to be mad, whereunto he answereth modestly. 28 Agrippa is almost persuaded to be a Christian. 31 The whole company pronounce him innocent.

THEN Agrippa said unto Paul, Thou art permitted to speak for thyself. Then Paul stretched forth the hand, and answered for himself:

2 I think myself happy, king Agrippa, because I shall answer for myself this day before thee touching all the things whereof I am accused of the Jews:

3 Especially because I know thee to be expert in all for the whole. In Festus, the newly-appointed consul, we see the busy, active, enterprising Roman. Only three days have elapsed since he entered on his duties, when he hastens to Jerusalem, makes himself familiar with the circumstances affecting the position of his prisoner, and in ten days more he is prepared to hear the whole case.

3. "Laying wait in the way to kill him."—the country abounded at this time with such ruffians and assassins, who were hired by others to seize and carry off their adversaries. Festus wisely refused this application to bring the Apostle to Jerusalem. His accusers had to go down to Cæsarea.

7. "Stood round about"—not around the Apostle, but the judgment-seat before which Paul stood.

8. "Neither against the law of the Jews," &c.:—these were the three grave charges preferred against him by the prosecution as conducted by Tertullus.—See chap. xxiv. 5, 6.

13. "King Agrippa and Bernice:"—this was Herod Agrippa II., the son of Agrippa, or Herod Agrippa I. who is mentioned in chapter xii. He was at Rome, and only seventeen years old, when his father died. Though he did not succeed to his father's kingdom, yet both Claudius and Nero gave him large territorial possessions, and allowed him the title of king. Agrippa made himself very unpopular with the Jews. He was attended on the occasion mentioned in the text by Bernice, or Berenice, his eldest sister. The incestuous marriages for which the Herods were proverbial are said to have had an example in the case of this Herod and Bernice. His coming to salute Festus, or to offer him his congratulations on being appointed proconsul, was, no doubt, to gain his favour.

21. "The hearing of Augustus:"—this prefix, AUGUSTUS, was first conferred by the senate on Octavianus, and claimed by all succeeding emperors.

22. "To morrow thou shalt hear him:"—Festus readily complied with the wish of Agrippa, who was the governor of the Temple; but whether it was merely to gratify his curiosity, or as something of national interest that Agrippa wished to hear, does not appear.

23. "Chief captains:"—these were the tribunes of the cohorts stationed at Cæsarea. What a spectacle is here! Paul stands up in the presence of the last King of the Jews, surrounded by all the local authorities, and the most brilliant assembly of the citizens, and preaches Christ the Crucified as the only Saviour of men!

19 Whereupon, O king Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision:

6. "The hope of the promise"—the promise refers to the Messiah, and this promise of a Saviour involved the hope of the resurrection. For the truth of this assumption Paul appeals to Agrippa.

10. "Many of the saints:"—strange that Paul should so designate the followers of Christ in such an assembly as this. But, as Stier says, "it belongs to the more confident tone of the speech, which he delivers, not as a prisoner defending himself, but as one being heard before those who were his auditors, not his judges."

11—18. We agree with Alford, who says: "There can be no question that Paul here condenses into one, various sayings of our Lord to him at different times in visions (chap. xxii 18—21) and by Ananias (chap. ix. 15). Nor can this, on the strictest view, be considered any deviation from truth. It is what all must more or less do who are abridging a narrative, or giving the general sense of things said at various times. There were reasons for his being minute and particular in the details of his conversion; that once related, the commission which he thereupon received is not followed into its details, but summed up as committed to him by the Lord himself."

and then to the Gentiles, that they should repent and turn to God, and do works meet for repentance.[a]

21 For these causes the Jews caught me in the temple, and went about to kill me.[b]

22 Having therefore obtained help of God, I continue unto this day, witnessing both to small and great, saying none other things than those which the prophets and Moses did say should come:[c]

23 That Christ should suffer, and that he should be the first that should rise from the dead, and should shew light unto the people, and to the Gentiles.[d]

24 And as he thus spake for himself, Festus said with a loud voice, Paul, thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad.[e]

25 But he said, I am not mad, most noble Festus; but speak forth the words of truth and soberness.

26 For the king knoweth of these things, before whom also I speak freely: for I am persuaded that none of these things are hidden from him; for this thing was not done in a corner.

27 King Agrippa, believest thou the prophets? I know that thou believest.

28 Then Agrippa said unto Paul, Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian.

29 And Paul said, I would to God, that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day, were both almost, and altogether such as I am, except these bonds.[f]

30 And when he had thus spoken, the king rose up, and the governor, and Bernice, and they that sat with them:

31 And when they were gone aside, they talked between themselves, saying, This man doeth nothing worthy of death or of bonds.[g]

32 Then said Agrippa unto Festus, This man might have been set at liberty, if he had not appealed unto Cæsar.[h]

1 Paul shipping toward Rome, 10 foretelleth of the danger of the voyage, 11 but is not believed. 14 They are tossed to and fro with tempest, 41 and suffer shipwreck, 22, 34, 44 yet all come safe to land.

AND when it was determined that we should sail into Italy, they delivered Paul and certain other prisoners unto one named Julius, a centurion of Augustus' band.[i]

2 And entering into a ship of Adramyttium, we launched, meaning to sail by the coasts of Asia; one Aristarchus, a Macedonian of Thessalonica, being with us.[j] which the Apostle spoke, as well as the supernatural truth which he enunciated, so startled and confounded the proconsul, that he could resolve the manner and the matter of his prisoner into nothing less than mental hallucination or aberration of mind. Festus was a total stranger to the truth uttered, and therefore was not in a position to understand or appreciate the fervour and the elevation of the man of God.

31. "Nothing worthy of death or of bonds:"—a remarkable deliverance from the mouth of a Jew, and of a Jewish king. Thus by Roman law and by Jewish authority he stood acquitted; but he had appealed to Cæsar, and to Cæsar he must go. Two years had nearly rolled away since an arrest had been put upon his labours; but he was not impatient. He felt that if it were the will of God that time should intervene, he ought to rest and acquiesce. Besides, the wave which had receded would, on its return, touch a point still higher and more advanced. Rome is now before him as his goal.

CHAPTER XXVII.

1 "That we should sail:"—in all likelihood, Luke remained in Jerusalem or its vicinity during the time of Paul's imprisonment, and now joins him again, and accompanies him to Rome.

2. "Adramyttium" was a seaport in the Athenian colony of Mysia, opposite to the island of Lesbos, in the north-west of Asia Minor.

"Aristarchus:"—see chap. xix. 29; xx. 4; Col. iv. 10, and Philemon 24.

4. Cyprus is a large island in the Mediterranean, with Cilicia on the north, and Syria on the east. It is about 140 miles in its greatest length, and 50 in its greatest breadth. From a very early period it was famous for its varied mineral and vegetable productions, and also for its worship of Venus. Our word "copper" is believed to have been derived from the word Cyprus, because that metal was so abundant there. It is supposed that its first inhabitants were a Phenician colony, and that it is the Chittim of the Old Testament. On many accounts the island attracted merchants and settlers

3 And the next day we touched at Sidon. And Julius courteously entreated Paul, and gave him liberty to go unto his friends to refresh himself.[a]

4 And when we had launched from thence, we sailed under Cyprus, because the winds were contrary.

5 And when we had sailed over the sea of Cilicia and Pamphylia, we came to Myra, a city of Lycia.

6 And there the centurion found a ship of Alexandria sailing into Italy; and he put us therein.

7 And when we had sailed slowly many days, and scarce were come over against Cnidus, the wind not suffering us, we sailed under [1]Crete, over against Salmone;

8 And, hardly passing it, came unto a place which is called The fair havens; nigh whereunto was the city of Lasea.

9 Now when much time was spent, and when sailing was now dangerous, [2]because the fast was now already past, Paul admonished them,

10 And said unto them, Sirs, I perceive that this voyage will be with [3]hurt and much damage, not only of the lading and ship, but also of our lives.

11 Nevertheless the centurion believed the master and the owner of the ship, more than those things which were spoken by Paul.

12 And because the haven was not commodious to winter in, the more part advised to depart thence also, if by any means they might attain to Phenice, and there to winter; which is an haven of Crete, and lieth toward the south west and north west.

13 And when the south wind blew softly, supposing that they had obtained their purpose, loosing thence, they sailed close by Crete.

14 But not long after there [4]arose against it a tempestuous wind, called Euroclydon.

15 And when the ship was caught, and could not bear up into the wind, we let her drive.

16 And running under a certain island which is called Clauda, we had much work to come by the boat:

17 Which when they had taken up, they used helps, undergirding the ship; and, fearing lest they should fall into the quicksands, strake sail, and so were driven.

18 And we being exceedingly tossed with a tempest, the next day they lightened the ship;

19 And the third day we cast out with our own hands the tackling of the ship.[b]

20 And when neither sun nor stars in many days appeared, and no small tempest lay on us, all hope that we should be saved was then taken away.

21 But after long abstinence Paul stood forth in the midst of them, and said, Sirs, ye should have hearkened unto me, and not have loosed from Crete, and to have gained this harm and loss.

22 And now I exhort you to be of good cheer: for there shall be no loss of any man's life among you, but of the ship.

23 For there stood by me this night the angel of God, whose I am, and whom I serve,[c]

24 Saying, Fear not, Paul; thou must be brought before Cæsar: and, lo, God hath given thee all them that sail with thee.

25 Wherefore, sirs, be of good cheer: for I believe God, that it shall be even as it was told me.[d]

26 Howbeit we must be cast upon a certain island.[e]

27 But when the fourteenth night was come, as we were driven up and down in Adria, about midnight the shipmen deemed that they drew near to some country;

28 And sounded, and found it twenty fathoms: and when they had gone a little further, they sounded again, and found it fifteen fathoms.

29 Then fearing lest we should have fallen upon rocks, they cast four anchors out of the stern, and wished for the day.

30 And as the shipmen were about to flee out of the ship, when they had let down the boat into the sea, under colour as though they would have cast anchors out of the foreship,

31 Paul said to the centurion and to the soldiers, Except these abide in the ship, ye cannot be saved.

32 Then the soldiers cut off the ropes of the boat, and let her fall off.

33 And while the day was coming on, Paul besought them all to take meat, saying, This day is the fourteenth day that ye have tarried and continued fasting, having taken nothing.

34 Wherefore I pray you to take some meat: for this is for your health: for there shall not an hair fall from the head of any of you.[f]

35 And when he had thus spoken, he took bread, from all quarters, and its name is therefore continually met with in ancient authors, as a place of great trade, of rare fertility, and of peculiar sacredness. But the inhabitants wasted their time and wealth in luxury and effeminate habits, and passed in succession under the power of the Egyptians, Persians, Greeks, Romans, and Turks The church of Cyprus was long important, and its bishops are sometimes heard of in Christian history The capital of Cyprus was Salamis, and the chief Temple of Venus was at Paphos, where Paul preached Christ, and confounded Elymas (Acts xiii. 4—13)

5. "We came to Myra"—the direct course would have been south of Cyprus; but the wind being west or north-west, brought them under or to the lee of the island; and having sailed the whole length of the sea off Cilicia and Pamphylia, they came to Myra, a seaport of Lycia, and one of its principal cities, situated near the most southern cape of Asia Minor.

9 "The fast was now already past"—this was the solemn fast of the Day of Expiation, which was observed on the tenth day of TISRI, which was the seventh month of the Jewish ecclesiastical year, and the first of the civil year.

12. "Not commodious to winter in:"—although the haven offered a safe anchorage to a vessel situated or circumstanced as that in which the Apostle was, by sheltering it from the north-westerly winds which then prevailed, it did not protect from other adverse winds at other seasons of the year, and therefore was not to be trusted for the winter.

16. "A certain island which is called Clauda:"—this island is the same with our modern Gozzo; upon reaching which, "they availed themselves of the smooth water under its lee, to prepare the ship to resist the fury of the storm."

27. "In Adria:"—embracing not only the Venetian Gulf, but also the sea to the south of Greece.

41. "A place where two seas met."—we are told that "at the west end of St. Paul's Bay is an island—Salmoon, or Salmonetta—which is separated from the mainland by a channel of about one hundred yards wide, communicating with the outer sea;" and within this island, it is supposed, is the place where the ship struck.

There seems no reason to doubt that St. Paul was shipwrecked upon the coast of Malta, and in the part of it which is called after him "St. Paul's Bay." This bay lies upon the north-east side of the island, and exactly fulfils the conditions required by the text. As the bay is not very far from Valetta, it is often visited; and it is connected with various superstitious associations. One old tradition is, that since St. Paul shook the viper into the fire, no viper or other venomous reptile has been able to live in the island. The people say that St. Paul resided for three months in a cave or grotto, which now goes by his name. This cave, they say, has the miraculous property of not increasing in size, although portions of the stone are constantly carried away as relics. They say, too, that the earth and stones from this cave will drive away all and gave thanks to God in presence of them all: and when he had broken it, he began to eat.[a]

36 Then were they all of good cheer, and they also took some meat.

37 And we were in all in the ship two hundred threescore and sixteen souls.[b]

38 And when they had eaten enough, they lightened the ship, and cast out the wheat into the sea.

39 And when it was day, they knew not the land: but they discovered a certain creek with a shore, into the which they were minded, if it were possible, to thrust in the ship.

40 And when they had [1]taken up the anchors, they committed themselves unto the sea, and loosed the rudder bands, and hoised up the mainsail to the wind, and made toward shore.

41 And falling into a place where two seas met, they ran the ship aground; and the forepart stuck fast, and remained unmoveable, but the hinder part was broken with the violence of the waves.[c]

42 And the soldiers' counsel was to kill the prisoners, lest any of them should swim out, and escape.

43 But the centurion, willing to save Paul, kept them from their purpose; and commanded that they which could swim should cast themselves first into the sea, and get to land:

44 And the rest, some on boards, and some on broken pieces of the ship. And so it came to pass, that they escaped all safe to land.[d]

CHAPTER XXVIII.

1 Paul after his shipwreck is kindly entertained of the barbarians. 5 The viper on his hand hurteth him not. 8 He healeth many diseases in the island. 11 They depart towards Rome. 17 He declareth to the Jews the cause of his coming. 24 After his preaching some were persuaded, and some believed not. 30 Yet he preacheth there two years.

AND when they were escaped, then they knew that the island was called Melita.[e]

2 And the barbarous people shewed us no little kindness: for they kindled a fire, and received us every one, because of the present rain, and because of the cold.[f]

3 And when Paul had gathered a bundle of sticks, and laid them on the fire, there came a viper out of the heat, and fastened on his hand.

5 And he shook off the beast into the fire, and felt no harm.[g]

6 Howbeit they looked when he should have swollen, or fallen down dead suddenly: but after they had looked a great while, and saw no harm come to him, they changed their minds, and said that he was a god.[h]

7 In the same quarters were possessions of the chief man of the island, whose name was Publius; who received us, and lodged us three days courteously.

8 And it came to pass, that the father of Publius lay sick of a fever and of a bloody flux: to whom Paul entered in, and prayed, and laid his hands on him, and healed him.[i]

9 So when this was done, others also, which had diseases in the island, came, and were healed:

10 Who also honoured us with many honours; and when we departed, they laded us with such things as were necessary.[j]

11 And after three months we departed in a ship of Alexandria, which had wintered in the isle, whose sign was Castor and Pollux.

12 And landing at Syracuse, we tarried there three days.

13 And from thence we fetched a compass, and came to Rhegium: and after one day the south wind blew, and we came the next day to Puteoli:

14 Where we found brethren, and were desired to tarry with them seven days: and so we went toward Rome.

15 And from thence, when the brethren heard of us, they came to meet us as far as Appii forum, and The three taverns: whom when Paul saw, he thanked God, and took courage.

16 And when we came to Rome, the centurion delivered the prisoners to the captain of the guard: but Paul was suffered to dwell by himself with a soldier that kept him.[k]

17 And it came to pass, that after three days Paul called the chief of the Jews together: and when they were come together, he said unto them, Men and brethren, though I have committed nothing against reptiles, and cure any wounds they make. For many centuries Malta has been a stronghold of superstition and bigotry. The enlightened Christian regards the place with interest, as the probable scene of the Apostle's preservation, of one of his miracles, and of his preaching.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

4. "No doubt this man is a murderer:"—but, we ask, why? The Apostle had escaped death by shipwreck; but seeing the viper fasten itself on him, the people concluded that a righteous vengeance was pursuing him; and knowing, as they did, that the bite of the reptile was fatal, they concluded that he must have taken life, since life was now about to be taken from him. it was life for life.

6. "Should have swollen, or fallen down dead:"—natural results from the diffusion of the poison, and its circulation in the blood.

7. "Whose name was Publius:"—he is supposed to have been the legate of the prætor of Sicily, to whose province Malta belonged. The fact that Publius entertained Paul and his companions under his own roof for three days may be accounted for by the courtesy of Julius, the centurion of Augustus' band, to whom the charge of the Apostle had been committed (chap. xxvii. 1).

11. "Castor and Pollux:"—these sons of Jupiter and Leda were considered the tutelar deities of seamen.

12. "Landing at Syracuse."—this was a wealthy and important city on the eastern coast of the island of Sicily, and was in the direct course from Malta—about eighty miles—to Rome.

13. "Came to Rhegium:"—a maritime city of Italy, on the south-west point, about ten miles from Messina, in Sicily; to which, as the wind was westerly, they came by a circuitous sweep to Puteoli, which was sheltered in the Bay of Naples, and formed the principal port in Southern Italy. It was distant only some six or eight miles north-west from the city of Naples.

15. "When the brethren heard of us, they came to meet us as far as Appii forum:"—these brethren may have been Alexandrian Christians engaged in commerce.

St. Paul's friends met him, some at Appii Forum, and some at The Three Taverns, which were places on the Appian Way. Appii Forum seems to have been a town which formed a convenient halting-place for travellers between Rome, Capua, and Brundusium. It is named by Horace, and referred to by Antoninus, as forty-three miles from Rome. The Three Taverns, or Tres Tabernæ, was seven or eight miles nearer Rome, and is named by the people, or customs of our fathers, yet was I delivered prisoner from Jerusalem into the hands of the Romans.[a]

Cicero. The ruins of both these places are still pointed out. As for the Appian Way, or Via Appia, it was a very well known road, said to have been constructed, at vast expense, by Appius Claudius, more than 300 years B.C. This road led from Rome to Capua, and was paved with hard stones brought from a distance. The road passed out of Rome by the Porta Capena, or Capuan Gate, and was adorned on the right and left, for some distance, by temples, monuments, &c. At present, the Church of St. Sebastian, a principal entrance to the famous Catacombs, stands about two miles out of Rome, on the Appian Way. This Way is equally celebrated in the Pagan and in the Christian history of Rome.

CHAPTER I.

Rome, the renowned city of classical history, and Rome not less noted in the annals of the Church, has occupied a prominent position for upwards of 2,600 years. This famed city of Italy stands on the left bank of the river Tiber, and about sixteen miles from the Tuscan Sea; it is 860 miles from the capital of France, and 810 miles from the English metropolis.

4 And [1]declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead :[a]

5 By whom we have received grace and apostleship, [2]for obedience to the faith among all nations, for his name :[b]

6 Among whom are ye also the called of Jesus Christ :

7 To all that be in Rome, beloved of God, called to be saints : Grace to you and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.[c]

8 First, I thank my God through Jesus Christ for you all, that your faith is spoken of throughout the whole world.[d]

9 For God is my witness, whom I serve [3]with my spirit in the gospel of his Son, that without ceasing I make mention of you always in my prayers ;[e]

10 Making request, if by any means now at length I might have a prosperous journey by the will of God to come unto you.[f]

11 For I long to see you, that I may impart unto you some spiritual gift, to the end ye may be established ;[g]

12 That is, that I may be comforted together [4]with you by the mutual faith both of you and me.[h]

13 Now I would not have you ignorant, brethren, that oftentimes I purposed to come unto you, (but was let hitherto,) that I might have some fruit [5]among you also, even as among other Gentiles.[i]

14 I am debtor both to the Greeks, and to the Barbarians ; both to the wise, and to the unwise.[j]

15 So, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the gospel to you that are at Rome also.

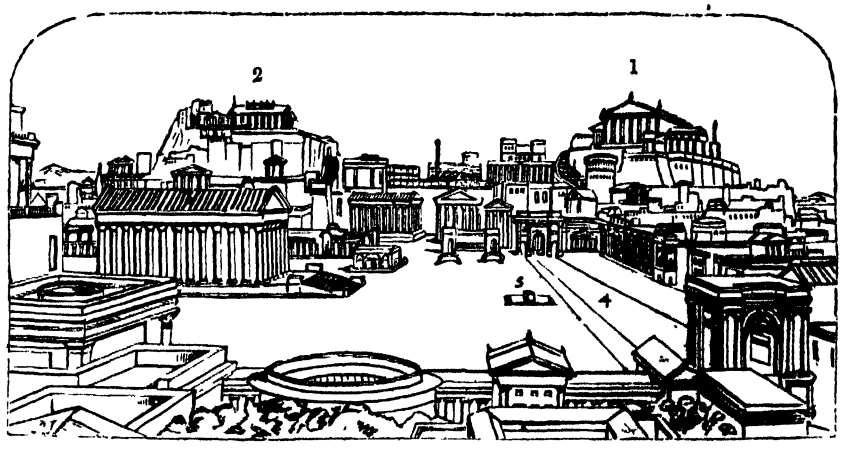
16 For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ : for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth ; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek.[k]

17 For therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith : as it is written, The just shall live by faith.[l]

18 For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who hold the truth in unrighteousness ;[m]

19 Because that which may be known of God is manifest [6]in them ; for God hath shewed it unto them.[n]

20 For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead ; [7]so that they are without excuse :[o]



21 Because that, when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful ; but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened.[p]

22 Professing themselves to be wise, they became fools,[q]

23 And changed the glory of the uncorruptible

It was founded by Romulus, 753 years before the Christian Era, and in the reign of Jotham, the eleventh king of Judah ; in the days of Isaiah, the Royal Prophet ; and during the reign of Pekah, the eighteenth king of Israel : yet the sacred writers of the Old Testament never mention the city of Rome.

Though small and mean at the beginning, the city received so many embellishments from the kings, consuls, patricians, dictators, triumviri, and the Cæsars, that no city in the world surpassed Rome in beauty. Every succeeding Emperor sought to increase its magnificence, or to add to its convenience. The improvements effected by Augustus were so numerous, that he was accustomed to boast "that he had found Rome a city of bricks, and had left it a city of marble." Several of the ancient edifices still remain to testify to the former grandeur of this city — a city which, in a remarkable manner, connects the world of modern history with the world of ancient times. The Pantheon, erected in the reign of Augustus, is still to be seen ; the Coliseum, the Baths of Diocletian, the triumphal arches, and the columns of Trajan and of other potentates, have also defied the destroying hand of Time. Some of these remains—as the arches of Severus, Titus, and Constantine ; the ruins of the temples of Vespasian and Saturn ; the Coliseum, &c.—appear in the engraving representing the Forum in its present state The ruins have preserved sufficient of their grandeur and of their beauty to carry the thoughts of the spectator back to the palmy days of the Roman Empire. The historian will reflect on the rise and fall of ancient Rome. The student of our national annals will think of Caractacus, one of Britain's noble-minded kings ; and the Christian will, by a train of thought, be led to contemplate the labours of Paul, and men of Apostolic minds, and the goodly company of the martyrs who testified, in defiance of Pagan persecutions, to the truth of the Christian faith. The engraving at the head of this epistle represents ancient Rome, the artist's conception of the city having been based on existing records and monuments.

The Epistle to the Romans, from its profound doctrinal statements, may be regarded as the key to all the other apostolic letters of St. Paul. Being addressed to a church composed of Jews and Gentiles, the great object of the Apostle is to set forth the equal sinfulness and unworthiness of both in the sight of God, and hence the equal indebtedness of both to his sovereign and redeeming grace in Christ Jesus, as the only Saviour of man.

The Church at Rome was not founded by our Apostle, but, in all probability, by some of his converts, who had been attracted thither as the centre of the world's power. Still, as the Apostle of the Gentiles, he identified himself immediately with it, and takes the liveliest interest in everything affecting its prosperity.

It is by some persons believed that this Epistle was written from Corinth, in the earlier part of A.D. 58.

1. "Called to be an apostle :"—it is to be remarked that, in his epistles, St. Paul resolves his call to the apostleship into the immediate will of God, without human intervention or agency in any form.

"Separated unto the gospel ;"—that is, set apart to the sublime work of preaching or making known the glad tidings of God's reconciling love.

2. "Which he had promised afore :"—in the words of St. John, "The testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy." The grand burden of all the prophecies is salvation through a coming Messiah or Redeemer. The first promise, no less than the last, points to Jesus as the Saviour of man.

4. "By the resurrection from the dead :"—his resurrection was the grand proof that he was what he professed to be—the Son of God and the Redeemer of the world ; and it became the pledge of the resurrection of all his followers.

5. "For obedience to the faith among all nations :"—the grace and apostleship which he had received from God through Christ were bestowed upon him as the herald of salvation to all nations ; and it was through his message that those nations were to embrace the new faith, thus yielding obedience to

God into an image made like to corruptible man, and to birds, and fourfooted beasts, and creeping things.[a]

24 Wherefore God also gave them up to uncleanness through the lusts of their own hearts, to dishonour their own bodies between themselves:[b]

25 Who changed the truth of God into a lie, and worshipped and served the creature [1]more than the Creator, who is blessed for ever. Amen.[c]

26 For this cause God gave them up unto vile affections: for even their women did change the natural use into that which is against nature:[d]

27 And likewise also the men, leaving the natural use of the woman, burned in their lust one toward another; men with men working that which is unseemly, and receiving in themselves that recompence of their error which was meet.

28 And even as they did not like [2]to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to [3]a reprobate mind, to do those things which are not convenient;[e]

29 Being filled with all unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, covetousness, maliciousness; full of envy, murder, debate, deceit, malignity; whisperers,

30 Backbiters, haters of God, despiteful, proud, boasters, inventors of evil things, disobedient to parents,

31 Without understanding, covenantbreakers, [4]without natural affection, implacable, unmerciful:

32 Who knowing the judgment of God, that they which commit such things are worthy of death, not only do the same, but [5]have pleasure in them that do them.[f]

the heavenly call, and by that obedience glorifying Christ. Hence he adds, in the next verse, "Among whom are ye also the called of Jesus Christ."

11. "I long to see you:"—Paul had not yet been to Rome; but he had heard enough of the faith and activity of the Christian converts in the imperial city to make him long to see them and commune with them.

12. "The mutual faith both of you and me:"—the "spiritual gift" which the Apostle wished to impart to the Romans was not any supernatural or miraculous power, but the positive benefit which might accrue to them as the subjects of divine life, in the increase of their faith, and love, and hope; and hence we find him here coming down from the higher ground of his apostleship, and, placing himself upon the level of a Christian brother, expressing the hope that, when they met and came into contact with each other, they might be mutually and reciprocally conscious of being strengthened and quickened in the life of faith.

14. "I am debtor;"—that is, as an apostle; whose commission embraced all nations, he owed to all a debt of labour. His ministry was not to be confined to any one portion of our fallen race.

16. "It is the power of God"—in Greece, which was the centre of the world's philosophy, Paul speaks of the Gospel as the wisdom of God; and in Rome, which was the centre of the world's might, he speaks of it as the power of God. In both it was the power of God, because it was the wisdom of God; and everywhere it was both the wisdom and the power of God, because it was God's living truth brought home and applied to the heart by his own Spirit.

17. "The righteousness of God:"—"the righteousness of God" is not God's inherent rectitude, but God's method of making righteous a sinner by virtue of the merits of another; and this method is revealed to awaken the faith or trust of the sinner as the condition of his pardon and acceptance.

18. "The wrath of God is revealed;"—in the effects which follow, even in this world, such a course of life and action as he describes.

23. The literal accuracy of what the Apostle here says might be proved by many facts. The Romans themselves worshipped many false gods, mostly, like those of Greece, in the human form. Such was Jupiter Capitolinus, represented in our engraving. Such also were Mars, Apollo, Venus, Diana, and others. Janus was represented with two faces; Terminus had a human head and shoulders, while the rest of the figure was a mere block; Vesta is supposed to have been represented by a meteoric stone. Many imaginary monsters were universally reverenced and worshipped in the old world, as in India at this day. None in old time, however, went so far as the Egyptians, who are ridiculed for their worship of the crocodile, the dog, and the ibis by pagan writers, like Juvenal. Christian authors also—as Clement of Alexandria—mention the fact. Clement says:—"Instead of the god whom we were anxious to see, we behold a cat, or a crocodile, or a common snake, or some such foul creature." Not only did they represent their gods by images of these things, and of the hawk, the beetle, the ram, the locust, the wolf, the wasp or bee, the dog, the bull, the swallow, the pike, and other animals, but they worshipped the animals themselves. They worshipped the animals either as gods, or as representing gods, or as inhabited by gods. One writer, at least, says they even worshipped the leek. They had sacred fishes, and sacred birds, reptiles, and quadrupeds. Whole cities were named after the particular worship which prevailed in them. Thus Cynopolis, from the worship of the dog, Lycopolis, from that of the wolf; Heliopolis, from that of the sun; Latopolis, from the worship of a sort of fish; Crocodilopolis, from that of the crocodile, and so forth. As it was said of Athens, so might it be said of Egypt—it was more easy to find a god than a man. The evidences of this sad abuse and evil are even now abundant. Myriads of idolatrous figures are to be seen in our museums. As specimens, our artist has selected a few, and these will be quite sufficient for our purpose. They speak for themselves; and it is no palliation of the sin of so preposterous a worship to say that they were typical of certain powers of nature, or qualities of mind. God never intended his creatures to be worshipped; but wherever men are left to what is called natural religion, such are the forms which worship assumes. Never can we be sufficiently thankful for Divine revelation; never too anxious that it may be published throughout the world, for the dark places of the earth are still full of these abominations in one form or another. God is a Spirit, and he seeketh such to worship him as will worship him in spirit and in truth.

CHAPTER II.

The Apostle having held up to the view a dark, sickening picture of the moral state of the heathen world, now turns to the Jews, and shows that whatever might be the external advantages of the descendants of Abraham, without an inward spiritual change they stood at the same moral distance from God as the most impure and degraded of the Gentiles; that it did not become them, therefore, to condemn others, since they themselves were under the condemnation of God. We must keep this fundamental position of the Apostle ever before our minds, or it will be impossible for us to interpret this profound and unspeakably precious Epistle.

1. "Whosoever thou art that judgest:"—this is addressed to the Jew, who was wont to condemn all Gentiles as unworthy of ever participating in the favour of God. He pronounced upon the sins of others, and yet was living in sin himself. Here was the inconsistency, and here lies the point of the Apostle's address.

2. "Judgment of God is according to truth:"—that is, proceeds according to the principles of unbending rectitude or justice.

4. "Despisest thou the riches of his goodness"—the Jew was more favoured than the Gentile; and yet, in the midst of revealed truth and obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, indignation and wrath,[a]

9 Tribulation and anguish, upon every soul of man that doeth evil, of the Jew first, and also of the [1]Gentile:[b]

10 But glory, honour, and peace, to every man that worketh good, to the Jew first, and also to the [2]Gentile:[c]

11 For there is no respect of persons with God.[d]

12 For as many as have sinned without law shall also perish without law: and as many as have sinned in the law shall be judged by the law;

13 (For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified.[e]

14 For when the Gentiles, which have not the law, do by nature the things contained in the law, these, having not the law, are a law unto themselves:

15 Which shew the work of the law written in their hearts, [3]their conscience also bearing witness, and their thoughts [4]the mean while accusing or else excusing one another;)

16 In the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ according to my gospel.[f]

17 Behold, thou art called a Jew, and restest in the law, and makest thy boast of God,[g]

18 And knowest his will, and [5]approvest the things that are more excellent, being instructed out of the law;[h]

19 And art confident that thou thyself art a guide of the blind, a light of them which are in darkness,[i] spiritual advantage, he went on sinning, condemning the poor Gentile in his darkness and ignorance, and denying him the possibility of salvation

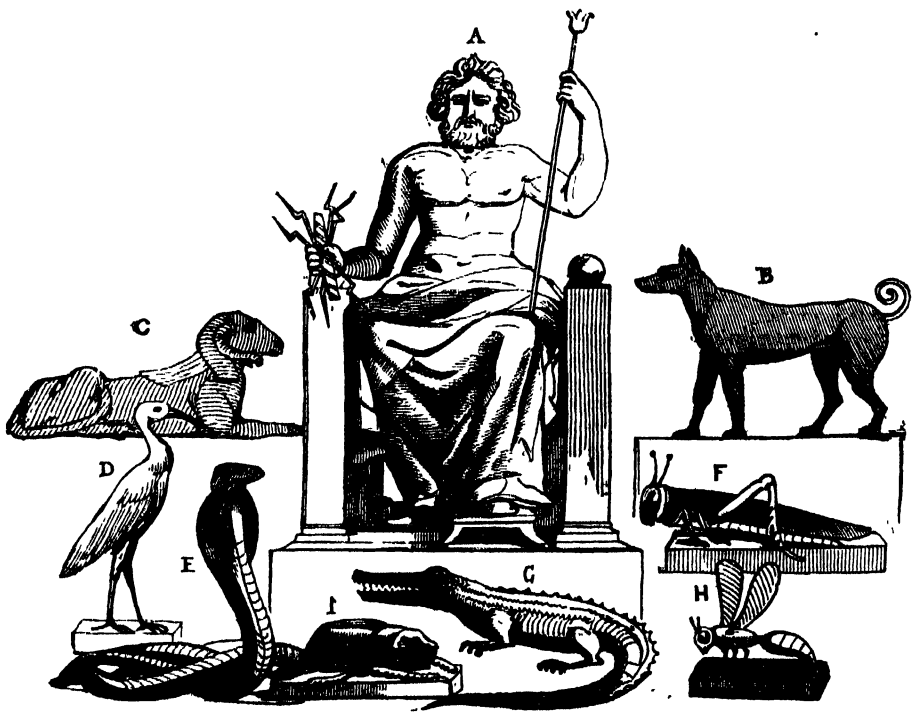
5. "Wrath against the day of wrath:"—there is a day of wrath, and in that day a heavier condemnation and a more terrible doom would fall upon the disobedient Jew than upon the ignorant Gentile.

10 "To the Jew first;" —that is, pre-eminently. His responsibility is according to his superior advantages, and according to both will be his final condemnation.

12. "Without law . . in the law;"—that is, in respect to the Gentile, who has no written or revealed law like the Jew, but the Jew is in possession of such a law, and therefore the last judgment shall proceed according to the moral position occupied by each The Gentile will not be judged by the law of the Jew, for he has it not, and the Jew will be without the excuse of the Gentile.

15. "Their thoughts accusing or else excusing one another." — according as the mind is enlightened and informed, or otherwise, will be the view of conscience in approving or condemning our actions; and according to the view of conscience again will be our subsequent thoughts or reflections. Hence the peace or the disquietude of the soul.

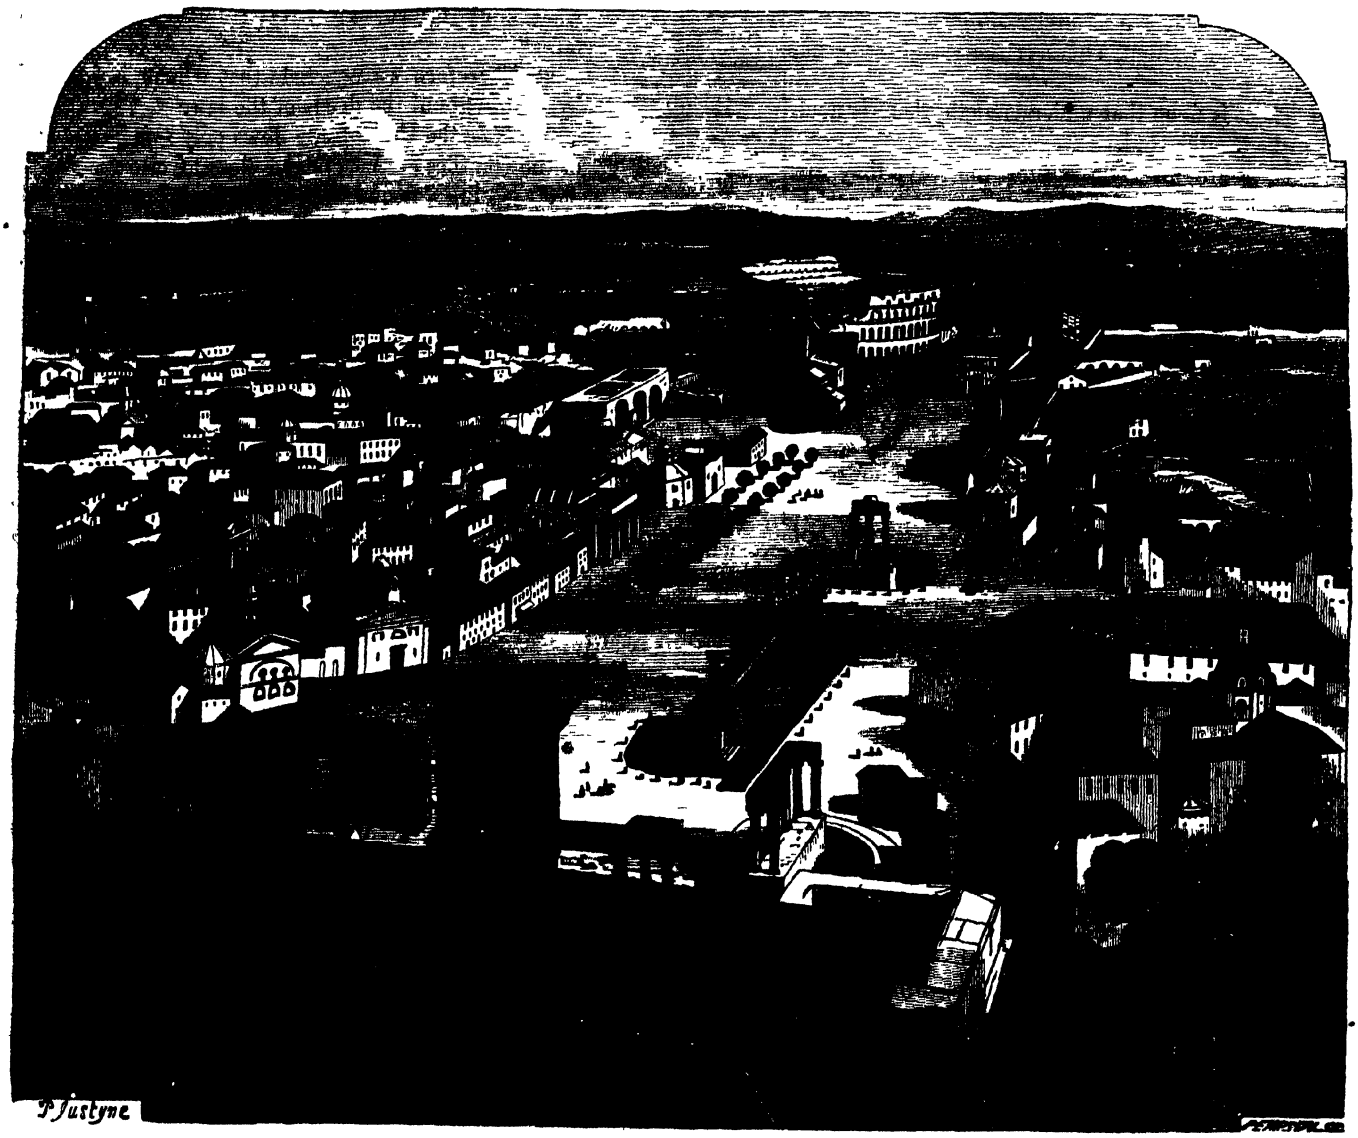
16. "In the day:"—this verse may be connected with the twelfth or the tenth, or perhaps with both. The Apostle carries us forward in thought and fact to the final issue of all human action.



"According to my gospel;"—that is, the gospel which had been intrusted to him as an Apostle, and which he was bound everywhere to proclaim.

17. "Thou art called a Jew."—this verse is intimately connected with the third. The Jew boasted of his nationality, and of the peculiar relation in which God stood to his nation, as "having taken it into covenant with himself;" and yet the Apostle here charges the Jew with the most positive disobedience to God and his law. He therefore was not, in a moral sense, in any better condition than the Gentiles, among whom were to be found some nobler, purer spirits, who, in the absence of a written law, yet did the things contained in the law.

19. "A guide of the blind:"—this was a designation assumed by the Pharisees, who laid claim to clearer light and superior knowledge.



22. "Dost thou commit sacrilege?" — or rob the Temple of that which belongs to the Temple, as devoted to God. Josephus tells us that the presents of Fulvia, a rich proselyte, were pilfered by the Jews, to whom these presents were intrusted.

25—29. "Circumcision profiteth, if thou keep the law:"—as the sign of the covenant, the Jew dwelt with peculiar pride and satisfaction on this national distinction; but the Apostle here demonstrates that circumcision without the keeping of the law could be of no possible avail; for true circumcision pertained not so much to the outward symbol in the flesh, as to the inward state of the heart,

Fearful that his meaning might be misunderstood, or lest any one should suppose that he depreciated the advantages which God had bestowed on the Jews as a nation, he now proceeds to put these advantages in the strongest light; but shows that the condition of faith attached to these advantages "had not been fulfilled by the mass of the nation; and although the promises of God, as such, had been accomplished notwithstanding their unbelief, yet the people of Israel had lost their theocratic prerogative; and the spiritual Israel alone, composed of Jews and Gentiles, had received the promise, as the true children of faithful Abraham."

no wise: for we have before [1]proved both Jews and Gentiles, that they are all under sin;[a]

10 As it is written, There is none righteous, no, not one:[b]

11 There is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God.

12 They are all gone out of the way, they are together become unprofitable; there is none that doeth good, no, not one.

27 Where is boasting then? It is excluded. By what law? of works? Nay: but by the law of faith.[n]

28 Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law.[o]

29 Is he the God of the Jews only? is he not also of the Gentiles? Yes, of the Gentiles also:

30 Seeing it is one God, which shall justify the circumcision by faith, and uncircumcision through faith.[p]

31 Do we then make void the law through faith? God forbid: yea, we establish the law.

CHAPTER IV.

1 Abraham's faith was imputed to him for righteousness, 10 before he was circumcised. 13 By faith only he and his seed received the promise. 16 Abraham is the father of all that believe. 24 Our faith also shall be imputed to us for righteousness.

WHAT shall we say then that Abraham our father, as pertaining to the flesh, hath found?[q]

2 For if Abraham were justified by works, he hath whereof to glory; but not before God.[r]

3 For what saith the scripture? Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness.[s]

4 Now to him that worketh is the reward not reckoned of grace, but of debt.[t]

5 But to him that worketh not, but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousness.[u]
